PROTEST FROM LOUISIANA

WE HAVE fallen from grace in the eyes of Donald B. Fiske, Louisiana exhibitor and cotton ginner. The operator of the Fiske at Oak Grove and the Lake at Lake Providence admits to surprise and disappointment, the cause tracing back a few weeks to a somewhat heated discussion on this page about Martin Dies and his tin horn crusading. Our deep South correspondent is surprised and disappointed "that a magazine which I have held in such high esteem should stoop so low as to run such an editorial."

This is his say:

"In the first place, every red-blooded American citizen who knows just what Mr. Dies is doing, realizes that his work is of value to the future welfare of our country.

"In the second place, your argument that certain pictures are not propaganda documents because certain organizations and newspapers approve them is ridiculous. Everyone familiar with the business knows that many pictures have been reeking with propaganda which, by the way, is very detrimental to the industry even should the particular propaganda not be objectionable to a large percentage of theatre patrons, for the motion picture theatre should be confined to amusement and entertainment and not the peddling of various propaganda.

"In the third place, just what good can you expect to come from such a cheap, dirty attack on Mr. Dies? Your purpose, of course, is to discredit him by heaping ridicule on him and his work, but you are showing exceedingly poor judgment if you think you will get any results from such tactics. In the hearts of untold millions of Americans, Mr. Dies is doing a great work in his efforts to rid our country of undesirable organizations and persons. The efforts of any individual, any publication or organization within the industry to discredit Mr. Dies and the work of his committee will only reflect upon the industry as a whole and, in the end, we who are connected with the industry will suffer as we always suffer when someone runs off at the mouth while his brain is asleep.

"If, as you intimate in your article, Mr. Dies is all wrong and everyone in Hollywood is above reproach in respect to un-American activities, then why all the hysteria? You should realize that an innocent person, or innocent group, has nothing to worry about from an investigation.

"The smart thing for the producers to do would be to stop the printing of such unjust editorials and invite and cooperate with the investigation. Let everyone within the industry stand on his record whether he be a top-ranking star, producer, writer or any other person. If he be guilty of aiding or affiliating with any of the man un-American activities in any way, the industry will be better off without him.

"There is one thing certain, and that is, that the hey day for un-American activities and organizations in this great country of ours has passed. Public sentiment is rapidly turning against the various types of radicals that have been ranting up and down the width and breadth of the nation and, the sooner the motion picture industry convinces the general public that its skirts are clean, the better it will be for everyone connected with the industry.

"You owe your readers an apology and, in the future, you will be doing the industry a great service if you will be less explosive in your attacks on public figures outside the industry."

In the very cause of less hysteria and more discerning reading, it is suggested Fiske take another look. He will find no intimation that Hollywood is above reproach. In fact, he will find a clear call upon Dies to name names and produce his evidence, if he can, and a simply voiced opinion that a handful of proven radicals cannot wreck this business. He will find a further assault on the generalities of Dies' charges, his evasions of the normal specifics—who, what, when and where?—and on his outrageous indictment of a whole industry without trial, for the possible infractions of a few.

But the communicant from Oak Grove apparently believes the Dies method correct; his letter indicates so. We think otherwise. When it becomes necessary to decide between a vague, but damaging, attack protected by congressional immunity and the integrity of our own industry, we're with the industry.

Deep to the hilt.

ALL EFFORTS DIRECTED TOWARD SETTLEMENT TO PERMIT START BY NEW SELLING SEASON

Principles Into Specific Form as Exploration For Key Continues

NEW YORK—The pivotal figures in negotiations looking toward a settlement of the all-industry suit are concentrating their drive on an agreement which would merge the effective date with the launching of the 1940-41 selling season.

It is understood this proviso constitutes one of the keys in the three-cornered deliberations in which the principals are officials of the departments of commerce and justice and the executives of the theatre-owning majors.

Mathematically, this would be five of the old-line companies. Actually, it is four. Warner, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox and RKO view the proposals through the same eyes. Paramount, the largest factor in exhibition, thus far stands removed and, while that company is on the sideline, it is still in the field as an explorer of settlement formulas and their potential effect on its future.

Lawyers representing the more active participants continue to spend their weekends in Washington conferring with government officials.

Principles are being removed from general to specific form.

So, too, now are the segments of what may be the final picture taking more concrete character.

All approaches have to be made with an awareness of two vital factors. One is the possibility—a strong one—that the settlement may never be reached. The other is that some of the fundamentals now regarded as agreed upon may undergo changes in interpretation and in language, but not in intent.

Provided, however, the basic principles already accepted by Warner, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox and RKO jell, a future description of what the industry may look like would run along these lines:

In its general outline, the face and the body would remain completely recognizable, but the clothing might look a bit different. The distributor would sell in small blocks of completed pictures, each member of the block to be trade shown before marketed. Whether it would be blocks of five, or less, is a point yet to be determined, but, regardless of final accord, it would be established that full line sales are definitely out.

Series of Checks

The distributor, who is also an exhibitor, would continue as in the past. Theatre divorcement would be passed by, but placed into effect would be a series of restrictions, the effect of which would be to maintain circuit power in its present groove but freeze unbridled expansion at the expense of other exhibitors. The idea, in short, is to keep the industry functioning within its existing structure, but to check, if not remove, some of the clutterings.

In terms of circuits, regardless of who owns, controls or operates them, this envisions specific imposts from which there could be no variance in that the distributor, as the holder of the film copyright, would be responsible as signatory to the consent decree now under consideration. In short, the reins would be placed in the distributors' hands; also the responsibility.

Thus, where a better theatre in any location complains of unfair treatment and a sustained inability to get product because of chain competition, the issue would go before an arbitrator for determination. If the award goes to the complaining exhibitor, the distributor would agree not to sell the circuit house as part of any mass buy, but to sell that theatre under separate contract. This would permit the complaining theatre to enter into competitive bidding for the service and remove from the circuit offender its current advantage of obtaining film as part of an overall deal.

The understanding is this proposal has been responsible for prolonged sessions in which argument and speculation have played outstanding roles. The argument enters in that circuit men affiliated with the majors experienced great difficulty in attempting to appraise future operations under such a formula. The speculation enters in that earlier they were unable to figure where a startling change of this character might lead in its impact on the size and efficacy of their holdings.

It seems apparent new conditions in exhibition would result. There are some who foresee the creation of many new first runs around the country and a general moving up the line of theatres which now

4 Companies Reported Committed to Decree

New York—Warner, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox and RKO are reported to have committed themselves to acceptance of a settlement of the all-industry suit under the principles discussed and already reduced to specific language. Paramount, thus far, is the only theatre-owning producer and distributor which has not made its decision.

The settlement, it is believed, would take the form of a consent decree which later would not carry that designation provided settlement provisions are incorporated in a modified and re-written Neely bill.

Would Freeze Unbridled Circuit Expansion; No Divorcement

EXISTING INDUSTRY STRUCTURE WOULD STAY UNALTERED, BUT ITS MALPRACTICES CHECKED

follow the first runs. The future, likewise, appears to hold an automatic adjustment of clearances in situations like these and a general relieving of onerous zoning conditions about which so much complaint has reached distributors and the department of justice.

It is also being predicted this plan would de-freeze competition by placing all distributors in a position where active bidding would result in higher film rentals in these prospective situations. But similarly, it would place exhibitors who fit into this phase of the picture in the position of acquiring product which they may not have had before or, if they have, of getting it first run or faster. Aside from scattered situations where a distributor may have been involved with a circuit because of terms and thus sold away, a buying setup of this nature would be new to the industry in its latter day operations.

The government, evidently determined to block indiscriminate circuit practices, seems to be fully aware of the pitfalls which a proposal of this nature presents. Therefore, there would be set up clear-cut checks on the manner by which circuits would be permitted to buy. The day of the master contract would be irrevocably doomed.

No Blanket Deals

No longer would it be possible for a national circuit head and a national sales manager to make a deal blanketing the country from a desk in New York. Buying would be confined to exchange territories and strict prohibitions imposed upon circuit head and distributor against using the terms of one deal to influence the terms of another deal in a different section. Reduced to cases in point, for instance, Fox Wisconsin would buy in Milwaukee for its theatres served by Milwaukee, FWC in Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and Denver; the Schine circuit no longer would be permitted to buy out of Gloversville, or New York, for its theatres in Ohio or along the eastern shore of Maryland. What happens in San Francisco, on this basis, could have no bearing on negotiations under way in New York, in reverse or in any other combination.

All circuits would be subject to the formula because the control, it is important to repeat, would rest with the distributor who must conform if he would avoid facing federal contempt as a violator of a consent decree.

The circuit restriction, it is proposed, would go further to include chain additions, without respect to the manner by which the additions come into being. It would make no difference whether a circuit leased, acquired, built or rebuilt a house, for, in those instances, the distributor would agree to view such theatre as an additional house, not originally part of the circuit and, consequently a situation where his film must be sold individually and apart from the chain. This, of course, at once would give the competing exhibitor an opportunity to deal for the product.

Into Several Points

This latter proposal, on the other hand, would break down into several considerations. Where a discontinued theatre is replaced with a newly acquired house in the same location, it would continue to get service as part of the group of which it is a member provided the new seating capacity is not 25 per cent greater than that of the discontinued house. This, theatre, in other words, would not be regarded as an additional house to be sold independently of the circuit. On the other hand, if the substituted theatre emerges with a capacity 25 per cent greater than the house it replaced, the substitution would be construed an additional theatre which then would have to compete with its opposition for product. However, if additional theatres were combined under one ownership on or before the effective date of the decree and that proprietorship continued thereafter, the distributor would retain the privilege of selling these houses as part of a circuit and the chain, in turn, would have the right to expect it.

All points at issue are to be determined by arbitration. While one-man boards have been discussed, the possibility exists that boards of three will be adopted. The distributor and the exhibitor might select one each and both agree on a third, impartial member not identified with, or financially interested in, the business. Which method is adopted now seems to be of little concern in the belief the impartial member would be determining factor whether on his own or grouped with others.

While no appeal board is in contemplation, there would be named a national administrator, or arbitrator, on whom final decision would rest. It would become entirely logical, although not necessarily a development at that juncture, for Judge Henry W. Goddard who has been assigned the case to name the top man in arbitration, if, when and as the decree is entered in federal court here in New York.

A fuller explanation of the earlier reported angle dealing with a statute to end the case bears on the possibility that a consent decree, as such, may not remain in the final case history of the litigation provided its essential clauses wend their way into a rewritten Neely bill.

The procedure in this direction is reported to be lacking in crystal-clear definition. Heard, however, are intentions of the departments of commerce and justice to present briefs to Congress in which both would unite in urging a law to replace the Neely measure with the consent decree thunder, of course, as the basis of such a statute. An impression given credence is that this combination front, plus an open, or perhaps tacit, approval of the administration in general might prove sufficiently weighty to insure passage of such a statute.

Efforts also would be made to induce administration wheel horses to get behind the proposed statute by stressing the "highly technical" makeup of the business which, now, presumably, has made up its mind how it wants to conduct itself in the future. Whether or not this tactic would be sufficient to turn the trick is questionable in Washington, at least. Yet, those who lean in the direction of the settlement, via decree and ultimate law, seemingly are not in doubt.

Study Enabling Need

The whole theory of federal statute reputedly revolves around the question whether or not enabling legislation might not be deemed necessary to avoid any attacks on the legality of the consent decree highlights. If it develops, the possibility is the restrictive arrangements determined upon would be broadened. This eventuality is not viewed as remote and would allow more sweeping impositions than would be legally possible under a decree formula.

An impasse on a method of setting up arbitration boards seriously impedes the negotiations in their current stage. The original formula of one-man boards is reported abandoned and, while panels of three find greater favor, there exists dissatisfaction over this plan as well.

A final issue very importantly concerns Paramount. A consent decree carries with it suggestions, if nothing more, of an agreement on the part of an industry to sweeten its future business deportment. But it also suggests a majority wants it. With Paramount out, if this finally proves to be the case, the question is whether or not the remaining four exhibitor-producer-distributors muster sufficient strength, numerically and otherwise, to make a decree possible.

Commerce Dep't Into Neely Bill

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Both commerce and the justice departments have been asked for an expression of their views of the Neely bill. They have delayed making reports because, if a consent decree is entered in the all-industry suit, there will be no immediate need for the bill, according to

Notes to You from Red Kann

THE PLAIN unvarnished about Abe Montague and how he avoided long hair and musicianship for a career which finally lodged him in New York as a national sales manager appears to carry a sequel. Hy Fine, of M. and P. Theatres in Boston and one of the principal characters, tells it. And with vast amusement, too:

"Just read your interesting article about Abe Montague. Since the late Mr. Cronin couldn't possibly have given you the data, there is but one conclusion. Abe is the babe!

"So here's where I come in. I don't object to your reference to my early career as a violinist. I'm earning an honest living now, and truth is truth! Good or bad, I played the thing with my tongue in my cheek. But, listen—

"Every time he played the piano, he stuck his tongue out. If one called his attention to it, he messed up whatever he was playing. And, brother, when I say 'messed it up,' I ain't braggin.' If there's any truth to the rumor that he still pats the ivories on occasion, try to get yourself invited. Wait 'till he's well into the second eight bars and, by that time, the tongue will start wig-wagging. Just say, 'Your tongue's hangin', Abe' and prepare yourself for the doggondest sounds that ever reached your ears. It'll be awful—in spades. You call him a 'musician?' Listen to this: First forget Mal Hallett played with us. If Abe told you that, he's forgotten the facts. Mal never played with us. We were a twosome. But louzy!

"One night someone planted a pail of stale lithograph paste outside the windows of our dance hall. The wind was just right. First I blamed Abe. Then he blamed me. When husbands began to move away from their wives, we investigated and found the real cause.

"I'm not saying our music smelled much better. I'm just admitting that the world owes me a vote of thanks for quitting early in life. As for Abe—I think I could learn to enjoy the odor of stale paste.

"Yours for fidelity in advertising."

Unsatisfactory

The grapevine leading out of the west coast into New York carried rumors that Jules Levy, onetime sales manager who succumbed to production glitter, had reached a sort of crossroads. Since the celluloid dark ages, Levy had been the name. Since Hollywood, it's Levey. This seemed to call for an explanation. Here is Jules':

"I thought you knew that, when one becomes part of the 'Promised Land or Land of Promises'—Hollywood—, he gives himself up completely to his great public.

"I don't know what you have heard through the grapevine, but adding or subtracting one letter in a name is inconsequential to what really happens to a guy out here."

Explanation rejected. Grounds: Smacks of Hollywood approach by dodging the issue.

Salute!

"Rebecca," a very swell film, drives another nail home in the cause of that all-vital basic: the story. It has twists surprisingly unexpected. It has overtones of mystery, yet it is not a mystery at all. The whole construction and the manner of development by Daphne Du Maurier are tied high and taut to the melodramatic kite so expertly that the result becomes an engrossing experience.

However, the chief and pleasantest surprise is the performance of Joan Fontaine as Mrs. De Winter. Her grasp of the shadings of a difficult role propels her into the vanguard of Hollywood's few capable young actresses. She is excellent.

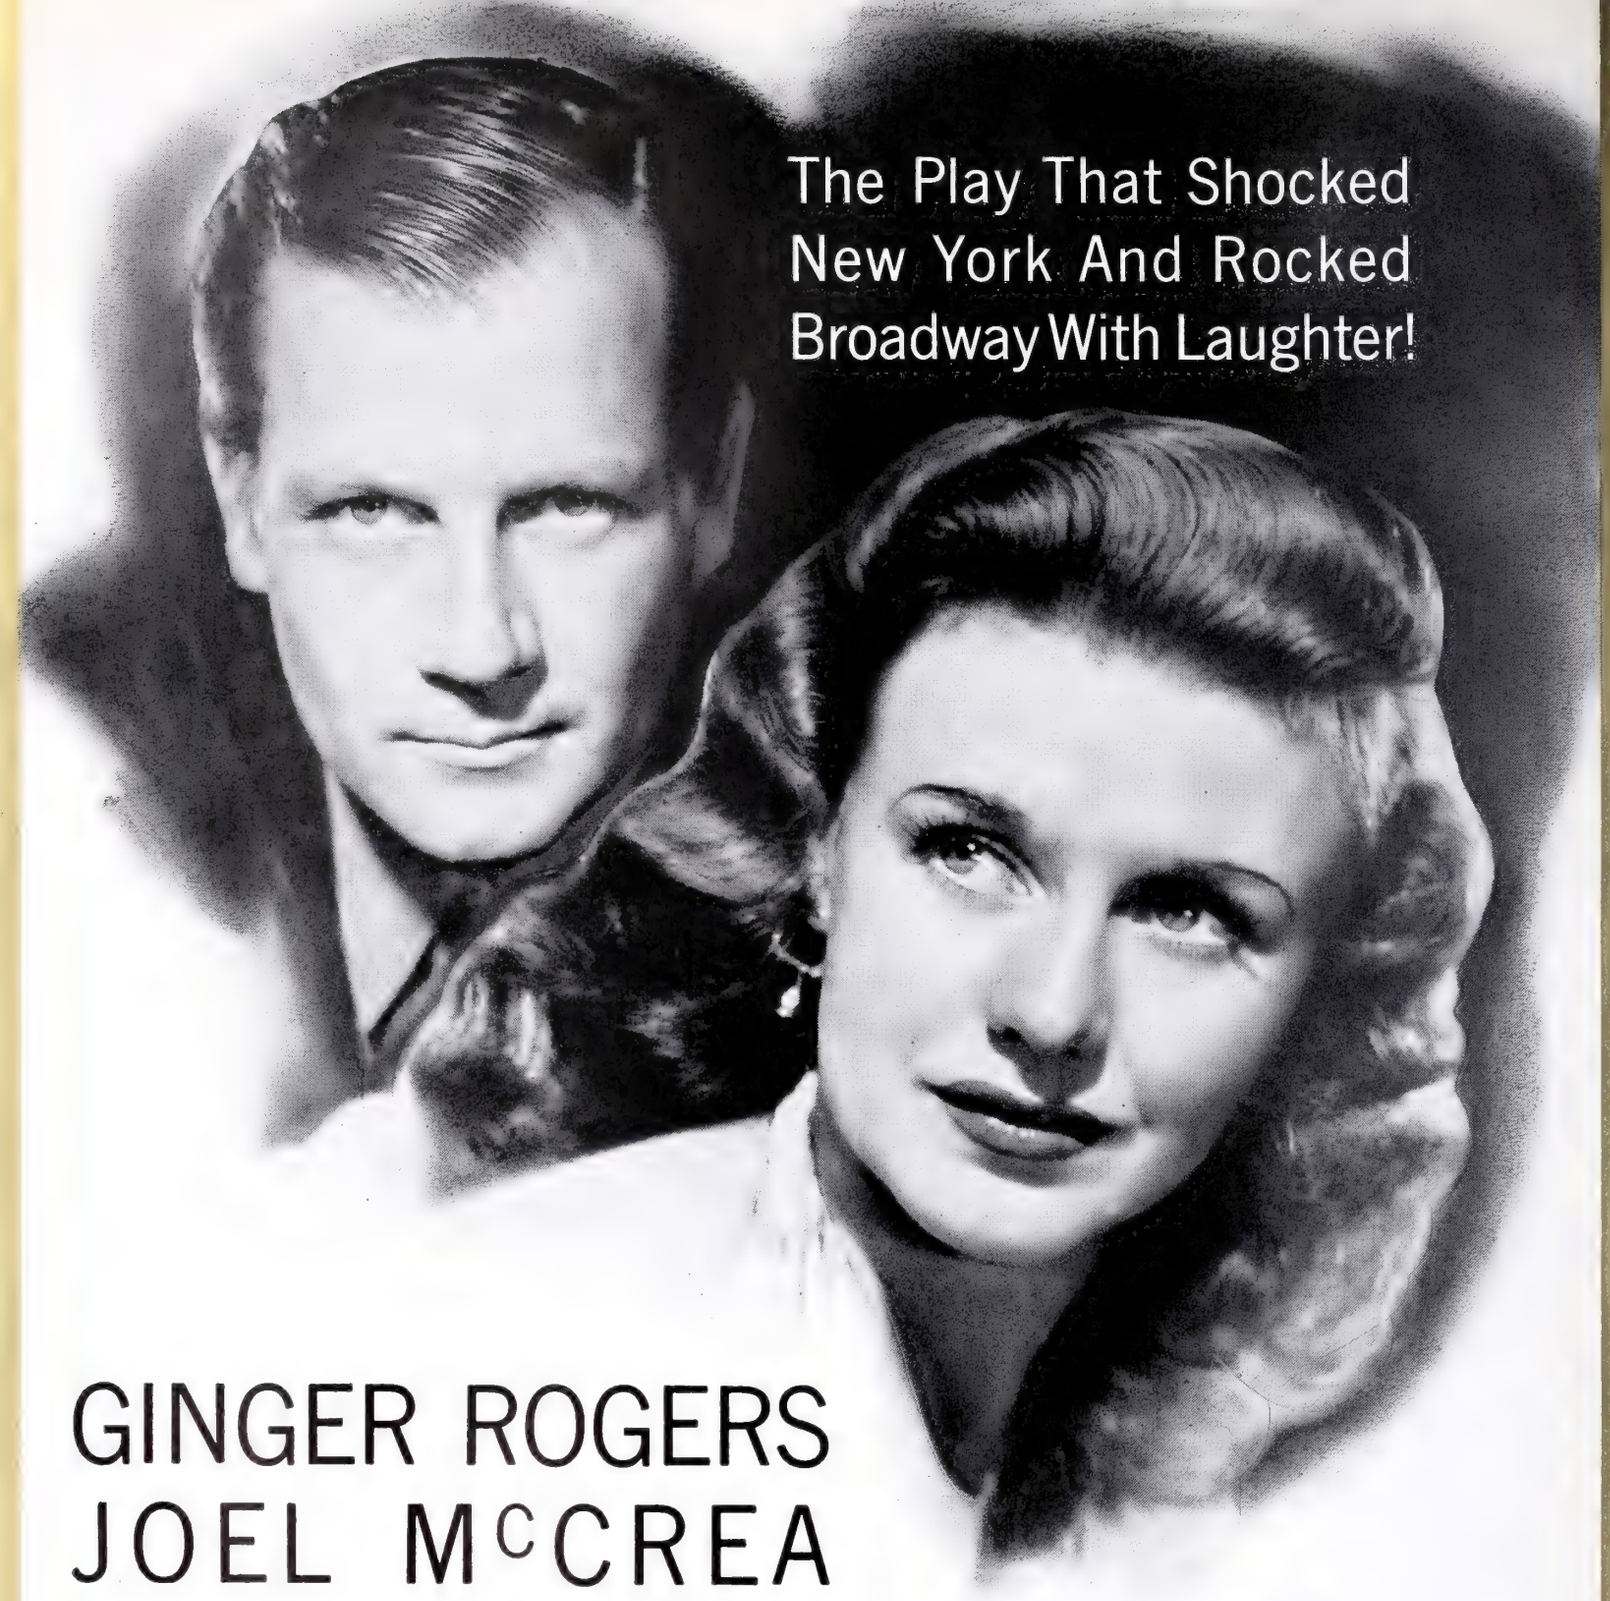
Earthquake-Like

By a Carnegie grant, Leo Rosten for some time now has been conducting the Motion Picture Research Project in Hollywood. When he finishes, he expects to know what makes production, distribution and exhibition tick—a something which idle wonderment has been curious about on occasion. Some of the conclusions, also may prove sensational:

"So sensational," it was remarked, "that it may shake the Carnegie Fund to its very foundations."

This is supposed to be funny.

He Said It



A one-sentence quote from Will Hays and his annual report, worth earmarking well:

"There is no saturation point in the demand for good entertainment, particularly important under the tensions of the present day."

Majors May Demand Cut in Allegations

NEW YORK—Unless the government supplies more definite answers to the distributors' consolidated interrogatories, counsel for the majors will move to strike a number of the allegations in the original petition filed July 20, 1938, it is learned.

Major counsel are somewhat annoyed with the government's allegedly dilatory tactics by withholding information which, it is stated, long would have been forthcoming if the action had been launched by a private litigant. The lawyers so expressed themselves in court before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard. Former Judge Thacher, Col. (Wild Bill) Donovan, former Judge Proskauer and John F. Caskey participated in the verbal lashing directed at Paul Williams, assistant to the attorney general.

The attorneys held the government has been taking refuge in the argument that the information it has is hearsay evidence and that the witnesses, when called, will supply the first hand information. However, counsel for the majors insist they are entitled to all the evidence and data the government has. Additionally, defendants are entitled to know what the witnesses are going to say and what issues are to be met by the majors, they claim.

Severe in Criticism

Former Judge Thacher was most severe in his criticism of Williams. He brought home the point that, if the government is to rely on hearsay evidence, the case should never have been brought. Under the new federal rules, the defendants are entitled to know what the government is seeking to try to prove with each and every witness it puts on the stand.

Colonel Donovan, after the judge requested Williams to open the department of justice files for exhibitor reports as well as those from agents who interviewed complaining exhibitors, prepared an order in line with the court's instructions and served it later in the week.

This is to make certain the information sought will be produced. Doubt entered into the government's position when Williams at first told the lawyers they could come down to Washington and look into the files themselves, later qualifying this by adding, "I think I can get the permission of my superiors." If this could be arranged, major counsel would grasp the opportunity to dig into the FBI records.

Now that all of the probable witnesses the government will call have been revealed, defense counsel has begun to diligently take to preparation of the case. Up to this time, it is held, much of the work of counsel has been of a statistical nature in supplying answers to the government interrogatories. With this out of the way, legal staffs are now tackling the work of checking up on probable witnesses.

It is insisted that, if more factual data is not forthcoming, particularly on production into which the government admits the investigation was conducted in 1936, motions for elimination of numerous allegations in the complaint will be pressed before May 1. The date looks more remote and conferences continue to develop new stumbling blocks.

The answers furnished by the government to the distributors' interrogatories "mean nothing and say nothing," according to film counsel. Hence, in order to proceed, the government must open up and give the defense a "nibble," it is maintained.

Further examinations before trial were held this week with William Kupper and William Sussman of 20th-Fox, A. Montague of Columbia and Adolph Zukor of Paramount taking the stand.

Reductions Pleas Fall on Bad Ear

New York—Circuit operators—or some of them—who have complained about bad business in an effort to secure reductions from general sales managers apparently got nowhere, according to depositions of William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, and Neil F. Agnew, sales chief for Paramount.

Rodgers has had requests from Paramount interests in Detroit and Minneapolis and Agnew has been given hints by Adam Adams of the Paramount in Newark. But it was no go.

Gov't Claims 396 Cases Of "Distress Methods"

NEW YORK—The government now claims there are 396 instances throughout the United States where defendant majors in the all-industry suit have employed "distress methods" against independent theatremen in furtherance of alleged monopolistic practices.

The original list outlined by the justice department embraced 293. In a supplemental bill of particulars, the additional 103, spread over 32 states, are named. California leads with 15 new citations. Florida and Pennsylvania appear second with nine each, while Indiana and Wisconsin are down for seven apiece.

The additional list, in combination with the first one, finds Florida in the lead with a total of 30. The other states now total these:

Arkansas, nine; Arizona, four; California, 23; Colorado, five; Florida, 30; Georgia, six; Idaho, 11; Illinois, 11; Indiana, five; Iowa, 23; Kentucky, three; Louisiana, 16; Maine, 13; Massachusetts, three; Michigan, 11; Minnesota, four; Mississippi, nine; Missouri, eight; Nebraska, 11; New Jersey, 28; New Mexico, four; New York, three; North Carolina, six; North Dakota, two; Ohio, 14; Pennsylvania, 20; South Dakota, six; Texas, 24; Utah, two; Virginia, six; West Virginia, four; Wisconsin, 20.

May Foreclose on PPC

HOLLYWOOD—Unless creditors of the defunct Producers Pictures Corp. agree to give Pathe full power to take over seven of the company's completed pictures, Pathe will foreclose by this weekend, it is indicated. Pathe is the only secured creditor, according to Robert Benjamin, Pathe attorney.

For Smaller Blocks If Gov't Will Aid

NEW YORK—If the Reconstruction Finance Corp., money-lending arm of the government, would supply Universal with sufficient cash resources "from this day on for all time; not just a one or two year period" the company would not object to selling pictures in small blocks as one of the principal concessions by defendants toward an out-of-court settlement of the all-industry equity suit.

This sentiment, expressed by an authoritative source, of course, is conditional upon the suit being settled. The source, meanwhile, maintains the oft-expressed Universal opinion that the company "should not be penalized if the five theatre-owning defendants want to offer concessions because they want to retain their theatre interests."

Regardless of the eventual disposition of the suit, however, is the informant's views on arbitration. In this respect, the source maintains, Universal would not only be "glad to be a party to such a setup," but "believes it is essential not only for a harmonious basis for everyday business but would serve as a great deterrent from the promiscuous and costly litigation that rarely receives the proper interpretation in the courts."

The RFC angle stems from the observation the company would not have the cash resources to compete with the larger distributors because, in selling blocks of five, for instance, "we would be morally obligated to play ball with exhibitors who play with us on our 'intermediate' pictures, although we might get better terms from other accounts when we turn out an 'A'."

Three or Four Train Car Loads to Dallas Funfest

NEW YORK—Representatives of virtually all major companies and Variety Club members are expected to fill three or four cars of a train that leaves here April 16 for the organization's national convention in Dallas, April 18 to 20. In addition, about 15 may make the trip by plane.

A contest designed to heighten the competitive spirit of the affair has been arranged by Walter M. Henshel, who has offered prizes for the most outstanding costumes worn at the twilight fiesta, Mexican jamboree and frontier frolic by members of the Dallas tent.

Agnew Learned It From the Newspapers

New York—Neil F. Agnew has been general sales manager for Paramount since 1936, but the first he knew of the company acquiring a half interest in United Detroit Theatres was when "I read it in the newspapers," he stated at pre-trial examinations.

He declared he had nothing to do with the deal and that this not only applied to Detroit but to other situations as well where Paramount had purchased an interest in theatres.

From the best-selling novel by DAPHNE DU MAURIER

MIAMI BEACH, FLORIDA. After playing two theatres, the Lincoln and the Surf, day and date to the biggest grosses that the theatres ever enjoyed, for eight consecutive days, in order to take care of the tremendous crowds storming the doors to see REBECCA, the theatre management is opening REBECCA at the Mayfair and Miami Theatres in Miami, to play day and date with the Lincoln and Surf Theatres, which will make four theatres in Miami playing REBECCA simultaneously.

CLEVELAND, OHIO. After breaking every record in the State Theatre, Cleveland, REBECCA is being held over for a second week, making it the third picture in the entire history of the State Theatre ever to be held for a second week.

BOSTON, MASS. REBECCA, playing Loew's State and Orpheum Theatres day and date, is exceeding any gross ever piled up by a United Artists picture, and REBECCA is being held over for a second week in both theatres.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. A telegram from the manager of Loew's says: "Blizzards since Friday, with snow drifts and icy roads blocking traffic, REBECCA doing S. R. O. business." REBECCA thawed out the Rochester public to the biggest business the theatre has done, and is being held over for a second week.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. REBECCA broke every record at Loew's State Theatre, and while it is customary for big pictures to be moved over to the Carlton Theatre, REBECCA is being held for a second week in the big Loew's State Theatre.

ST. LOUIS, MO. REBECCA broke all existing records in Loew's State Theatre for any previous United Artists picture, and is being held over for a second week.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. While it is not unusual for pictures to play two weeks in Atlantic City, during the season, REBECCA broke all existing records for in-season, business, and is being held over for a second week out-of-season, which means REBECCA is pulling them in from outside Atlantic City.

ATLANTA, GA. After breaking every record, REBECCA is the first United Artists picture ever held a second week in Loew's Grand Theatre, Atlanta.

MONTREAL, QUE. The Orpheum Theatre, now playing REBECCA, and the fifth day is bigger than any previous day, breaking all existing records. The manager advises this indicates a five or six weeks' run.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA. Now in its fourth day, breaking all existing records, and being held over for a second week at the Palace Theatre.

SEATTLE, WASH. REBECCA at the Liberty Theatre is topping every record, and is being held over

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. REBECCA is topping every record and is being held over.

PHILADELPHIA. It broke every existing record for the Boyd Theatre on opening day. The management is already planning on a minimum four weeks' run.

LOS ANGELES. Telegram from the Four Star Theatre says: "As of this minute REBECCA has broken all time opening day record . . . extending over entire house history of ten years!"

In the first 5 days, Radio City Music Hall played to more than 150,000 admissions and turned away close to 75,000 additional prospective ticket-buyers. Held over!

Commerce Dept. Into Neely Bill Study

some viewpoints here. On the other hand, should the negotiations fail, both departments are said to be ready to express their unqualified approval of the Neely measure.

Meanwhile, prospects for enactment during the current session dimmed during the week with the suggestion of congressional leaders that adjournment not later than June 1 was in the cards.

Unless President Roosevelt finds it necessary to ask for immediate legislation which is not now contemplated, it was said, Congress should be able to wind up its work sometime during the latter half of May. Adjournment at that time, it was pointed out, would give members an opportunity to return to their districts for a little pre-convention "fence mending" before the national conventions.

As it stands now, the Neely bill is stymied in the House interstate and foreign commerce committee, behind the "eight ball" of the transportation legislation which probably will not be wound up before April 15 and maybe later.

Chairman Clarence F. Lea of California has promised that he would call hearings after the transportation bill has been put through conference. In all probability those hearings will not be called before April 20—and maybe later.

Informed members of the industry have declared that a minimum of three weeks will be required for the House hearings—the last chance of the distributors to appeal directly to the members of Congress. That would mean the hearings would not wind up much, if at all, before May 15.

There is little chance of the members of the committee leaving the hearings agreed as to the desirability or undesirability of the measure. That will have to be decided at committee meetings at which the matter is talked over and votes taken. If any suggestions for amendment are brought up, they, too, must be talked and voted. And, finally, if the committee decides to recommend enactment of the bill, a report must be written.

There is a good possibility that by the time all these moves have been made, the session will have come to an end or, at any rate, that members will be looking homewards longingly and without desire to prolong their stay in Washington to debate the bill on the floor of the House.

Meanwhile, there is always the chance the department of justice will have been satisfied and a consent decree written to end the "suit to end suits."

Reports of Settlement in Vineland Action Denied

NEW YORK—Reports of a pending settlement in the Vineland, N. J., anti-trust action against the majors and Warner circuit are denied by home office counsel. While trial is slated for Monday, the anticipation is there will be a delay because of the numerous motions. Affidavits by Harry Shapiro, the plaintiff, were filed Monday in the Philadelphia federal court.

Samuelson Out of Theatre Field

Newton, N. J.—Sidney Samuelson is no longer a theatre owner. His Newton here has been acquired by the St. Cloud Theatres Corp., of which W. E. Smith is representative. The Comerford circuit is understood to have an interest in St. Cloud.

By selling his house, Samuelson joins H. A. Cole, Allied president, and Abram F. Myers, board chairman, as a member of the organization's "inner circle" removed from theatre operation. Samuelson is a member of the Allied executive committee, and together with Cole and Myers has long been regarded as a fashioner of the organization's policies. He is a director of Allied of New Jersey and business manager of Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania.

Rites for Morgan Walsh Are Held on the Coast

SAN FRANCISCO—Funeral services were held during the week for Morgan Walsh, who spent 30 of his 46 years in the industry. He is survived by his widow and two children. At his death, he was vice-president of Redwood Theatres, which operates a string of houses in northern California. He had been head of the local exhibitor organization, active in MPTOA affairs for many years and also in the NRA before its demise.

His first connection with the business was branch manager for Fox in Los Angeles 30 years ago. Later he joined Warner, then became affiliated with the T&D. In 1932, he became vice-president of Redwood.

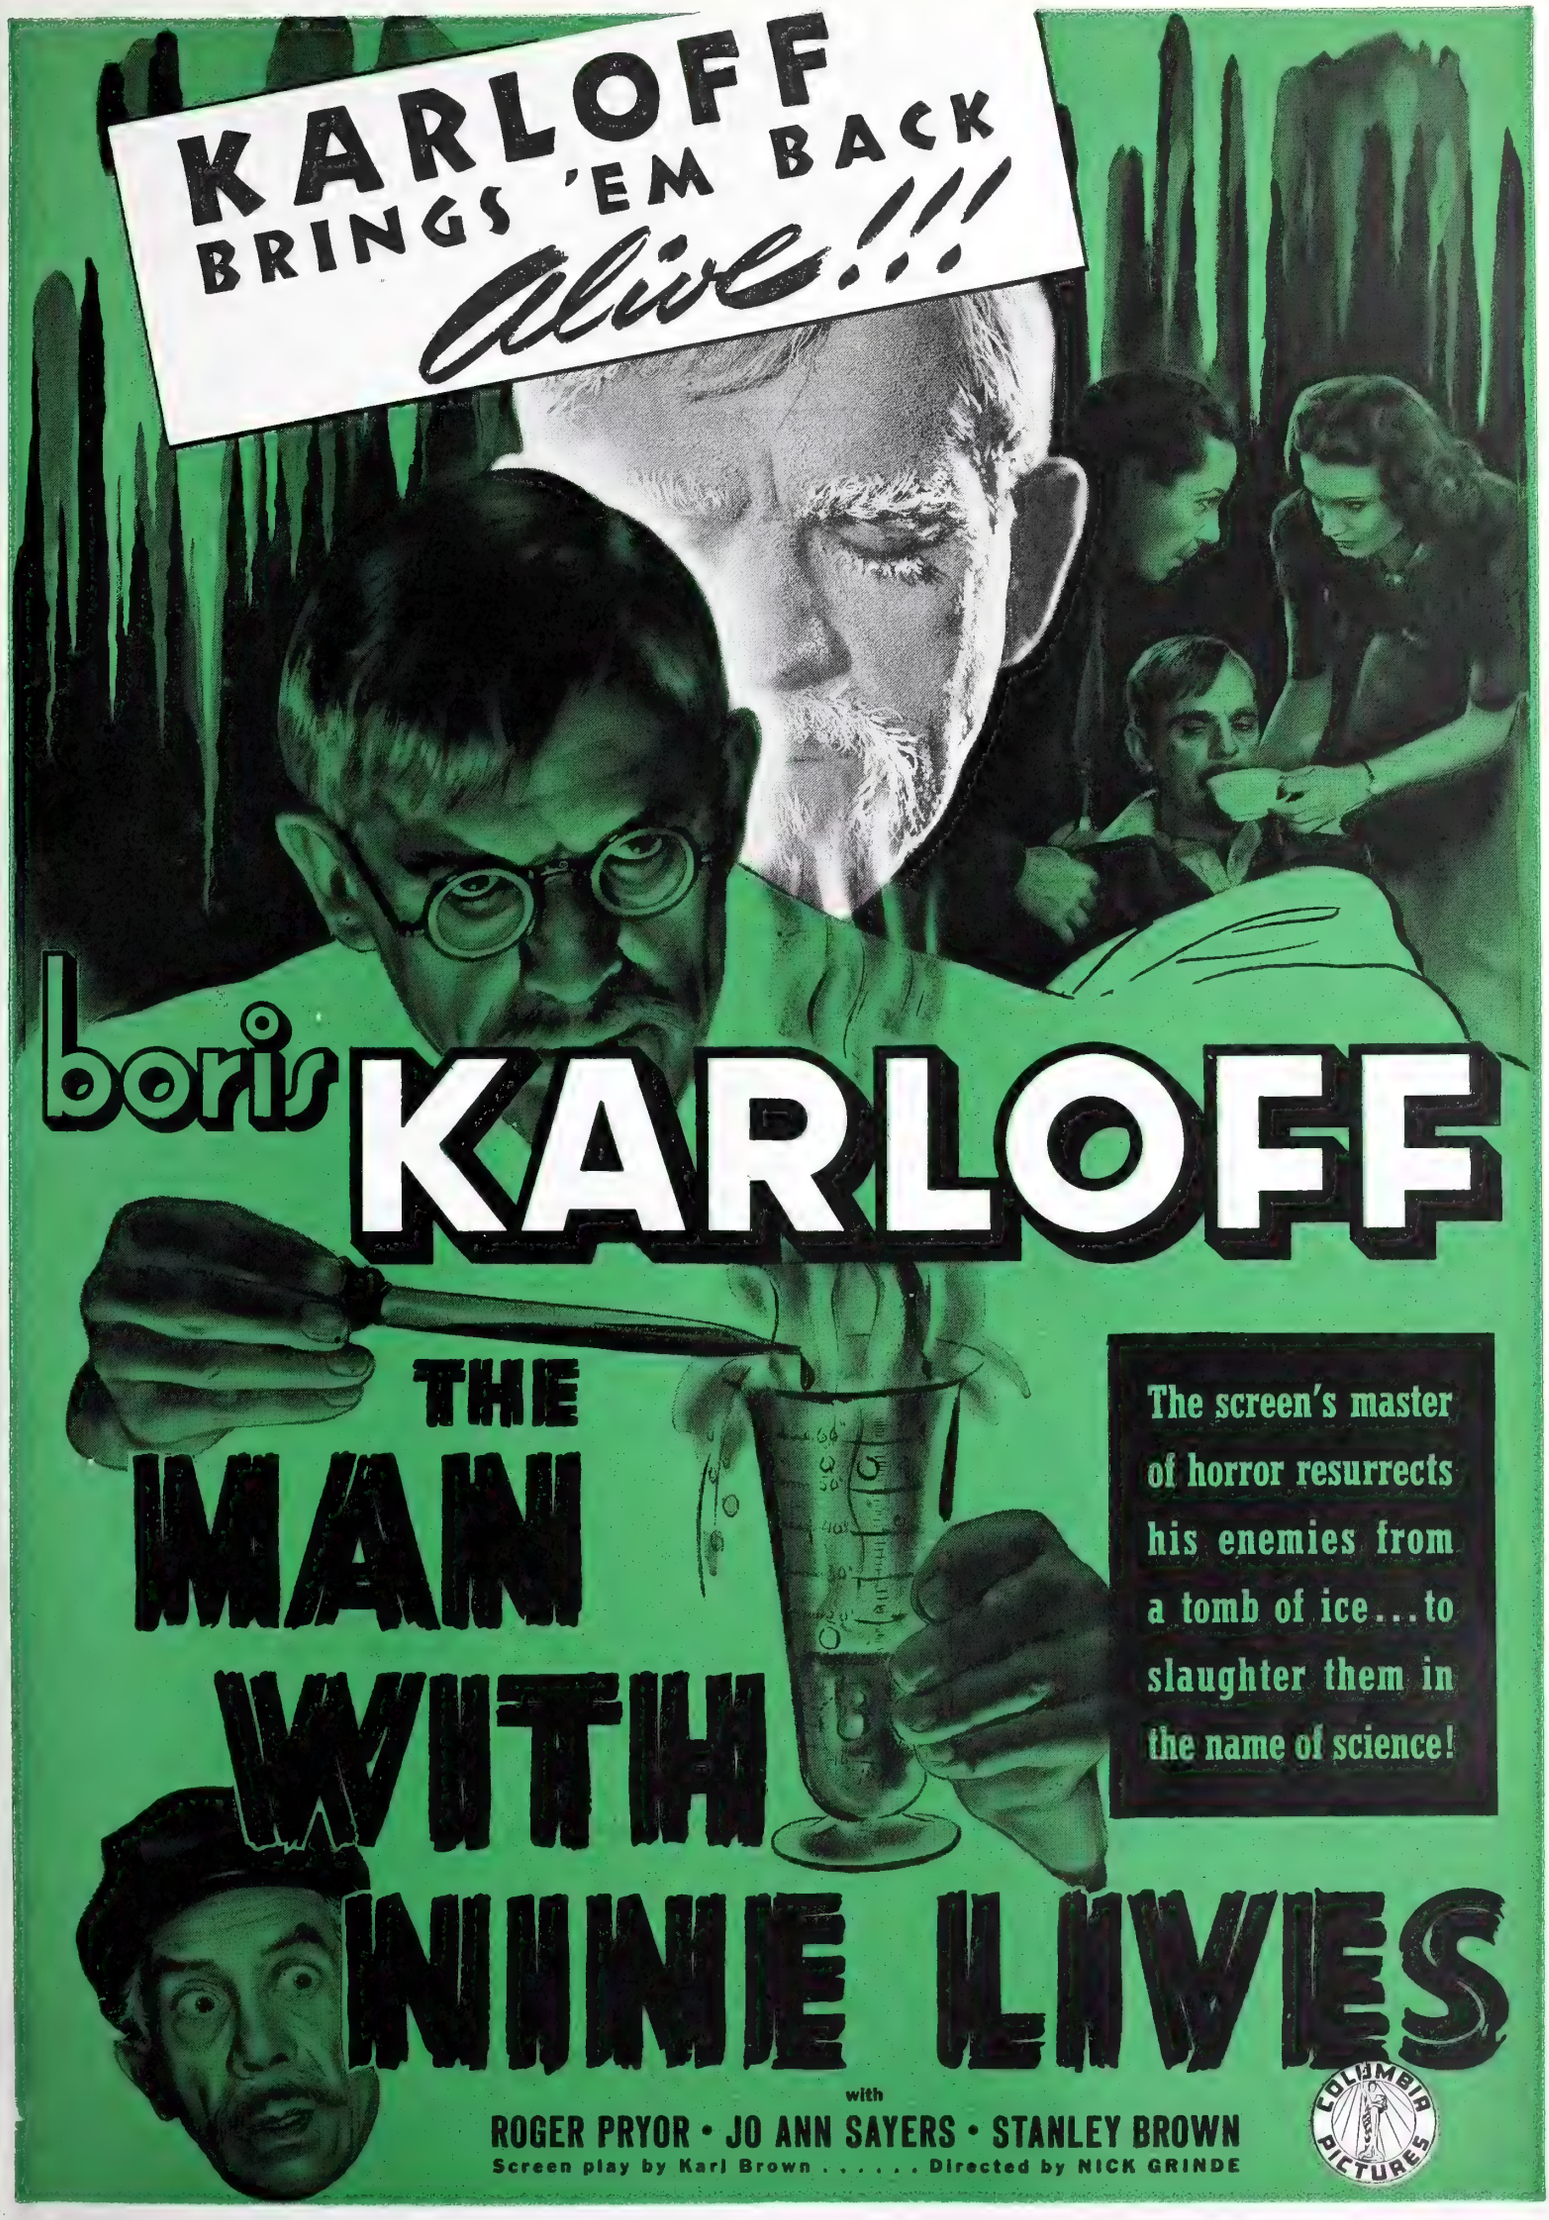
Overbuying Charged In 116 Situations

NEW YORK—The government, in a supplemental bill, lists 116 theatres in which Columbia and other majors allegedly permitted exhibitors to overbuy. The supplemental bill is in response to a decision favoring Columbia and handed down by Judge Goddard on March 7.

National Theatres' various operating units are mentioned 28 times; Paramount, 21, and Warner, eight. Four independents are also included in the list. In three or four instances, the complaint goes as far back as 1930. This applies to the Fox, Strand and Orpheum, Pocatello, Idaho; Olympia and Globe, Boston; Grand, Grand Forks, N. D.; Colonial, Olympia and Portsmouth, Portsmouth, N. H.; Pines and Ritz, Lufkin, Tex.; Retlaw and Fond du Lac, Fond du Lac, Wis.; Tower, Varsity and State, Milwaukee, Wis.

Situations as far back as 1929 are the Midland, Colonial and Grand, Pittsburg, Kas., and Merrimac and Strand, Lowell, Mass., the first three having been operated by Fox Midwest, or its predecessor, and the latter two by Paramount.

In addition, two Minnesota and three Texas houses are cited as being prevented from double featuring. Fixed minimum admission prices which allegedly prevailed in the contracts for at least 38 independents are cited.



60 Days to Appeal Gary Case

CHICAGO—V. U. Young of the Gary Theatre Co. has 60 days in which to appeal his anti-trust case against B&K, Warner theatres and the majors. Federal Judge William H. Holly has entered his formal order dismissing the action on the request of defendants. Costs are to be paid by the plaintiff.

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox will stand by its traditional 52 features for 1940-41 at an estimated total negative cost of $23,000,000. The shorts lineup is expected to reflect no change in number over the current season.

Details go to the annual sales convention on Friday when 248 home office executives, district and branch managers, plus their sales managers, salesmen and bookers, open a three-day session at the Drake, Chicago, answering to the gavel of Herman Wobber, general manager of distribution.

"We're still in a double bill country. Our program of 52 pictures next season probably will be more like 26 'A's' and 26 'B's' not 45 'A's' and seven 'B's,' " Wobber stated after a district managers' meeting here recently. He thereby set the keynote for the Chicago get-together. Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief, plans to continue his plan of staggering big attractions on an approximate one-a-month basis next season. However, reduction of the series pictures, like the Joneses and the Chans, leave a gap which the distribution department proposes filling by the acquisition of outside product, although details are not known.

The home office delegation will leave Wednesday by special train. Business meetings will be held Friday and Saturday and district managers' conferences Sunday morning.

It is anticipated the new lineup will include many, if not all, of the following vehicles:

"Brigham Young," with Tyrone Power in the lead and Dean Jagger and Jane Darwell in the support. Based on an original by Louis Bromfield with script by Lamar Trotti. Henry Hathaway will direct and Kenneth MacGowan will serve as associate producer. This is designated as the leadoff attraction and Zanuck's contemplated most expensive on the schedule.

"Down to the Sea in Ships," with an all-star cast. Remake of silent film produced about 16 years ago by Elmer Clifton who did the script for the new version.

"The Great Commandment," which Zanuck will remake in Technicolor after purchasing the original from Cathedral Films. Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell will be the leads with Albert Dekker and Maurice Moscovitch in the support. Irving Pichel will direct.

"One-Man Army," an original of a soldier of fortune with William Anthony McGuire doing the script.

"Western Union," a dramatization of Zane Grey's last novel. To be made on "an elaborate scale."

"Down Argentine Way," a musical in Technicolor featuring Carmen Miranda. Script is by Ray Spence and Rian James. Director is Sidney Lanfield.

"Hudson's Bay Company," said to be three years in the planning. Based on screenplay by Lamar Trotti.

"Say It With Music," Irving Berlin's story of the 1920's. Alice Faye will have one of the leads.

"I Married a Nazi," based on a story which appeared in Liberty. George Sanders has a leading role.

"The Hunted Woman," a James Oliver Curwood story. Co-stars Claire Trevor and Randolph Scott.

"The Return of Frank James," Henry Fonda will have the lead in this Technicolor special. Henry King will direct.

"Song of the Islands," an original in Technicolor about a New York girl who vacations in Honolulu and "strikes" it rich.

"The Great Profile," Adolphe Menjou has the lead and Gregory Ratoff is in the cast.

"Highway 66," a dramatization of the migratory workers along the highway made famous in "The Grapes of Wrath."

"Marching as to War," story of the Salvation Army with screenplay by Louis Bromfield. Authored by Lawrence Pohle and Thomas Aherne.

"Rip Van Winkle," Ernest Pascal is doing the screenplay of Washington Irving's novel. Will be produced in Technicolor.

"Brooklyn Bridge," an original by Irving Caesar.

"Brothers," based on the story, "Dance With the Devil."

"The Young People," cavalcade of the rise of a vaudeville child star, with Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie, Charlotte Greenwood, Arleen Whelan and George Montgomery. Allan Dwan will direct. Screenplay by Don Ettlinger and Edwin Blum.

"Andre Maginot," a dramatization about the man who conceived the Maginot line.

"Fifth Avenue," a romance based on an unpublished novel.

"Public Deb No. 1." Brenda Joyce will have title role. Mischa Auer has a comedy part.

"Shadows in the Snow," a mystery drama by the late S. S. Van Dine.

"Broadcast," a story of radio with some of the leading radio stars of the past decade.

"Belle Starr," an original by Nunnally Johnson about a woman outlaw.

"Breach of Discipline," from a stage play by Elizabeth Ligeti and Arthur Schaffer, dealing with women in the medical profession.

"The Californians," an original by Sam Hellman of the early days of California.

"Broadway Confucius," based on an original by Jack Andrews.

"Dance Hall," based on W. R. Burnett's novel, "The Giant Swing."

"Khyber Pass," based on Talbot Mundy's novel with screenplay by John Balderston.

"Lady Jane," adapted from Mrs. C. V. Jamieson's story.

Short Story About Elizabeth Enright

New York—Elizabeth Enright is author of "Dancing Lesson," a short story in the April issue of "Harper's." Miss Enright is an illustrator and a writer. Last year, she was awarded the Newberry medal for the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children. It was a book titled "Thimble Summer" which its author also illustrated.

Miss Enright, in private life, is Mrs. Robert M. Gillham, wife of Paramount's director of advertising and publicity.

RKO Plots Course For Lineup of 52

NEW YORK—RKO will aim for 52 pictures for 1940-41. Despite the condition of foreign markets, the budget will be no less than the current one, George J. Schaefer, president, states.

A glimpse of the company's plans for the next season was offered at a reception for Harry Edington, recently appointed executive in charge of production. Edington, after conferences with Schaefer, returned to the coast at the end of the week.

As outlined by Schaefer, the schedule calls for 26 "A's" and an equal number of "B's." Outside producers will contribute anywhere from 10-12 of the "A's," Schaefer said.

The outside producers, according to Schaefer, are Herbert Wilcox, who will contribute two; Gene Towne and Graham Baker, who are tentatively down for three; Orson Welles, who will produce two; Harold Lloyd, who will do one, and two or three from Max Gordon and Harry Goetz.

Under Edington's supervision, the studio will turn approximately 14 major productions. Lee Marcus' division will be responsible for the remainder which will include six George O'Briens. RKO will also handle at least one of Walt Disney's features next year, Schaefer said. Beyond that, he would not comment.

Also included in plans for next season are two pictures to be produced in England by Mayflower Productions which has been partially absorbed by RKO. The films, to be produced by Erich Pommer, are designated for RKO's quota requirements.

For next season, Edington disclosed, RKO has Charles Laughton set for two, one with Carole Lombard and the other with his wife, Elsa Lanchester. Cary Grant is down for three, one of which will be with Ginger Rogers. Anna Neagle will appear in two. There will be two with Maureen O'Hara, one with Irene Dunne and one with Ronald Colman. William Wyler has been signed to direct "Kitty Foyle," which will star Ginger Rogers, Edington said.

Television House in Detroit

DETROIT—Saul Sloan, denying Filmrow reports, informs BOXOFFICE plans for the 3,600-seat television theatre at Six Mile and Schaefer Roads will go through as per plan. He says the house is being plotted for a fall opening.

Sears on Coast Discussing Warner Convention Plans

HOLLYWOOD—Gradwell L. Sears, Warner general sales manager, is here from New York to discuss convention plans. He was accompanied west by his wife and Sam Schneider, home office executive who handles many personal business affairs for Harry M. Warner.

Sears' stay here is indefinite. He reached the studio hinting rather mysteriously at "the most unique sales convention in the history of the industry," but refused to budge by way of explaining exactly what he had in mind.

Paramount, Universal Plan May Conventions

NEW YORK—Paramount and Universal are contemplating annual sales conventions in May. Neil F. Agnew plans to have all Paramount branch, district and division managers and a number of home office executives, convene on the coast for two or three days. William A. Scully, sales generalissimo for Universal, has not set the place or time.

RKO is definitely set to hold its ninth international convention at the Waldorf, here May 27-30, inclusive.

To Sell It in Britain

LONDON—D. E. Griffith, former managing editor of First National here, joins M-G-M to supervise sales on "Gone With the Wind" in Great Britain.

Raise $100,000 for Mono. Lab Work

NEW YORK—Seventeen Monogram franchise holders have agreed to make immediately available $100,000 to pay Pathe for laboratory work in return for which they will receive unsold treasury stock.

W. Ray Johnston, president, goes to California shortly to speed up production on 11 pictures remaining on the current season's lineup.

The franchise holders sales convention will be held at the Baker Hotel in Dallas April 21-22 following the national convention of Variety Club, which all Monogram officials and distributors will attend.

Monogram will have 50 pictures next season, of which 24 will be westerns.

Col. T. C. Davis, an officer of Standard Statistics Corp., was elected a director Tuesday.

Joe Louis to Star in Krellberg Serial

NEW YORK—Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, has been signed by Sherman S. Krellberg for the lead in a 15-episode serial, "The Sign of the Zombies." Production is expected to get under way May 1 in New York. In addition to the serial an eight-reel feature version will be made, both aimed for presentation in white and colored houses. Louis will not participate in any fights during the filming, which is figured to take one month.

—Metropolitan Photos

"Mark of Zorro," planned as a Technicolor special.

"Yesterday's Heroes." Screenplay by Milton Sperling. Gene Markey will serve as associate producer.

"How Green Was My Valley." Screenplay of Richard Llewellyn's best-selling novel will be done by Liam O'Flaherty and Ernest Pascal.

"Red Cross Nurse" will be done with cooperation of American Red Cross with an all-star cast.

"Small-Town God," drama of a small-town banker.

"Uncensored," based on the stage play, "Scotland Yard."

"Passport to Love."

"Miss Pilgrim's Progress," an original romantic drama.

"The Brat," first of the Jane Withers series with Kent Taylor, Laura Hope Crews, Jessie Ralph, Vaughn Glaser in the cast. Otto Brower will direct.

"Rain or Shine," based on Vina Delmar's novel, "Bad Girl." Virginia Gilmore will be in the cast along with Joan Davis and Robert Sterling. David Burton will direct.

"Charlie Chan Special," John Larkin will do the screenplay which features Sidney Toler.

There also will be four productions selected from the following which will be produced at the company's English studios.

"Gestapo," with Margaret Lockwood.

"The Girl Is News," with Margaret Lockwood and Barry K. Barnes.

"Rob Roy," with Margaret Lockwood, Michael Redgrave and Will Fyffe.

"Tramp Steamer," with Will Fyffe.

An Inspector Hornleigh story with Gordon Harker and Alastair Sim.

"Libre Belgique," "Madamoiselle From Picadilly" (a musical), and "Hangman's House."

From the sales department will be William Sussman, William J. Kupper, William C. Gehring, Jack Sichelman, Martin Moskowitz, William Clark, E. H. Collins, Clarence A. Hill, Theodore A. Shaw, Roger Ferri, Jacob Bloom, Isadore Lincer, H. A. Mersay, Eugene McEvoy and S. J. Epstein. Movietone News will be represented by Truman H. Talley, Edmund Reek, Lowell Thomas, Ed Thorgersen, Lew Lehr, Vyvyan Donner and Anthony Muto. Walter J. Hutchinson will head the foreign contingent which will include Irving A. Maas, Les F. Whelan and E. S. Frazer.

Charles E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity, will head his group and will be accompanied by Arch Reeve, Earl Wingart, W. C. Wilbert, Rodney Bush, Morris Kinzler and Eddie Solomon. Paul Terry, Harvey Day and W. Weiss from Terrytoons will be on deck, as will Ed Hollander and Jerry Novat of 20th-Fox's ad sales department, Percy Heiliger of the legal department and Hettie Baker, who handles censorship.

Once more, Spyros Skouras of National Theatres, will head the list of guests. From New York will be William T. Powers, Aubrey Schenck, Ed Zabel and Milton Hossfeld. From the field will be Elmer C. Rhoden, president of Fox Midwest, and Harold J. Fitzgerald, president of Fox Wisconsin. Alan Freedman, head of De Luxe Laboratories, rounds out the New York list.

While Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, appears in the official list of delegates, it is highly problematical whether he will attend. Similarly, Sidney R. Kent, president, may not, despite the fact he is currently included in the home office group. Felix Jenkins, chief counsel, will be present, however.

From the field:

Albany: M. A. Grassgreen, manager; Ben Dare and F. G. Sliter, salesmen; Daniel R. Houlihan, booker.

"Shooting Works" on "Brigham," Says Wobber

HOLLYWOOD—"We're going to shoot the works on 'Brigham Young,' one of the first in the new lineup," Herman Wobber, general manager of 20th-Fox distribution, told BOXOFFICE prior to his departure for San Francisco en route to Chicago and the company's convention. He also cited "Down to the Sea in Ships" and "Western Union" as among the important early releases for next season.

Milstein Adds Chore

HOLLYWOOD—Arrangements have been completed by David L. Loew and Albert Lewin with Producer Edward Small whereby J. J. Milstein, the latter's New York representative, will function in the same capacity for the Loew-Lewin production unit.

A Hearing April 10 On Educ'l Trustee

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was highlighted by an application of Harry G. Fromberg, trustee of Grand National, to have the appointment of James A. Davidson as trustee of Educational voided. A hearing will be held on the application April 10, in the federal court. Fromberg claims that Referee John E. Joyce, who appointed Davidson on March 5, was incorrect in that the majority of claims did not vote for Davidson, but for him; that Erpi's claim of $250,000 should not have been allowed to vote for Davidson and that the trustee, a former employe of Grand National, will not render impartial decisions.

The latter claims had been threshed out before the referee. Davidson had proved to Joyce's satisfaction that he hardly knew Earle W. Hammons and had resigned from GN after a dispute with Edward Alperson, then GN's president, long before Hammons had any interest in the company.

Lloyd Suit Dismissed

Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard has dismissed William Jordan Rapp and Lowell Brentano's $75,000 suit against Harold Lloyd, and the Lloyd Corp., for the alleged plagiarism of the plaintiff's play, "Greek to You" in "Professor, Beware." The judge declared, after reading the scripts of both and seeing the picture, he was convinced there was no similarity.

Joseph T. P. Sullivan, head of City Theatres, will be examined in the supreme court April 10 in connection with Walter Reade's $150,000 breach of contract suit. Reade was hired as manager in 1934 for the duration of the City Theatre's existence at $200 weekly. He was discharged in 1939.

Sonja Henie has filed an answer in the supreme court to the $92,000 suit of Dennis R. Scanlan against her. She claims she paid her former agent all commissions due in April, 1936; that a 20 per cent commission is void under California law and that the contract was not in writing. The actress seeks a dismissal. Scanlan claims to have secured her her deal at 20th-Fox, and seeks 20 per cent of her earnings.

Earl Hobson Smith has filed suit against 20th-Fox in the federal court seeking an injunction, accounting of profits and damages against "Swanee River," claiming it to be an infringement of his play, "Stephen Foster."

Two-Year Extension to Capital in Fox Suit

NEW YORK—Federal Judge Murray Hulbert has granted a two year extension from April 11, 1940, to the Capital Company, in its suit against William Fox. The extension was needed as the referee in bankruptcy in New Jersey will need that long to clean up the former executive's affairs. The Capital Company holds a $297,412 judgment against Fox, of which $200,000 is still unpaid. At the end of two years, it is hoped the plaintiff will then know how much it is to receive.

Communists Meet; "Ninotchka" Waits

New York — When M-G-M released "Ninotchka" it contemplated no difficulties, since it does not distribute in Russia. But word comes from Mexico City that the picture has been withdrawn from circulation and a scheduled opening cancelled, because the Communist Party was holding its convention there. Although federal authorities approved the film, Carlos Niebla, M-G-M manager, placed the picture on the shelf for the time being.

Studio Sound Directors At Erpi Demonstration

NEW YORK—Latest developments in the field of stereophonic sound reproduction will be demonstrated by Erpi Tuesday at Carnegie Hall for a group of major studio sound directors who are here to study recent and pending improvements.

In the delegation are Douglas Shearer of M-G-M, Elmer Raguse of Hal Roach, E. H. Hansen of 20th Century-Fox, Loren L. Ryder of Paramount, John Levadary of Columbia, Thomas Moulton of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Bernard Brown of Universal and Jack Whitney of General Service studios. Clifford W. Smith, Hollywood vice-president of Erpi, and K. F. Morgan, commercial manager, accompany the party.

Two Detroit Houses Will Add Vaudeville in May

NEW YORK—Stage show will be adopted at the Fox and Michigan, Detroit, in May, union negotiations for the policy having been completed within the past few days. The Michigan probably will lead off May 11 with the Marx Bros. The Fox opener is not set, according to David Idzal, operator, who was in town for a few days conferring with Spyros Skouras and William T. Powers of National Theatres. Sam Dembow of Paramount worked out the deal with the stagehands' union. He left Tuesday for Cincinnati and is due back early next week.

Industry in Spain Under Gov't Rule

NEW YORK — The uncertainty hamstringing the efforts of the majors in Spain is eliminated by publication of a new decree which places control of the industry in the hands of a department of motion pictures which will issue import permits.

Although never published, the majors were advised the Spanish government has passed a law which forces a company to produce a picture in Spain to receive permit to import ten pictures.

Universal was the only company to jump the gun and produced a "quickie" in Madrid with funds accumulated during the civil war. Now, it is understood, the government will not allow Universal to distribute it.

No such obstacles are placed in the way of the majors in the new decree. From advices received here, distributors do not expect any difficulty in obtaining permits since a greater spirit of cooperation is reflected in the statute.

The law, however, makes no mention of how it will handle remittances made by foreign distributors. With the country in an unsettled state, economically and politically, foreign managers see no chance of obtaining revenue for some time to come.

Home Again But Not for Long—

That's the life of a foreign manager. John W. Hicks jr. vice-president in charge of Paramount's foreign operations, shown with his wife following his return from South America, already is mulling over a trip to Paris and London in the not-so-distant future. With them is Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board, who will remain here for about six weeks before returning to the coast.

Revenue Flow From Sweden Continues

NEW YORK—Withdrawal of revenue from Sweden, the second most important market for American distributors in Europe, continues. Films, however, along with 200 other articles of import, are licensed by the government as a precautionary measure "in case Sweden is compelled to cut imports because of a lack of foreign exchange."

Long regarded as a stable territory, any cessation of revenue from Sweden would be felt strongly by the distributors. The licensing move is explained here as "a preliminary move to cover eventualities which may occur at any time."

Drop in Pound Sterling Doesn't Affect Majors

NEW YORK—Drop in the English pound sterling to as low as $3.54 does not affect the revenue of the seven major companies, it is learned. Under the agreement made last November by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy on behalf of the industry with the British government, the rate of exchange is fixed at $4.02. Universal is excluded as a result of its releasing agreement with General Film Distributors, Ltd., of London.

Ostrer Postpones

NEW YORK—Due to the illness of his wife, Isidore Ostrer, GB and Baird Television executive in London, states he has been forced to postpone a number of conferences on deals he hopes to conclude within the next few weeks.

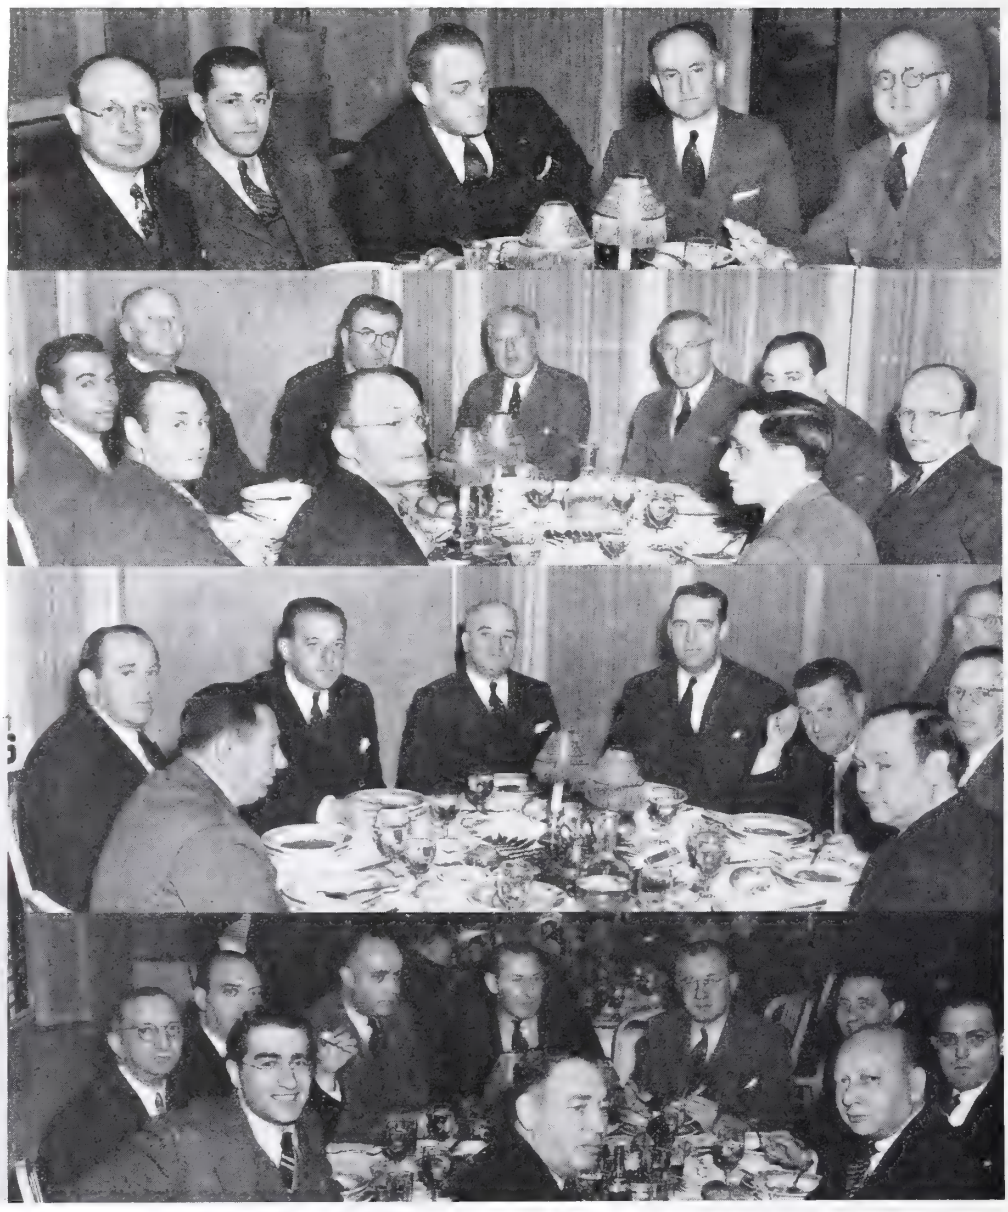
Ask Intercession Over Proposed Peruvian Tax

NEW YORK—The major companies have asked the state department to intervene with authorities in Peru over a proposed piece of legislation which would levy a ten per cent tax on boxoffice receipts. The bill is up for consideration in the Peruvian senate, although it has been criticized in some quarters as unconstitutional.

Goldsmith to Mexico

NEW YORK—Keith Goldsmith, formerly Singapore manager of 20th-Fox, left over the weekend for his new assignment as home office representative in Mexico City.

Reginald Armour to Head RKO Foreign Contingent



NEW YORK — Reginald Armour, continental manager of RKO, will head the foreign contingent expected here for the sales convention May 27. Armour, as a result of the war, will be the only European representative with a number of Latin-American managers, yet to be designated, making up the rest of the party.

Following the convention, Phil Reisman, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, probably will visit Australia.

McConville Due Soon

NEW YORK—J. A. McConville, Columbia's vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, returns from South America, April 15.

Producer Pasternak Meets Exhibitors and Makes a Speech—

—Photos by Cosmo-Sileo

Visit to New York of Joe Pasternak supplied Universal with a reason for a Hotel Astor luncheon. Many were there, including exhibitors. From top of page to bottom the groups include (1) left to right, Harry Mandel and Max Fellerman, RKO Theatres; John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusements; Mort H. Singer, and L. J. Ludvig, likewise of Minnesota Amusements; (2) clockwise, Sam Goodman, Century; William White, Skouras Theatres; Fred Schwartz and Al Hovell, Century; George Skouras; William Phillips, UA circuit; Sam Rinzler and Manny Frisch, Randforce; Larney Goodkind and Elihi Winer, Universal story department; (3) Joseph Seider, Prudential; Leonard Schlesinger, Warner; Si Fabian; I. J. Hoffman, Warner, New Haven; Don Jacocks, Warner, New Jersey; Ed Hinchey, Warner; Milton Hossfeld, National Theatres; (4) clockwise, starting bottom center, Irving Kaplan and Harold Rinzler, Randforce; Dave Levy, "Big U" exchange; John Benas, Skouras Theatres; J. J. Thompson, Cocalis circuit; Morris Jacks and Leo Justin, Reade theatres; Leo Brecher, Plaza Theatre; Leo Abrams, "U's" short subject sales manager; Max Cohen, "Big U" exchange. On the left, Pasternak is talking as Joseph H. Seidelman, William A. Scully and Nate J. Blumberg listen. Backs to the camera are John J. O'Connor and Fred Meyers, RKO theatres.

Agnew Recites How Para't Splits Deals

NEW YORK—Paramount splits its product evenly for first runs in five key cities, four deals of which are with major circuits and the fifth between a major and an independent operator, according to Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager. The major-independent split is in Baltimore where Loew shares the Paramount product evenly with M. B. Shanberger of Keith's, he stated in his deposition in the government suit.

Asked the reason for the split, the witness said he "likes to sell this way" wherever he can. Where the number of first run theatres is limited, he added, the arrangement results in a quicker playoff of pictures.

The distribution department of Paramount has nothing to do with pooling arrangements and acquisitions by the theatre department, Agnew held. Acquisitions may be discussed prior or after a deal is made, but at no time is the distribution department consulted when pools or partnerships are effected, he maintained.

Where splits are made, separate negotiations are conducted with the theatre interests involved. In other words, if Loew and RKO each get half of the Paramount product in a given territory, dealings would be held with Joseph R. Vogel for the Loew half and J. J. O'Connor, or Fred Meyers, for the RKO division. This is how he explained it.

How It Is Sold

Here is the way first run product is sold in the 36 cities listed by the government and as outlined by Agnew:

Albany—RKO and Warner. Si Fabian operates for RKO in addition to his own theatres. No split for second runs.

Atlanta—Lucas & Jenkins for the Fox, Paramount and Capitol.

Baltimore—Loew and M. B. Shanberger, the latter operating the Keith.

Boston—Mullin & Pinanski for the Metropolitan, Fenway and Paramount.

Brooklyn—Si Fabian for the Paramount, Fox and Strand.

Buffalo—Vincent McFaul for the Buffalo, Great Lake and Hippodrome.

Charlotte—Mike Kincey.

Chicago—B. & K. which also has the most important second runs. Has never discussed a deal with Barney Balaban.

Cincinnati—Ike Libson since 1930.

Cleveland—Loew and RKO for six years, or more, for the former's State and latter's Allen and Palace.

Dallas—Interstate Texas Theatres.

Denver—David Cockerell for the Denham. Before receivership, Paramount operated the Paramount and Denver. Deal with Denham more satisfactory because of low overhead and ability to pay more. Fox Intermountain gets second run.

Des Moines—A. H. Blank for eight to ten years. RKO Orpheum has played a few.

Detroit—United Detroit Theatres. Formerly with George Trendle. Now with Earl Hudson, in charge of the circuit.

Houston—Interstate for a number of years.

Indianapolis—David Chatkin and Harry Katz for the Indiana and Circle. Paramount had an interest in the houses with the Skourases before management changed.

Kansas City—Newman, which is operated out of New York. A pool existed for many years with the Newman, Fox and Uptown.

Los Angeles—Fanchon & Marco for the Paramount. F. & M. acquired the operation about six years ago because Paramount felt it too remote from the New York headquarters. Situation greatly improved as a result.

Memphis—M. A. Lightman for the Malco and Strand. Previously dealt with Joseph Vogel for the State, Palace and Orpheum.

Minneapolis—Minnesota Amusements. Each season sells two or three to World, an "arty" theatre.

Newark—Adam Adams for the Paramount.

New Haven—M. & P., for a great many years, for the Paramount.

New Orleans—Saenger Amusement for the Saenger and Tudor. Has sold Orpheum a few pictures "discarded" by Saenger.

New York City—Paramount, Criterion and also the Rivoli, Music Hall and Rialto.

Oklahoma City—Joe Cooper.

Omaha—A. H. Blank for number of years. May have sold some pictures to RKO Brandeis.

Pittsburgh—Loew and Warner for the Penn and Stanley. Has sold Shea's Fulton now and then for pictures "in dispute."

Portland, Ore.—Fox Evergreen. Paramount formerly operated the Paramount and turned over to Fox Evergreen six or seven years ago.

Salt Lake City—Harry David for the Paramount, Capitol and Utah. Also sold the first two named when Lou Marcus operated. Utah recently added.

Seattle—Fox Evergreen for number of years. Paramount had Paramount but Fox Evergreen acquired at same time as Portland Paramount.

San Francisco—FWC for Fox, Warfield, Paramount and Seattle. Paramount turned over Paramount at same time as others in Seattle and Portland.

St. Louis—F. & M. for three years. Prior to that one year to Warner which had Shubert and Orpheum.

St. Paul—Minnesota Amusement. RKO Orpheum and Palace have played some under arrangement with Minnesota.

Washington, D. C.—Loew and Warner for about five years.

Getting It Straight for the Record—

Typical scene at those interesting pre-examinations before trial in the all-industry suit where a point needs clarification before official entry. Left to right, this group includes Charles F. Young of Harris, Dwight, Koegel and Caskey; Robert L. Wright, the examiner for the government; Thomas Lynch, his assistant; Lawrence Bunker of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardner and Reed; Samuel Zimmerman, the stenographer; Albert C. Bickford of Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett; Neil F. Agnew of Paramount, the witness, and Louis Phillips of Paramount's legal staff.

M-G-M Sells Loew Allies in 16 Key Cities Only-Rodgers

NEW YORK—M-G-M sells to its theatre affiliate, Loew's, first run in only 16 out of the 36 key cities listed by the government, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, stated in examinations before trial in the big suit.

Chicago being the home town of Examiner Robert L. Wright, the witness was extensively queried on the alleged plans of Loew's to build in the Oak Park section. Rodgers said he was not aware of the incident or of any other intentions by the circuit to further build or acquire a loop house because M-G-M could not get playing time in the United Artists. The witness declared that in 1936 he was eastern sales manager and Chicago was not in his territory. In 1937, Wright pointed out, the UA played only four UA pictures, the rest of the time being turned over to M-G-M.

In many situations where Loew operates, M-G-M has sold a number of first runs to other accounts for one reason or another, Rodgers stated. He also said he did not know as a fact that Paramount was affiliated with Interstate in Dallas. He has never discussed a deal with a Paramount representative for this situation, he added.

Neither did he have anything to do with negotiations which led to the transfer of the State in Los Angeles by Loew's to FWC. Having had nothing to do with the deal, Rodgers said he did not know the purpose behind Loew's acquisition of the Poli houses in New England.

"Ordinarily," he explained, "the theatre department discusses acquisitions with me, but not in this instance. We had a customer there. That is probably why."

The list of 36 cities and how M-G-M sells its first runs, as outlined by Rodgers, follows:

Albany—Si Fabian for the Palace, Harmanus-Bleecker Hall and Grand. Has had run for five or six years and pictures are not available to Warner's Strand and Ritz.

Atlanta—Loew's Grand. Also a continued first run at Rhodes for about two years.

Baltimore—Loew's Century for at least eight or nine years.

Boston—Loew's State and Orpheum.

Brooklyn—Loew's Metropolitan.

Buffalo—Buffalo, Great Lake and Hippodrome.

Charlotte—Wilby-Kincey Enterprises for many years.

Chicago—B. & K. made a term deal in 1936.

Cincinnati—Ike Libson for many, many years.

Cleveland—Loew's State and Stillman.

Dallas—Interstate for a good many years.

Denver—RKO Orpheum for about three years. Previously with Harry Huffman for Denham. Dissatisfied with results given as reason for shift.

Des Moines—A. H. Blank for Paramount, Orpheum and Strand for many years.

Detroit—United Detroit Theatres.

Houston—Loew's State for many years.

Indianapolis—Loew's Palace for quite a few years.

Kansas City—Loew's Midland for many years.

Los Angeles—FWC for good many years. Loew's formerly operated State which was acquired by FWC.

Preferred Holders Go on Disney Board

NEW YORK—Holders of a new issue of 150,000 shares of six per cent cumulative preferred stock offered by Walt Disney Productions, voting separately as a class and entitled to one vote per share, will be entitled at the first annual meeting of the company after the close of the fiscal year ending September 30, and biennially thereafter to elect one director of the corporation for a term of two years.

The stock is being offered at $25 a share. In addition to the public issue, the company is offering 5,000 shares to employes and officers at the same price. The aggregate offering price of the 155,000 shares amounts to $3,875,000, of which $1,600,000 will go to pay bank indebtedness. The balance will be for general corporate purposes, including production.

Upon the completion of the new financing, the company will have outstanding 155,000 shares of preferred stock at $25 par value and 355,000 shares of common at $5 par value, with no funded debt. All of the outstanding common is owned by Disney and members of his family.

The preferred is convertible into common on the following basis: One share of common if converted on or before April 1, 1944; nine-tenths of a share thereafter through April 1, 1945; eight-tenths share thereafter through April 1, 1946; seven-tenths share thereafter through April 1, 1947; six-tenths share thereafter through April 1, 1948, and one-half share if converted thereafter.

Kidder, Peabody & Co., Harriman Ripley & Co., Pacific Capital Corp., and Mitchum, Tully & Co. head the underwriting group, which also includes William R. Staats Co.; W. E. Hutton & Co.; Lee Higginson Corp.; Graham, Parsons & Co.; Stone & Webster and Blodget; G. M. P. Murphy & Co.; Merrill Lynch & Co.; Alex Brown & Sons; Pacific Co. of California; Baker, Watts & Co.; Schwabacher & Co.; Page, Hubbard & Asche; More, Leonard & Lynch, and Banks, Huntley & Co.

Metro Sells Loew Allies In Only 16 Key Cities

Memphis—Loew's State for many years.
Milwaukee—Fox and another house operated by Fox Wisconsin.
Minneapolis—Minnesota Amusements.
Newark—Loew's State for "many, many years."
New Haven—Loew's Poli and College for many years.
New Orleans—Loew's State for number of years.
New York City—Capitol, Music Hall, Criterion, Rialto, Globe and Astor.
Oklahoma City—Joe Cooper for many years.
Omaha—A. H. Blank for Paramount or Strand.
Philadelphia—Warner for quite a few years. Loew's at one time operated Chestnut St. Opera House and leased to Warner when product deal was made.
Pittsburgh—Loew's Penn, Warner and Stanley for about two years.
Portland, Ore.—J. J. Parker for United Artists and Broadway.
Salt Lake City—Harry David for some years.
Seattle—FWC for a number of years.
San Francisco—FWC for the Paramount, St. Francis, Fox and Warfield. Loew's had operated Warfield and turned over to FWC.
St. Louis—Loew's for a good many years.
St. Paul—Minnesota Amusements.
Washington—Loew's for many years.

Hardy on a Visit; No More, No Less

New York—It was merely accidental that Russell Hardy, who prosecuted the industry in the anti-trust suits in St. Louis five years ago, happened to drop in the federal building when Spyros Skouras was being examined before trial.

BOXOFFICE asked the reason for his presence. He said he was paying a visit to Walter Rice, who was associated with him in the St. Louis case, and is now trying a conspiracy suit against the aluminum industry for the government. This case has been in process two years.

Film, Television Papers On SMPE Schedule

ATLANTIC CITY—Technical papers on every phase of films, as well as television, are scheduled for the spring convention of the SMPE at the Haddon Hall, April 22-25. Convention plans and programs are in charge of E. A. Williford, president; W. C. Kunzmann and J. I. Crabtree, vice-presidents, and Sylvan Harris, chairman of the papers committee. The society's 46th semi-annual banquet and dance will be held April 24.

Harry Blumberg of Philadelphia is chairman of the local arrangements committee. Others are H. Griffin, projection; Julius Haber, publicity, and Mrs. Oscar F. Neu, women's hostess.

Zukor Deposes

NEW YORK—Adolph Zukor in his deposition Friday, traced Paramount's early production and theatre history.

Celluloid Mrs. Danvers—

Actually it is Judith Anderson who played that part in "Rebecca." Back from the coast and the film, Miss Anderson did a number of scenes on the Kate Smith program, then returned to Hollywood.

Pre-Examinations Have Month More

NEW YORK—With various executives unavailable for one reason or another, the examinations before trial in the government suit are expected to run until the latter part of April. Robert L. Wright, assistant to the attorney general handling depositions, had hoped to finish the job by the end of March.

Sidney R. Kent, Nicholas M. Schenck and Charles C. Moskowitz, will not be available until mid-April. Kent was scheduled to go on recently along with Spyros Skouras, Joseph M. Schenck and Herman Wobber. He had been advised by his physician to take a rest, thus counsel already has informed Wright that Kent will not be ready until after he returns from Florida. He is now back in New York. Wobber has been on the coast planning for the 20th-Fox sales convention to be held in April in Chicago. Whether he will be heard before the middle of next month is problematical.

N. M. Schenck has been vacationing at his winter home in Miami Beach and is not due back until the first or second week in April. Moskowitz departed for his vacation April 5. He usually takes three weeks which would indicate he is due to return April 29, or thereabouts.

Nate J. Blumberg, president of Universal, recently returned from a Miami respite and may go to the coast within the next few weeks. He was due to be heard the week of March 12 when William A. Scully, general sales manager, and Cliff Work, production head, testified.

Montague a Miss-out

A. Montague, general sales manager for Columbia, was another executive miss-out because of a vacation in Florida. He was slated to testify the week of February 5 when Harry and Jack Cohn testified.

George J. Schaefer, president of RKO, had been scheduled for the week of March 14, but did not appear due to pressure of business. Jules Levy, former general sales head of RKO, also was on the list, but in view of Ned E. Depinet's deposition may not be called.

In the Warner lineup are Harry and Jack Warner and Joseph Bernhard. The former two are planning to come on from the coast later. Bernhard recently underwent a serious operation and has been recuperating in Florida. He may not be available until he returns from the coast now.

Darryl F. Zanuck may come east about the time of the 20th-Fox convention. There are no plans set for Louis B. Mayer.

It is understood efforts will be made to have depositions of Zanuck and Mayer taken on the coast. In the event this is done, Albert Law will represent the government with home office counsel of the companies involved making the coast trek for the examinations. Whether the government will accede to this procedure remains to be seen. For the time being, however, the studio executives are scheduled to appear in New York unless other arrangements are worked out with Paul Williams, in charge of the prosecution.

One-Third Columbia's Accounts Buy 100%

NEW YORK—Approximately 33 to 34 per cent of Columbia's accounts buy 100 per cent of its product, the average account playing 29 units, according to A. Montague, general sales manager, who gave his deposition in the government suit on Thursday.

Columbia has no cancellation clause in its contracts. It did have a 10 per cent clause for one year and then it was taken out, he stated. To those accounts which buy 100 per cent of the product there is no selective privilege. Where there are selective contracts, in no instance does an exhibitor make his choice at the time of signing the agreement, he added.

When Robert L. Wright, the examiner, referred to Columbia's answer to the government interrogatories dealing with difficulties in selling independents and affiliated houses, Montague declared "We have more or less difficulty selling all accounts. No one comes into our office to plead for our pictures."

Less trouble is experienced in selling circuits than independents, he added. He discussed the difficulties in closed towns and situations where overseating has resulted negatively for Columbia's product.

In all cases where split deals are made for first runs, he said, Columbia does not participate in the selection, but leaves it up to the two interests involved. It is found, he continued, that where splits are made they result in quicker playoffs which not only satisfy the distributor, but also the subsequent runs.

Clearances have been standardized over the years, he said, adding usually exhibitors, and not Columbia, insist on it. These are handled locally by the branch manager.

Montague also listed the company's first runs in 36 cities outlined by the government and indicated that in many situations Columbia has sold away from the circuits because of "better deals" both in playoff and in terms of revenue.

Warner Closes With Lasky For "Story of Sgt. York"

HOLLYWOOD—Marking its second move in the direction of outside producers, Warner has closed with Jesse L. Lasky for "The Amazing Story of Sergeant Alvin C. York." The company states the film will be budgeted at $2,000,000 and that the famous World War veteran will act as technical adviser.

Brandt to See Pioneers Get Good Entertainment

NEW YORK—Harry Brandt has been appointed chairman of the entertainment committee of the spring conference dinner of the Picture Pioneers, of which Jack Cohn is "house manager." Serving with Brandt are Barney Balaban, Nate Blumberg, Charles C. Moskowitz, Marvin Schenck, Ned E. Depinet, Si Fabian, George Skouras, Sam Rinzler, and Joe Hornstein.

Union-Circuit Contract Sealing Expected Soon

NEW YORK—An agreement covering the settlement between Local 306 and major circuits which resulted in a 15 per cent increase for operators over a six-year period is expected to be signed shortly. At that time Milton J. Handler, Columbia University law professor, brought in as an impartial arbitrator, will be relieved.

Handler received $25 an hour, not only for the time spent at hearings but also for time accumulated in reading of the minutes of the numerous sessions. The total cost is to be split between the union and majors.

Prior to the first increase, which is eight per cent retroactive to September 1, 1939, the average booth cost for a major house was $343. A five per cent hike becomes effective September 1, 1941, and another two per cent two years later.

Decency Legion Condemns Nine of 573 Features

NEW YORK—Of the 573 features reviewed by the National Legion of Decency in 1939, nine were condemned; four of them foreign. Of the total, 511 were produced in this country and 62 abroad.

A breakdown shows 312 were rated as unobjectionable for general patronage; 200 unobjectionable for adults; 50 objectionable in part; nine condemned, and two rated as "separately classified."

The condemned list follows: "Children of the Sun," "Human Wreckage," "Indiscretions," "Mad Youth," "L'Orage," "The Pace That Kills," "The Puritan," "Wages of Sin" and "With a Smile."

Eastman Kodak Co. Earns $8.55 a Share in 1939

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Eastman Kodak Co. reports 1939 net profit of $21,537,577, or $8.55 a share, as against $17,041,798, or $7.41 a share, in 1938. The figure reflects a gain in total sales last year of 9.4 per cent, to $140,331,000 from $128,262,000 the previous year. Of total sales volume, 16 per cent was represented by the film industry in 1939. While foreign business comprised about one quarter of the total business, the company's earnings from abroad were only about 12 per cent of the total.

Bioff to Jail Unless New Legal Steps Found

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—William Bioff's writ of supersedeas and freedom on bail pending a high court review of his conviction 18 years ago on a pandering charge has been rejected by the Illinois supreme court. Court attaches indicate that unless new legal steps are taken the coast labor leader, now free on bail, will have to go to jail until his case is heard. The court gave no explanation.

Extends Astor Lease

NEW YORK—Loew's has extended its lease on the Astor for one year. The current arrangement, also a one-year deal, expires April 30.

Court Order Permits Fourteen Subpoenas

NEW YORK—Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum has signed an order authorizing the department of justice to serve subpoenas on 14 witnesses the government will call for trial of the all-industry suit. They are all outside of the 100-mile radius, thus subpoenas with a court order were necessary under section 13 of the Clayton act.

Named were William H. Hodkinson, Carlsbad, Cal.; Richard A. Rowland, Las Palmas, Los Angeles; T. L. Talley, Los Angeles; I. E. Chadwick, Hollywood; Chris Lampros, Capitol Theatre, Farrell, Penn.; Joseph, William, and Al Weiss, McKeesport, Pa.; William D. Davis, Triangle Theatre, Pittsburgh; Thomas A. Gilbert, New Oakland Theatre, Pittsburgh; Charles Morse, Boston; H. A. Batastini, Alpine Theatre, Punxsutawney, Pa.; M. E. Ouslander, Pinebrook Theatre, Scranton, and Harry Stahl, NuLuna Theatre, Sharon, Pa.

Over 100 more witnesses will have subpoenaes served on them within the next week, some in the New York area and others outside the 100-mile limit. The affidavit of Paul Williams, special assistant to the attorney general prosecuting the anti-trust action, states the testimony of these witnesses is material and necessary in the trial of the suit and that without it the government cannot safely proceed to trial.

Charles Kurtzman Named Loew Division Manager

NEW YORK—In a shuffling of Loew's theatre personnel, Charles Kurtzman, Pittsburgh manager, takes the post of division manager in Boston, succeeding H. M. Addison, who is understood to have become affiliated with the Schine circuit. Kurtzman's territory embraces Boston, Providence, Syracuse, Rochester, Toronto and London, Ont.

Charles Raymond, who held various foreign managerial posts for the circuit, becomes district manager in the Cleveland zone, replacing Harry Long, who is on an extended leave of absence due to ill health.

William Elder, manager of the Bijou, New Haven, has been transferred to Harrisburg, replacing Sam Gilman, who is to be given a new assignment, possibly in Dayton. In the way of a promotion, Stanley Barlup, assistant at the Palace, Washington, replaces Elder.

In the local area Bernie Zelenko returns as manager of the Valencia, Jamaica, after two weeks at the Cameo, Brooklyn, where he had gone following a 10 weeks' recuperation from a nervous breakdown. Harry Brown, who had been serving as treasurer at the Valencia during Zelenko's absence, resumes as manager of the Cameo, and Bob Kilgore, who served as temporary manager, returns as manager of the Bedford, Brooklyn.

14 Alleged Plaints Cited in the East

NEW YORK—In a supplemental bill of particulars furnished by the government to distributors in which alleged monopolistic practices by the majors are said to have been visited on independent operators, 14 situations are listed for the eastern area. Of these, nine are in Pennsylvania, three in New York, one in New Jersey and one in Virginia.

The New Jersey situation names Eugene Mori of the Landis, Vineland, where "Warner Brothers attempted to compel Mori to sell the Landis to it by statements that Warner had an exclusive monopoly of pictures and that Mori would not be able to operate the Landis successfully because of the lack of product."

Incidentally, Mori has a private suit now pending in the Philadelphia court against the majors and Warner for alleged violation of the anti-trust act.

The three New York citations list B. S. Moss of the Criterion on Broadway, Benjamin Bordenaro of the Palace, Olean, and W. W. Farley of the Eri, Strand and Van Curler, Schenectady.

The nine Pennsylvania instances involve Harry Fried of three Maine line Philadelphia houses; Joseph Wodock of the County, Doylestown; Charles Segall of the Bromley, Philadelphia; George Graves of the Carman, Philadelphia; William Freihoffer of the Nixon, Tower, Frankford and Roosevelt, Philadelphia; William Goldman, Terminal, Philadelphia; H. A. Batastini of the Alpine, Puxsutawney; I. Ouslander of the Pinebrook, Scranton, and Fried again, this time representing an Ardmore suburban house.

The Virginia situation lists J. B. Trent of the Trenton, Lynchburg.

Nat'l Is Pondering Plan for Pensions

NEW YORK—Long a pet project of Spyros Skouras, a pension plan for National Theatres employes is slowly taking shape under the combined efforts of leading statisticians and actuaries.

It will be months before the plan is realized and not until then will National Theatres executives know whether it can be executed without placing too heavy a strain on the financial structure of the company.

The actuaries are now striving for an eligibility standard which would benefit all of the 7,000 employes of National Theatres. The main problem before those working on the project is to determine how many years of employment is necessary to make an employe eligible.

When a cross-section of the 7,000 employes consists of ushers, cashiers, doormen, assistant managers, managers, operators, office help, district managers and top executives, the problem becomes more complex, it is stated.

Under the plan, it is learned, National Theatres will pay 50 per cent to the pension fund with the balance coming in small stipulations from the employes who wish to join.

If the pension plan is adopted, National will be the first organization in the industry to adopt such a welfare policy. Skouras, it is understood, does not feel the present social security legislation goes far enough and would like to do better by members of the company.

Minnesota Amusement Not Planning to Add Houses

NEW YORK—Minnesota Amusement Co. has acquired no theatres lately and has no plans for additional houses, J. J. Friedl, operating head of the circuit, stated before leaving Tuesday for Minneapolis with L. J. Ludvig, treasurer, and Joseph Finley, St. Paul attorney for the circuit.

Cantor and Jessel Will Head Capitol's Show

NEW YORK—Eddie Cantor and George Jessel will head a stage show at the Capitol, April 18, with the opening of "Forty Little Mothers," in which Cantor stars. The show, which includes Don Albert's orchestra and will run for 40 minutes, is the first "in-person" presentation since last August, when Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland played in conjunction with "The Wizard of Oz."

It will be the first joint stage appearance of the two comedians since they played vaudeville at the Palace nine years ago. The booking is for one week, with options.

DuPont Film Corp. Profit

NEW YORK—Net profit of Du Pont Film Manufacturing Corp. is $1,650,274 for year ended December 31, 1939, compared with $1,259,566 for the previous year.

Skouras Men Split $3,000 in Prizes

NEW YORK—Service employes in 30 Skouras theatres during the week received a total of $3,000 in awards as a result of their work in the recent Skouras drive which began November 30 and ended February 17. The committee on selections comprised William White and Jules Catsiff.

The theatres, in the order of awards, participating are: Plaza, Englewood; Riviera, Manhattan; Roosevelt, Flushing; Capitol, Jersey City; Academy of Music, Manhattan; Broadway, Astoria; Liberty, Elizabeth; Riverside, Manhattan; Valentine, Manhattan; Crescent, Astoria; Beacon, Manhattan; Fox, Hackensack; Stoddard, Manhattan; Rockland, Nyack; Rivoli, Hempstead; Steinway, Astoria; Tivoli, Jersey City; Pascack, Westwood; Bronxville, Bronxville; Bleinheim, Manhattan; Park Plaza, Bronx; Granada, Corona; Broadway, Haverstraw; Plaza, Bergenfield; Hempstead, Hempstead; Victoria, Ossining; Manhasset, Manhasset; Teaneck, Teaneck; Victory, Bayside, and Corona, Corona.

On Thursday, Skouras took over operation of the Tuxedo and Mosholu in the Bronx, the houses formerly operated by Consolidated. In 1935, Fox Theatres attempted to make a deal with Skouras for the duo, but Si Fabian stepped in and negotiations were called off with the result the late Lee Ochs and Consolidated made a deal. Consolidated had been operating until last week when Metropolitan Playhouses, the landlord, canceled the lease because of an alleged $10,000 rental arrears.

Loew Sets Dividend

NEW YORK—Loew directors met Thursday and declared the regular preferred dividend of $1.62½.

Say Music Hall Deals May Include Center

New York—Private executive sales opinion veers to the belief W. G. Van Schmus, with takeover of the Center management in addition to the Music Hall, may shortly include in all Music Hall contracts a proviso that films may play the de luxe house or the Center. This optional clause, it is pointed out, would give Van Schmus the benefit of switching to the Center those films he has optioned for the Music Hall and which may not come up to his standard. Meanwhile, a Music Hall spokesman declares the management "has not come to any decision" on the Center policy.

Brandt Uncommunicative On Washington Trip

NEW YORK—Harry Brandt, president of the ITOA and the circuit bearing his name, made another trip to Washington the latter part of the week. While the independent exhibitor leader would not comment on his visit to the capital, it is understood he discussed the proposed settlement of the government suit.

Walter Hutchinson Will Attend Overseas Meet

NEW YORK—Walter J. Hutchinson, in charge of foreign distribution for 20th-Fox, plans to sail for Europe early in May to attend annual overseas sales meetings in Paris and London.

RCA Services Chains

NEW YORK—Nine units of the Interboro circuit here and eight theatres of the William Goldman chain in eastern Pennsylvania have signed contracts with RCA for sound service, according to W. L. Jones, service manager. Interboro is a renewal.

They Survey a Deal for Far-Off Hawaii—

Consolidated Amusement operates 25 Hawaiian theatres and 45 others. Aside from using Simplex projectors, the company has been distributing this equipment in the islands for 17 years. Brozek, export manager, International Projector; and Fred Williams, vice-president, Consolidated.

UA-Hays Rift Ends; Remains in MPPDA

NEW YORK—UA remains a member of the MPPDA.

Whatever differences caused reports the company would resign have been patched up since Murray Silverstone, general manager of world operations, returned last week from the coast. He has had several conferences with Will H. Hays.

At the MPPDA's adjourned board meeting Silverstone was re-elected a director along with all incumbents. Walter Wanger is an addition to the board. Hays was re-elected president for the 19th consecutive year.

Other board members include Barney Balaban, Nate J. Blumberg, Jack Cohn, Cecil B. DeMille, E. W. Hammons, E. B. Hatrick, F. L. Herron, Sidney R. Kent, Sol Lesser, Hal E. Roach, George J. Schaefer, Nicholas M. Schenck, Albert and Harry M. Warner.

Mono.'s Own Convention After Variety Affair

NEW YORK—Monogram's home office and studio executives and franchise holders will attend the Variety Club national convention in Dallas, April 18-20, and then go into the company's annual sales conclave in the same city the day after the Variety affair terminates.

The executives include W. Ray Johnston, Scott R. Dunlap, Edward A. Golden and Thomas P. Loach, while franchise holders are John W. Mangham, Atlanta; Ben Welansky and Mark Goldham, Pittsburgh; Steve Broidy, Boston; Harry Berkson, Buffalo; Forrest Judd, Des Moines; George West, St. Louis; Nate Schultz, Cleveland; Ed Blumenthal, Dallas; John Franconi, Dallas; Lon Fidler, Denver; Will Hurlbut and Jack Saxe, Detroit; Howard Stubbins, Los Angeles; Charles Trampe, Milwaukee; Ben Nathanson, Minneapolis; Carr Scott, Oklahoma City; Sol J. "The Biggest and Best From Republic"

Hollywood—For sheer rip-snortin' action, spectacle, excitement and suspense, "The Dark Command," a superwestern with an historical background can stand up for comparison, and with every assurance of a favorable verdict, with any of the several others of its class which have proven so popular and profitable during recent seasons. Further, it displays so high a level of production, story, cast and direction excellence that it easily earns the designation of being the biggest and best ever made by Republic. That it will be a solid hit seems beyond doubt. Sol C. Siegel produced; Raoul Walsh directed.—SPEAR.

16 Months of Labor Strife to an End

ST. LOUIS—Sixteen months of intra-labor strife came to an end here late this week when local autonomy was restored to projectionists Local No. 143 by George A. Browne, president of the IATSE, and pickets were withdrawn by the projectionists' union from Fanchon & Marco's Fox and Ambassador theatres and a dozen neighborhood houses operated here by the St. Louis Amusement Co., F&M subsidiary.

Following quickly the restoration of autonomy to No. 143 was the announcement by Joseph A. Padway, AFL general counsel who accompanied Browne here in an effort to work out a settlement, that John P. Nick was resigning as first vice-president of the IATSE because of "ill health." It was the ouster, by court injunction, of Nick and Clyde A. Weston, former business agent, from the control of the affairs of No. 143, that split the union apart and subsequently resulted in the stationing of pickets before their houses when F&M and St. Louis Amusement Co. shifted operators without the knowledge of No. 143 officials.

Marking the healing of the union breach was the election of Harry Barco and Robert Thomsen, both anti-Nick men, as president and business agent respectively. Also the Local accepted, as members, 47 operators who had received cards from Nick, but voted to bar 20 others.

Films' Emergence Stressed By Hays at Dedication

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Motion pictures as an asset to humanity are moving toward higher standards of morality and good taste and are reaching new peaks of dramatic and artistic excellence, Will H. Hays, MPPDA president, asserted in an address at the dedication of the new YMCA building here.

He added the motion picture bureau of the national YMCA will be supplied with non-current theatrical shorts as part of the industry's program for supplying films for educational purposes.

REVIEW FLASHES

BULLET CODE (RKO)—To the gallery of westerns that give entertainment, action and a plausible story, this George O'Brien must be added. The performers handle their lines and act their parts expertly, and the fisticuffs are of the first order.

CURTAIN CALL (RKO)—Lightweight backstage farce with a substantial enough load of laughs to warrant consideration for most situations. Alan Mowbray runs away with the comedy honors, topping a generally acceptable cast. Picture marks Howard Benedict's production debut and is the directorial bow for Frank Woodruff.

HIDDEN MENACE (Alliance)—A fairly good story idea treated with little imagination and poorly performed by rather well-known players, including Otto Kruger, Gertrude Michael and John Clements.

LIGHTS OUT IN EUROPE (Mayer-Burstyn)—Grim and realistic, but in every respect sincere, this documentary recounts the recent past of Poland, Danzig, England and France in terms of the horrors of war and its devastation.

ON THEIR OWN (20th-Fox)—In the absence of Pa Jones, conveniently scripted out of the picture and into a sanitarium, the remainder of this veteran screen family managed to deliver the same brand of wholesome, all-purpose entertainment as of yore. Mark it down as a reliable entry in the series. Max Golden produced; Otto Brower directed.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Report Film Deliveries in Flooded Areas Unimpaired

NEW YORK—Film deliveries in the flooded areas of northern Pennsylvania and upstate New York are unimpaired, according to a check of major home offices. Can't Say They're Not Trying Irvington, N. J.—There seems to be a division of thought among the local Allied fraternity as to whether exhibition is a worthwhile pursuit.

For a while Sidney Samuelson, former Allied of New Jersey president, has divorced himself from his Newton, Newton, N. J. Irving Dollinger, also a former Allied of New Jersey president, has taken over the Liberty here, formerly operated by Harry Doniger. Dollinger also operates the Plaza, Linden.

Fete L. J. Chamberlain On 30th Anniversary

PHILADELPHIA—Three hundred theatremen honored L. J. Chamberlain, head of the Victoria Amusement Co., on the completion of 30 years in the industry, with a dinner at the Warwick Hotel.

Tribute was paid to the veteran by James Walker of the 20th-Fox home office; Frank C. Walker, president of the Comerford Amusement Co.; Edgar Moss, 20th-Fox district manager; Perry Hoffman, Chamberlain's assistant, and Jay Emanuel, chief barker of the Variety Club, which arranged the dinner.

Chamberlain was presented by the club with a wrist watch. Seated on the dais, in addition to the speakers, were four past chief barkers—James P. Clark, William J. Clark, Earle Sweigert and Ben Amsterdam. Father Sylvester McCarty pronounced the benediction. Also present were Herbert Effinger, former head of the Victoria company, and bank presidents and newspaper publishers from Mt. Carmel, Shamokin, Williamsport, Tamaqua and Mahanoy City, where the company has theatres.

Al J. Davis, 20th-Fox, and a committee of 30 exhibitors were in charge of arrangements.

TMAT Union Picketing of 11 Houses Continues

NEW YORK—Despite the fining of three pickets for illegal picketing, the motion picture division of the Theatrical, Managers, Agents and Treasurers union will continue picketing the 11 theatres of the Five Boro circuit.

The pickets, Casmir Wisowatz, Charles Lauk and Saul Weintraub, were arrested on the complaint of Manager Jacob Weinstein of the Freeman, Bronx, and fined $10 each on the charge of disorderly conduct by Magistrate Klapp of the Bronx Magistrate's court.

The picketing goes on at the De Luxe, Freeman, Vogue, Dover, Fenway, Ace, Metro, Tower, Zenith and Lido, all in the Bronx, and the Granada, Manhattan.

Manhattan and Brooklyn Duo to Face Local 306

NEW YORK—Picketing of the Greeley Square and the American Movie, Manhattan, by Local 306 starts Monday in the union's drive against unorganized houses. Two Brooklyn houses, unidentified because of tactical reasons, also face a picket line.

ALBANY

EDWIN BYLANCIK of Theatres Display Co. and Mary Theresa Smith are now one . . . Mrs. Inez Ferguson, Copake, Copake, went south for a vacation. A brother, Ed McIntyre, is taking care of the theatre in her absence. McIntyre is associated with Mrs. Ferguson in the management of house . . . Kingsley Ryan, Ausable Forks and Keesville exhibitor, on Filmrow for first time in many weeks. Frank Williams, Benton booker, also ankled exchanges. Others booking: Mrs. Frieda Klein, the Hunter, Hunter; Robert Brodkin, Metro, Schenectady; Leonard Rosenthal, State, Troy; Sam Milberg, Ritz, Scotia, and Family, Watervliet; Neil Hellman, Hellman circuit . . . Henry Grossman, Hudson exhibitor, has recovered from an illness . . . William E. Benton, Benton circuit, Saratoga, reported back from Miami . . . Fred Mausert, State, Glens Falls, and Mrs. Mausert have been south, too.

Bill Kennedy jr., who assists his father in managing theatres at Lake Champlain and Rouses Point, is turning out maple sugar for commercial purposes as the sap runs from trees on Kennedy farm acreage. The elder Kennedy has not been too well for sometime . . . Car of George Tucker, RKO salesman, was smashed and he had 14 stitches taken in the leg after a headon collision near Watertown. Tucker was in the hospital for a week . . . Bill Sharpe, former Paramount ad sales supervisor and now an executive with Advertising Accessories, was in town on business . . . Charles Ost is Albany manager for National Screen and its affiliate . . . Chris Buckley of the General Stark, Bennington, Vt., has been on the west coast for about eight weeks. Walter Morey is in charge while the boss is away . . . "The Road to Singapore" has topped the hefty grosses hung up in several Albany territory spots by Paramount's "Union Pacific."

Charley Smakwitz, Warner theatres district manager, shook off a cold in Florida but contracted another when chilly breezes struck him on his return to Albany. Saw William C. Smalley while there . . . M. A. Silver, Warner theatres zone boss, was in New York . . . Walter Broadhurst, electrician at Ritz, still in hospital but reported better . . . "Virginia City" did good business at Strand and had its run continued for another week at Ritz, a few blocks south. Usually a week intervenes between Strand and Ritz engagements when time is extended . . . Georgette Bingham, one of the pleasant young women at Columbia, working Saturday afternoon.

Harry Hellman and Mrs. Hellman have returned from a long stay in Miami. Their son, Neil, and his wife then went to Washington for a vacation . . . The father of Mrs. Bernard Kranze, wife of the RKO manager, died in Florida . . . RKO's booker-office manager, Abe Van Deusen, trained to New York Saturday afternoon to see the Rangers play the Bruins in a hockey game at Madison Square Garden. Did not arrive in big town until 7:30 due to flood waters, hustled to Garden, watched the ice contest, boarded return train at midnight, arrived in Albany at 3:30 a. m., and was at his post getting out shows Sunday morning, as usual.

Adjourn in Albany; Trade Unscathed

ALBANY—Faced with many threats in the form of bills introduced during the three-month session of the legislature, the motion picture industry emerged virtually unscathed.

When the gavel fell for sine die adjournment, the Condon fireproof booth bill was on the order of third reading in the senate. This proposal constituted the most serious threat, judging from comments and messages. The rapidity with which it was reported out of committee and moved up on the senate calendar, caused apprehension lest the upper house at least would vote approval.

Adoption of a pari-mutuel law was probably the most important thing, from the viewpoint of film interests, during the final week. This act, advanced as one that should raise $5,000,000 for the state by June 30, 1941, will hurt picture business. How much remains to be seen. Minimum admission is fixed at $1.50 and restrictions are placed on issuance of passes—two points looked on with favor by exhibitors. However, the present five tracks can be increased in number to nine, with two new ones upstate and two downstate.

A bill transferring control of theatre ticket agencies from the secretary of state to local authorities, and providing a maximum 75-cent charge, was passed. This would affect public exhibitions, too.

Certificate Holders Get Columbia Trust Common

NEW YORK—With expiration on Monday of Columbia's voting trust agreement, all common stock held in the trust has been distributed to holders of certificates. The agreement expired by virtue of a 10-year limitation on trust agreements. The amount of stock originally held in the trust is said to have been "substantial."

N. J. Allied Will Choose Convention Site Apr. 9

NEW YORK—The time and place for the Allied of New Jersey annual convention, now tentatively set for September, will be decided at the organization's meeting April 9. Lee Newbury, who has returned from a Florida vacation, will preside.

Two Monthly Via PRC

HOLLYWOOD—Sigmund Neufeld Productions, Inc., will release two features a month through Producers Releasing Corp., successor to Producers Distributing Corp., originally organized by Ben Judell. Harry Rathner of New York is now president.

"U" Companies Re-elect All

NEW YORK—All officers of Universal Pictures Co., and Universal Corp., were re-elected at the annual board meetings of both companies.

ROCHESTER

BECAUSE of steadily increasing patronage, "Rebecca" was held over a second week at Loew's Rochester . . . "Pinocchio" also stayed in town a second week when it moved from the RKO Palace to the Century.

The Temple and Capitol had the Johnny Paychek-Joe Louis fight (?) pictures next night after the battle . . . Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit headlined the Ad Club program Thursday . . . "The Miracle of Milk," sponsored by the Rochester Milk Dealers, Inc., was shown for two days at all local Schine theatres . . . The Monroe invited local newsmen to a special showing of a picture about Frank Gannett, local publisher and candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Local theatres had one of the worst blizzards in years to contend with last week. Highways were closed for a day . . . Eastman Kodak is shaping a bigger and better exhibit for the New York World's Fair this year. It will be enlarged to include a special fashion show and a greater color photography display.

The Lake has adopted a new running policy. It will remain closed each Tuesday and Wednesday, opening Thursday with a double-feature program through Friday. A new program will be shown on Saturday, and another new program Sunday and Monday.

Republic Will Complete Nine Films by May 1

HOLLYWOOD—Republic will have completed nine pictures for release by May 1 with five of the crop ready by April 17, said Moe Siegel, production head, upon his return from conferences in New York.

The unusual situation is brought about by the fact every available inch of studio space was tied up for over a month for the shooting of "Dark Command" while Claire Trevor recuperated from an illness. Henceforth, all scheduled production held up during the period is now being put in work in order to meet release dates, Siegel adds.

Yates and Grainger to Gotham After Seeing "Command" Bow

NEW YORK—Herbert J. Yates and James R. Grainger returned over the weekend from Lawrence, Kas., where Republic staged an elaborate twin-theatre world premiere of "Dark Command" at the Granada and Dickinson Thursday.

Flock of Republic Players In Lawrence for Premiere

HOLLYWOOD—A flock of Republic players are back at the studio after attending the world premiere of "Dark Command" at Lawrence, Kas. Among those who made the trip were John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon, Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and George Hayes. Bill Saal was in charge of arrangements.

Proposed Atlas Meld May Involve RKO

NEW YORK—The investments held by Atlas Corp. in RKO are involved in the banking company's proposed merger with the Curtiss-Wright Corp. Among the provisions for the proposed exchange is one entitling each holder of one share of common to receive 65/100 of a share of common of the continuing company. Such holder also receives one share of common of a new Atlas Corp. which will hold approximately 40 per cent of the present assets of Atlas. These assets will comprise the "so-called special situations" in which Atlas has investments, such as the common stock of RKO.

Floyd B. Odlum, Atlas president, has advised stockholders the proposed merger "provides that, if the holders of a majority of the preferred stock as a class object to the merger and vote against it, there will be no merger."

Gen'l Theatres Equipment Earns $1.17 Per Share

NEW YORK—General Theatres Equipment reports net income for 1939 of $696,061, equal to approximately $1.17 per share as against 85 cents in 1938. The figure includes dividends of $185,600 received on the company's investment in common stock of 20th Century-Fox and is after provisions for federal income tax.

Dividends of 81 cents per share were paid during the year, amounting to an aggregate of $476,337, leaving a net addition from operations to earned surplus of $219,724. Pursuant to the board's authorization, 5,000 shares of stock were acquired and retired during 1939 at a cost of $9 per share. Earle G. Hines, president, was granted an option to purchase during a five-year term, unless his employment shall sooner terminate, up to 15,000 shares ranging from $16 to $20 each.

Both Sides in Partial Landis Suit Victory

PHILADELPHIA—Both sides scored partial victory in a series of rulings by District Judge Wm. H. Kirkpatrick in the Vineland Landis case.

The plaintiffs got the right to examine clearance books, master contracts between Warner theatres and distributors, and the Warner records on the acquisition of its Philadelphia theatres. They were denied the right, however, to see distributor records not pertaining to Warner on the distributor plea that it would expose their business to competitors. Defendants got the right to examine the Landis books.

David Bachman, referee, supervises examinations which start Tuesday. The trial is set for May 6.

Pass RKO Dividend

NEW YORK—Because of "uncertain conditions," RKO directors passed their quarterly dividend payable May 1.

RICHMOND

WILLIAM F. CROCKETT, president of the MPTO of Virginia, announces the mid-summer convention will be held at the Chamberlain Hotel, Old Point Comfort, June 24. Sydney Gates of Norfolk is chairman of the arrangements committee, assisted by Graham Barbee, Leo Greenwood and Leonard Gordon . . . In the bowling league, the Colonial team increased its lead to two games by taking two out of three from the second place Brook-vue boys. The State team pulled up into a tie for second by winning two from Park. Carillon went into the win column by taking one game from the Grand.

Quite a bit of going and coming last week. Sam Moore, operator at the Brookland, visited his home town of Roanoke . . . Charlie Denmead came up from West Point in quest of a popcorn machine for his York Theatre . . . Charlie Miles, Carillon operator, was called to Lynchburg on account of the illness of his mother . . . Olmstead Knox, RKO salesman, came to town . . . Dan Wilkinson went with a party to New York . . . Georgie Farthing went to Washington . . . Harry Goldberg, Metro, was here . . . Ben Caplon, Columbia salesman, also in town . . . Dorothy Shewbridge visited in Washington . . . Brock Whitlock, assistant manager of Loew's Capitol in Washington, visited his folks here . . . Mervin Ullman, Altec engineer, had a family reunion in Washington . . . Harry Taylor, RCA, was here.

George Butcher is now a staff member at the National. Zulie Carter, cashier at the same theatre, returned to work too soon, and had a relapse . . . Charlie Hann has replaced Billy Baltimore as projectionist at the Patrick Henry . . . Floyd Armstrong, formerly operator at the National, is now with RCA and is at the Camden plant getting further schooling before being assigned a territory as engineer . . . Jack Derrinberger's Art Guild is turning out some nice screen process cards for the Park and National.

The banquet given by the operators' local was quite a success, with every seat at the table occupied. Among those seen enjoying themselves: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Anderson, Joe Antone, Tom Jones, Abner Long, Tripple Cardwell, John Clator, Mr. and Mrs. John Doherty, Jim Smith and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Ullman, Pat Leary, Herbert Hogwood, Mack Scarborough, Louis Magalis, Lindsey Bryan, Joe Bocardi, Stafford Price, Floyd Armstrong, William Fox and wife, Jit Sickinger, M. S. Moore, Howard Powers and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Addie Stewart, Joe LaPrade, Pruny Morrisette, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. George Crozier, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Baltimore, Dick Fulwiler, Frank Mathews, Dick Taylor, Jimmy Mathews and wife, Harry Jarvis, Tom Jones, Bernard McCann, Mack McCart, George Daniels and Mr. and Mrs. Otis Bugg.

John Boles is booked for a personal appearance at Loew's. Last week Blackstone played there . . . The Booker T had a Sunday midnight spook show . . . Katharine Knaub, cashier of the Bellevue, has been ailing . . . Also, Mrs. Carol Strouf, wife of the Carillon operator . . . Jeff Hofheimer, Norfolk exhibitor, has opened his new Visulite in Covington.

"Wind's" First Overseas Showing in So. Africa

NEW YORK—South Africa will be the first of the foreign countries to witness "Gone With the Wind" when the film opens at the Metro, Johannesburg, April 12.

The next overseas showing, according to Mort A. Spring, will be in London, April 18, simultaneously at three houses, the Palace, Ritz and Empire. Only other date scheduled so far is for Sydney, Australia, where the film opens May 1 at the St. James and Liberty.

Selling and exhibition policy for abroad follows along domestic lines. Advanced admission prices will be charged at all roadshow runs with no reduction in the footage.

Latin American showings will be delayed until the task of converting the dialogue into Spanish subtitles is completed. The three-and-three-quarter-hour film will be dubbed in French for showing in France and Belgium, but release will be delayed probably until after the war.

BALTIMORE

SAM SOLTZ, Howard, is expected back at the Howard in two weeks . . . Moe Cohen is very busy these days between the Miami Club and his Main Theatre . . . Joe Fields, Rivoli, has added ranch effects to his palatial home by installing a barbecue pit . . . Phil Buck, Regent, has a touch of hay fever . . . Wilbur Brizendine, Rialto, is having new ladies' and men's lounges installed, and he has moved his office upstairs.

Variety luncheon was held Wednesday at the Belvedere. Ten members from Baltimore will go to Dallas for the convention, April 18-20. Chief Barker Lou Rome is in charge of reservations . . . June 21 is the date for the annual Variety golf tournament. It will be held at the Woodholme Country Club. Rodney Collier, Warner's Stanley, heads the golf committee.

The Governor Ritchie open-air theatre at Glen Burnie will open shortly, with Mr. McKay as manager . . . David Mervis, doorman at the Hippodrome, has resigned and gone into the restaurant business . . . Judge Roland K. Adams has ruled "Ecstasy" may be shown here, ending a three-year ban . . . George Jacobs, Goldfield, who is taking driving lessons, made a sharp left turn the other day and a rear wheel of the car flew off . . . Jerry Cohen, Plaza, is still looking for a winner at Bowie.

John Wahl has returned after three weeks of Miami . . . At the Jewish War Veterans banquet, from the film colony were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Silver, Overlea; Mr. and Mrs. Lou Cohen, Essex; Dave Kaiser, Maryland Display Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Abe Cohen, Essex, and Harry and Al Vogelstein, Baltimore Poster Co. . . . Morris Oletsky Republic salesman, reports all you have to do is whistle a song around his little boy, who is just past three, and he will tell you what it is . . . Trailers were shown at all local theatres for the Red Cross campaign . . . Ted Routson's (Hippodrome) contest on "Pinocchio" was won by Julius Scholle. His review brought $15.

O'Shea Confers With Six Managers on "Wind" Run

NEW YORK—Ted O'Shea, eastern M-G-M district manager, met with six of his branch managers to set up arrangements for three-day showings of "Gone With the Wind" in small towns and suburban situations. The new plan goes into effect as of April 15. Heretofore, as of April 1, four-day bookings have been accepted. The regular 75 cents matinee and $1.10 evening scales are to continue under the new arrangements.

At the session were Rudolph Berger, Washington; Ralph Maw, Buffalo; Ralph Pielow, Albany; Ben Rosenwald, Charlotte; Jack Bowen, New York, and Ben Abner, New Jersey.

Plagiarism Charge Made On "I Dream Too Much"

NEW YORK—Olga Linek Scholl Russ has filed suit against Radio Pictures, RKO Distributing Corp., and RKO Studios, seeking $250,000 damages, an accounting, and an injunction, against "I Dream Too Much," claiming the film to be a plagiarism of her scenario, "Long Live Love." Action was filed in the supreme court.

Suit for $82,348 damages has been filed against 20th Century-Fox and De Luxe Labs in federal court by Atherton Productions, Peck's Bad Boy Corp., Serial Producing Co., and Principal Pictures Corp., claiming the destruction of 13 films in a fire at 20th-Fox's plant in Little Ferry, N. J., on July 9, 1937.

Reserves Decision on Stockholders' Suit

NEW YORK—Supreme Court Justice Carroll G. Walter has reserved decision after a week's trial in the Consolidated Film Industries stockholder suit. Action sought approximately $2,000,000 for alleged mismanagement and bad deals and was brought by minority holders. Other defendants are Republic Pictures of Delaware, Setay Co., Cajo Co., CBS, and officers and directors of Consolidated. Since briefs are in order, a decision before the first of June is unlikely.

This Award is given each month to the film receiving the highest number of votes by the members of the National Screen Council, whose selection is governed by outstanding merit and suitability of the film to whole-family entertainment. Members of the Council include over 200 motion picture editors of leading newspapers throughout the country, motion picture reviewing committee of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, and state motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Young Tom Edison" Winner of March Blue Ribbon Award

"Young Tom Edison," M-G-M's screen dramatization of the boyhood of Thomas A. Edison, was voted by National Screen Council members as the outstanding picture released in March, and winner of the BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

The star, director and producer team of Mickey Rooney, Norman Taurog and John W. Considine jr., are reunited in "Young Tom Edison," the trio having previously received BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon plaques for outstanding star, directorial and producer achievements in "Boys Town," winner of the September, 1938, Award.

The story of "Young Tom Edison" is based on incidents covering the boyhood of Thomas Alva Edison, his triumphs and his battles against odds to achieve a start in life. He is presented as the typical American boy, who set out to show the town he was not the numbskull they believed him to be.

Audiences everywhere should sing the praises of this colorful, romantic story of the collapse of the golden days of Austria under Hapsburg rule, marking a solid success for Winfield Sheehan in his return to production activity. Remarkably well-told, it features a superbly intelligent horse whom animal lovers will flock to see and admire, and who comes dangerously close to stealing the show from the human actors, competent though they are. In the latter classification, a fiery new personality, Ballerina Irina Baronova, scores in her film debut, while Robert Young, Helen Gilbert and Charles Coburn register outstandingly. Young, stablemaster at the Lippizan breeding center, trains Florian, the horse, from colthood, and it is through the latter's loyalty and devotion that Young and Miss Gilbert are reunited after the war. Edwin L. Marin directed.

These further adventures of Doctor Kildare will have to rest on the laurels of past performances. As a dramatic offering it builds up to the treatment of a patient who is losing his mind by administering insulin shock treatment. This, in itself, is quite engrossing and it is handled with suspense. But, otherwise, it is merely another chapter in which Lew Ayres and Lionel Barrymore try to figure each other out as they pursue their hospital duties; each likes the other but won't show it and each has his own ideas. It does manage to hold attention and the background and characters do convey the idea of a Utopian hospital and its staff. Romantic and comedy angles are worked in a convincing enough fashion but on the whole the film is only second rate "Doctor Kildare." Harold S. Bucquet directed.

There is only one point that redeems this picture. It is the photography when it concentrates on outdoor scenery. But that it is not a potent factor in entertainment, particularly when the material that accompanies these outdoor shots lacks conviction in story and in performances. Animals, wild and semi-wild—crows, dogs, bears and stuffed eagles—do more to supply thrills and interest than the actors. For story purposes, the film tells about a group of people who live outdoors. They kill, love and suffer according to the book and they contribute nothing to lift the story from its dull depths. The only excitement comes when an eagle abducts a child and flies away to its eerie. Its a stuffed doll and the eagle is on wires. This one is recommended only when there is a dire product shortage.

A highly emotional problem play, this will probably suffice in the program brackets. After a fast and intriguing start, based on an unusual and entertaining story premise, it loses itself midway in a welter of melodramatic complexities and overabundant dialogue which a great many audiences may find a bit on the boresome side. The cast is satisfactory, but undistinguished and inclined in some instances, particularly in the case of Jean Muir, to overact. Miss Muir and Laraine Day portray sisters, the former beautiful and sophisticated, the latter naive and direct. Both are in love with Robert Cummings, rich wastrel. Cummings is sent to prison for manslaughter. He was drunk at the time of the accident, and Miss Muir, who had been driving, refuses to confess. Upon his release he spurns her for the other sister. Robert B. Sinclair directed.

Here again appears the government agent who is sent to investigate the mysterious doings on a stagecoach line. He assumes the name of a notorious outlaw and proceeds to locate the responsible parties. Of course, all this is told with no dearth of movement against outdoor backgrounds, no lack of action, a la six-guns, fists and riding, and the proper romantic touches. But, all in all, it just manages to be an average western. The performances lack conviction. The story unfolds without any apparent inspiration. This is quite obvious in the lines and their delivery and the sequence of events. However, Donald Barry, is the new contribution to the western scene and, aside from his dramatic ability, measures up well. He can ride, shoot blanks and fight as well as a half-dozen other players whose chief claim to fame is their handiness with guns, fists and leather.

Were it not for handsomely done pastoral sequences in this French film it would merely be another story of the hopeless love of a 16-year-old schoolgirl for an older man. In addition, it is frank drama about women and their peculiarities. However, the gay spark of prankish girls and their carefree, humorous ways are always in evidence, plus the well-known Gallic touch. The exhibitor who plays foreign product has in "Claudine" something that will help to bridge the gap of scarcity. The story is set in the early years of the 20th Century and the attention of costume, custom and the maintenance of the air of the period is meritorious. As an exercise in emotions, the direction capably distributes comedy, girlish didoes, romance, frustration and the like. English titles.

For a plausible story, well acted and featuring a cowboy player who looks the part, and handsomely too, "Pioneers of the Frontier," has everything that a western needs to give audiences satisfaction in spite of its corny title. It is the second in the Bill Elliott series. His handling of himself, as far as guns, fists, horses and role go, should fulfill the promise evidenced by these offerings. Elliott inherits his uncle's tremendous land holdings when the latter is killed by Dick Curtis. He arrives in time to thwart any further undercover dealings by Dirty Dick. Curtis has ambitions to become a sort of king of the prairies. However, Elliott sees that the settlers on the land get a fair deal—and with all the horse opera trimmings. The film compares with the best in a crowded field.

Noteworthy and diverting comedy drama with an "and a little child shall lead them" theme and a salty navy background, this demands recognition as one of the best features to come from Scott R. Dunlap's production factory in months. The cast, led by James Dunn, Jean Parker and Moppet Martin Spellman, is pleasingly competent and apparently found in a skillfully-molded screenplay a chore entirely to its individual and collective liking; while direction and production values are of comparable high order. Young Master Spellman, a runaway orphan, chooses Dunn as his "father," the latter being on his way back to his ship after shore-leave. They encounter Miss Parker, who waxes indignant because she believes Dunn is deserting his "son." Marriage proves to be the solution. William Nigh directed.

This Italian biography of the musical genius who composed so many operas fails to recapture the spirit of the man's life or his works. The drama's structure is episodic and mostly on the dull side. Verdi's compositions are the opera classics of today, yet the musical interludes are much too sketchy to do justice to them. Verdi is portrayed by Fosco Giachetti in a mournful manner. Gaby Morlay, the French actress, plays Margherita who was Verdi's first and only love. Her death furnished the inspiration for the opera, "Il Traviata." Following the death of his wife and two children, Verdi is befriended by an opera singer, Germana Paolieri. She gives up her career to be with Verdi, whose music flames the aspiration of the people for a united Italy. Beniamino Gigli's voice is heard in the tenor roles. Carmine Gallone directed.

There is little in the line of names for the exhibitor to work with when he plays this film. His chief line of attack to attract audience attention should be along sensational copy lines aimed to arouse the interest of his potential patrons in whether or not an eagle is capable of abducting a child. He might also contact, in the rural sections, the local fire warden and promote something along "Save the Forests From Fire" lines. Stuffed animals are required for display in the lobby.

In lobby displays, stress the feminine angle. To this end, blow up appropriate scenes from the film where feminity is the keynote. Contact the local school of languages. The pastoral scenes are quite striking photographic compositions—they rate display attention. The story upon which the film is based is by Collette, who has quite a reputation in this country for her light, risque works. The local bookstore might be brought into line for poster displays. If the audience is familiar with the roster of French players, call its attention to Brasseur and Mlle. Lion, both outstanding performers.

Natural tieups for this picture are with music stores. Displays should feature recordings from Verdi's operas and stills from the film. Arrangements should be made for radio stations to devote a program to Verdi recordings. Music schools and teachers should be contacted. The opening night can be a benefit performance with some of the proceeds going to the fund for the Metropolitan Opera of New York.

Republic Deals With Sound Technicians

Having successfully closed contractual deals with eight other independent producers, International Sound Technicians Local 695, IATSE, took drastic steps to force Republic to open bargaining negotiations when, over the signature of Harold V. Smith, the union's business representative, a "talk-it-over-or-else" manifesto was delivered to E. H. Goldstein, studio manager. The studio capitulated to the April 3 deadline set in the communication.

The local is seeking a revised contract cutting working time from 54 to 42 hours weekly, but is not endeavoring to secure wage increases until these working conditions have been adjusted. Negotiations are being handled by the local independently of the IATSE.

Its continuation to be contingent upon the outcome of the producers' efforts to rescind the ten per cent wage increase granted members of the Conference of Studio Unions last fall, the Society of Motion Picture Film Editors' recently-secured ten per cent salary boost has been made effective retroactive to February 20. The boost affects about 90 per cent of the Society's membership, a total of approximately 700 workers.

Meantime negotiations with the CSU were scheduled to be resumed April 4 with Y. Frank Freeman representing producers and J. W. Buzzell sitting in for the union members.

Paralleling the action of the producers association in ordering a reorganization of Central Casting Corp., the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild has begun an investigation of reports that extras have been terrorized by hoodlums enrolled in bit players' ranks. A statement from the SAG directorate declared "there is no room for hoodlums in Hollywood" and pointed out the Guild "has always sought to stamp out corrupt or criminal practices in connection with extra work." However, the bulletin continued, "it should be pointed out that the investigation has concerned a fraction of one per cent of the organization."

Possibility that negotiations with producers for a contract may be resumed within a few weeks came closer when the Screen Writers Guild, in an open board meeting, approved the two major clauses in the recently-filed NLRB intermediary report, but took exception to a third clause wherein the NLRB trial examiner declared he could find no basis to support charges that producers had failed to bargain in good faith. The producers have already notified the NLRB that the report, in its entirety, has been okayed by them.

Action on a proposal to demand a minimum wage for directors employed on pictures budgeted between $15,000 and $200,000 was tabled by the Screen Directors Guild's executive board. All phases of the proposal are to be thoroughly discussed before any action is taken.

Other labor developments:

Producers have ratified a contract with the Script Clerks Guild calling for a $55 minimum weekly wage and other concessions.

John Arnold, George Folsey, Fred Jackman and Ted Tetzlaff were re-elected to the American Society of Cinematographers' board of governors, and Victor Milner defeated Arthur Edison as the fifth member, in the annual election meeting. The new board will meet April 8 to select officers for the coming season.

Studio Advertising Artists' demands for a five-day, 40-hour week were discussed by producer representatives with Herbert Sorrell, business manager of the motion picture painters, with which union the advertising men are affiliated. The Screen Cartoonists Guild, also affiliated with the painters, held a membership meeting April 4 at which Sorrell reported on the progress of negotiations with Metro for recognition.

Adopting a resolution opposing any changes to the Wagner Act, the Screen Publicists Guild in a membership meeting approved a plan to send a representative to Washington for the purpose of fighting any suggested alterations in the bargaining act.

Several minor changes in the constitution now being drafted were ordered at the membership meeting of the Screen Office Employes Guild. A contract is being drawn up for submission to producers, calling for a closed shop, wage increases and other adjustments.

Work Ahead Despite Settlement Talk

Whether or not the government and major companies involved may find an out-of-court solution to the pending anti-trust suit—reports of which possible settlement continue to reach here from the east—the department of justice's two local deputies, Albert J. Law and Harold Collins, have not heard of it. Hence, business is proceeding as usual, with the two G-men now correlating the data compiled during a recent series of examinations with screen writers and independent producers.

As to what their next assignment may be, Law could not or would not venture a guess. His last official word concerning the anti-trust proceedings, he said, came from Washington, D. C., when he was notified the case had been cleared for trial starting May 1.

Order Reorganization Of Central Casting

On the heels of the disclosure that Southern California authorities are investigating the alleged infiltration of hoodlums and other "undesirables" into the ranks of film extras, a thorough reorganization of Central Casting Corp. has been ordered by the Producers' Ass'n. Action was taken at the regular monthly meeting, at which time it was announced a committee would be appointed at once by Y. Frank Freeman, association president. The reorganization group will be empowered to make any changes in structure, operations or personnel deemed necessary.

In all probability, the committee will be aided in its work by the Screen Actors Guild, which recently filed a lengthy report with producers containing specific information as to favoritism, job-buying and other charges lodged against Central by a number of extras. This report was compiled under the direction of a private detective agency, hired by the SAG for the purpose.

Following the producers' meeting, it was also announced arrangements have been made to place ten free beds in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital as a part of the Will Rogers Memorial plan, these beds to be administered by the Motion Picture Relief Fund. Further, the association's directorate voted to lend financial aid to the "I Am an American" Panegyric Foundation, which holds its second Americanization program in the Hollywood Bowl in June.

Additionally, the association agreed to act as host at a dinner in honor of delegates to the first annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners on a date sometime between May 8 and May 10, during which time the conclave will be held.

Ritz Bros. Forsake Roles In "Boys From Syracuse"

Reportedly because of dissatisfaction over the fact they would be forced to share top billing with Allan Jones and Martha Raye, the Ritz Brothers have withdrawn from the cast of Jules Levy's "The Boys From Syracuse." Director A. Edward Sutherland is readying the film for an early start for Universal release.

A Production Boom Evident by May

Although the inherent motives may be a trifle obscure, there can no longer be any doubt that a production boom not duplicated for several seasons back is at hand and will make itself generally evident before May comes to Hollywood.

Right down the list, with few exceptions, the lineup for the balance of the month, as well as for several months to come, presages a substantial upswing, topping the 33 films now in work by a wide margin. Columbia, for one, will start at least three—including Wesley Ruggles' "Arizona," Sam Bischoff's "Singapore" and "Our Wife." Charles R. Rogers, further, has added a fourth vehicle to the group he will turn out for release through this company, "In Old Monterey," for which Rita Hayworth has been spotted in an important role.

Paramount has six on the line for the balance of April, three more set for May and another pair for June. This month's starters include "The Pioneer Woman," "Rangers of Fortune," "Comin' Round the Mountain," "Dancing on a Dime," "Ghost Music" and "Mystery Ship."

Having gunned four as the month got under way, 20th Century-Fox has three others on the line—"The Great Profile," "Street of Memories" and "Brigham Young"—to bring April's total up to seven. Also scheduled for a heavy plunge is Warner, which lists six to go before the cameras in the next three weeks, including such properties as "January Heights" and "You Can't Escape Forever." Similarly, Republic will maintain its present high production speed by launching the big-budgeted "Lady From New Orleans" April 15, for which a second unit is now picking up background material in Louisiana.

On a lesser scale, but still in the swim, are RKO Radio, which records three in preparation, and Universal, with two. Metro, likewise listing a pair for immediate starts, has also amplified its British production plans by announcing "Whitechapel" is to be made in its London studios as a starring vehicle for Robert Montgomery.

Production Upswing Seen in Payrolls

As a direct reflection of the upswing in picture-making during the month, the earnings of studio workers in February represented an increase of $37,962 over the January payroll, according to the monthly bulletin issued through the California State Chamber of Commerce by H. C. Carrasco of the state labor commission. These figures, exclusive of the earnings in the talent and executive divisions, comprise a tabulation of the payrolls for all other studio unions and crafts.

Number of employed workers also took a jump, gaining 1,007 over the 11,440 who collected paychecks in January, the report revealed. However, the weekly average wage of $41.39 was 38 cents lower than the $41.72 earned each week during January. Total earnings were $515,188, compared to $477,226 for the previous month.

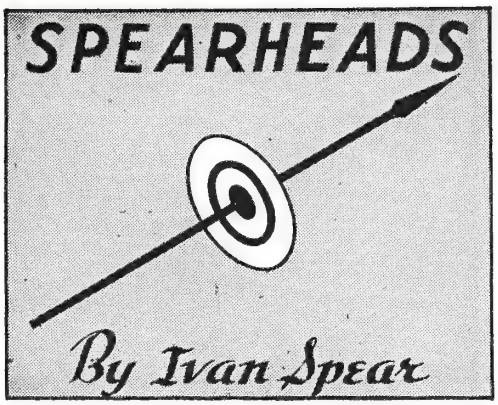
Although studio officials deny the action will be widespread or of a serious nature, M-G-M attaches admit a retrenchment has been undertaken in a number of studio departments, with the wardrobe and prop units among the hardest hit. It was predicted, however, that not more than 100 would, altogether, feel the ax.

Suspend Lana Turner

On the same lot Actress Lana Turner was placed on the suspended list for failing to appear on the set for the scheduled start of "To Own the World." The featured player instead pulled out for New York to join her husband, Artie Shaw, band leader. Starting time on the film consequently has been set back to April 10.

After an association with the company that began at its inception, Director Sidney Lanfield asked for and received release from his contract at 20th Century-Fox after disagreeing with studio executives on the handing of "Public Deb No. 1," which was to have been his next assignment. Following a short vacation, Lanfield will consider other studio offers.

Ralph Staub has replaced Harriet Parsons as producer of Columbia's "Screen Snapshots" short subjects series, the latter having turned in her resignation.



A change of assignments in RKO Radio's publicity department found Eddie Rubin taking over the radio contracts division.

Murphy on Loanout

George Murphy has been borrowed from M-G-M for the male lead opposite Brenda Joyce in 20th-Fox's "Elsa Maxwell's Public Deb No. 1," which rolls April 8. Gregory Ratoff will direct, replacing Sidney Lanfield, who obtained a release from his contract and relinquished the assignment.

Bows in Music Hall

"Our Town," Sol Lesser's first production for United Artists release, will be given its world premiere May 24 at the Radio City Music Hall in New York.

In the face of Hunt Stromberg's finicality in matters concerning screen credits—especially his own—there was probably some plain and fancy straffing among Leo's blurbers as a result of the publicity release which declared he was "directing" "Susan and God."

Ann Sheridan has received an invitation from North Texas State Teachers College to return there this summer and conduct a seminar on Motion Picture Technique.

Which should be no end valuable in helping the schoolma'rms of the Panhandle to put oomph into the three R's. And is Harvard's face Crimson?

Paramount has a definite hit in "The Road to Singapore," currently in release. Columbia is about to produce one yclept plain "Singapore." Now, to complete the cycle, some other highly-original producer should start to work on "The Road Out of Singapore."

Glamour, Gangsters and Gobs

Appeal to the nostalgic memories of the oldsters, neatly sandwiched between slices of modern entertainment magic, was the motivating factor for two of a trio of features which occupied the higher-budget bracket in the week's preview lineup of five photoplays.

Garnering consensus opinion as the best of the quintette was Warner's "It All Came True," in which filmdom's leading exponent of oomph, Ann Sheridan, does right well for herself in a meatier role than has heretofore been her lot. Every ingredient in the picture, from story motivation to characterization, points up toward a first-rate piece of entertainment, effectively dramatic and spiced with neat musical interludes. Louis Bromfield's novel, a handsome piece of Damon Runyon-ish writing, was deftly transcribed to film by Michael Fessier and Lawrence Kimble; Lewis Seiler imparted skillful direction, and Mark Hellinger's production mounting moves it definitely into the upper brackets among current releases.

In "Star Dust" 20th Century-Fox has patterned a vehicle that should appeal to all types of audiences and can be recommended, with few reservations, for that reason. Its behind-the-scenes-in-Hollywood story, scripted by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan from a story by Jesse Malo, Kenneth Earl and Ivan Kahn, is packed with brisk lines, hokum and amusing situations, laden with overtones of music, comedy, romance and drama. Walter Lang directed for Producer Kenneth Macgowan.

Weakest of the three was Metro's "And One Was Beautiful," a highly emotional problem play which, after a speedy and intriguing start, lost itself midway in a welter of melodramatic complexities and overplentiful dialogue. The rap for this unfortunate state of affairs must be shared by Harry Clork, who wrote the script, and Alice Duer Miller, author of the original story. Director Robert B. Sinclair managed with fair success to prevent the proceedings from running away from him completely, but it is to be feared a great many audiences will vote it only a trifle better than boresome. Frederick Stephani draws credit as the producer.

A pair of very worthwhile programmers debuted in Monogram's "Son of the Navy" and Universal's "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me."

The entry from Scott R. Dunlap's production factory must be recognized as one of the best turned out by that film emporium in months. Using the "a little child shall lead them" theme, the story by Grover Jones and True Boardman, scripted by Marion Orth and Joseph West, is diverting and skillfully molded. Likewise the cast is pleasingly competent and the direction and production values were pitched in the same excellent key. Grant Withers was associate producer and the megaphone was brandished by William Nigh.

A shade on the flimsy side as to story, Universal's entry nevertheless will serve with satisfaction in the smaller exhibition situations for which it was obviously designed. The title, too, if showmen can squeeze it on their marquees, should serve as a magnet. Columnist Ed Sullivan dashed off the original story, which was scripted by Charles Grayson and Edmund L. Hartmann. Harold Schuster showed competence in his direction, with Joseph G. Sanford making his bow as an associate producer.

Now Los Angeles County Makes Companies Pay

The industry's woes, it seems, will never cease.

Now it's Los Angeles county that has stepped in and, through an ordinance passed by the county supervisors, makes it compulsory for motion picture companies using county parks and recreation centers for location work to pay a license fee ranging from $5 to $50 daily. Further, the picture units will be required to pay for any and all damages to the property incurred during the shooting, and to reimburse the county for whatever water and power is used.

New ordinance becomes effective in 30 days.

A Temporary Tailspin by Production; 33 in Work

Despite encouraging promises for the immediate future, production currently seems to have gone into a tailspin, with a total of only 33 in work among the major studios, six of them new starts.

Columbia is filming three, including a newcomer, "Block K Rides Tonight." Metro holds to a five-picture pace, launching "Strike Up the Band" and completing "Twenty-Mule Team." Monogram has lapsed into temporary idleness, having completed "Land of the Six-Gun."

Paramount, with no starts scheduled, dropped to a four-picture total with the completion of "The Ghost Breakers." RKO Radio gunned "Lucky Partners" to register five in work. Republic is filming a quartet, having sent "Women in War" into the cutting room.

Twentieth Century-Fox's total has dropped to three, "Lillian Russell" having been completed. Universal broke even on the week, gunning "No Exit," "South to Karanga" and "The Bad Man From Butte," but completing "If I Had My Way," "Ski Patrol" and a serial, "Winners of the West." Three are in work. Two films, neither a new start, are in production for United Artists release. Warner is shooting four, starting "The Life of Knute Rockne" and completing "Torrid Zone."

REVIEW FLASHES

BULLET CODE (RKO)—To the gallery of westerns that give entertainment, action and a plausible story, this George O'Brien must be added. The performers handle their lines and act their parts expertly, and the fisticuffs are of the first order.

CURTAIN CALL (RKO)—Lightweight backstage farce with a substantial enough load of laughs to warrant consideration for most situations. Alan Mowbray runs away with the comedy honors, topping a generally acceptable cast. Picture marks Howard Benedict's production debut and is the directorial bow for Frank Woodruff.

HIDDEN MENACE (Alliance)—A fairly good story idea treated with little imagination and poorly performed by rather well-known players, including Otto Kruger, Gertrude Michael and John Clements.

LIGHTS OUT IN EUROPE (Mayer-Burstyn)—Grim and realistic, but in every respect sincere, this documentary recounts the recent past of Poland, Danzig, England and France in terms of the horrors of war and its devastation.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Lull After HLDA's Big Peace Rally

A period of comparative quiet, at least for a short time, looms for the Hollywood League for Democratic Action and kindred progressive organizations, following their successful staging of the most ambitious mass meeting of the year to date, when a capacity audience turned out for the widely-heralded "America Declares Peace" session.

The meeting was tied in with "National Peace Week," observed March 30 to April 6 by the American Youth Congress, and was staged under the general auspices of the Hollywood Peace Council, with the HLDA, Motion Picture Democratic Committee, Hollywood Theatre Alliance, Maritime Federation of the Pacific, Industrial Council of the CIO, League of American Writers, California Youth Legislature, League of Women Shoppers, Hollywood Peace Forum, Motion Picture Guild and the Committee to Aid Agricultural Workers as participants. Highlight of the session at Olympic Auditorium was a "living newspaper," staged by the Hollywood Theatre Alliance and drawn from the events which led up to America's entry into World War I in 1917. The sketch also depicted similar events occurring today which contended that the United States may again call its citizens to arms if a properly interpreted warning is not sounded. Speakers included Donald Ogden Stewart, chairman of the HLDA; Melvyn Douglas, Helen Gahagan, Irving Pichel, Dorothy Thompson and other industry notables.

Of an entirely different nature is the event scheduled for April 7—a "jam" session and musical soiree at the home of Director and Mrs. Frank Tuttle. Swing music and volunteer entertainment was supplied.

Hollywood Theatre Alliance held a general membership meeting to elect a new executive board and rough out plans for the coming season. New officers include Henry Blankfort, J. Edward Bromberg, Edward Eliscu, Francis Faragoh, Jay Gorney, Charles Leonard, Henry Myers, Mortimer Offner, Robert Rossen, Frances Sage, Elliott Sullivan, Dorothy Tree, Bernard Vorhaus, Danny Dare, Dorothy Peterson and Florence Rapaport. The HTA, producer of the current local stage revue, "Meet the People," will select its next vehicle at a forthcoming meeting of the new executive board.

Artists Managers Guild Elects Bert Allenberg

New president of the Artists Managers Guild for the coming year, is Bert Allenberg, elected at a general AMG meeting April 2. He succeeds M. C. Levee, the organization's first president.

Other new officers include Frank Vincent, vice-president; John McCormick, secretary, and Leland Hayward, treasurer. The four, in addition to Charles Feldman, comprise the executive committee. Associate members of the AMG will continue to be represented by William Woolfenden.

"Biscuit Eater" Bow Now Hogs Limelight

Now that the reverberations from Republic's debut of "Dark Command" in three Lawrence, Kas., theatres have died away, Paramount's exploiteers are hogging the spotlight which this season has been so busily playing over the bumper crop of elaborate premieres and previews being staged by the industry's tom-tom beaters in various spots throughout the country. Next such affair will be that scheduled for Albany, Ga., when Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater" makes its formal bow.

If the word of Walter Compton, William Saal and Sam Abarbanel, of the Republic exploitation staff, can be believed, the Lawrence premiere and attendant pioneer-days celebration was the hottest affair to hit that town since the days when Quantrell, the guerilla raider, staged his renowned massacre in the Kansas community back in Civil War days. Citizens of Lawrence delved into history to re-stage Quantrell's raid and the burning of the city in 1863 and, between times, view the film at the Granada, Varsity and Dickinson theatres and ogled such attending stars as John Wayne, Gene Autry, Roy Rogers, George (Gabby) Hayes and others who made the trek from Hollywood.

Paramount expects more than 300 film exhibitors and newspapermen to attend its "Biscuit Eater" premiere April 11, having received acceptances from a half-dozen large-scale southern theatremen. Grantland Rice, noted sports writer and commentator, will head a delegation of New York newspapermen. The program, arranged in cooperation with Albany's civic officials, includes a two-mile parade through the business district, a gala ball, a barbecue and showings in two theatres. Event will be covered by all national radio outlets.

Next item on the premiere calendar will also be sponsored by Paramount, when the world premiere of "Buck Benny Rides Again" will be staged at the Paramount Theatre in New York April 24. Jack Benny, Ellen Drew Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, and Dennis Day, all from the cast of the picture, will attend, as will Producer-Director Mark Sandrich and members of Benny's radio troupe including Mary Livingstone and Don Wilson. Benny's radio show will originate from New York April 21 and 28. National release date has been set for May 3.

M-G-M will then step into the picture when it premieres "Edison, the Man" in East Orange, N. J., early in May, acceding to a petition bearing 20,000 signatures of citizens in that community.

Borrow Miriam Hopkins For "Singapore" Role

Warner has loaned Miriam Hopkins to Columbia for the leading feminine role in the Sam Bischoff production, "Singapore." She will play opposite Melvyn Douglas. Director Alexander Hall will signal a camera start next week.

Expect Big Turnout for Polo Double-Header

A big turnout of stars and film executives is expected for the double-header polo match to be played at Midwick Country Club April 14, with the Motion Picture Relief Fund sponsoring the affair and proceeds from the event scheduled to go into that organization's coffers. First match will inaugurate the annual Northern-Southern California high goal championship, with the other to feature film producers versus screen stars. The latter game will include such players as Spencer Tracy, Jack Holt, Darryl F. Zanuck, Frank Borzage and Walter Wanger.

Women's committee comprises Joan Bennett, Myrna Loy, Ginger Rogers, Joan Crawford and Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn, while the program and ticket sales are being handled by Jean Hersholt, Ralph Morgan, Ralph Block, Joseph M. Schenck, George Bagnall, Mary Pickford, Fred Beetson, Lucile Gleason, Mary McCall jr., Samuel Goldwyn, Sol Lesser, Ernst Lubitsch, Leo McCarey, Joseph R. McDonough, Basil Rathbone, William Seiter, Norman Taurog, Jack L. Warner and others.

Daniels, Leisen Form a Play Supply Company

To produce and stage plays, vaudeville acts and other nightclub entertainment, Hollywood Presents, Inc., has secured corporation papers at Sacramento. The new company lists Billy Daniels as president and Mitchell Leisen, Paramount producer-director, as one of the directors. Directorate also includes Eleanor Broder, Leisen's secretary.

The company at present comprises two units, the first of which opens at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco April 9, the second scheduled to open in New York City May 1. They are being booked through the William Morris office. Leisen is functioning as general supervisor, while Daniels is the choreographer and star of one of the units.

20th-Fox Crew to Wales For Background Shots

A large portion of "How Green Was My Valley," best-selling novel by Richard Llewellyn, will be filmed by 20th Century-Fox in Wales, background for the book, according to plans now being shaped up. Key scenes depicting activity in Welsh coal-mining regions will be picked up.

'Doomed Caravan' Chosen As Title for 'Cassidy'

Second in Harry Sherman's "Hopalong Cassidy" westerns for Paramount on the 1940-41 slate has been titled "Doomed Caravan." An original screenplay by Johnston McCulley and J. Benton Cheney, it will follow "Three Men From Texas," which rolls April 15.

Assigned to "Cassidy"

Producer Harry Sherman has assigned Norton S. Parker to adapt "The Cattle Train," a "Hopalong Cassidy" western.

Academy Television Report Due Shortly

Due for release shortly by the Academy Research Council is the fourth annual report on television from the standpoint of the motion picture industry. The report is being compiled by a committee under the chairmanship of Wesley C. Miller of M-G-M and will be distributed to studio executives and production personnel.

Judell Successors Plan Two Features a Month

Organizational formalities completed, Sigmund Neufeld Productions, Inc., is being geared to launch a schedule of two features per month, to be distributed through Producers Releasing Corp. The two new companies, succeeding Ben Judell's Producers Pictures Corp., and Producers Distributing Corp., are headed by Harry Rathner, eastern independent distributor.

Production on the initialer, "Sons of the Finest," will get under way April 8 at Argosy studios, with Sherman Scott directing. Distributor in this area, under franchise from PRC, is Sam Nathanson's Coast Pictures Corp.

Two new independent units have filed articles of incorporation in Sacramento. N. Joseph Ross, C. W. Tye and Naomi Kohn are listed as the directors of Vogue Pictures, while Artists Films, Inc., was founded by Walter Lowendahl sr., Walter Lowendahl jr., Rudolph Polk and Bernard Luber.

The David L. Loew-Albert Lewin United Artists production unit has moved into its new Universal studio headquarters. Screen play for "Flotsam," its first vehicle, is expected to be completed in mid-April by Talbot Jennings, at which time a cast and director will be assigned.

Twenty-Mule Team Across Country to Bally Film

An elaborate cross-country trek, serving as advance ballyhoo for Metro's "Twenty-Mule Team," has been launched by the studio in cooperation with the Pacific Coast Borax Co., with one of the original Death Valley 20-mule teams making the journey.

The entourage left Los Angeles April 4 after a downtown parade, bearing greetings from Mayor Fletcher Bowron to civic officials throughout the country. The "train," comprising two old high-wheeled borax wagons and accompanying water tanks, were shipped by rail to Kansas City, to be transferred there to a motorized unit, carrying them on an itinerary which includes St. Louis, Springfield, Mo., Chicago, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Boston, Springfield, Mass., Providence, Hartford, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Newark and New York City. Harry Loud, of the studio advertising department, will make the trip with them.

S' FRANCISCO

EVERYONE on the Row was saddened by the death of Morgan Walsh, for he was the most respected exhibitor in this area and was considered one of the smartest theatre operators ever to run a house. He was a friend to all and never was too busy to take a personal interest in his innumerable acquaintances. Walsh had continued working for the past year against the advice of his physician, and although he was not in good health, his death was unexpected. The many Row people who attended his funeral gave tribute to a man who will be missed by exhibitors and exchangemen alike.

The three-day return engagement of the recent rains caused plenty of inconvenience for the exhibitors in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. Film deliveries were late and, in some cases, impossible. Many managers met the delivery truck halfway while others in charge of circuit houses made hurried changes and swapped pictures with their colleagues in trouble.

John Frazier, genial film messenger boy, won the February amateur motion film contest sponsored by the Photo Art Monthly. Jack, whose ambition is to be a cameraman, seems to be well on his way . . . "Blue Bird" comes back to Market Street this week, going into the Warfield . . . Jimmy Fadem, 20th-Century shipper, is off to Hollywood for two weeks . . . All-Star is handling the Louis-Paychek fight pictures, and the Golden Gate was the first to get it on the screen . . . Floradale Campbell, Harvey switchboard operator, on the sick list.

Julian Harvey jr. has been in Los Angeles making preparations for his Fair concessions . . . The Golden State chain reopened their Uptown in Oakland this week after a renovation job by National Supply. The name was changed to the Chimes, in accordance with the outside motif . . . Alexander Woollcott, as the "Man Who Came to Dinner," originally booked for two weeks, has been extended to six with additional time likely.

M-G-M here is in first place in the nationwide date drive which is in its 27th week. Sid Shuster, Metro salesman, is in second spot nationally . . . Sam Clark, Warner exploitation manager, was a visitor while pushing "It All Came True" . . . Coast Pictures is a beehive of activity now that Pathe Distributing Co. products have been taken over. "Mlle Ma, Mere," the Danielle Darrieux film, opened at the Egyptian and as usual with Coast, the lobby and theatre front drew much attention . . . James McArthur, Monogram shipper, took to his bed with a stubborn case of asthma . . . Ed Beck, M-G-M exploiteer, and a camera crew from the studio are on a talent search in this territory for a boy to play the part of Jody in "The Yearling."

O. Nakamichi has given up his lease on the Bijou in Vislia and, Ed Levy has assumed operation of the house. Nakamichi, together with Andy Goberlich, is building a new house in Vislia, and plans an opening in about two months . . . The Row has been extending sympathy to Alice Francis, who lost her father this week . . . Ollie Staud, petite usherette at the Embassy, became a bride this week.

Acts of "Oppression" by Majors Are Listed by the Government

NEW YORK—The acts of "oppression" by major distributors in six western states, as reported by plaintiff independents, were listed by the department of justice in response to majors' and affiliated circuits' demands for fuller particulars in the all-industry anti-trust suit. The details list time, theatre, location, principals involved, distress methods and manner employed. They follow:

Marking 25 Years Fraternization—

Celebrating its 25th anniversary with a banquet and dance in the Shirley-Savoy Hotel, is the Screen Club of Denver. Guests of honor among the 370 attending, included Harry Sherman, "Hopalong Cassidy" producer; his star, Russell Hayden, and Robert J. O'Donnell, chief barker of the Variety Club of Dallas, who spoke on the aims of the Variety Clubs. The local club hopes to join national Variety in the near future. Harry T. Nolan and Harry E. Huffman, president and secretary of the original Denver Screen Club also were present, and Frank H. Ricketson jr., president, was toastmaster.

Screen Club Affair Draws Nearly 400

DENVER—Nearly 400 members and friends of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club were present at its banquet in the Lincoln room of the Shirley Hotel, which was preceded by a big reception in the group's clubrooms at the Cosmopolitan Hotel.

The affair was the 25th of its kind by the Screen Club, and its first president, Harry T. Noland, and first secretary, Harry E. Huffman, were both in attendance.

Robert J. O'Donnell, chief barker of the Dallas Variety Club, made the trip to tell the Screen Club of the charitable work of Variety, and his talk was made more vivid by the showing of two short subjects depicting this work. The Screen Club is considering the possibility of becoming a part of Variety.

Paramount was host at a luncheon for Sherman and Hayden, with exchange and theatremen as guests. Also "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" was premiered at $1 a seat, with proceeds going to the Screen Club's charity fund.

Sam Whitehead Into Ranks Of RKO's 100 Percenters

LOS ANGELES—Sam Whitehead, veteran RKO salesman of the Los Angeles exchange, is the third salesman in the company to sell his personal 1939-40 possibilities 100 per cent. A teammate of the same branch, Samuels, and Gruenberg of St. Louis comprise the trio of 100 percenters.

On Five-Day Basis

WILLAMINA, ORE.—W. H. Hibbert's new 300-seat Gay-Way is operating five nights weekly since its recent opening. The house is of tile construction.

F. H. RICKETSON JR., manager of the Intermountain division of National Theatres, was speaker at monthly meeting of Denver chapter of National Association of Cost Accountants. His subject was one he knows thoroughly, "The Theatre Dollar." The chairman of the meeting was I. Weiner, treasurer of Fox Intermountain, and a member of the accountants' organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huffman have returned from a vacation trip to Mexico, where they spent some time in Mexico City and went on to the Pacific Coast. Huffman is city manager of the Fox circuit.

Coppell Amusement Co., distributor of Mexican films, and Premier Film Exchange have moved into the former quarters of Grand National Films in the Sheffield Bldg. at 2147 Broadway.

Ryan Beck has opened a theatre in Creede, Colo., with 110 seats.

Virgil Odell, assistant, has been promoted to the managership at the Aladdin with the transfer of Jack Copeland, manager, to a similar post at the Rialto. Both are Fox first runs in Denver.

Construction Underway on Warner's L. A. Exchange

LOS ANGELES—Construction on the new Warner exchange building, to be one of the most modern in the nation, has gotten under way here. Located at Vermont Ave. and 21st Street, in the heart of Filmrow, the building was designed by Bernard Teitelbaum, Warner studio art director. It is a reinforced concrete structure of two stories and a basement, with dimensions of 52 by 140 feet. It will contain offices, advertising display rooms, projection room, club room, film inspection room, shipping room and ten film storage vaults.

The entire structure is to be air filtered and air conditioned.

PORTLAND

APRIL FIRST . . . Time was when the citizen greeted the day with a dread that was wholly pleasurable. "Okay," he would say. "Shoot the works, but make it good. And watch yourself." Those were the good old days. This year it was blue Monday. You joined fellow procrastinators in a "GWTW" queue at the state income tax boxoffice or you paid the delinquent penalty . . . And no foolin'.

And—April first again—the checkered flag fell for political aspirants with the closing of the filing period for the May primary. Interest in the city centered on the mayoralty scramble, left wide open by the retirement from the field of incumbent Joe Carson. Seven candidates got under the wire, and a dozen, including Cole McElroy, ballroom operator, filed for places on the city council. A proposed people's utility district, for the purpose of condemning the facilities of the two companies furnishing electric power in the city, will be on the ticket also. But the issue has refused to get hot. Advocates of fewer traffic fatalities still predominate in the newspaper vox pop columns.

Zoe Dell Lantis, who wore the pirate costume so fetchingly as the theme girl of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, came from our neighboring town of Yamhill, and Oregon is canvassing her fairest daughters as a successor. The Broadway and the Oregonian jointly are sponsoring a contest to select a "Miss Streamline" to compete at Treasure Island, April 15, for the 1940 theme girl title. The streamlining of contestants will be gauged, the rules declare, on personality, poise, voice, posture and charm.

The World's Fair Follies, a stage shape show—and rather on the candid side—was due to open a week's run at the Mayfair Saturday . . . Success of the liquorless nightspot, Hollywood Bowl, with its milkshake bar, has encouraged Manager Don Merkle to open negotiations for name bands. Bob Mitchell has been providing the music . . . "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," ending a week at the Paramount, is giving many Portlanders new appreciation of the beauties of the McKenzie River country, near Eugene, where it was filmed.

The Orpheum switched to Wednesday for its change of bill this week, together with other houses on the same circuit. The new stage show featured Portland's own "Pals of the Golden West," recently seen in a Gene Autry film . . . Ivan Petroff, as Rigoletto, was the high spot of the six successful performances staged by the San Carlo Opera Co. at the Paramount . . . The Gaiety drew the first appearance in the Northwest of Keystone Kops—Chester Conklin, Hank Mann, Snub Pollard and Al St. John—as a stage feature.

Joe Monaco has taken over the operation of the Oregon from D. D. Seltzer . . . Kent Hartung of the State has returned from a ten-day absence, occasioned by the death of his father . . . G. A. Smith, district manager for Paramount, was in Portland. Next stop is Seattle . . . S. G. Mendenhall of Grants Pass, Eino Hemmila of Medford and Walter Leverette of Ashland were in booking for southern Oregon patrons.

SEATTLE

A GATHERING of the clans was held in the main offices of Fox-Evergreen Theatres with Charles Skouras in charge. Ideas were exchanged and the main object of the meeting, the "Showmanship Drive," was discussed. Among those in from out of town were Al Finke, Roy Brown, Mose Mesher, Herb Sobbotka, Walter Fenney, and others from Portland; Joe Rosenfield, Oscar Nyberg, Buck Seale and Jim Ewing, from Spokane; Tony Hartford and Jim Andrus, from Everett; Lynn Peterson, Bremerton; Al Baker and the gang, from Bellingham; Morrie Nimmer, Wenatchee; Hal Murphy, Olympia; and many others from spots in Oregon that we did not get time to gather owing to that gang leaving on the early train after the meet. Many of the boys were given prize checks for past performances.

With the visit of Harry Taylor, district manager for National Screen Service, from California, many rumors started on the Row. Main story was that National Screen had taken over the business of Western Poster, effective April 1. But neither Jack Flannery nor Don Beckman would commit themselves . . . Actors at the Seattle Repertory Playhouse learned a new act—fingerprinting—after a visit by this town's notorious burglar, "Half-Inch Jimmy." Burton James, director of the Playhouse, told police the thief forced open a front door with a half-inch pry and took $50 in cash and $50 in checks. The cast watched police take the fingerprints . . . Leroy V. Johnson, general manager of Jensen-von Herberg Theatres, is doing a lot of shouting about the new Bausch & Lomb lenses he has added to the booth of the Liberty.

Harry Owens and his band, recently at the Palomar, are opening an engagement at the Oympic Hotel. It is expected they will be there for three or four weeks . . . Bill Shartin, manager of the Warner exchange, telling of an exploitation stunt for "It All Came True." A special preview was held in the quarters of the Press Club, and a loud speaker system enabled the guests to listen in on an interview by telephone between Charles Comfort of the Star, and one of the stars in the picture who talked from Hollywood. Many plugs were given about the picture's opening soon at the Palomar . . . Loads of credit to the one in the Hamrick-Evergreen publicity department who handled the campaign on "Pinocchio" (not forgetting Lew Marin of RKO). The window in the leading department store, the Bon Marche, was a beauty, while the kiddies' morning matinee, supposed to be held at the Paramount, turned out to be a sensation, other theatres having to open their doors to take care of the crowd . . . The Northwest Film Club went Hawaiian when hula dancers entertained the gang and their wives and friends.

This is a short story that belongs in Ripley's "Believe It or Not" series. Junior Mercy of the Mercy circuit lost a beautiful diamond out of his ring. He hunted high and low with no luck. Leaving a preview one night this week, he encountered Gene Dennis (Mrs. von Herberg) who is now doing a column for a local daily answering questions about lost, found, love and other troubles. After the usual salutations of "Hi ya, pal," etc., Gene took note of the worried look on Junior's face and said, "Why, you've lost something valuable." Junior replied he had and wanted to find it if possible. "You put some boxes in your car recently. Your diamond is there with all those things," said Miss Dennis. Junior took a flashlight to search the dark recesses of his luggage compartment. He found the ring. The whole affair caused a big stir on the Row, with many a man trying to keep his mind a perfect blank in case Gene should try to tell him what his thoughts are.

The Palomar changed its policy for this week only with the showing of "Virginia City." Vaudeville was excluded and the picture single billed. The flesh was switched to the Rivoli and was headlined by Britt Wood . . . Well, well, would you believe it. During the last city election a couple of weeks ago, Gracie Allen received a sticker vote for mayor in one precinct, and Dopey the Dwarf got a vote in another spot . . . W. B. Ackles told police the front door of his Roycroft Theatre had been pried open and a small amount of money taken. This is the second time in less than two weeks the Roycroft has been robbed. The last time the bad man got away with $20.

Duke Ellington and his band open a two-week engagement at the Show Box, announces Mike Lyons . . . Tickets are going like hot cakes for the concert of Alec Templeton, who opens at the Music Hall in a couple of weeks . . . Theatrical Federation, representing seven unions, announces it is on record as concurring in the closing of the Rialto by Seattle's censor board and Mayor Langlie . . . The Rotary Club has extended the run on its benefit show, the "Ice Parade of 1940," now showing at the Civic Auditorium. It was to play only one week, but business warranted a holdover. Crowds are cramming the auditorium nightly and the proceeds for the Youth Foundation are growing rapidly . . . Universal newsreels give Washington a couple of plugs with Mt. Rainier looming in the background of daffodil festival, and Snoqualmie the scene of ski events. The reels are now being shown locally.

Paul Snell, for years with the Paramount publicity department and now west coast representative for Steve Hannagan, is in town from Los Angeles . . . Dick Marshall, one time manager here for Henry Duffy in the heyday of dramatic stock, is with the "Ice Parade," now at the Auditorium . . . Murray Peck off in a hurry to emcee a vaudeville show in New Westminster, B. C. . . . Frank Newman sr. to Tacoma to meet Charles Skouras . . . The Universal auditor, G. J. Malfronte, is now doing his stuff in this neck of the woods . . . Frank J. Beck of the Beck circuit arriving in town with a car painted black and white. Listed on the side are the following towns where Frank operates his portable circuit: Northport, Hunters, Coulee City, Mansfield, Entiat, all in Washington; and Clark's Forks, Rathdrum, and Genesee, in Idaho . . . The Shrine is advertising the coming of the Polack Brothers Circus. This is the first canvas shown to hit town since the city council banned carnivals. Circuses were not included.

Charles Fogel, maintenance man from the M-G-M home office, visiting the local exchange. While here he took time out to visit with his friend, Peter Schmidt, in Olympia . . . Maury and Lucille Saffle back from Montana and Utah, but the vacation still has a few days to go . . . Clara Brassoit, daughter of Numa Brassoit of the Shell in Tacoma, emerged with honors from an audition test with Don Isham of station KOL . . . J. T. Sheffield expected home any day now from his extended trip to Sat Lake, Denver, Butte and Portland . . . Bill Evans of the Post Street in Spokane over for a few days . . . Martin Brown in from Yakima and visiting the Film Club . . . The Bill Parkers showing off the new puppy . . . George Smith, western division manager for Paramount, in for a couple of days and a business session with Morris Segel . . . Glenn Haviland back to Spokane to get busy in eastern Washington . . . Bill and Margo Cunningham and daughter, Janet Lee, spending a weekend with the L. Q. Lukans. Bill has returned to their home in Portland, but Margo and Janet Lee are extending their stay.

Pick Speakers for Pacific Coast ITO Conference

LOS ANGELES—Paced by the announcement that the producers association will act as host at a banquet honoring the delegates, the program committee for the forthcoming Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners convention met April 4 to select the speakers and formulate detailed plans for the three-day session, which begins May 8 at the Ambassador Hotel.

Attending the arrangements session were Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin, Northern California trustees for the PCCITO, as well as Hugh Bruen and Jack Y. Berman, Southern California trustees, and Robert H. Poole, PCCITO executive secretary.

A turnout of from 250 to 300 exhibitors is expected, Poole said. Interest in the conclave is being spurred by George (Daddy) Hines, local exhibitor, named by Poole to head the membership committee.

Death of Morgan Walsh A Shock to Bay Area

SAN FRANCISCO—While Morgan Walsh, prominent industry figure in the Bay area, who died here Sunday, March 31, had been in ill health for over a year, his sudden death was unexpected. He was 48 years old.

Known and respected by everyone with whom he came in contact, Walsh's death was a shock to his thousands of friends in the territory. He was familiar with nearly all phases of the industry, and while he was known mainly as an exhibitor, he had served as manager of the Warner exchange here for many years.

Walsh was very active on behalf of the independent theatre owner, serving as president for the Independent Theatre Owners and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America. When the NRA was in existence, he held an administrative office in this region.

At the time of his death, Walsh had a half interest in Associated Theatrical Enterprises, operators of a circuit of houses. He also owned and operated the T&D Theatre in Oakland.

Funeral services held here were attended by representatives from all branches of the industry.

Nick-Weston Petition Denied by Tribunal

JEFFERSON CITY—The Missouri supreme court en banc rejected the petition of John P. Nick, IATSE vice-president, and Clyde A. Weston, former business manager of IATSE Local No. 143, for a writ of certiorari for review of the decision of the St. Louis court of appeals on February 6, last, affirming the decree by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley of St. Louis in April, 1939, appointing temporary receivers for the union and ousting Nick and Weston from control of the local union's assets and affairs.

The ruling by the supreme court was not accompanied by a written opinion. The record simply noted that the application for the writ had been denied.

This was the second time the Missouri supreme court had ruled adversely for Nick and Weston in their struggle to continue their control of Local No. 143. Following Judge Oakley's ruling of April 21, last, naming James A. McKeown receiver for Local No. 143, Nick and Weston sought to appeal direct to the high court, but the tribunal ruled last November that it was without jurisdiction and remanded the case to the St. Louis court of appeals. Later Judge Oakley named William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis, as co-receiver for the local union.

After the St. Louis court of appeals upheld his decree, Judge Oakley, on March 5, made permanent the ouster of Nick and Weston and the receivership for Local No. 143 with the proviso that Brandt and McKeown should continue in charge of the union's assets until such time as a reorganization of the local could be effected and a new set of permanent officers selected.

Also, Judge Oakley ordered Nick and Weston to pay to the union a total of $38,399, and in addition Nick was directed to pay into the union's treasury $10,000 allegedly collected in October, 1936, by State Representative Edward M. Brady from certain theatre owners. The money to be paid in by Nick and Weston included $6,500 allegedly paid by theatre owners in the fall of 1937 about the time a new wage agreement for the projectionists was under consideration. Judge Oakley took the position that the $10,000 and $6,500 was held in trust for the union members, since the theatre owners "paid the money in lieu of increased wages to the projectionists."

On March 18, Judge Oakley overruled a defense motion for a new trial, but last week he permitted Nick and Weston and defense intervenors to take the necessary steps for an appeal to the Missouri supreme court from the permanent receivership decree. The high court, of course, has not had a chance to pass on the appeals taken last week.

Gov't Goes Specific; Names Names in Trust Suit Data

NEW YORK—Seven acts of oppression by major distributor-exhibitor concerns in three central states are charged by the department of justice in its reply to defendant demands for more particulars in the government's all-industry monopoly suit. They are (listed in this order: Time, theatre or theatres, location, producer-exhibitor, independent exhibitor, distress methods and manner employed):

ILLINOIS

1933-36—Gem; Alton; Paramount; Joseph Desberger.

When Paramount planned to open a theatre in Alton they refused to continue to sell the independent. They offered to buy the independent's theatre. On the independent's refusal to sell his theatre, Paramount renewed their contract with him.

INDIANA

1935—Blackstone (State); South Bend; Paramount; Lewis Cochovety.

Independent opened the Blackstone and was refused product by Paramount and all other majors. Was forced to close Blackstone. Six months later Paramount reopened the Blackstone, renaming it the State.

WISCONSIN

1931 or 1932—Three theatres at Fond du Lac, names unknown; 20th Century-Fox; William L. Ainsworth.

Independent exhibitor was forced to sell out his theatre interests because of deprivation of product.

1933 or 1934—Myers Theatre; Janesville; 20th Century-Fox; J. Zanias.

Independent exhibitor was forced to transfer an interest in his theatre because of lack of product.

1935 or 1936—New Menasha Theatre; Menasha; 20th Century-Fox; August Berkholtz.

Independent exhibitor was forced to sell his interest because of deprivation of product by competing affiliated theatres.

1938—National and Milwaukee; Milwaukee; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; George Fischer.

Independent exhibitor was forced to lease his theatres because of the imposition of excessive clearance, block booking, forcing of short subjects and newsreels, and discriminatory film rentals.

1939—Zenith; Milwaukee; 20th Century-Fox; Edward F. Mertz.

1939—Aston and Jackson; Milwaukee; 20th Century-Fox; Harry Perlewitz.

Independent exhibitor forced to enter operating agreement as the result of loss of run and discriminatory film rentals.

1935—Uptown; Racine; 20th Century-Fox; Joseph Luntz.

Independent exhibitor was forced to consent to an operating agreement as the result of loss of established run, block booking, forcing short subjects and discriminatory film rentals.

Court Fines St. Louis "Post-Dispatch"

St. Louis—Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe jr., adjudging the St. Louis "Post-Dispatch" in contempt of court for its cartoon and editorials commenting on the court's action in the John P. Nick (IATSE vice-president) and state representative, Edward M. Brady extortion cases, fined the newspaper company $2,000. Ralph Coghlan, editorial page editor, was fined $200 and given 20 days in jail and Cartoonist Daniel Fitzpatrick was fined $100 and ten days in jail. The charge against Ben H. Reese, as managing editor, was dismissed.

The defendants are filing petitions for writs of habeas corpus with the Missouri supreme court for a review of Judge Rowe's action. This is the only form of appeal possible in contempt of court proceedings.

Young Given 60 Days To Appeal Dismissal

CHICAGO—Sixty days has been granted V. U. Young of the Gary Theatre Co. to perfect his appeal in his anti-trust suit against B&K, Warner Theatres and the major companies. Federal Judge William H. Holly has entered his formal order dismissing the suit on the request of the defendants, with the costs to be paid by the plaintiff.

Young's attorney, Albert Gavit of Gary, is expected to take the case to the circuit court of appeals.

Chicago Passes "Cargo," Curbs "Primrose Path"

CHICAGO—M-G-M's "Strange Cargo" was granted a general permit by the film censor board here, making it available for all family programs. RKO's "The Primrose Path" received a pink slip, or an "adult-only" permit. Both pictures were banned in Detroit.

Slight Employment Drop in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Manufacturing employment and payrolls in Indiana declined slightly from mid-January to mid-February. The weighted estimate of the number of wage earners employed in factories in February was 288,320, a decrease of 375 persons or .1 per cent from the January estimate.

Estimated weekly manufacturing payrolls totaled $7,647,669 in mid-February, a decrease of .4 per cent, or approximately $31,250 less than in January. However, these losses were considered contra-seasonal. Seasonal indices based on figures from 1930 to 1935, inclusive, show a gain of 1.3 per cent is considered normal. In the five-year period from 1935 to 1939, inclusive, manufacturing employment made an average gain of 2.1 per cent from January to February.

Although manufacturing operations did not continue to expand during the first two months of 1940 as they did in the latter part of 1939, to date there is no evidence of a serious recession. From December to January, factory employment declined 3.9 per cent as compared with a normal seasonal gain of .2 per cent for the two-month period.

Manufacturing employment and payrolls were considerably higher this February than in February, 1939. There was an estimated 37,000 more wage earners at work this year in factories than a year ago, or an increase of 14.6 per cent. Weekly payrolls totaled $1,312,000, or 20.7 per cent higher this year.

Although manufacturing employment and payrolls showed losses from January to February, seven of the 14 major groups in this classification expanded both employment and payrolls, and two others increased payrolls but decreased employment. Most of the gains were in the non-durable goods group, which increased employment .8 per cent and pay rolls 1.1 per cent from January to February.

A further indication there was no general recession in manufacturing activity was derived from a study of the gains and losses in 44 individual industries. Of these, 21 expanded employment from January to February. There were 22 which registered losses and one showed the same employment totals in February and January. With respect to payrolls, 27 showed increases and only 17 decreases.

The non-manufacturing industries studied showed to good advantage. Six of the seven groups for which it is possible to give estimates, expanded both employment and payrolls. Wholesale trade was the only non-manufacturing group to show losses in employment and payrolls from January to February, but they were less than the seasonal average.

Retail trade, hotels, laundries, and the dyeing and cleaning industries made contra-seasonal expansions in employment and payrolls. Quarrying and non-metallic mining expanded employment and payrolls over seasonal expectations.

Factory workers received an average weekly wage of $26.52 in February, or .03 per cent less than in January. The average work week was 37.8 hours at an average rate of 70.2 cents per hour.

Downtown Shopping News Reins Are Taken by Hess

CHICAGO—Jack Hess, well known in the industry, has taken over as amusement manager and editor of the Downtown Shopping News, free-circulation paper backed by loop merchants and said to have nearly a three-quarter million circulation. He will devote two pages to all types of amusements.

There is a rumor current that the Downtown Shopping News may combine with the Chicago Journal of Commerce to place another morning daily in the newspaper field here. The Journal of Commerce publishes daily but is primarily a financial paper, although it carries a film and amusement column by Claudia Cassidy.

MILWAUKEE

VITAGRAPH'S NEW $60,000 exchange building here is slated for completion about May 15.

Anthony Donlevy, janitor at Fox's Ritz here, had a narrow escape when he was mistaken by a policeman for a burglar and shot at twice. Because of recent safecrackings in local theatres, policemen have been "planted" in various houses on weekends. Donlevy did not know the officer was on duty in the theatre and the patrolman did not expect the janitor until a later hour, thereby accounting for the mixup.

Henry L. Nunn and Edwin A. Clauder have been named to the city motion picture commission by Mayor Hoan . . . John Matis has been shifted as manager from Fox's Shorewood to the circuit's Strand in Manitowoc.

Childs Plans 750-Seater In Jacksonville, Ill.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL.—A new 750-seat theatre costing $45,000 is being planned here, Kenneth F. Childs of Streator, Ill., having completed the contracts for the purchase of two business buildings located on East State Street. Childs for the past seven years has operated a theatre in Streator.

Work on the new building will be started within the next two months and will be completed about October 1.

Hoffberg Helps Fight "Living Dead" Ban

CHICAGO—J. H. Hoffberg of Hoffberg Productions, New York, was here to lead the fight against the recent ban of "The Living Dead," by the Chicago police censor board. The film was screened for a special audience gathered by the Civil Liberties League, headed by Ira Latimer. Among those attending were several prominent Chicago psychiatrists and psychologists.

Hoffberg told those attending that numerous Hollywood-made pictures based upon the same theme as "The Living Dead" had been passed by the board, but that the group termed his picture "morbid in theme." The picture was banned originally by Hitler, and the Jewish actors who appear in the film have been placed in concentration camps.

Wives of Allied Men to Hold Meeting April 15

CHICAGO—A general luncheon meeting of wives of Allied members will be held Monday, April 15, at the Covenant Club. Plans will be discussed for entertaining wives of visiting Allied members at the national convention here, June 19, 20 and 21.

Hypo to Welfare Fund Collections Planned

CHICAGO—Response thus far to the drive for funds for the Jewish Welfare Fund has not been on a par with last year, but Jack Rose, chairman, expects this week to step up calls of his co-workers to materially increase collections.

The amusement division's quota is $105,000, and the division embraces not only film exchanges, exhibitors and supply companies, but also radio stations, musicians, music publishers and others.

The money collected goes to four different groups: Joint Distribution Committee; United Palestine Appeal; National Refugee Service, and local committees.

Guy Lombardo is booked in at the Lyric for the week starting April 5. He will be followed by Wayne King . . . According to Al Ackerman, operator of the Tacoma, it always pays to advertise local talent. The family of Maurice Fowler, a local boy who had a part in "The Fighting 69th," still live in the vicinity of the theatre and, of course, Al called attention to this fact.

Down Florida Way—

Having snapped this picture of her newlywed husband, Mrs. George Kerasotes also suggested the description: "A prominent Illinois exhibitor worrying about business, while lolling on the Florida sands."

500 Shows to Shut-ins by Volunteer Film Council

ST. LOUIS—The Volunteer Film Council during the past year presented approximately 500 motion picture shows to shut-in patients in various homes and institutes. Mrs. Robert Burgett is chairman of the booking committee of the organization, which has 125 members.

The motion pictures are not shown to the patients until the type of film and the length of the show are approved by the attending physician. Travel pictures, news and comedies predominated among the films shown during the past year. They are borrowed or rented from industrial concerns, the film libraries of federal and state governments and from universities.

Miss Marjorie Lang is president of the association, which is gradually building up its own film library.

ST. LOUIS

"REBECCA" has been held over at Loew's . . . Ted Lewis opens at the St. Louis, April 12. Fanchon & Marco is also planning to bring Kay Kyser to either the St. Louis or Fox the week of May 10. Several other name bands are under consideration for spring engagements at these houses.

Would Revoke Tax

ST. LOUIS—Initiative petitions for a vote at the August primary elections on the question of whether the city should retain its 2-cent cigarette tax have been submitted to the board of election commissioners. The petitions, signed by about 25,000 voters, were presented by Fred M. Switzer jr., attorney for the Missouri Valley Distributors' Ass'n, an organization of tobacco dealers. Only 20,600 legal signatures are needed to obtain a vote of the people on the tax.

May Seek an Injunction

CHICAGO—It is understood that should J. H. Hoffberg not get the ban on his "The Living Dead" revoked, an injunction suit will be started to attempt to have it shown in Chicago.

Blands Sell to Brotman

CHICAGO—Bland Brothers have disposed of their Rodgers to Milton Brotman, who also operates the Avaloe.

Production "Flyers" Are Discouraged in Madison

MADISON, WIS.—An "open letter" to Will Hays in the editorial column of the Capital Times, local daily, warned Hays that "public decency will not accept a 'sky's the limit' principle in the selection of film stories." The letter was in response to reports purporting to come from Hollywood indicating that producers were considering the adoption of such a policy. The complete text of the letter follows:

"[Dear Mr. Hays]: Reports come from Hollywood that movie producers are considering adopting a 'sky's the limit' viewpoint in the selection of new plots and stories for future filming. 'There's nothing we can't do anymore with proper treatment,' reports say some of the producers are telling their writing staffs because of the recent successes of some of the frankly treated films. It is reported that not the least of the contributing factors to this new freedom is a greater liberality by state and other censorship bodies, including your own office, Mr. Hays. Remember the 'greater liberality' which led to the recent clean-up campaigns, Mr. Hays, and the necessity for film reformation which followed? Human nature doesn't change. Public decency will not accept a 'sky's the limit' principle in the selection of film stories. You can check the moving picture industry from making another mistake by the exercise of your office, Mr. Hays."

Flesh Shows Experience Revival in Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE—Flesh is experiencing a revival in a number of Wisconsin spots with Dot Hackley's Hollywood Cowgirls and Josef Clymas' "Hooray America" booked in theatres around the state. Former attraction has played the Rex in Beloit; Uptown, Racine; Beverly, Janesville and Eskin, Richland Center. Latter show has appeared at the Oshkosh in Oshkosh and the Bay in Green Bay.

Amateur vaudeville is being offered as regular weekly fare at the Bay in Green Bay on Wednesday nights and at the Kenosha in Kenosha on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Other flesh spottings have been featured. The New Adler at Marshfield presented Sonney Walker, lately featured with Vincent Lopez. The Capitol in Manitowoc plugged the appearance April 2 of Lopez and his revue as "the biggest stage event to visit Manitowoc in ten years." The Mayflower Girls recently played the Wausau in Wausau.

Warner Studio Bowlers Heading for Detroit

Indiana in Martinsville Bows in Lavish Style

MARTINSVILLE, IND.—John Servaas opened his new Indiana here in lavish fashion. The marquee was a blaze of lights, many baskets of flowers from friends and well-wishers were spotted in the lobby, and also on display were numerous telegrams from stars and leaders of the industry.

Servaas, who operates a number of theatres in the state, spared no expense in rebuilding the theatre which was badly damaged by fire last September. Innumerable features adding to the comfort of patrons were built into the Indiana, making it one of the finest houses in southern Indiana.

Among those in from Indianapolis for the opening were: Claude McKean and wife and Fred Greenberg of Warner Bros.; Whitey Wagoner and Don McLeod of Metro; Chick Calloway; George Settos and wife of the Settos circuit; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Niesse and Mr. and Mrs. Sol Greenberg of the Olson circuit office, and Art Truc and wife of National Theatre Supply.

Erwin G. Frederick of Chicago was the architect and Russell Schnaiter of Martinsville was the contractor.

Educators in Milwaukee Considering Film Study

MILWAUKEE—The feasibility of incorporating motion picture study in school work was discussed at a meeting of the Milwaukee Teachers Cooperative council here last week. Also considered was the value of the subject to the school curriculum.

Discussion concerned itself with a bibliography of material on the subject, prepared by the Milwaukee County Better Films council. No recommendation was made by the teachers council at the meeting but teachers have been asked to try to determine whether motion picture study could be incorporated in school work, either as part of the English curriculum or as an extracurricular activity.

Chicago Times Runs Color Contest for "Pinocchio"

CHICAGO—A coloring contest for children was run in the Chicago Times in conjunction with the run of "Pinocchio" at the Palace. The newspaper ran drawings from the picture for five days. The ten youngsters sending in the best colored drawings received $1.00 and two passes. The following twenty-five best received two passes each.

It Certainly Is Some Business

Chicago—Eddie Cantor, who has just finished "40 Little Mothers" on the Metro lot, was through here between trains en route east. Talk turned to "Gone With the Wind," and said Cantor:

"Anything that does $15,000,000 or more business, is an industry by itself, just like oil, steel or automobiles. So you can certainly call "GWTW" a new industry, for it'll gross a lot more than $15,000,000 before it gets done."

For Proof, They'd Face the Camera

St. Louis—Stanley Wallach, prosecuting attorney for St. Louis county, is considering a plan to make those arrested for driving a car while intoxicated to face the motion picture camera.

The purpose: To convince the driver when he sobers up, that he really was drunk when arrested.

Multiples and Price Cuts Bring Beefs

ST. LOUIS—A number of local independents are complaining out loud because several units of the St. Louis Amusement chain have reduced prices and, on occasion, are turning to triple-feature programs.

While several of these independent operators continue to use stimulants of various sorts, the chain for some time has refrained from using them, although occasionally it ties up with neighborhood merchants for prizes at Sunday matinees for children.

Here are some of the lower admission rates featured in the St. Louis circuit's ads: Rio, adults 25 cents; Aubert, 15 cents; Capitol, 15 cents to 6 p. m.; Congress, 15 cents; Maffitt, 15 cents; Manchester, 15 cents; Shaw, 15 cents, and Yale, 20 cents.

: SPRINGFIELD :

BOB ZWERMAN, manager of the Tivoli, is spending two weeks in Hot Springs, Ark., with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Zwerman. The elder Zwerman is manager of the Arcadia at Olney, Ill. . . . The Roxy team is starting softball practice, and hopes to organize a new league this summer.

Ray DuHamel, usher at Kerasotes' theatres, keeps in trim by pole vaulting on the Springfield High School track team . . . M. E. Berman, manager of the Orpheum, is endorsing cigars nowadays. The other day his picture and a statement appeared in a cigar ad in a local newspaper.

The bowling bug has bitten the Frisina circuit boys hard. The oldsters are improving, but the beginners aren't "so hot." Dominic Giachetto and Ciro Pedrucci have the gang rolling down the aisle. Anymore it's not "How's business?" but "How's your game?" when friends meet. Bowlers from the home office staff are J. B. Giachetto, Bill Feldstein and Max Tschauder. They expect to enter the Frisina Amusement Co. team in next year's league play.

Columbia Managers Meet

CHICAGO—Managers of Phil Dunas' midwestern district for Columbia Pictures met here this week in one of their regular midseason gatherings.

Davidson After Tieups In Selling "Pinocchio"

CHICAGO—Louis Davidson, special RKO exploiteer working on Walt Disney's "Pinocchio," has made some unusual tieups on the picture throughout the state.

He has conducted "liars' contests" based upon the fact that the young puppet, Pinocchio, is at first a liar in the picture. These contests have been sponsored by papers in several Great States' towns, such as Springfield, Peoria, South Bend, Decatur, Kankakee, Danville, Joliet and others.

In addition, he conducted a special "Pinocchio" party at the Psi Epsilon Fraternity Dance, University of Illinois, Champaign. This was a tieup with the picture playing at the RKO Orpheum there. All of the tieups resulted in increased business for the picture everywhere they were made.

Visual Education Forum Is Headed by Mrs. McClure

CHICAGO—Mrs. Richard M. McClure, president of the Chicago Better Films Council, was chairman of the publicity committee of the Midwestern Forum on Visual Teaching Aids held this week at the Morrison Hotel.

Special clinic sessions were held for teachers in the elementary and high school-college divisions. A demonstration of films prepared by the United States Film Service, government bureau in Washington, was scheduled.

: BOWLING :

CHICAGO—With one week left, Republic was still in first place in the Filmrow Bowling League by virtue of winning two from Paramount. National Screen continued within striking distance by winning a pair from Film Carriers, while Universal knocked 20th Century-Fox out of the running by beating them three straight. Photoplay defeated Warner twice.

The annual bowling league banquet, for members only, will be held next Wednesday night, April 10, at Harry's New York Bar.

The standings to date:

	Won	Lost
Republic	45	36
National Screen	44	37
20th Century-Fox	42	39
Film Carriers	42	39
Photoplay	41	40
Universal	39	42
Paramount	37	44
Warner Bros.	33	48

With the Warner League having completed its 30th week, the standings were as follows:

	Won	Lost
Avalon	60	30
Capitol	51	36
Yannigans	47	43
Stratford	47	43
Avalon Cubs	44	46
Cosmo	44	46

Just a line of appreciation for your "1940 BAROMETER."

It certainly turned out to be my right hand man, in aiding me with my booking, etc.

I still have my 1939 issue and you would be surprised how often I refer to it.

Good luck to you,

Sincerely yours,

Anti-Trust Charges Are Made Specific

NEW YORK—Naming time, theatre, place, principals involved and the act of oppression charged (in the middle west) the department of justice responded to the majors demand for fuller particulars in the all-industry anti-trust suit, as follows:

IOWA

1933 or 1934—Rialto, Missouri Valley; Paramount Pictures Inc.; Vern S. Brown.

Independent exhibitor was forced to lease his theatre because it was impossible to obtain adequate or suitable first or second run product from major distributors, the imposition of unreasonable clearance, and the exaction of high and discriminatory film rentals.

1931 or 1932—Uptown, Muscatine; 20th Century Fox; Ludy Bosten.

Independent exhibitor was forced to enter pooling arrangement because of inability to get desired product.

1938—Mahaska, Princess, Rivoli, and Strand, Oskaloosa; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Bruno Pierce and Joe Stack.

Independent exhibitors were forced to sell an interest in their theatres because of the threat to lease a site and to build an opposition theatre.

1934 or 1935—Iowa and Hipp, Sioux City; Paramount Pictures Inc.; A. B. Friedman and Sol Shulkin.

Independent exhibitors were forced to sell an interest as the result of deprivation of established run and product.

MINNESOTA

1933—Tower, St. Paul; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Joseph Friedman.

Independent exhibitor was forced to lease the Tower Theatre because of refusal of major distributors to license established first run product.

MISSOURI

1939—Tiger, Carthage; 20th Century-Fox; G. L. Hooper.

Independent exhibitor was forced to transfer his theatre because of inability to license adequate product.

1933 or 1934—Paramount, Joplin; Electric, Springfield; 20th Century-Fox; Frank C. Grubel.

1933—Arbo, Nevada; 20th Century-Fox; A. C. Bowman.

Independent exhibitor entered into a pooling arrangement as the result of inability to obtain adequate product, and fear of losing product.

NEBRASKA

1934—Rivoli, Hastings; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; George O. Monroe.

Independent exhibitor was forced to lease his theatre because he was deprived of desired product.

1934—Empress, Kearney; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; George O. Monroe.

Independent exhibitor was forced to enter arbitrary theatre pooling agreement because he was deprived of desired product.

1934—Omaha (formerly the World) and State, Omaha; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Ralph D. Goldberg.

Independent exhibitor was forced to sell Omaha Theatre and to agree to close State Theatre because of inability to secure desired product.

NORTH DAKOTA

1930 or 1931—Metropolitan, Strand and Orpheum, Grand Forks; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Bennie Berger.

Independent exhibitor sold out theatre interests because of deprivation of product, and fear of loss of additional product.

SOUTH DAKOTA

1932-36—Capitol, Royal, Sioux Falls; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Richard H. Wagner.

Refused product by six majors and as a result forced to sell theatres to the Minnesota Amusement Co.

1935-36—State, Watertown; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Carl P. Knudsen.

Lid On in Minneapolis; Doesn't Help Theatres

Minneapolis—A total of 41 night clubs and taverns have been closed by the city council in consequence of a gambling law infraction. The licenses of 16 of them have been revoked while a 30-day suspension has been meted out to 25.

Owners of the establishments had pleaded guilty to violating gambling laws by operating "14" dice games.

Arrests had been part of a vice crusade by a law enforcement association. Since the crusade, the lid has been clamped on tight here and gambling and resorts are out and there's no after-hours selling of liquor.

Apparently, however, closing up the town hasn't helped theatre business any.

Sunday Shows Finally Win Out in Beatrice

BEATRICE, NEB. — Beatrice citizens, in their sixth time to the polls in 10 years to decide whether or not there shall be Sunday shows in this town of 10,000 people, voted for the opening to seven-day amusements on Tuesday in the city election, which preceded the primary by one week. The vote was 2,472 to 1,873.

In each election, the difference between the factions in votes was less and less, with the try two years ago resulting in a blue-nose victory by only a 13-vote majority.

The issue has become so important in Beatrice, that during negotiations between the Fox-Beatrice Theatres Corp. for the Fox last year, though the negotiations came to naught, there was a suggestion made that the lease be renewed at a cheaper price, to be moved up in case the Sunday show vote carried during the life of the lease.

It's Republic's Day In Lawrence, Kas.

LAWRENCE, KAS.—The state of Kansas, its environs and its neighbors, near and far, turned out Thursday for the world premiere of "The Dark Command," Republic's current ace.

From New York came Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries and chairman of the board of Republic, and James R. Grainger, Republic vice-president, to witness the handiwork wrought by William Saal and his associates in this city that Quantrill burned during the Civil War days.

Leaving from Kansas City at 9:30 Thursday morning, the special train bearing the stars arrived in Lawrence shortly after 10:30 to one of the largest crowds ever assembled in this University of Kansas town. Riding the train were members of the Kansas City trade, the Republic home office executives and the stars from the studio. Among the latter group were John Wayne, Walter Pidgeon, Wendy Barrie, Gene Autry, June Storey, Ona Munson, George Hayes and Roy Rogers.

Decorated from the union station to the University of Kansas, Lawrence presented a festive front, its schools deserted and its shops closed temporarily for the parade embracing celebrities and near-celebrities from all branches of the trade. Following the parade, the re-enactment of the burning of Lawrence by Quantrill preceded shortly the world premiere of the picture at the Granada and Dickinson theatres. The film opened shortly after the formal premiere, at the Varsity, to make it a three-theatre opening.

To make it an unanimous Republic occasion, the Patee, the sole remaining local theatre, played "The Ghost Valley Raiders" and "Forgotten Girls."

Opening to capacity crowds that fought their way through an unestimated number of spectators, "The Dark Command" captured enthusiasm of the action crowd and the interest of all members in the audience. All in all, it was an occasion of importance to Republic and exhibitors of that product, as well as an outstanding trade event.

Business in Minneapolis Wallowing in Doldrums

MINNEAPOLIS—Slump in business here since Easter hit two outstanding attractions, "Pinocchio" and "Young Tom Edison," especially hard. It had been expected that both of these highly praised pictures would fare exceptionally good at the boxoffice, but gross in each instance measured far below anticipations.

Neighborhood houses also are off and there's much wailing among independent exhibitors. Moreover, indications are that no upturn is imminent.

Last week no less than three loop houses played pictures with a predominant juvenile appeal. The films were "Pinocchio," "Young Tom Edison" and "Swiss Family Robinson," at the Orpheum, State and Gopher, respectively. "Swiss Family" did comparatively the best business of the trio.

En Route to Williamsburg—

Nebraska Anti-Ascap Move Over-Ruled

LINCOLN—Attempt of Nebraska's special defense attorney in the anti-Ascap test of 1937 legislation to have a new hearing granted in the case which was found for Ascap to be unconstitutional and inoperative in December, failed when Judges Gardiner, Munger, and Donohue overruled the motion.

They issued no statement of reasons, and the action came the third day after a Monday spent in Omaha courtrooms wherein William Hotz, the state's special defender, and John Riddell, deputy attorney general, made long arguments indicating the court to be in error on findings. Answer was made by Herman Finkelstine, New York Ascap counsel who assisted Louis J. Frolich in the original prosecution, and by L. J. TePoel, Omaha, both of whom insisted the case was given its chance in the test.

Support for the state's case was made in the form of 22 signatures on affidavits of legislators in the 1937 lawmaking body, all of them claiming to have passed the Ascap law to toss out a monopoly in the state, rather than to hinder the author or composer in his constitutional rights to collect pay for his works.

It is not known as yet whether an appeal will be made to the U. S. supreme court, although both Attorney General Johnson and one of his assistants were approved to practice before the U. S. body last week in Washington. There is three months grace from the overruling before the case becomes invalid and can't be brought up. It is known that the Nebraska attorney general's office is not too well banked financially, which means it may not be able to lend currency ammunition to the struggle.

Year Pact to Klein

HOLLYWOOD — Wally Klein has been signed to a one-year writing ticket by Warner Bros.

Payment Clears Lease On Lincoln Liberty

LINCOLN—For payment of $5,000 to leaseholders on the Liberty building, ordered by court here, the lease was cleared for a longtime period to L. L. Dent and his subsidiary, Nebraska Theatres, Inc., here.

This smooths the path to the planned $65,000 overhauling of the theatre, $40,000 to be spent in re-doing and re-equipping the interior, and the remainder of the money on new sound and fixtures.

The last picture is the one started Friday, "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," after which the house will close for a good going over. Seating will be swelled from 903 to 1,100, and it'll be an "A" house when completed.

Meantime, some of the better pictures will run in the Varsity, and the Kiva may be opened, if the city takes sudden action and goes ahead with the plan of tearing down the Varsity to make room for the reopening of a street.

Relay Legion of Decency Rap Against "Cargo"

DES MOINES—"Strange Cargo" drew a severe rap here last Sunday morning (March 31) when the Legion of Decency's condemnation of the picture was read from Catholic pulpits in the city.

The Joan Crawford-Clark Gable picture was the current top feature at the Des Moines Theatre at the time and had been drawing good attendance through Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Girl to Larkins

MADELIA, MINN.—Manager Bill Larkin of the Madelia here is the proud father of a daughter born this week. It's the first child and grandchild in the Larkin family. The mother, Vivian, and child are doing well.

Freeman Says Duals Are "On Way Out"

DES MOINES—The double feature is on the way out, said Y. Frank Freeman jr. here last Friday.

Freeman, in town to stage a "sneak preview" of "The Biscuit Eater" at the Des Moines Theatre for Paramount Pictures, says that all major studios are planning to produce few if any "lower budget" pictures from now on.

He cited Paramount, of which his father heads studio production, as an example. Paramount has cut its production list, he reported, with pictures in the Class B bracket drawing the reduction.

"Production costs have been going up so fast that double features don't pay out," he opined. "At the same time, audiences are irritated by seeing many pictures which are 'not good and not bad.'"

Moreover, according to Freeman, Hollywood has a tough job finding 600 good stories a year to feed double feature bills. As a result, he finds, more than half the pictures under the system have to be "formula" stories.

Freeman was hitting double features particularly hard here, because his "Biscuit Eater" preview at Omaha was shown to an audience which already had seen two features. In spite of that, he asserted, most of the 400 comment cards turned in were in favor of what he termed his new-type film—produced in an authentic locale, without benefit of a big-name cast and with only a simple human interest story.

Chicagoans Accord Facter A Testimonial Dinner

CHICAGO—Max Facter, who this week becomes assistant to Harold Fields of Pioneer Theatres circuit, in Minneapolis, was feted by over 100 Chicago film men at a testimonial dinner given at the Congress Hotel. Facter takes up his new post, after having been booker for Great States Theatres for three years.

The dinner was given by the Film Bookers' Club of Chicago, of which Facter was the first president. Eddie Cantor, in Chicago between trains, stopped in at the dinner to speak briefly. Facter was presented with a pen desk set.

Fun for All in An Award

Des Moines—There was praise for Joan Crawford—and while she was appearing at the Des Moines Theatre here in "Strange Cargo," too. The Des Moines "Register" said, editorially:

"Joan Crawford has been made an honorary chief of the Junior Deputies, an organization of youth past the Boy Scout age. It's an honor for a movie star to admit that she's beyond the Boy Scout age."

Pledge to Support Buying "Strike"

MINNEAPOLIS—Impetus has been given to an unofficial temporary independents' buying strike to compel elimination of percentages and force down 1940-41 rental demands by action of southern Minnesota theatre owners, members of Northwest Allied, representing 16 houses, in pledging themselves to abstain from making any new-season deals at least until after the Northwest Allied convention in May.

As far as percentages are concerned, the "country" exhibitors are hopeful that they can accomplish what Twin City independent neighborhood theatre owners have succeeded in doing—virtually dealing them a complete knockout blow. The Twin City group has evinced a willingness to help their out-of-town brethren gain this blow.

At the Rochester meeting each exhibitor individually promised "faithfully" to hold off 1940-41 deals. Ben Ashe, Northwest Allied secretary, expressed confidence that the "pledges" will be kept.

Following the Rochester gathering, southern Minnesota exhibitors also have become more active in a fight to obtain enactment of the Neely bill.

Ninth Unit in Des Moines Acquired by Tri-States

DES MOINES—A ninth theatre will be added to the Tri-States circuit here on April 16 when a partnership agreement with Lewis L. Lepovitz makes the Iowa house a part of the A. H. Blank organization.

Lepovitz and his father, Roy Lepovitz, have operated the Iowa for the last ten years. The new agreement calls for continued operation under the same management and with the same employes and for erection of a new motion picture house at E. 16th St. and Grand Ave.

Myron Blank, secretary of the Tri-States organization, said plans for the new theatre are now under consideration and that construction probably will be started in the fall.

Meanwhile the Iowa will be remodeled with new seats, new decorations and changes in the projection and sound equipment. Air conditioning is to be installed, also.

Chas. Skouras Confers With Midwest Chiefs

KANSAS CITY—Fox Midwest district managers and circuit officials conferred here Wednesday with Charles P. Skouras, field marshal of the second annual "Skouras Showmanship Drive," in which Fox Midwest will participate, along with other National Theatres divisions.

K A Y C E E

THE weekly question box: Who was the fellow who, recently called to testify in a county court, when appearing before the judge had trouble finding a rail for his foot? The answer, according to our informant, is C. P.

The mother of Mae Claussen, chairman of the Kansas censor board, Mrs. C. C. Claussen, died Tuesday at Emporia, Kas. She was 86.

Election of H. N. Slater of the Rialto, Smithville, Mo., as mayor, calls to mind several other exhibitors who have been or are mayors of their respective cities, among them Rex Barrett of Columbia, Mo.; Bob Shelton of Warrensburg, Mo. This is a trend in the right direction. Community activity by exhibitors is a good thing not only for the individual exhibitor and his theatre but for the industry as a whole.

On the Row: A. H. Dula, Holyrood, Kas.; Harvey Nokes, Ozark, Mo., with his son.

Jay Haas, traveling supervisor for Advertising Accessories, Inc., is here this week visiting Homer Blackwell, branch manager . . . Fred Rohrs, manager of UA at Washington, was on Filmrow over the weekend.

Charley Martin has closed the Royal at Republic, Kas. . . . L. J. Kimbriel of the Oklahoma Theatre Supply has sold new lobby furniture to the Granada and Dickinson, Lawrence, Kas. Probably in preparation of the "Dark Command" premiere Thursday.

On the Row: A. J. Simmons, Plaza, Howard, Kas.; Warren Weber, of that and other western Kansas theatres; Lawrence Gilbreath, Lucas, Kas.; Art Pugh, Columbus, Kas.; M. A. Otto, Linn, Pleasanton, Mo.

Contrary to the conclusion reached by several on Filmrow last week, Don Davis will continue to handle (as he has done so ably in the past—adv.) RCA sound sales in this area. Alex P. Bill, who works Minnesota, North and South Dakota from Minneapolis, simply changed reporting offices a week or so ago, and is under supervision of the Kansas City rather than the Chicago office as formerly. Don this week sold Carl Presley for the Madison at Huntsville, Ark.

So the Walkathon Gets a Permit

KANSAS CITY—Beginning April 9, a walkathon will be staged at the Pla-Mor by the National Walkathon Derby Company. Theatremen opposed granting of a permit to operators of the walkathon by the city council, but the council unanimously okayed the derby half an hour before a group of first run managers appeared to protest Monday evening. Tuesday the political factions that had placed the present council in office were defeated in the city election.

On Friday (March 29) a council committee held a hearing on the application for the walkathon. Appearing against the permit were Lawrence Lehman of the Orpheum and John McManus of the Midland. Lehman and McManus explained to the committee that the walkathon would hurt the business of established theatres all over the city, and that the promoters of the walkathon undoubtedly would use all sorts of admission policies to get people in, though 40 cents is the advertised price.

The theatremen were advised to return Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when the matter of the application for a permit would be taken up by the council as a whole. Jerry Zigmond of the Newman; F. E. Ritter, manager of the Uptown and representing Fox Midwest Theatres, with 12 houses, and McManus appeared at the appointed time.

"To spare the busy men from the theatres time in waiting," said the president of the council, "I'll interrupt here to tell them that the ordinance permitting the walkathon passed earlier this evening."

Rainbow Division Film Is Shown in Ottumwa

OTTUMWA, IA.—Homer Gardner, treasurer of the Iowa State Ass'n of Rainbow Division Veterans, spoke preceding a showing here of the films taken before, during and after the World War of the Division's activities. About 1,400 persons attended.

Plans are under way to have the film retaken and preserved because of its historical value.

Rejoice in Return Of "Al" Steffes

MINNEAPOLIS—Local independent exhibitors are rejoicing in the anticipated return to Minneapolis this week of W. A. Steffes, Northwest Allied president, long their leader. Steffes has been absent from the city and away from organization affairs for about three months as the result of a heart attack suffered while attending a national Allied State board of directors meeting in Washington and has been recuperating in a hospital in the latter city and in Florida ever since.

With the return here of Steffes, it is expected little time will be lost in setting a date for another Northwest Allied convention in Minneapolis to make further plans for a more compact, effective organization with district units to assure closer cooperation in the fight against percentage pictures and other alleged trade evils and to put over the Neely bill.

Another matter that will have the almost immediate attention of Steffes will be Twin City clearance. Minneapolis and St. Paul independent exhibitors are determined that the clearance now enjoyed by the Gopher and Aster, local Minnesota Amusement Co.'s first run houses, over 25-cent neighborhood houses shall be considerably shortened. If necessary, they will carry the matter into the courts, they threaten.

During Steffes' absence, Northwest Allied affairs were capably handled by the organization's secretary, Ben Ashe. Until Steffes entirely recovers his health, Ashe is expected to continue to play a prominent part in directing the body's business.

Make Little Headway on Reopening Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS—Despite rumors and claims that its reopening is imminent, the 4,000-seat Minnesota remains closed tighter than a drum. John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. general manager, denies any knowledge of a rumored "compromise" whereby he was to turn over to the Benz brothers, who have an option on the Minnesota, part of the major screen product which his company has sewed up.

The Benzes have announced that reopening of the theatre is contingent upon the acquisition of major product. An appeal to the federal government and litigation have been threatened in a fight to obtain such product.

A Seating Upturn

WICHITA—Activity in the theatre chair business has been on the upturn this spring, John Westwood, president of the Service Seating Co., reports. He expects one of the best summers for sales. His territory covers the middle west.

"Beethoven" to Finkel

by Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th-Fox, when he was branch manager for Paramount here?

The daughter of Edd J. Haas, district manager of Fox Midwest, and Mrs. Haas, Miss Diane Haas, and W. Wayne Clover jr., will be married May 4.

A. A. Lacy, formerly at Humansville, has opened the Carl Junction at Carl Junction, Mo., and the Jasper, at Jasper, Mo. Both seat around 200.

Leon Abraham, that roisterer of RKO, has a new dog, a cross between a German shepherd and a collie. He tried to get a harness large enough, and when he couldn't, bought a saddle. He figures he'll save money riding him to work.

Did you know that the Lyric, Boonville, Mo., an old auditorium, is the oldest motion picture theatre west of the Mississippi? . . . C. R. Gregg of Caney, Kas., is going to use the Strand there while he's remodeling the Liberty for 60 days, beginning April 8.

W. E. "Bill" Mick and W. L. Norris, distributors of "The Little Flower of Jesus," are really going to town with the picture. They've sold the Immaculata auditorium at Leavenworth, Kas., April 7, 8 and 9, and have a deal pending for St. Peters Cathedral high school auditorium, Jefferson City. A number of Fox Midwest houses are playing it, along with local and territorial independents. Mick screened the picture last Tuesday for Eddie Arthur of Fanchon & Marco in St. Louis.

Republic-Midwest is furnishing exhibitor accounts with oversized automatic pencils as reminders of the 1940 June for Bob Withers Month. The annual affair ought to be better than ever this year, considering that Bob has, among others, "Rancho Grande," "Dark Command," "The Days of Jesse James," and "In Old Missouri" for release.

Ben Kalmenson, western and southern sales manager for Warner, was here Monday for a powwow with James Winn, district manager; W. O. Williamson jr., branch manager, and others at the local exchange.

S. G. MacDonald of the Community Theatre, Sumner, Mo., flew into Kansas City to do his booking Monday. It just shows that up-and-coming exhibitors are taking to the air to get business done . . . George Lofink, formerly with the Fabian circuit, Albany, is the new district booker at Universal.

The Cinema Club defeated the Variety Club at a challenge bowling match last Sunday by 19 pins. Leon Abraham paced the Variety Club with a 261 game. Harlan Everett sparked the Cinema Club team with a 653 series.

All He Returned Was Six Nickels

Davenport, Ia.—Harry Pabst, owner of the Star here, had to refund six nickels Sunday when a fire destroyed his sound screen. The six children who were in the theatre at the time left the house safely.

The fire started in the rear of Harry's Army Store, next door, and did a total of $10,000 of damage. Most of the damage in the theatre, however, was in the rear of the building.

Firemen have been unable to determine the cause of the blaze.

LINCOLN

STILL carrying the publicity torch for Ann Sheridan, Monroe Rubinger autoed in from Kansas City to talk about Annie and "It All Came True." . . . M. E. Lofgren is keeping abreast of the times, now having pictures of his five-month-old offspring in what resembles Technicolor . . . Orville Rennie is having his annual spring show again. He's the Hastings combination of Ziegfeld and Victor Herbert.

R. W. "Bob" Huffman makes all the 18 holes of the golf course in good time—if not good score . . . Vincent J. DiFiore has taken a sudden interest in wrestling, or whatever it is they call those male strip-teases once weekly at the 4-H coliseum here . . . Sid Rose said if he had known Warner was going to tote BOXOFFICE to Reno for "Virginia City," he'd have sent along a moldy buck to toss on the gaming tables there. One Howard Federer didn't get at dominoes.

More rumors flying up and down the Filmrows about the Beatrice anti-trust suit of Frank Hollingsworth, even to the one that he now has an unfriendly landlord at the Rialto, his second-run house. How about it, Frank? . . . Bill Saal's slip, or was it: Picking the only dry state in the Union in which to have a world premiere. But, if Bill could stand it, he figures, everybody else could, too . . . No sense of humor: Mention of a general named Sherman to Harry Martin, of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal and president of the Film Critics of America, a full 70 years after Georgia, makes him mad enough to turn and spit due north.

Rumbles from Hollywood: Barrett Kiesling, Metro, promised the red rug for BOXOFFICE'S imminent trip, April 13, to the coast . . . Sam Clark dug up a hotel with less than two minutes of fresh air from lobby to the Brown Derby . . . Perry Lieber wired for details on some transcriptions to use for radio program fill-ins here, to be made and airmailed from RKO . . . Harry Brand (20th-Fox) is just back from being lost on a 19-day trip, figuring if film stars can get lost, it's okay for a publicist, too . . . Connie Krebs, RKO, has been touring 20 key cities . . . Fred Bartow, Warner's Chicago, sent on a bunch of photos of hi-jinks aboard the "Virginia City" eastern special, including the super-special show performed for Mrs. BOXOFFICE in Grand Island.

OMAHA

OMAHA Variety Club members are busy raffling off a car for charity purposes. The big drawing will be held April 28. Plans are for a golf tourney about the middle of the summer . . . Ted Mendenhall's wife has been ill to make it 100 per cent sickness for the Mendenhall family.

Frank Van Husan celebrated his birthday and his 37*th wedding anniversary this week, on the same day . . . A. S. Ames of Anita, Ia., is planning on enlarging his portable circuit in southwestern Iowa this summer. He was in town to buy two Holmes portables from Sol Francis of American Distributing . . . Butch De Fren of the Des Moines RKO office was in town.*

Elmer Huhnke, veteran film peddler, has taken over the Minne Lusa here in Omaha, formerly operated by Carl Olsen. All of Elmer's many friends on Filmrow and in the territory wish him good luck in his new venture . . . Joe Scott, Fox chief, and Mrs. Scott are parents of another daughter, their third. If you'll remember, Mrs. Scott was formerly one of the Lefholtz Trio, singers. It runs in the family!

E. H. Robertson, Scribner, Neb., former exhibitor, was in town on business. He says Bob Jesse, now operating the Scribner, is doing fine . . . Edward Kugel, State, Holstein, Ia., has a birthday this week . . . Also Ruth Kruger at Warner.

Cecilia Schinker of Scott-Ballantyne's also among those celebrating birthdays this week . . . Ted Mendenhall is boosting "Road to Singapore" which is doing unusual business in the Omaha territory . . . Al Mayer, who sells most of the insurance and lends most of the dough on Filmrow, is in the hospital losing his appendix . . . Where was W. W. Troxell this week? Please check in, Trox!

Filmrow golfers are getting warmed up for the season . . . Tom Pilley, the Row's mail peddler, already has played . . . Sid McArdle, United Artists booker, says he'll take on all comers any Saturday afternoon . . . Joe Scott, Fox manager, will have some stiff competition from Ed Stengel, film salesman . . . Lou Egart, Brandeis treasurer, will start getting up early in the mornings.

Evert Cummings, Tri-States district manager, is chairman of the theatre participation in Golden Spike Days in mid-May . . . Hollis Silkensen, Silky's Theatre, Dell Rapids, S. D., celebrates his 15th wedding anniversary . . . Chick Friedman of Des Moines was here to try to find more space for the new National Screen setup. One rumor is that they will take over the old Grand National offices.

Mike Roth's wife won a special award from a national magazine for answering all the questions at a local quiz meeting . . . R. C. LiBeau, Paramount district manager, was on Filmrow . . . Ed Shafton and Joe Smith are not among Filmrow's better golfers, says Sol Yeager, after seeing them work out at a local driving range.

Sosnas Will Have Third House in Mexico, Mo.

MEXICO, Mo.—Sam and Louis Sosna, who respectively operate theatres at Manhattan, Kas., and Moberly, Mo., have leased a building here which will be remodeled into a 400-seat house.

Approximately $11,000 will be spent on the remodeling and equipping of the theatre, the work now being underway. Opening is expected within six weeks.

THE CHAIR HIT OF 1940

It's a wise move to install new theatre chairs and a wiser move to consider these Service Seat features when comparing values:

ADJUSTABLE LEGS—to fit any floor pitch and assure a high trade-in value.

COMFORT CUSHIONS—noiseless movement and adjustable to any position.

VARIETY IN SIZE—color and seating upholstery as well as numerous models.

SPEEDY INSTALLATION—in replacing seats without loss of time or delaying pictures.

Old Chairs Renewed

Write for folder and finance plan.

Service Seating Company also installs Comfort Cushions in old chairs. Regardless of the type of chair, either "cast or steel uprights," we carry a full line of box springs and spring edge cushions with replacement seat brackets that make your old chairs as attractive and comfortable as new chairs.

"CHAIRS BUILT TO YOUR SPECIFICATIONS"

SERVICE SEATING COMPANY

Owned and Operated by The Service Foundry

330-340 North Rock Island — Wichita, Kansas

DES MOINES

SINCE most Filmrowers don't read the Cedar Rapids paper, we thought we'd better reprint this little item of local interest: "Morris Smith of Des Moines reported to Sheriff Jim Smith's office at 11:20 p. m. Wednesday that his car, traveling slowly at the time, had struck a cow straying with several others on highway No. 30, about four miles east of Cedar Rapids. Smith told the county jailer that both the cow and his car were able to leave the scene under their own power." Trying to get yourself a steak dinner, Morrie?

Iles & McKinney are faster on their motorcycles than the Bell System. We chased them all over town Sunday via telephone, and so help us, they weren't more than five minutes between spots. We finally caught Charles Floyd at home, however, after having talked to each of his various relatives around town.

BOXOFFICE & Co. must have missed a good bet when they decided in favor of work and home Saturday night instead of dinner and Dave Fidler's Club 100 with Leo Pillot. We hear the Club looked like the Variety Club, with Filmrow en masse. Joe Ancher was there (of course) with Jack Seigel. The orchestra honored Lou Levy with a special number dedicated to him because he was celebrating his nineteenth birthday. G. Ralph Branton was there and "California Here I Come" was played for Frank Rubel. Gilley Wells, Ben Lass and Jack Kennedy are others who hit the spot during the evening.

Iowa Film's Ralph Leach has a new driver for the company . . . a boy. Chuck Plows is still frying his own eggs, because Fern is still visiting in Cedar Rapids . . . Lou Elman is staging a trade screening of "Irene" at the Orpheum in the morning, April 8.

Pat O'Brien may be on hand for the Drake Relays here April 26-27 . . . Ted Husing will handle the show for the Columbia network . . . Monroe Rubinger (who has a very bad Ann Sheridan complex) attended the DM Theatre solo to see "Strange Cargo" and paid his own way. We can see why the Orpheum reports more junk lost and found on "Pinocchio" than ever before in the history of the house. Our Mitzi was lost in the film and even forgot her wiggling for the time being.

Art Anderson was heard mumbling in his beardless chin about the biggest ad campaign in the company's history on "It All Came True." We wonder why they figure they need to plug the good pix so hard? We'd put our dough on the bad ones that need it. After much pulling of his curly hair and combing of the city with a fine-tooth comb, Harry Holdsberg finally located a woman who once knew Tom Edison . . . Eddie Dunn lowered his fee at the Paramount to 26 cents for the balcony any time, for all seats, till 6 p. m., and for Sundays till 2:00—but the Orpheum matched him.

While the rest of Filmrow was betting on the Paychek spat, Ben Lass and Emil Franke were standing in front of the show betting on how soon one of the kids in line would pick up a penny minding its own biz on the sidewalk. The penny wasn't picked up for 45 minutes, which is longer than any blonde in the same spot could have held out.

Dorothy Yale, Paramount cashier, promised Sunday to cook, slave and spend Robert Geren's dough. It happened at St. John's Lutheran Church. Pete Dana was in town . . . Deanna Durbin's new pic, "It's a Date" lost out for a few minutes Friday night while Filmrowers took time out (just a little) to hear Paychek send fright waves . . . Lionel Wasson sat in Stan Mayer's chair in front of the radio and listened as though he'd bet a lot, and then gave a long spiel on "the lousy fight game" . . . Ralph Olson, Mel Evidon, the Burton Jerrels, Ruby Willey and Loretta Dieling were among those who crowded around Stan's door to hear the squabble.

Joe Smith complains that he was laid up in Mason City for two days with a cold and without a "No Visitor" sign on the door, but there were no visitors anyway . . . Morris Smith left Monday for a two-week trip on business in Butte, Mont. . . . Gary Cooper knew less than he was supposed to about the beauties picked at Grinnell (his alma mater) last week, and a change in the Goldwyn publicity setup in that territory left the college kids high and dry on the expected telephone call from Cooper in Hollywood.

Sorry we missed that rush screening of "Rebecca" Friday noon . . . it's another picture good enough to get a hand from peddlers of other product . . . There was a stag at Kennie Weldon's last week for Jack Frost, who is being replaced as booker at Universal by Joseph Rogatnick, former district booker in Kaycee . . . What's Bing Miller (that Orville Miller nearly fooled us, Bing) doing hanging around the Kendall playhouse?

Jere Spandau thought he'd throw us off base with that screening sans Esther gag, but Esther's very busy these days and she wasn't at Wolf's Saturday . . . besides we heard that rumor, Jere, that you're to be transferred to NY (Albany) in a very few weeks. The whole thing should be nicely brewed by the time this copy is on your desk.

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By RENE CLAYTON

C. C. Parker put on his green shirt, picked up his equipment and moved his theatre at Fontanelle across the square under a brand new canopy. He remodeled his new quarters inside, too.

George Storm is putting on a little dog at the Lovilia, Iowa, theatre. Service Theatre Supply is remodeling inside and out for him there, and putting up a new neon marquee. He'll open about April 6.

Bob and Zoe Dawson got into the spirit of the thing and installed a new amplifier at the Rozoda in Redfield . . . We're still coming out for another peak at that cute little dream cottage, Zoe.

S'good thing the Hays office wasn't checking Mr. Hunling's ad copy for the Capitol in Newton . . . the ad quotes Leone Martin McCoy's account of "Gone With the Wind" in which she describes Scarlett O'Hara "The morning after Gable . . ." and concludes "You can just tell she's had a good time!" . . . and the ad then plugs: "Don't miss the picture coming to the Capitol April 5!"

When Iles & McKinney pulled into Fonda and commented to Ed Recknagel about the stench from his pipe, Ed opined: "There must be sumpin to it . . . that's the third time today somebuddy's mentioned it."

Bill Eddy of Indianola is thinking about a suit for desertion . . . he says his wife spends two weeks with son Warren who has the Sigourney, Iowa, theatre, and then two more weeks with son Jack who has the Mt. Ayr theatre . . . and by heck if it ain't time to visit Warren again!

Ted Allen was some embarrassed the other night when he was drawing to give his $400 Bank Night pot away . . . he drew four names and each was from some other town besides Guthrie Center.

Tompkins, who runs the Winfield, Iowa, theatre, pulled a new stunt last week—he sold three tickets for three shows for 75 cents, then on Saturday had a drawing of all the stubs and gave the holder of the lucky number a radio.

Mr. Kolitis of the Riviera in Rock Island was in DM for the first time in 18 weeks last week. He's been visiting abroad for about six months in Greece and Italy where he owns some property.

Hal Sheridan may entertain the Marx Brothers at his Paramount in Cedar Rapids sometime in April. The funny boys are making a test tour to try out their wisecracks.

Wayne Franke's Humota Theatre is named after both Humboldt, the town in which it's located, and Dakota City, a nearby town. This combination keeps the smaller townfolk from being antagonized against the house, located in the larger community, Franke believes.

Jess Carter and Roy Chansky have taken on a line of neon and fluorescent lighting for theatre marquees, and have put a new front on the Fenton for Fred Thacker in Fenton.

Fred Fritz installed a new amplifier and speaking system in his houses at Oxford Junction and Wilton Junction.

Robert Leonard over at the Hiland in DM offers a free midnight preview to all who purchase a ticket after 9:00 for the regular Saturday night show.

If Everett Peterson had arranged it ahead of time just to attract attention, it couldn't have been better—we mean that usher repainting the yellow parking line in front of the Uptown at 10:30 Friday night with a portable radio beside him, three gaping passersby and a little girl in blonde pigtails.

Hayden Peterson is still doing it over at the State in Lee township . . . He started with "Ecstasy" and "Birth of a Nation," you'll recall, then went from the "Valley of the Nude" to "Cloistered" . . . now he's running "Ingagi." Minneapolis will remember it as the first pix shown by Emil Franke (now at the Orpheum here) at a Seventh Ave. house there . . . Franke blew $2,100 on the theatre front, played it four weeks, jerked it in the middle of the fifth in the middle of the performance when the Hays office got hot under the collar about the show.

That's quite a house going up in Lake City to replace the Iowa which burned recently. The new theatre will seat 550.

Clint Bolton gives the Hollywood Theatre in Sioux Falls, S. D., quite a build-up, and says the manager, Joe Floyd, is one swell guy full of promotion ideas . . . Harold Boyd, his assistant, is a swell boy (instead of swell guy) . . . Clint gives 'em this plug: "Floyd & Boyd, Songs, Dances and Witty Sayings . . . split or full weeks now booking." (BOXOFFICE & Co. have been threatened with an evening of sea chanties by Bolton . . . Saints preserve us!)

Report New Season Sales As Brisk in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS — Companies that have started selling 1940-41 product deals report a brisk demand. Twentieth-Fox began selling two weeks ago and Moe Levy, district manager, states deals have been "pouring in" and he is exceedingly pleased with results to date.

There is similar optimism up and down Filmrow. With improved agricultural conditions, all branch managers are anticipating one of the best selling seasons in years.

Mans and Hamilton Have New Falcon in St. Paul

ST. PAUL—The new Falcon, 900-seat neighborhood house, will be operated by Paul Mans and W. L. Hamilton, Twin City independent circuit owners. The theatre will be located just outside the local city limits.

MINNEAPOLIS

FAY DRESSEL, RKO branch manager, walking the floor these nights with that recently arrived girl . . . Abe Kaplan, prominent independent exhibitor, has blossomed out in a new spring wardrobe—just a preview of his trip to the Dallas Variety convention. Speaking of that convention, Billy Elson of the Seventh Street has been a mighty busy young man, making all the train arrangements for the party of 25 that will attend from here . . . Mary Supak, secretary to Gordon Greene, general manager of the Benz theatre interests, driving a new Buick.

George Crane, Cambridge, Minn., exhibitor, moved into town to watch the state high school basketball playoffs and sat through to the finish . . . Reason "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, spent an afternoon shopping for a riding habit—his wife purchased a horse for him . . . Bill Crystal, former North Dakota basketball star and more recently a film executive, spoke before a Variety luncheon group and declared himself enthusiastic over coming screen productions.

This column has discovered a new talent in the versatile Dick Wagner, Sioux Falls, S. D., showman, sportsman, etc. Dick is a wizard at snooker pool . . . Sam Zuckman, owner of the Mounds, reports the usual spring slump in business . . . Max Torador, local inde exhibitor, vacationing in Los Angeles from where he heads for Dallas to attend the Variety convention . . . Charlie Weiner, Monogram exchange manager, banging away to make his drive a big success.

Ray Hurwitz, National Screen live-wire, is concentrating on special trailer service and getting a big response from northwest exhibitors . . . Frank Eisenberg, United Artists salesman, made a special clean-up North Dakota trip . . . Bennie Berger, inde circuit operator, threw his semi-annual party for his managers and office staff at the Twin City Variety Club.

Bill Volk, independent circuit operator, will drop his many business activities and attend the Dallas spree. He decided to do so when he received word that his friend, John Boles, screen star, will be there . . . Ted Bolnick of La Crosse, Wis., and Joe Floyd, Sioux Falls, S. D., Welworth circuit staff members, visited Minneapolis this week . . . Mannie Sgutt, Columbia's South Dakota voice, was in Minneapolis only one day and then raced back to his territory through a blizzard to resume his political campaign there.

Joe Stern, Majestic exchange owner, in New York where he'll palsy-walsy with his good friend, Kaltenborn, the man who "edits the news" . . . The Lee Brothers, the exhibitors, stretching out their fishing tackle now that spring is in the air and prospects of catching some Norwegian bass look good . . . Hazel Oliver, popular Pantages cashier, has quit the show business and gone to Los Angeles to enter a new field . . . About time that Mannie Goodman, the valance man, was getting around this way.

Flash: Word just been received that Tommy Charack, who left his Warner sales post here to assume one in Los Angeles, has been lured into taking a screen test and the dope is that he passed it with such flying colors that he'll soon make his debut in Warner's patriotic shorts . . . Sol Lebedoff, independent circuit owner, explains that while business doesn't warrant it, he has bought that Pullman-looking new car because only such a job was good enough to take his triplet-grandchildren out riding.

Fred Finnegan, RKO assistant booker, getting lots of pleasure out of a new 8mm motion picture camera . . . Warner's South Dakota sales post is still open . . . Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Charlie Connought, Olivia, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; E. P. Parsons, Renville, Minn.; Paul Perrizo, Blue Earth, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis., and Tom Hall, Buhl, Minn.

Bill Scholl, RKO home office publicity purveyor, copped lots of newspaper and radio plugs for "Pinocchio" and "Swiss Family Robinson" . . . Don Swartz, Warner assistant booker, back from a honeymoon in Chicago . . . C. K. Olson, Warner branch manager, reports early runs of "Virginia City" in the territory have brought splendid returns. The picture currently is on view at the State here and the Paramount in St. Paul.

John J. Friedl and L. J. Ludvig, Minnesota Amusement Co. heads, in New York on product deals . . . Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, in town . . . Jack Thoma, Columbia exploiteer, up from Chicago briefly . . . Phil Dunas, Columbia district manager, a visitor . . . A. Selby Carr, Paramount office manager, attended the funeral of a relative in Omaha . . . Bob Long, M-G-M home office traveling auditor, here for short visit.

Lowell Kaplan of the Welworth circuit mourning the loss of his auto. It was stolen from in front of his office . . . Paramount had invitation exhibitor screenings of "Road to Singapore" and "Typhoon." Former is a boxoffice smash, and A. Selby Carr reports a tremendous amount of exhibitor interest in the latter which hasn't had its premiere in the territory yet . . . "Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, handing out match packages advertising his company's 15th anniversary. He says he has no intention of burning up exhibitors.

Jack Flynn, M-G-M division manager, visited with W. H. Workman, local branch manager . . . Harry Hirsch's spring burlesque season at the Gayety off to a good start with Ada Leonard, noted beauty, as guest star . . . Leo Adler, United Artists home office auditor, on a five-week busi-

Jerry Weisfeldt, former Warner assistant booker, is now local representative for Northwest Film Alliance distributing such independent product as "Bombs Over London," "Torpedoed," etc. Deals have been made with the Minnesota Amusement Co. and the Bennie Berger circuit.

L. E. Goldhammer, RKO district manager, to New York on a business trip . . . "Birth of a Nation" has been booked into the Esquire to follow "Chickadee" . . . Harold B. Johnson, Universal city salesman, back from a vacation trip. He motored to California via upper Mexico.

"Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, to Chicago for a sales conference . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, visiting Des Moines exchange . . . What Filmrow girl is a double for Joan Crawford? . . . How about that budding romance at Universal? Is it spring's infuence and is somebody heading for a fall? . . . April 14 has been chosen as the date for the wedding of Bill Evidon, Columbia office manager, to Helen Solow of Fargo.

Herald in Sales Motif Grabs Iowa Interest

HAWARDEN, IA.—Credit to the Theatre Partner, monthly publication of the Alexander Film Co., for publicizing the herald idea generated here by Harry Lankhorst, manager of the Sioux.

The herald, in newspaper size, printed on orange stock, proclaimed:

"$5,000,000 Sale! January — month of values."

It then lists current and coming pictures just as a store advertises bargains. For example, one picture is advertised:

"White Elephant! Not much good but if you care to sit thru it—it's O. K. for 5c and 10c."

Short subject program is advertised with a regular cut of a pair of men's shorts, with copy underneath:

"Shorts! One hour and 15 minutes! Kinda cold now but we must move 'em. Take your pick at 5c and 10c."

"Think of it, folks! Shows that cost $500,000; You can see them for 10c, 25c or 35c. Truly a great bargain! Save this handbill—it is worth 5c on a child's ticket and 10c on an adult ticket."

"Wind" Terrific Around Minneapolis Territory

MINNEAPOLIS—"Gone With the Wind" continues to do terrific business over the territory. Broken house records are reported in nearly every situation. Grosses for a week in towns such as Rochester, Minn., Fargo, N. D., and Eau Claire, Wis., have run in the five figures.

A New Career

OSKALOOSA, IA.—You wouldn't expect a new laborer in the Continental Overall factory here to attract much attention from the film industry . . . unless he has 82 cents for two tickets.

But it might be different in the case of Curt Kessler, who started work here last week.

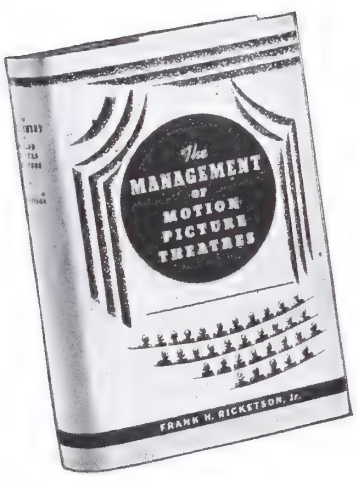
Curt has been in this country only four months. He comes from Germany.

For 15 years Curt was in business in Berlin. He sold supplies to theatres and film houses. In fact he prospered and three years ago he married.

But in the last three years, Jewish couples have not prospered in Germany. His customers forsook him under the rigid Hitler regime. He lost his income and his home. Four months ago Curt and his wife, Charlotte, sailed for the United States with $8 and hopes for a fresh start.

Now they live in one room which includes three chairs, a table, a stove and a bed. Members of an entertainment industry might be interested in their comments on amusement.

"What will we do for amusement? Nothing! We are so happy to be here that we don't need amusement."



Exhibitor Is Mayor

SMITHVILLE, MO.—H. N. Slater, owner of the Rialto here, was elected mayor Tuesday over Charles L. Shinn.

Discuss "Backstage Hollywood"

DES MOINES—"Backstage in Hollywood" was the topic at the Conopus-Exchange Club meeting here Monday.

How to operate motion picture theatres profitably

Here is a new book full of HOW TO DO IT information, written by a man who believes that the first objective of theatre management is to make money. In this book he covers motion picture theatre management from A to Z, giving the best results of years of experience as a guide in establishing successful policies, building profitable business, and efficiently operating any size theatre.

Bank Night Fate May Be Settled in Ohio

TROY, OHIO—Legality of Bank Night in the state of Ohio, now governed only by local ordinances, will be settled in the near future, if plans of the Troy Amusement Co. here are carried out.

The company, operating the Mayflower Theatre here, is involved in an unusual case, which, by inference, will determine the status of the theatre game in Ohio. The second district court of appeals confirmed a common pleas ruling here, which, in effect, held Bank Night to be a lottery.

The suit arose when a resident here obtained a "search and seizure" warrant, technically invalid, against the Mayflower in rebuttal for a purported refusal of the management to permit a minor daughter to sign the attendance register for three adult members of her family. The theatre then secured a temporary injunction to prevent issuing and serving the warrant, but the common pleas court refused to make it permanent, the court of appeals concurring.

As the suit now stands, the company has requested the court of appeals to withhold execution of the decision. In event of a refusal, attorneys for the company will carry their appeal to the state supreme court. Confirmation by the high court of the previous rulings, will result in Bank Night being dropped throughout the state. However, a reversal would open the way for exhibitors operating in communities where local ordinances prohibit games of chance in theatres.

Pearlstein Is Back From Hollywood With Praise

CLEVELAND—Manny Pearlstein, director of publicity and exploitation for Warner theatres in this district, has returned from the coast full of enthusiasm for the industry.

"One has to see the industry in action," says Pearlstein, "to appreciate the enormous difficulties that confront those who produce motion pictures. A trip through the studios will make us less critical of, and more tolerant of, the picture that eventually reaches our screens."

While on the coast, Pearlstein saw in the making "Torrid Zone" and "Brother Orchid" at the Warner studios; "Mortal Storm" and the newest Hardy picture at the M-G-M lot, and "Tom Brown's School Days" at RKO.

"Rebecca" Achieves Mark In Cleveland State Run

CLEVELAND—"Rebecca" is being held over a second week at Loew's State. It is only the second picture in the past ten years to win a holdover engagement at the theatre. The other was "San Francisco."

"Rebecca," playing Good Friday and Easter Sunday, piled up the house's biggest one-week gross with a straight picture policy since "Another Thin Man" which played last November.

Kentucky Levies Tax On Bingo Games

Cincinnati—Northern Kentuckians, patrons of bingoes, highly successful in Covington and Cincinnati suburbs in Kentucky, will pay a 15 per cent tax on all winnings from Bingo games, following the recent passage of a bill authorizing the tax, at Frankfort. This is the first legal taxation on Bingo, which is the greatest competition suffered by motion picture theatres and all forms of amusement in general. Games in northern Kentucky pay as high as $250 to winners. Profits on games run well over 60 per cent to promoters. Games run every night, including Sunday afternoon and evening.

Kentucky Tax Cut Starting June 12

FRANKFORT, KY.—Effective June 12, the state admission tax on tickets of more than 39 cents will be reduced from one cent on each additional five cents to one cent on each additional ten cents, according to the terms of a bill which became a law without the signature of Gov. Keen Johnson. The law also provides a tax of one cent on each additional 25 cents over a $1 admission charge.

Also effective on June 12 is the law signed by Governor Johnson taxing Bank Night and other cash drawings up to 15 per cent. The law includes Bingo.

Exempted from the admission tax impost are religious, charitable or civic performances in municipally owned park theatres.

Nate Schultz to Build In Downtown Barberton

BARBERTON, OHIO—Nate Schultz, owner of the Pastime, confirms the report he will build a new theatre here in the heart of the downtown business section, with the announcement he has completed a deal for a 15-year lease on the site of the present abandoned postoffice building.

Nat Marcus of the Boston Chain Store in Findlay, Ohio, has purchased the property and will convert it into a 700-seat de luxe theatre with a lower floor and mezzanine. George Ebling, Cleveland architect, is preparing the plans. Construction will start as soon as plans are approved and a general contract let.

Schultz states he will continue operation of the Pastime after the completion of the new theatre.

New Altec Office

DETROIT—The Altec Service Corp.'s district here, divided to create a new district headed by Warren Conner and M. G. Thomas, who will headquarter in Cincinnati, will remain under the management of F. C. Dickely, according to L. W. Conrow, Altec president.

Gov't Gives Details in Monopoly Charges

NEW YORK—Four acts of oppression by major distributors and affiliated circuits in three mideastern states are cited by the department of justice in its reply to the request of the majors for further particulars in the government monopoly suit as follows (details are listed according to time, theatre, or theatres, location, producer-exhibitor, independent exhibitor, distress methods and manner employed):

KENTUCKY

1937-39—Seville; Owensboro; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Lee W. Moffitt.

Paramount sought to force Moffitt to sell to or pool his theatre with it by threatening to deprive and by depriving him of product, and by threatening to open and by opening opposition theatres.

MICHIGAN

1935-1939—Frolic and Mecca; Midland; Paramount; W. A. Cassidy.

Paramount threatened to build competing theatre if independent enlarged his theatre.

OHIO

1931-1939—Strand; Middletown; Paramount; Theodore and Gus Chifos.

Paramount consistently raised prices of product to independent with threats to build competing theatres. Paramount finally built its own theatre and thereafter Paramount, Fox and M-G-M refused product to independent. Due to inability to secure product, independent lost theatre to his mortgagee. Paramount then acquired the theatre from the mortgagee.

1939—State and Sandusky; Sandusky; Warner Bros.; Earl V. Seitz.

Warner threatened to open a new theatre to compete with the independent, although it already had all major producers product tied up and had previously operated the State Theatre and given it up as unprofitable.

Traveling Carnivals Are Out in Fayette County

UNIONTOWN, PA.—Traveling carnivals compete with local business; they take large sums of money from persons least able to afford it; local organizations sponsoring carnivals make only a small return for the work done, and crime usually follows them.

District Attorney H. Vance Cottom gave these reasons for outlawing traveling carnivals in Fayette county.

Louisville Gets Premiere Of "1,000,000 B. C."

LOUISVILLE—The world premiere here of Hal Roach's "1,000,000 B. C.", held Friday, enjoyed a natural in its exploitation by the fact that Victor Mature, who stars in the picture, is a native of Louisville.

The premiere, to which Mayor J. D. Keen of Louisville and Gov. Keen Johnson of Kentucky were invited, was made a civic event by the advance campaign.

AA Again Topic of AMPTO of W. Pa.

PITTSBURGH — Advertising Accessories, Inc., subsidiary of National Screen Service, which was branded as "monopolistic" by unanimous resolution of the AMPTO of W. Pa., again will be one of the subjects of discussion at a meeting of the local Allied unit Monday noon, April 8.

Several other topics will be discussed at the closed session, and officers and directors of the association will not divulge one special subject which they state is of extreme importance to independent exhibitors.

George Dembow of National Screen Service has been invited to give the position of Advertising Accessories, Inc., from his company's viewpoint. He had requested this hearing and it was granted.

AMPTO directors were scheduled to meet in regular session April 5 and were to take up various problems prior to their presentation to the membership body meeting. One of the directors' session topics was reported to be the sales policies of at least three companies for the 1940-41 product which is now being offered. Also up for discussion was the possibility of a number of film companies being short on delivery of product for the current season.

The April 8 meeting is for members only and will be held in the assembly room of the AMPTO headquarters on Filmrow. A buffet luncheon will be served from 12 o'clock, noon, to about 1 p. m. Business session is to be started promptly at 1 o'clock. M. A. Rosenberg, president, will be in charge.

Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary, reported this week that dates for the national Allied convention will be June 19-20-21, at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago. Herrington and Rosenberg have been named to serve on the national convention committee.

Goetz Captains Cincinnati Filmrow Community Drive

Plan $100,000 House

WILLOUGHBY, OHIO—A $100,000 theatre will be constructed here by Daniel C. Stearns, Percy Essick, Howard Reif and Charles Deckman of Cleveland, owners of the Willoughby here and of several others in northeastern Ohio. It will seat 1,500.

Lee Katz Joins 20th-Fox

HOLLYWOOD—Lee Katz has joined 20th-Fox's writing staff.

His Claim Is Unique, And He's Making Money

Cleveland—The Windameer, an Associated circuit house managed by Douglas George, claims to be the only local subsequent run independent house playing a straight single feature policy, no premiums, no giveaways, no two-for-ones and no games. And with the neighborhood PTA backing him, George reports his house is showing a profit.

"Rancho Grande" Getting Big Cleveland Sendoff

CLEVELAND—The local Republic office opens a day and date run of "Rancho Grande," current Gene Autry release, simultaneously at 12 theatres in the Greater Cleveland area, starting April 7. They are the Ambassador, Beach Cliff, Garden, Garfield, Imperial, Lorain-Fulton, Lyceum, Metropolitan, Olympia, Parma and Plaza.

This is the first wholesale day and date run of such magnitude ever put over by Republic locally, and it is being announced in a half-page cooperative ad in the Plain Dealer, inviting the public to see the picture at its own neighborhood house. The newspaper will run a limerick contest a week before the day and date showing, with seven cash prizes involving $50 and the distribution of 60 pairs of guest tickets.

Sloan Forward With Television House

DETROIT—Contrary to reports current along Filmrow, plans for the new 3,600-seat television theatre at Six Mile and Schaefer Roads have not been dropped, Saul Sloan, builder, told BOXOFFICE prior to leaving for a brief vacation. Construction of the new northwest section house, largest of the half dozen now planned in that part of town, will start as soon as weather permits, Sloan said. It is expected to be ready in the fall.

Sloan is planning to start construction on his Alpine Theatre, on the east side, in the fall. The house will seat about 1,200 instead of the 3,000, as originally planned.

Confirm Report Schlussel Will Build in Melvindale

DETROIT—Definite confirmation of reported plans for a new theatre at Melvindale, west side suburb, by Louis Schlussel, owner of the Farnum in Hamtramck, was secured this week.

The house will be erected in the vicinity of Allen Road and Oakwood Blvd. Melvindale's first theatre will seat around 1,500.

Free Shows Again in Shreve

SHREVE, OHIO—Shreve's semi-weekly free shows will be held again every Tuesday and Saturday during the summer.

In "Drive Within a Drive"—

PITTSBURGH—"Mr. Hays' Little Joke" was the subject of a "To the Point" editorial in the March 28 issue of the Pittsburgh Catholic, official organ of the diocese:

"In his annual report 'on the state of the film industry,' presented Monday, Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, warmly defended the present setup and policies of the industry, assailed the federal government's suit to break up the producing and exhibiting combination, condemned the Neely bill which would outlaw 'block booking' and 'blind selling,' and attacked all those who would impose 'censorship' on the pictures. The gist of his report is that the film industry can be depended upon, as a 'self-regulatory' institution, to maintain high standards of art, morality and business and should not be 'interfered with.'

"Unfortunately, the records are against Mr. Hays' rosy picture; his industry has shown itself too often and too viciously contemptuous of the law, of moral standards, of the rights of others and of the common good, to be trusted. If conditions in the film field are better today than they were five years ago it is not because of 'self-regulation' as Mr. Hays seems to imply, but because of the 'outside' forces of which he now speaks so plaintively. The independent exhibitors are certainly not ready to agree that the 'big' companies should be given a free hand to do as they please; neither is the Legion of Decency.

"Just this week the Legion issues a statement regarding the film 'Strange Cargo' which it has placed in Class C—Condemned: 'This picture, in which religion is the prominent issue, presents a Naturalistic concept of religion contrary to the teachings of Christ and Catholic Church. Irreverent use of Sacred Scripture. Lustful implications in dialogue and situation.'"

Classification of motion pictures was resumed last week by the Catholic, and a special rating was given to "The Fight for Life," a medical, social and educational picture—"questionable for theatrical audiences."

"Florian" Will Premiere April 12 in Dayton

CINCINNATI—M-G-M's "Florian" will have its world premiere at Loew's, Dayton, Ohio, April 12, according to announcement of William Devanney, local office manager. Marty Burnett visited the local exchange for screening of the film. Devanney also announced "GWTW" now is being released in territorial key spots for four-day bookings.

Postpones Trip

CANTON, OHIO—George A. Delis, district manager for Interstate Theatres, Inc., headed by A. G. Constant of Steubenville, announces postponement of his trip to Greece, because of the uncertainty of conditions there.

PITTSBURGH

HERMAN LITTLESTONE, who has re-entered exhibition at the Brushton, now owned by the Brushton Theatre Corp., finds it not too difficult to get back into the swing of things. For five years he had engaged in the clothing business after being a theatre manager for 14 years. During the five years he was out of exhibition, he kept in touch with the industry as a faithful subscriber and reader of BOXOFFICE. With Littlestone in the Brushton enterprise are his brothers, A. J. and Henry Littlestone, and David M. Green of the Beacon. Edward H. Goldberg, owner and manager of the Brushton for many years, has retired.

M-G-M employes entertained at luncheon last Saturday afternoon at the Nixon restaurant in honor of N. Beverly Semenow, clerk, who, on April 5, was to become Mrs. Gilbert Robins. Beverly's hubby is a local dentist. Also honored was Eddie Micinski, night shipper, who recently joined the ranks of the benedicts (having married a Clarion, Pa., girl), and a third special guest was Evelyn Bateman, who has resigned duties at M-G-M to devote her time to household duties.

Bar-Mitzvah for Bernard Herbert Ehrlich, 13-year-old son of the Samuel Ehrlichs, will be celebrated April 13 in Washington, D. C. Father is the district checking supervisor for Warner . . . Prof. Frank E. Fickinger, father of Charles, Coudersport, Pa., exhibitor, and William of the Dipson circuit, Wheeling, W. Va., died at St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29. Funeral was from the Gray Funeral Home, Sewickley, April 4.

Playboy Hymie Wheeler had the most fun on Filmrow April Fool's Day . . . Mrs. Harry L. Fry is operating the Wampum theatre, with her husband "out of town" for a number of months . . . AMPTO this week circulated special Allied bulletins on "The Truth About the Neely Bill," which asked independent exhibitors to do their own thinking . . . Mrs. Oliver A. Kihchel is all set to spread her Angel Food cakes at the luncheon for the AMPTO crowd April 8 in exhibitor headquarters' assembly hall . . . The J. H. Rankins of Bridgeville are vacationing in North Carolina . . . Eddie Beedle seems to have taken the lead in stimulating interest in the national Allied convention which will be held at Chicago, June 19-21. He and Fred J. Herrington have made a wager of a new hat as to the number of local delegates who will attend the confab.

Johnny Lengyel of the IATSE Bowling League (Local No. 171) is getting all steamed up about their forthcoming banquet at the conclusion of the season . . . There are reports that theatres will be erected in the Garfield and Greenfield districts of the city . . . Col. Harry A. Cole, national president of Allied, phoned the AMPTO office from the local airport Tuesday, the Texas showman being en route to Washington, D. C. . . . L. J. Katz, IATSE representative, spent several days in New York this week . . . Sympathy to Harry Fendrick, M-G-M salesman, whose father-in-law died in New York Tuesday . . . June 25 has been set as the date for the marriage of Martin Seed, son of the Harry Seeds, and Eleanor Zoe Wolken.

Most of Filmrow's managers and salesmen covering the main line were in Altoona Wednesday for the good-will get-together stag, an informal dinner at the Hotel Penn Alto with many exhibitor friends . . . The Joe Louis vs. Johnny Paychek fight pictures were on view here this week at the Warner with "Virginia City." George "B" Josack is distributing this subject . . . Announcement that "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "Three Cheers for the Irish" were booked for a double bill at the Warner, was the subject of much conversation in film circles this week . . . Harris circuit is conducting a business drive to April 15, the house manager winner to be awarded a trip to the Variety Club convention . . . Jack Judd has met with favorable reception in announcement of his new Theatre Service, a booking agency, and Lou Vogel got off to a flying start with Premium Promotion Syndicate, originators of Encyclopedia nites. Both Judd and Vogel are former NSS men.

Lew Lefton was out calling on the trade this week . . . Blair county's district attorney, Chester B. Wray, has declared "war" on Bingo and other forms of gambling . . . William Thomas, Zelienople exhibitor, a Filmrow shopper the other day, was busy greeting a number of friends . . . Frank L. France has resigned duties at Superior Supply . . . Ken Woodward was so very pleased with business on "The Birth of a Nation" that he wrote a letter of thanks to Harry Grelle, distributor . . . The veteran Louis Krieger is grabbing a lot of dates for his "Black Limelight" and "Just Like a Woman."

Manuel Greenwald, manager of the Barry (The House of Thrills) is exploited as "The Merchant of Menace." He's been having a good run of blood and thunder pictures and went to town on Bela Lugosi's "Human Monster" . . . Joe Mazzei, Gabe Rubin's assistant at the Art Cinema for five years, has resigned to accept another theatre job. He is not to be confused with the fellow of the same name who used to operate a theatre at Belle Vernon . . . Charlie Baron, who doesn't think we publicize Leo's productions to the fullest extent, has covered every situation in the local territory for "GWTW" engagements

HARRY GOLDSTEIN, Paramount district manager, advocates opening a booking agency on Miami Beach for the convenience of all parties concerned. Just back from Florida, Goldstein reports he saw more of his customers down there than he ordinarily does on a tour of his territory.

Miss Effie Baxter, head M-G-M inspectress who recently celebrated her 20th year with the company, was taken home this week from Woman's Hospital where she has been convalescing from a broken ankle and a bruised elbow suffered in a fall.

Bert Stearn, UA district manager, and Mrs. Stearn are back from a two-week Florida sun tanning and now the Matt Goodmans have left for a vacation visiting friends in Detroit, Chicago, Toledo and Milwaukee . . . Harold Kay, manager of the Lake, Painesville, and his publicity man, Milton Korach, made a tour of the exchanges.

The Sam Fines of the Savoy have returned from Florida, but the Meyer Fines will stay on until about the middle of April . . . When Ralph Redmond resigned as manager of the Jewel, he did so to go in business for himself in Chicago. What business? Scientific indoor chicken raising, for restaurant consumption.

M. M. Blaettnar, formerly of Columbus, has succeeded Ralph Redmond as manager of the Jewel . . . Milt Mooney of Cooperative Theatres of Ohio has closed a contract with S. E. McFarren to service his Creston Drive-In . . . Bob Postman, associated with Willard Hart in the Norka and Rialto theatres, Akron, was in during the past week, bringing word that Hart, who has been so very ill, is well on the road to complete recovery.

Joe Leavitt of Independent Screen Room, just back from Florida, is enthusiastic about the airplane trip he and Frank Gross took to Havana. Mrs. Leavitt is also back from Hot Springs . . . Manny Mannishore went to New York to see the Louis-Paychek fight, and to arrange for the film distribution rights . . . H. C. Patterson has notified exchanges he has closed the Oakland, Marion, until further notice.

Social Note: Arnold Nathanson of the Warner theatre publicity department is accepting congratulations following announcement of his engagement to Miss Ruth Schmittman, formerly of Cleveland and now of Buffalo . . . And here's a hot one. Al Friedlander, who helps Max Shenker sell Berlo Vending machines, joined the Statler Hotel floor show last Saturday night to give a one performance exhibition of a cuban dance number. His partner was Miss Betty Marx.

Sam Gorrel, Republic branch manager, states, with figures to back his statement, that, to date, "Rancho Grande" is outgrossing "South of the Border" wherever the two played in the territory . . . The Variety Club has temporarily suspended social activities while alterations are taking place in the club quarters . . . Sidney Garfinkle, with offices on the third floor of the Film Bldg., has added to his activities the installation and servicing of Vendo popcorn machines in northern Ohio.

P. E. Essick was called back from Hot Springs where he and Mrs. Essick were vacationing, by the illness of his father . . . Harry E. Flynn of the Scoville, Essick & Reif circuit are among the returning Florida vacationists . . . Tom Whyte, manager of the Garden, is accepting dinner invitations while his wife is in Florida . . . Duke Clark, Paramount branch manager, is smiling because "Road to Singapore" is winning public plaudits through the territory . . . Jay Zimmerman, M-G-M auditor, is in for a short stay at the local exchange.

Tim Cleary, former M-G-M checking supervisor and now with the sales force out of Indianapolis, must be a clairvoyant. He predicted he would have a son by March 17 who would be named Patrick. And it happened just like that, believe it or not.

Ted Mendelssohn, Vitagraph branch manager, has broken the jinx that has held up sale of Vitagraph pictures to local independent circuit operators. Last week he closed a two-year all-product deal with the Associated circuit covering 24 houses . . . Joe Schagrin, Youngstown exhibitor, and his associate, Herman Heller, were exchange visitors.

Clifford Giesseman of Altec Service was in from Detroit to tell local theatre owners how much money and worry he can save them with his yearly service plan including sound engineers on 24-hour duty to guarantee unbroken sound reproduction . . . George Schenker has installed Cyclex equipment in his Lorain, Lorain. L. P. Langford of Oliver Theatre Supply made the installation.

Not Holt, Nat Wolf—

But he's the Ohio Warner zone manager and this photo shows him at the Warner studio with Ann Sheridan on the set of "Torrid Zone." The ribbers can quit ribbing; it was purely a typographical error. We had him as Nat Holt in our issue of March 16.

28 Years in Trade—

M. B. Horwitz, a factor in Cleveland exhibitor circles and a leader among showmen there for the past 28 years, whose career was the subject of a special story in BOXOFFICE last week.

COLUMBUS

ENCOURAGING was the opening day of "Rebecca" at the Ohio for the biggest gross in months . . . Freddie Oestreicher, Loew's press agent, is on the job again after a short stay at a hospital for treatment . . . Out-of-town visitors included Nat Holt, RKO boss, and Tommy Fisher, RCA, Cincinnati.

Elmer Fritz gets "GWTW" in Urbana on the 13th for one of the first runs in small towns . . . "Red" Joyce, Paramount publicity in NYC, was in on "Dr. Cyclops" . . . Locals cannot figure the action of the Detroit censor in rejecting "Strange Cargo" and "Primrose Path." Both were passed by the Ohio board in toto, former receiving boosts from the clergy as one of the year's better pictures!

A sweeping bow to Barney O'Dea, floor manager at the Main. Ignoring gunfire, he broke up an attempted robbery at the house, assisting in capture of the bandit, and saving Fred Rowland about $500. House was robbed several weeks ago, successfully that time.

Tent 2 will be well represented at the convention in Dallas by Dr. Louis Mark, Ben Almond, Mel Frank, Jake Luft, C. F. Luft, Lou Holleb, L. C. Goldsol, Al Taylor, Bob Pullin, C. Harry Schreiber, W. C. Pullin sr., Virgil Jackson, Max Stearn, Leo Yassenoff, C. H. John, Charles Ginn and Pete Wood. Group has arranged for a special railroad car to St. Louis where they will join the V. C. train to Texas. Boys plan to come back via New Orleans.

A Complete Changeover

MOREHEAD, KY.—Having leased the Cozy here, L. H. Mills has renamed it the Mills. He is remodeling and re-equipping the house.

DETROIT

EMIL BECK and Bob Misch had a party for Irwin (Polly) Pollard, president of the Bowling League, at the Bowery, but Polly didn't show up. They claim because he's afraid of getting mixed up with Lou Holtz, star of the show. They're doubles.

Sturgess, formerly salesman for Columbia, Universal and Gaumont-British, is new western Michigan salesman for Republic, Manager Sam Seplowin announces. Sturgess may move to Grand Rapids.

Bennett & Straight, theatrical architects, are readying plans for the new theatre at Birmingham to be leased by UDT.

Good Neighbor—

The addition of Eddie Jacobson, manager of the Harmony in Detroit, to the Parkside Good Neighbor Committee was accompanied with considerable ceremonial, as the photo above testifies. Jacobson is taking from Chairman Stockwell the key to the Parkside Homes division. Behind the sign is Publishing Agent Mars, of the division.

Soft-Drink Bar Idea Is Brought Back by Idzal

DETROIT—Dave Idzal, managing director of the Fox here, brought back an innovation from his recent meeting with National Theatres' executives on the west coast—a soft-drink bar in the theatre. A girl attendant operates the device in the inside lobby. Currently featured is Coca-Cola in bottles.

Elections Hurt

DETROIT—The dozen theatres in the suburb of Hamtramck have been experiencing poor business because of local election campaigns. Hamtramck, predominantly a Polish community, takes its politics seriously, and interest is running high. Counter-attractions to shows include over two dozen meetings, giveaways of free beer and sandwiches.

"Village Barn Dance" netted top grosses in Schine theatres, and now is grossing well for the Chakeres circuit . . . John Kaiser, Royal, Chillicothe, is spending several weeks in Florida.

Humanitarian—

Variety Clubs of America, which originated in Pittsburgh from a humanitarian impulse, honors a humanitarian and teacher in Dallas April 18 when the annual convention presents Miss Martha Berry a silver plaque citing her as the one whose achievements for human welfare in 1939 were most outstanding. Miss Berry, founder and director of the Berry School at Mt. Berry, Ga., has labored for years to provide educational privileges to mountain youths.

Double Detroit Ban Proves a Surprise

DETROIT—The banning by Police Censor Charles W. Snyder of RKO's "Primrose Path" and M-G-M's "Strange Cargo" proved a big surprise to the local trade. Snyder's action was taken under the ordinance barring films as "indecent or immoral" and was backed by Police Commissioner Frank D. Eaman after Eaman viewed the films.

The ban does not apply outside the city limits, but by customary practice, the Detroit censor's ruling is followed by distributors and exhibitors alike throughout Michigan where no official censorship applies.

Tribute to M-G-M's response to the ban, the first in years against a major company, was paid by Snyder. "The department has always had a working agreement with M-G-M that any picture we disapproved, they would not show here. In other words, no attempt will even be made by M-G-M to bill the picture into Detroit."

James F. Sharkey, RKO manager, declined to comment on the ban of "Primrose Path."

One unexpected aftermath is that Detroiters will see the film across the river in Windsor where "Strange Cargo" was passed by the Ontario censor board. Two weeks before, Windsorites reversed the process by coming in droves to the Palms-State here where "Canada at War," March of Time release banned in Ontario, was featured.

Produces Transcripts of Lumberport Actions

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.—While process has not been served within the court's jurisdiction, a suit of attachment on certain theatre property is pending against "Danny" Davis of the Port at Lumberport, according to John B. Wyatt, of Wyatt & Randolph, here, attorneys for D. L. Robinson of Lumberport, the plaintiff.

Davis denied last week that he was being sued by Robinson and claimed that he had received a judgment against Robinson in default of rent, gas and electric power bills.

Attorney Wyatt said that Davis' judgment against Robinson had been set aside at the request of the judge of the circuit court.

Transcriptions of the suit against Davis and the withdrawal of the judgment against Robinson were produced by Attorney Wyatt to support his points.

Cleveland Newsreel House Announced

CLEVELAND—Cleveland will get its first newsreel theatre next fall, or as soon as an eight-story building at 241 Euclid Ave. can be remodeled into a two-story structure to house the theatre and two store units.

Negotiations long pending between Union Properties, Inc., owners of the building, and the Newsreel Company of Chicago were closed this week. The new theatre will have 500 seats. George H. Bowman, Cleveland architect, is preparing the plans and work of removing the upper six stories will be started the latter part of April.

Universal Names Rosian Successor to Krieger

CINCINNATI—Peter Rosian, of Universal's Cleveland office, comes to Cincinnati to succeed Col. Paul Krieger, resigned from the local managership. Krieger has been associated with the local office for some ten years and his resignation has created a stir in the territory, where he has many good friends.

HOLLYWOOD—"Little Nelly Kelly," musical show by George M. Cohan, has been purchased by Metro as a Judy Garland starrer. Arthur Freed will produce.

PITTSBURGH

Three Moveovers for Golden Triangle

PITTSBURGH—The Golden Triangle had a third first-run moveover house last Friday when "Gone With the Wind" went off the screen at the Warner after a record-breaking engagement and "Virginia City" moved in after a week's run at the Penn. At the same time the Ritz opened "Pinocchio" which had been on the Stanley screen for a week. Harris Alvin's moveover, the Senator, continued the run of "Grapes of Wrath" into its fifth week.

A number of subsequent-run house owners and managers are not pleased with expanding moveovers at the downtown spots.

The Ritz was a downtown grind second-run house until "GWTW" opened at the Warner, at which time it became Warner circuit's moveover house for product of the Penn and Stanley, and for absorption of product which otherwise would have gone into the Warner.

United Artists Returns To a First Run Policy

DETROIT—The United Artists returned to a first run policy this week, after nine weeks of roadshowing "Gone With the Wind," thus resuming its place as the only single bill first run in town.

"Northwest Passage," on the opening bill, drew a fairly good crowd, but was hampered by the Sunday opening, two days after the other first runs. The UA has usually had the advantage of opening on Thursday, a day ahead of the other houses.

Price scale is back to a 55 cents top, bringing it in line with the Michigan and Fox.

Conventions Hold Over "GWTW" in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—"Gone With the Wind," announced to close at the end of its ninth week at Loew's Stillman, was held over a tenth. Reason for the extension was to accommodate two important conventions which had announced in its programs as an added inducement to come to Cleveland, that "GWTW" would be a feature of the entertainment. The conventions were those of the American College of Physicians and the Cleveland Dental Clinic.

Finishing Touches Remain On New Lee in Fairmont

FAIRMONT, W. VA.—Finishing touches, including decorating and installation of equipments and fixtures, remain before the new 600-seat theatre on Adams St. here will be ready for opening. Located across the street from the old Nelson, now dismantled and utilized as a store, the new house will be known as the Lee. Columbus Harr and Dr. Carl Carter are the owners.

and he has campaign sheet reports to verify his busy activities . . . We are told that H. Wilt jr. of Ligonier is no longer interested in a proposed theatre at Rockwood, Pa., but that plans are being continued for a Mr. Erdeky of Pittsburgh.

John Perry has decided to give Gene Autry a little competition, so he has purchased a new Hawaiian guitar to which he has wired amplification facilities. With a flood threatening last Sunday and water coming up to the door of his Ritz, Belle Vernon, Johnny's theme song, "River Stay Away From My Door," did the trick . . . John Friburg was in from Johnsonburg and reported he's still fighting his ulcer condition with a milk diet, but that he enjoyed a good chicken dinner last Sunday at the home of his doctor, who made the allotment to his guest. Mayor John is looking well and is really in much better health than in some time . . . Burtus Bishop jr. was back at his M-G-M duties early Monday a. m., after a vacation in Florida.

Charles Kosco, booker for the Alpine circuit, and Mrs. Kosco will be departing within a day or so for an extended vacation in South America. Charlie obtained a leave of absence for several months, and during his vacation the booking duties of the circuit will be handled by Frank Weitzel, former local exchange booker, and for several years with the Alpine circuit, now booking the company houses in the Cincinnati area.

Remember a year or so ago we publicized the fact that Dick Palmer was building his own new theatre at Webster Springs, W. Va., with his own plans and muscles? Well, the house is just about ready for opening. All credit is due this enterprising exhibitor, who, with one assistant, has built his own theatre, even to the erection of the steel. Palmer has managed the Mill-Vance at Webster Springs for a number of years and he is well known in the trade.

Rudy Navari sends his regards from Cocoa, Fla. . . . Ray Downing, RKO home office executive, is spending a few weeks at the local branch exchange . . . The Capitol, Braddock, has introduced a new game, Pula-Bloka-Gold, which Danny Davis is distributing . . . Jules Lapidus postponed his vacation because of the Universal drive. His local branch is still leading in the eastern division . . . Eve Friedman, formerly of the old Educational exchange, has returned to the Filmrow colony as secretary to Herb Greenblatt, RKO manager . . . We ran into Sam Shaw, the old original, the other day. Has had all his teeth extracted . . . The Paul Muni (in person) stage show at the Nixon was a financial flop and it was his only appearance here in seven years. "The Hot Mikado" in a return engagement wasn't even warm.

Theatre business during Holy Week was considerably off; boxoffice takes had been poor throughout the Lenten season, but the week after Easter, usually very good, was even lower than any week during Lent. So you figure it out . . . The Lew Hepinger-Jim Madden Mexican vacation has been called off until next year . . . Sympathy to ex-Congressman Joseph A. Gray, Spangler exhibitor, whose brother, Archibald R. Gray, a resident of Wilkinsburg for a quarter of a century, died last week . . . Thomas Parker Hollis, pioneer theatre supply dealer here who passed away several weeks ago, left an estate of $5,000 in real estate according to his will which is being probated.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Lebby (he is celebrating his 25th anniversary here as a film sales representative in the northwestern Pennsylvania territory) have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lucille Ruth Lebby, to Gilbert M. Prell of Los Angeles. Bride-elect is a graduate of McKeesport High School and the Art Institute of Pittsburgh. Wedding date is May 26 . . . E. W. Grimes, formerly of the Alpine circuit, is opening his new theatre at Winona, W. Va., within the next few days . . . Father of Charles Kurtzman died recently at San Francisco at the age of 75 . . . Mrs. Joseph Ornstein, wife of the 20th-Fox cashier, and baby are visiting in New York . . . McKeesport's Joseph Weisses are vacationing in Florida.

Floyd Bender of the Grant, Millvale, and Olivette Webster, a nurse at the juvenile court, stopped at the office of the AMPTO the other day before they appeared at the marriage license bureau. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Bender of Millvale, the bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, and the bride, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Webster of DuBois, is a graduate of the Allegheny General Hospital School of Nursing. They were to be joined in wedlock, April 5.

George F. Callahan jr. of Exhibitors Service Co. has been named a director of the Allegheny county chapter of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Ass'n . . . George Delich, former Pitt gridder and son-in-law of Dr. A. L. Koontz, New Martinsville, W. Va., exhibitor, is Pittsburgh's youngest fight manager . . . Gus Vaveris is all tan following a vacation in Florida . . . Al Weiland has plans for the construction of a small storeroom to adjoin his theatre at 6412 Center Ave. At the same time he will modernize the Weiland front and make other improvements.

John Lund's Easter Monday receipts were missing from his office at the Arcadia, Marianna, he discovered when ready to make up his bank deposit the next day . . . Monogram's "Spirit of Independence" playdate drive is receiving whole-hearted exhibitor support, reports

Flesh Once Weekly at 6 Harris Circuit Nabes

PITTSBURGH—Harris circuit has inaugurated stage shows for one day each week at six neighborhood theatres. "Hollywood Doubles," initial show, opened Monday in Beechview; Tuesday, William Penn; Wednesday, Perry; Thursday, Liberty; Friday, Jeannette; Saturday, Denis. This rotation will be continued for a month at least.

Lose a Service

DETROIT—Local theatres faced a loss of police "money details" this week by order of the police department. The order applies generally to all types of businesses, and is designed to reduce the general use of police officers to provide protection for money in transit between the business place and the bank. The department's view is that the private armored car services should be used.

No. 171 Delegates

PITTSBURGH—IATSE Local No. 171, meeting in session last Friday midnight at the William Penn Hotel, named William H. Thompson, Ralph C. Freeman and Roy Grove as delegates to the annual IATSE convention which will be held at Louisville, Ky., week of June 3.

Choose Name

ALTOONA, PA.—The new theatre at Ebensburg will be named the Strand, according to Jake Silverman of the Strand Theatre Co., of Altoona, owners. The Ebensburg house will seat approximately 500 and will open June 15.

Injured While Chopping Wood

EMPORIUM, PA.—While chopping wood at Log Cabin Lodge near here, Budd Andrews, assistant to Manager A. E. Andrews of the Emporium, was painfully injured. Under a doctor's care, he is resting comfortably at his home here.

Sees a June Opening

JACKSON, KY.—The new theatre now going up here is expected to be ready by June 1, according to Pearl Childress, who will operate.

Extends Celebration to Patrons

AKRON—Celebrating its second anniversary this week, the Highland, neighborhood house here, is extending the "party" to its patrons. Manager is Ray Essick.

Go to Detroit for "Canada at War"

Detroit—Triple the amount of Canadian currency normally taken in during a week at the Palms-State here turned up at the boxoffice the first week of the showing of "Canada at War," latest March of Time release which has been banned in Ontario, just across the river.

What's Your Hobby? Is All He Wants to Know

Detroit—We're not the census man, and we're not trying to get personal. But what we're interested in (and, we believe, that goes for many other members of the trade) is your hobby, whether it be food, clothes, work, play or whatever it is.

Write us about it addressing your message to H. F. Reves, 424 Book Bldg., Detroit.

Mark Goldman, local manager . . . In his deposition before trial in the government suit, Joseph M. Schenck stated, regarding UA interest in some of the theatres which Loew operates, that Loew's Penn, Pittsburgh, "is a general bone of contention because I have felt the overhead (fixed charges) is too big." Two others include the Broad and Ohio, Columbus, Ohio, which he said are not very profitable and the same bone of contention applies. "We finally got some relief in Pittsburgh," the witness said. UA-Loew's have a product pooling arrangement with Warner Bros. Theatres for the Penn.

Julian Tonkay of Alvin Seiler Theatre Supply Co. reports that they are now handling tickets and other small items . . . A. Maxwell Joice is covering this area as exploiteer for Paramount's "Dr. Cyclops" . . . Opera House, Piedmont, W. Va., is being redecorated . . . Max Shulgold of Crown Pictures was involved in an auto accident in a blinding snowstorm near Erie last week. He was uninjured, but his car was damaged.

John J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager, presented his fourth annual oratorical trophy at St. Vincent's College. He has just completed his annual charity report which he will submit at the national convention of the Variety Clubs at Dallas . . . Morris Kauffman, former exhibitor, is checking for Universal . . . George Dewey Tyson will lay aside his local publicity duties by mid-May to assume his annual summer chores as director of the Atlantic City "Miss America" promotion . . . Lou Padolf, former exhibitor and film salesman, is around again from his home in Michigan and is looking for a theatre . . . Eddie Salamon has inaugurated a Saturday candy giveaway for kiddies at the Regal, Wilkinsburg.

William E. Kane, son of J. B. "Pop" Kane, Pitcairn exhibitor, has drawn fourth place on the Republican ballot as a candidate for the legislature in the tenth district . . . Florence Fisher Parry, Press columnist, says it's about time for a new film cycle. She advocates thrillers.

Bell Telephone Renders Filmgoers a Service

MERCER, PA.—Bell Telephone has notified local subscribers that operators will give out general information without charge. Previously a five-cent charge was made for giving the correct time.

Now subscribers may inquire regarding time of church services, bus schedules, temperatures, correct time and what picture is playing at the local theatre.

Staggers Remodeling

DETROIT—Remodeling of Barney Kilbride's newly-acquired Dawn is being staggered. It is running on weekends only. In the final stages of work, it will be closed for three weeks.

Pay for Film Referendum

PITTSBURGH—The Mt. Lebanon Township Sunday show referendum of 1938 will cost that community $97, this amount being due Allegheny county for printing of the ballots. Mt. Lebanon, which approved the issue, has one theatre, the Harris Denis.

: BOWLING :

PITTSBURGH—Universal pulled up to two games behind Republic, the leader in the Filmrow Bowling League, when the former outfit took two out of three games from the Republicans last Friday. Lou Hanna of Republic rolled a 212 game during the evening and won the $1 award for high individual score for one game. Earl Friedman of Monarch in three games rolled a 548, third highest score of the season.

Standing of the teams:

	Won	Lost
Republic	49	23
Universal	47	25

High scores: Jack Lindenthal, 602; Emil Rausch, 556; Michael Badarak, 548; William Fouchey, 545; S. J. Lambly, 537; William Swistak, 229; Jack M. Hall, 518; F. W. Wise, 525; Gill Light, 522; Owen Blough, 522; F. H. Akins, 516; Carl Rush, 515.

Gregg Trying to Get Findlay a Premiere

Cleveland—Al Gregg, in charge of Republic publicity, is trying to sell the home office on the idea of holding the world premiere of "Down by the Old Mill Stream" in Findlay, Ohio. This is the scene of the stream about which the song was written.

Concluding Arguments Heard in M&R Suit

BOSTON—Edward F. McClennen, chief defense lawyer for the majors, was the first to present concluding arguments this week in the Morse and Rothenberg anti-trust case. The suit, which now may be in its final chapter, is slated to go before the master, Philip Hendrick, within an estimated two weeks. Hendrick has been hearing testimony for three calendar years.

Suspend Deposition-Taking In Kenneth Gorham Action

BOSTON—Taking of depositions in the Kenneth Gorham anti-trust suit was suspended after George S. Ryan, attorney for the Middlebury, Vt., exhibitor, had superintended hearings for four days at the federal building here.

William Kelly, Universal branch manager, and Ross Cropper, RKO manager, were interrogated. Both are scheduled for recall when depositions are continued, perhaps later this month.

No Decision in Dismissal Bid in Waldoboro Suit

PORTLAND, ME.—No decision was reached at presstime in the U. S. district court here where the hearing of the Waldoboro, Me., anti-trust case is being held. George S. Ryan is prosecuting the suit for C. T. Cooney, junior and senior.

The majors are seeking dismissal of the suit, a bill of particulars, and the striking of certain positions of the bill of complaint.

A Drive on Unlicensed Billboards Underway

BOSTON—The Massachusetts Civic League inaugurated a drive against illegal billboards in Massachusetts on April 1. Robert D. Swain of Concord is chairman of the committee in charge. Massachusetts public works commissioners last week ordered licensed outdoor advertising companies to submit to the state board before April 15, a list of any billboards which the respective concerns are now maintaining without a state permit. Companies have already been ordered to display permits in their outdoor advertising displays.

N. H. Survey Counts 4,350 Advertising Signboards

CONCORD, N. H.—There are 4,350 advertising signboards along New Hampshire's state highways, exclusive of those in compact sections of cities and towns, it has been revealed in a survey conducted under the direction of Scenic Engineer Frederick A. Gardner. It was emphasized that the count was made late last fall, and probably there are more billboards during the height of summer seasons.

The advertising was classified as follows: Amusements, 180; automobiles, 251; shaving preparations, 119; cabins, 320; filling stations, outside the compact areas 89; gasoline and oil, 598; hotels, 513; restaurants, 258; roadside stands, 12; soft drinks, 321; tobacco products, 156; tourist homes, 290; miscellaneous, 1,138.

Majors Get Details in Gov't Reply to "Get Specific" Plea

NEW YORK—Major distributor defendants in the all-industry government suit, irked by what they termed inadequate reply to their request for a bill of particulars, asked the department of justice to get specific; to give time, names, places and dates to support charges of damages. The government obliged, with the following details of the New England territory (The particulars are furnished in this order: Time, theatre or theatres, location, producer-exhibitor, independent exhibitor, distress methods and manner employed):

MAINE

1937—Strand, Gardiner, Me.; Paramount-Publix; Willard B. Harwood.

Paramount-Publix acquired the Strand as a result of Mr. Harwood's being deprived of desired product.

1930—Strand, Portland, Me.; Paramount-Publix; Abraham Goodside.

Threat to build in opposition if the independent exhibitor did not lease to Paramount-Publix. Independent exhibitor yielded to this pressure and leased his theatre to Paramount-Publix.

MASSACHUSETTS

1936—Egleston; Boston; Paramount; Walter B. Littlefield.

Paramount acquired the Egleston as a result of unreasonable protection taken by the Jamaica.

Threat to build in opposition to Nathan Yamins if he did not sell to Paramount-Publix.

1936—Granada, Strand, Mystic and Orpheum, Malden; Loew's, Inc.; George Ramsdell.

Loew's, Inc., threatened to build in opposition to Ramsdell's theatre unless Mr. Ramsdell paid higher prices for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer product.

Sunday Show Deadline Warning in Boston

Boston—Exhibitors have been warned by the city censor that violations of the Sunday law providing that shows stop before or at 11:00 p. m. may result in disciplinary action.

Bank Night Test Case Sped to Realization

BOSTON—A proposed test case to determine the status of Bank Night in Middlesex county was furthered when Roy E. Heffner, local Bank Night assignee, and District Attorney Robert Bradford agreed to a finding of guilty before Judge Reynolds in district court, Lowell, so that the case might be rushed to Middlesex superior court. George S. Ryan, Bank Night attorney, was present. An agreed statement of facts has been filed.

The action followed a pre-arranged summons issued in connection with Bank Night operations at the Tower in Lowell, Roy E. Heffner house. The plan is operated there under the qualification-card system.

District Attorney Bradford had previously assured Heffner that Bank Night may continue in Middlesex county until, at least, a decision is reached in a test case.

Easter Season Brings Rise In New England Business

BOSTON—New England business activity continued to increase during the Easter season period. The New England Power Ass'n has reported it produced 8.33 per cent more electrical energy for the week ending March 19 than it did for the corresponding period a year ago. Some recovery has been noted in the wool market with mills reporting they have received moderate orders for heavy weight fabrics with prices on the level of last October.

Four Scheduled as Hub Friars Club Trustees

BOSTON—Phil Smith, John Dervin, Stanley Summer, and Joe Cifre are scheduled to be elected trustees of the Boston Friars Club when the film organization holds its annual meeting, Tuesday, April 9, at its Hotel Statler quarters.

Norman Ayers, Harry Kirchgessner, Edward X. Callahan, Ben Rosenthal, and Phil Seletsky have been nominated to the 1940-41 nominating committee of the organization.

Northfield, Vt. House Is Bought by Woodbury

BOSTON—G. B. Woodbury, operator of the Bethel in Bethel, Vt., has purchased the Savoy in Northfield, Vt., from Martin Weinstein. W. C. Woodbury is slated to manage the Savoy.

G. B. Woodbury recently had a new ventilating system installed at the Bethel. The house underwent other improvements including the setting up of new shadow boxes in the lobby. Woodbury plans to modernize the Savoy.

Monogram Boston Office Leads in Sales Drive

BOSTON—The local Monogram office moved into the first place in the current Monogram sales drive. Tom O'Brien, Monogram booker, helped matters along by setting the Boston first-run of "Son of the Major" at the Trans Lux to follow Monogram's premiere of the "Human Monster."

Boston Allied Opposes Consent Decree; Urges Suit Continue

BOSTON—The local Allied unit's directors in a meeting Tuesday unanimously adopted a resolution opposing acceptance of proposals reportedly offered for a consent decree in the government's monopoly suit against major distributors and called upon the U. S. attorney general to prosecute the suit vigorously.

"Whereas monopolistic conditions imposed upon the independent exhibitors in the motion picture industry by those corporations commonly referred to as the Big Eight," the resolution read, "have been and are now so onerous that the department of justice has seen fit to institute a suit under the Sherman anti-trust act to abolish the monopoly in restraint of trade. And whereas there have been brought to the attention of the independent exhibitors of New England a suggested outline under which a consent decree might possibly be formulated, be it resolved that this board oppose any proposed consent decree based on the submitted plan, and pray the attorney general to proceed with the vigorous prosecution of the suit to relieve the monopolistic conditions extant in the industry."

Allied members present included Frank Lydon, Arthur K. Howard, Nathan Yamins, Les Bendslev, Richard Rubin, William McLaughlin, Frank Perry, Morris Pouzzner, George Ramsdell, Max Levenson, Harold Stoneman, Wilbur Peterson, Kenneth Forkey, Irving Isaacs, Daniel Murphy, Samuel Resnick, William Viano, J. E. Charbonneau and Warren Nichols.

Non-Allied members present and taking part in the general discussion, although not voting, included Ralph Snider, Newell Kurson, Reginald Morse, Arthur Lockwood and Louis Gordon.

Connecticut Unit Voices Consent Decree Opposition

NEW HAVEN—Following unanimous adoption of a resolution to oppose a consent decree in the government anti-trust suits, Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut, Inc., sent the following wire to Thurman Arnold, attorney general, at Washington:

"The following resolution was unanimously passed by the Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut, Inc., at a meeting April second, Hotel Garde, New Haven:

"We are unalterably opposed to a consent decree and are in favor of the government prosecuting to the fullest extent the case against the motion picture monopoly. Our views regarding any possible settlement are expressed by our general counsel, Abram F. Myers.

Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut, Inc.
Lawrence C. Caplan,
Executive Secretary."

Members of the organization at a special luncheon meeting at the Hotel Garde, presided over by A. M. Schuman, also voted to assist the public safety commission in a safety campaign now in progress in the state of Connecticut by financing the printing of ten trailers. These trailers will be distributed by the organization among the various theatres in the state, with the cooperation of the local police chiefs.

The committee appointed to be in charge of this activity consists of Albert Pickus, of the Stratford, chairman; A. M. Schuman, of Black Rock, Bridgeport, president of the organization, and Martin H. Keleher of the Princess, Hartford.

The Logical Next Step For Fringe Filmites

Boston—A number of New England organizations using gratis films are said to be demanding free giveaways from Hoods, Sharafs, Hinds, Bond Bakers, and other concerns which put out the free celluloid for publicity reasons.

Delete Horror Scenes From Two Features

BOSTON—Horror scenes and a wrestling match were clipped from two features and a newsreel as the Massachusetts bureau of Sunday censorship okayed 82 motion pictures. Passed without cuts were "Rebecca," "Johnny Apollo," "It All Came True" and "Primrose Path."

Monogram's "The Human Monster" went into a first-run week at the Trans Lux after Eugene M. McSweeney, commissioner of public safety, issued a Sunday permit following the eradication of a certain amount of cadavers and carrion. Eliminations from the 8-reeler included:

"Dialogue, 'Good God almighty,' in part 6, not appearing in script. Dialogue, 'For God's Sake,' in part 7, not appearing in script. Scene showing Dr. Orloff taking blind man from bed and drowning him in tank; scene showing Dr. Orloff taking body from tank and dragging body across floor and throwing it into river in part 7."

"The Human Beast," released by Juno Films of New York, was granted a Sunday permit after such drastic eliminations that George Kraska decided to run the celluloid on a six-day week basis at the Fine Arts. The cuts included:

"Scene showing Jacques and Flore in embrace on ground in part 2. Scene showing Robaud beating Severine in apartment, in part 3. Scenes showing Jacques and Severine in embrace and lying on bench in railroad shack; scene showing Jacques and Severine putting out lights and embracing in apartment, in part 6. Scene showing Jacques attacking Severine and choking her in apartment, in part 9."

An entire wrestling subject was ordered out of Paramount News No. 58.

The nine-reel feature, "The Struggle," which was approved with deletions on February 5, 1932, was passed under a six-reel reissue as "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Eliminations on the Harry Segal release included three bits of dialogue:

'God forbid—;' 'God forbid—;' 'Vell, God forbid you get sick.' "

Bulletin Holds Majors Stand Indefensible

BOSTON—Contending that "if block booking and blind selling were necessary to the distributors, they would enforce those practices against the affiliated chains," the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., in a bulletin to members, discounted the distributor claims that the Neely bill will impose undue hardships or increase film rentals.

Reminding of other exhibitor grievances, the bulletin lists the "forcing of shorts and newsreels, arbitrary designation of preferred playing time, unfair protection, clearance and zoning, overbuying by producer-owned chain competitors, discriminatory film rentals and high percentages, control of admission prices, substitutions that cannot be detected because pictures are not identified in the contracts, arbitrary price allocations to fill the high-price brackets, whether the pictures warrant it or not, product sold on a 'take all or get nothing' basis, 'stop' pictures to force the dating of or paying for 'clucks' "

The elimination of the aforementioned practices is not claimed as a corollary of the Neely bill by the bulletin, but it points out that the measure's breaking of the "motion picture monopoly" will make those practices impossible to impose.

Neely Bill an "Opportunity," Independents Are Told

BOSTON—"The Independent Exhibitors have their great opportunity right now!" the local Allied office told affiliated theatre owners this week in connection with the Neely bill. "If they muff it, they will never get another."

Independents were urged to "get into action" if they wanted "to write a permanent insurance policy" on their businesses.

The Independent Exhibitors, Inc., urged respective members to: "Write your congressman at once. Tell him just what you are up against as an independent exhibitor."

It was urged that this action be used to counter what the organization termed "a challenge." The latter term was explained as referring to alleged "orders" that have gone out from New York that every exchange employe and every circuit employe must write a letter against the Neely bill himself and must induce five other persons to do likewise."

Hy Teich Acquires a Boston Weekly Paper

BOSTON—Hy Teich, head of the Four Star Program Co., and for years a leading film district printer, has acquired the local publication, This Week in Boston. The weekly, which in the main is a seven-day program of Boston events put forth in Cue style, was started in 1905. Gene Brown, former owner, recently died. Teich plans a general rejuvenation for the sheet.

Thomas McNulty Dead

TAUNTON, MASS.—Thomas McNulty, 52, operator of the Casino, died here suddenly on Monday.

MANAGER HARRY ROSE of the Globe is one year older. The house staff presented him with a gift, but he refused to reveal his age.

The Lyric relighted to a disappointing start. Eight weeks of burlesque are planned . . . Manager Morris Rosenthal of the Majestic won plenty of comment for his "ghost rocking chair," erected in the lobby in connection with "The Invisible Man Returns."

The Park, long dark, suffered minor damage from a fire which was started by sparks from a nearby chimney.

Manny Kuggel, manager of the Warner, is having a hard time waiting until the weather warms up sufficiently to allow a morning of golf.

Single features with three bill changes weekly will be the policy at the newly opened Ridgefield Playhouse. The house is owned by the Casey and Wheeler circuit and is the only motion picture theatre in the state to feature an art gallery.

The screen adaptation of "Strange Cargo" was written by Lawrence Hazzard, a former Bridgeport boy. As a result local papers gave the film extra plugs.

The Loew-Poli New England Theatres, Inc., failing to obtain an assessment reduction from the board of relief, have carried the fight into superior court.

Back at work after illnesses are: William Tole, assistant projectionist at the Strand-Palace; Agnes Reilly, Majestic usherette; James Vizzeo, doorman at the Strand . . . "Hank" Kilborn, Majestic doorman, believes it will be warm enough to start sun baths again in three weeks.

The Easter egg hunt of the Loew-Poli Theatre in Beardsley Park was postponed one week due to cold weather . . . Edward Rowlands replaced Harry Reiners ahead of "Pinocchio" in this area.

William McDermitt, formerly assistant manager at the Majestic, is now maintenance superintendent at the Lyric . . . Joseph Cassette, projectionist at the Strand-Palace, is rapidly becoming a camera expert.

Matt L. Saunder, Loew-Poli manager, will take two portable projectors and a dozen cartoon shorts to the home of George C. Waldo, Post-Telegram publisher, on April 15 and run a birthday show for Mr. Waldo's young daughter. Ralph Mauro and James Fensore will man the machines.

Party for Spitz

BOSTON—A party celebrating his 90th birthday which falls on April 30 is being planned for A. A. Spitz, Providence showman and partner in the Associated circuit. The Boston Friars Club, aided by a committee of Rhode Island exhibitors, are in charge.

Television Seen as Gain to Industry

HARTFORD—Television, once it becomes commercially practicable, will spell the end of third and fourth rate film entertainment but, as a whole, will probably prove an "aid" to the industry, observes the Hartford Times.

"Considerable alarm has been expressed from time to time by readers . . . over the harm television may do the movies. 'How will theatres ever be able to compete with free screen entertainment in the home?' is a question asked almost everytime . . . The best answer, probably, is found by hurling a question right back. 'What has happened to music and symphony concerts now that the radio has been so highly developed?'

"The world still loves music enough to pay fancy prices to attend fashionable musicales. Only the third and fourth rate entertainments have suffered. It will be the same with motion pictures.

"Already some of the New York theatres are presenting television on a small scale in their lobbies and foyers, but the novelty still does not attract an appreciable number of additional patrons.

Accustomed to the Best

"Television, it seems, is first and primarily a communication medium . . . but its entertainment potentialities are strong. Audiences, however, are accustomed to very highly specialized entertainment on the screen, embracing camera angles, quick changes of scene and costume, and other factors that cannot be duplicated in a television studio. Mere filmed versions of stage plays would be extremely dull on the screen.

"It is Hollywood's belief, therefore, that even the dramatic offerings over future television networks will first be recorded on celluloid and will subsequently be broadcast, like present-day musical transcriptions.

"Then, too, there is a matter of availability to be considered. Movies, by operating on the continuous grind policy that exists in all downtown theatres in large communities, enable entertainment seekers to find film of their choice at any time of the morning, afternoon, and evening. A forthcoming television event can only be enjoyed during the specific period during which it is telecast. Continuous shows and long runs do not sound practical for a vast majority of entertainment lovers.

"A gradual shifting of radio interests from New York to Hollywood indicates that motion picture actors, directors, designers, and technicians may find their fields greatly widened by the forthcoming new medium. Nobody out there has the jitters about it.

"The probability that television costs will be met from advertising revenue, just as radio programs are sponsored, may lead to a tremendous increase in the number of strictly commercial movies produced. These will not be suitable to admission-paying audiences in theatres, and will be in addition to the ordinary Hollywood output."

PROVIDENCE

ANOTHER record "holdover week" in town with Loew's State holding "Rebecca," Strand keeping "Road to Singapore" but adding a new companion feature in "Black Limelight," Albee continuing "Pinocchio" and Carlton taking "Virginia City" from the Majestic for a second-week run.

Lunt-Fontanne starring combination in Robert Sherwood's new drama, "There Shall Be No Night" premiered at the Playhouse last week to a swanky capacity audience who voted the show a "hit." A fortnight run in Boston should smooth it up for Broadway. Associated Theatres are bringing George M. Cohan in "The Return of the Vagabond" to their Playhouse April 12 to give the city another legit premiere.

Sympathy of Rhode Island film circles went out to Manager Edward L. Reed of the Strand last week on the death of his father, Edward Reed sr.

Chief topic of conversation seems to be surprise business being done by "Sunday Star Parade" shows at the Metropolitan where John E. Nowlan is presenting radio name bands and artists, with standard vaudeville turns supplementing program, Sunday matinees and nights at 40 cents to $1.10 top. First bills on Easter did good business and this week brought a complete sellout despite house's seating capacity of near 5,000.

It's paint-up time again. Casino, Narragansett Pier, is readying for the summer with a fresh white and blue exterior. E. M. Loew's Capitol, Providence, also looking brighter as decorators get in their work.

Hollywood stars take notice! Out of three Newport theatres offering film programs last week, two of them featured cartoon films, "Pinocchio" and "Gulliver's Travels" playing there day and date.

"Virginia City" Strikes Record-Setting Pace

NEW HAVEN—In its first five pre-release key city engagements in the New England territory, Warner's "Virginia City" has opened to record business, surpassing "Dodge City," the company's top grosser for 1938-39, and "The Fighting 69th," current high grosser. Business in these five situations is from 15 to 25 per cent over "Dodge City" and from ten to 20 per cent above "The Fighting 69th."

The New England openings where the picture is continuing its record business are: Roger Sherman, New Haven; Warner, Worcester; Capitol, Springfield; Strand, Hartford; and the Warner, Bridgeport.

Bedard and Bradley Back From Western Vacations

ST. ABANS, VT.—Fred Bedard, owner of the Bellvue, is back from a trip to Hollywood.

Tom Bradley, owner of the Champlain in Swanton, just a few miles away, is back home from Phoenix, Ariz., with a sun tan.

"Northwest Passage" Earns High Praise

BOSTON—"The film version of Kenneth Roberts' 'Northwest Passage' is magnificent, even if unintended 'propaganda,' and so stirring and wholesome that it makes deliberate and national propaganda seem puny and pallid," the Boston Herald editorialized.

"The book itself lacks nothing in vividness and in power to stimulate the pride of Americans in their genesis. The amazing feats and incredible endurance of Rogers and his rangers, as Mr. Roberts portrayed them, with adherence to the recorded facts, are worthy of a Homer and super-Homeric heroes.

"But words, as Lessing said, have their limits. The book is long, and, unfortunately, millions who ought to read it will merely read about it.

"For them, as well as for those who were thrilled by the novel, the films have done a splendid service. Rogers lives again in figurative and literal colors more glowing than words can paint.

"Nobody can come away from it without something of the feeling which Webster expressed when he thundered: 'Thank God! I, I, also, am an American!' The soul and stamina of the colonists have never been shown better than in this movie.

"There are little departures from Mr. Roberts' masterpiece which probably make him feel like imitating George Washington and jumping up and down in profane fury. But the picture as a whole is a fine accompaniment to his literary and historic achievement."

Reservations for Dance In Goldstein's Care

Monogram Convening In Dallas April 21-22

DALLAS—Monogram Pictures will hold its annual sales convention in Dallas for two days, April 21-22, immediately following the Variety affair, according to word received here by John Franconi and Ed Blumenthal, franchise holders for this territory.

President W. Ray Johnston; Eddie Golden, general sales manager, and Scott Dunlap, head of production, will head the convention activities.

Franchise holders who will be here for the two affairs are S. J. Francis, Omaha; Howard Stubbins, Los Angeles; Charles Trampe, Milwaukee; Ben Nathanson, Minneapolis; Carr Scott, Oklahoma City; Nate Schultz, Cleveland; William Hurlbut, Detroit; Lon Fidler, Denver; Steve Broidy and Ben Welansky, Boston; Harry Buckson, Albany and Buffalo; George West, Kansas City; Forrest Judd, Des Moines; John Mangum, Atlanta; Blumenthal and Franconi; Mel Hulling, western division manager and Harry Thomas, eastern division manager.

Zanuck Among Executives Due at Variety Meet

DALLAS—Darryl F. Zanuck has definitely accepted an invitation to attend the Variety convention here April 18-20. This news came Tuesday night from Hollywood. Chief Barker O'Donnell and Paul Short flew to the coast to make definite arrangements for the appearance here of important stars.

Bob Hope, who has been billed as the emcee for the big banquet, cannot be here due to a show he is committed for, but Ken Murray, also of stage, radio and screen fame, will take his place.

Only picture commitments will prevent all the big stars from being here. O'Donnell said. On the positive list are Ann Sheridan and Dorothy Lamour, Sam Katz, Barney Balaban and Ricardo Cortez. Louis B. Mayer, who has been ill, will attend if health permits, O'Donnell said. The Atlanta Tent will send 50 members and the Kansas City club will be represented with 80. Monogram, because of its annual convention here will have 45 men present.

Santone Golf Tourney Under Way April 10

SAN ANTONIO—The theatrical golf tournament will be held at Brackenridge Park, April 10, preceded by a Calcutta party and celebration the night before at which Robert J. O'Donnell of Dallas will be master of ceremonies. A banquet and entertainment will be held the following evening.

Registration fee is $3.50. Proceeds will go toward the Alamo City's assessment for entertaining the national convention of the Variety Club in Dallas this month.

WB Termer to Coffee

HOLLYWOOD—Lenore Coffee has joined the Warner writing staff on a term ticket.

Anti-Trust Suit Particulars Are Presented to Majors

NEW YORK—Responding to the major distributors' demand for more particulars in the all-industry anti-trust suit, the department of justice listed by time, theatre, location, principals involved, and methods used, the acts of oppression in seven southern states. The listing follows:

ARKANSAS

1938-39—New; Hope; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; R. V. McGinnis.

Paramount sought to acquire McGinnis' theatre or to force him out of business by threatening to deprive and by depriving him of product; by opening and operating opposition theatres.

1919-20—Gem; Royal, Kempner; Little Rock; Paramount Pictures, Inc. (Southern Enterprises, Inc.); Saul Harris and Ike Kempner.

Paramount forced Harris and Kempner to sell their theatres to it by threatening to build and by building opposition theatres; and by threatening to deprive and by depriving them of desired product.

1938—Arkansas; Little Rock; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Arkansas Theatres, Inc.

Independent was forced to sell out to Paramount because of inability to get desired product.

FLORIDA

1936—Wallace; Bradenton, Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Jessie Mae Brown.

Refusal of distributors to continue the licensing of pictures.

1929—Clearwater; Clearwater; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Mr. Pitman.

Paramount affiliate attempted to buy independent exhibitor's theatre in 1928 but he refused to sell. Later, a representative of the Paramount company threatened that if independent exhibitor did not sell, a new theatre would be built and it would run a free show to freeze him out of business. In 1929, the distributors refused to continue licensing pictures to independent exhibitor first or second run until after they had played all runs in St. Petersburg and Tampa. Independent exhibitor was forced finally to close his theatre and it was taken over by a representative of the Paramount affiliate.

About 1936—Delray; Delray Beach; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; E. C. Hall.

Distributor refused to continue furnishing product.

1937—Eustis; Eustis; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Herbert Wales.

Refusal of distributors to continue furnishing pictures, resulting in loss of theatre and financial ruin of independent exhibitor and his suicide.

1937—Tivoli; Miami; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Charles Walder.

The Tivoli from 1927 to 1934 exhibited pictures 60 to 75 days after first run. A Paramount affiliate operating theatres in Miami forced the Tivoli to wait at least five months after first run. This long clearance period rendered the operation of the Tivoli unprofitable as some of the theatres of the Paramount affiliate having an earlier run had a lower admission price. In desperation, independent exhibitor gave the Paramount affiliate a half interest in the profits of the Tivoli so that he might be able to have the 5-month clearance period reduced and exhibit pictures while they had some boxoffice value.

About 1935—Beacham; Orlando; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Mr. Beacham.

Independent exhibitor attempted to operate but found he could not procure pictures. As he could not operate theatre himself he finally turned it over to a Paramount affiliate.

1933-34—Garden; Sarasota; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Guy M. Ragan.

Major distributors refused to furnish pictures until competing Sparks theatre had shown them and they had little exhibition value. As a result, Garden Theatre was forced to close.

1934—Nebraska; suburb of Tampa; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; B. E. Gore.

1933—Garden; Tampa; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; B. E. Gore.

Threats by representative of Paramount affiliate to put independent exhibitor out of business and the refusal of the distributors to continue licensing pictures to him.

GEORGIA

1935-36—Lincoln; Thomasville; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; O. L. Gaston.

Major distributors refused to furnish pictures while they had exhibition value and theatre was forced to close.

LOUISIANA

1938—New Realart; DeRidder; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; W. S. Samuel and Lamar Hargrove.

Paramount forced Samuel to close his theatre by operating in opposition and depriving him of desired product.

Paramount forced Chauvin and Hepler to sell it a 50 per cent interest in their theatre by threatening to deprive them of product and by building a theatre in opposition to them.

1938—Royal and Liberty; Lafayette; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Paul Blanchet.

Paramount acquired a 50 per cent interest in the Royal and the Liberty by purchasing other theatres in the vicinity of Lafayette, and causing Blanchet to believe that unless he made Paramount a part owner of his theatres it would force him out of business, by opening and operating opposition theatres and depriving him of desired product.

1939—New Opera House; Morgan City; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; William Kreisle.

Paramount sought to acquire Kreisle's theatre by threatening to deprive and by depriving him of desired product and by threatening to build and by building in opposition.

1938—Amusu; Natchitoches; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Harry Suddath.

Paramount sought to acquire Suddath's theatre by threatening to deprive and by depriving him of desired product and by

Griffith-Southwestern Merger; 30 Houses Involved in Deal

OKLAHOMA CITY—Formation of Griffith-Southwestern Theatres, Inc., to take over control and management of the nine Tulsa and 21 theatres in other cities now operated by Southwestern Theatres, Inc., is announced here.

L. C. Griffith, president of Griffith Amusement Co. and directing officer of other Griffith affiliates operating more than 100 theatres in 48 cities of Oklahoma and Texas, will head the new organization.

The theatres in Tulsa include the Delman, Plaza, Circle, Tower, Main Street, Lyric, Palace, Cameo and Ritz.

Lew Chatham, manager of the Griffith Theatres in Bartlesville, Okla., goes to Tulsa as city manager. There will be no change in personnel in Tulsa.

The deal leaves P. R. Isley, who managed the Southwestern chain, and W. P. Moran, with an interest in the company, but without a role in its management.

Southwestern holds no real estate in Tulsa, leasing the nine theatres there from individual owners. The company owns theatres outright in some cases in the other cities where it operates, including Oklahoma City, Springfield, Mo., Picker, Chickasha and Pawhuska, Okla.

Principal offices of Griffith-Southwestern will be in Oklahoma City where bookings and operations will be centered. The Tulsa office will be continued.

NEW ORLEANS

AN UNPRECEDENTED business revival in northeast Louisiana is the good news brought back by Leo Seicshnaydre, resident manager for Republic, who has just completed an eight-day tour of that section. He adds innumerable remodeling and equipment installation jobs are under way.

Other optimistic business reports are given out by Manager Reed of the Rex Poster Co., the Louisiana Motion Picture Equipment Co., and by W. A. Prewitt, representative of the American Desk Mfg. Co.

Visitors: L. J. Langlois, Alamo, New Roads; A. M. Randall, Fern, Woodville, Miss.; J. S. Rivers, Ace, Minden, La., and T. J. Woodyard, who operates a tent show . . . About 25 local film people attended the opening of the new Pic in Ponchatoula.

Memphis Orpheum Opens April 19 Under Malco

MEMPHIS — The Orpheum will reopen April 19 under the Malco banner. M. A. Lightman advises his present Malco Palace is definitely being turned back to Loew's and the Malco portion of the name will be transferred to the Orpheum, along with the pictures he has been showing at his Union Avenue house.

Transfer of the Lightman offices from the Strand Bldg. to the Orpheum will take place within the next few weeks, or as soon as the remodeling is completed. Workmen are busy putting the house in shape.

As yet no policy has been decided upon, but it is to be pictures with an occasional "flesh" show, Lightman advised.

"66" and Phillips Did Not Open Same Day

PHILLIPS, TEX.—It is pointed out that the Griffith "66" Theatre and the Phillips, owned by Smith and Bearden, did not open on the same day, as was reported March 23. The source says the "66" opened on Friday, March 8, and that the Phillips opened Sunday, March 10.

Help for the "Heart of Variety"—

The new sound truck of the Atlanta Variety Club on one of its missions of cheer with features and short subjects for crippled children. Only recently formed, the Atlanta club is especially active in contributing to local charity organizations.

Al White, Empire chief of service, is nursing a boil on his neck . . . St. Michael's Dramatic Club presented their version of "Little Women" at the San Pedro Playhouse . . . Tommy Howell, Dallas, took over recently as short subjects exploiteer here for Interstate.

R. W. Barron of Independent Film Exchange & Supply Co. reports the sale of two rebuilt projectors to J. C. Webb of the Ban-tex in Bandera . . . The Azteca Film release, "El Justicia de Pancho Villa," did a healthy business at the National.

During the three-day Texas Vocational Convention at the Gunter Hotel, a talking picture, "Life Begins Again," was exhibited free to all visitors by the Audiphone Co. of South Texas . . . H. W. Kier, commercial film producer, is going to his home town in Ohio on a visit . . . The new little lady in the Handley household has been named Darlene.

Premier Pictures has started its second educational film, "Ten Commandments of Public Safety" . . . "Sanctuary," a picture dealing with life in Palestine, was exhibited at the Hebrew Community Center Auditorium . . . New Carabaza Film release of the week is tagged "Del Gavilan."

Seen at the Hermann Sons' Golden Jubilee Sunday: James Herman Sollock, assistant chief of service at the Aztec, and Douglas Largen jr., who represents Motion Picture Daily here . . . Wilmer T. "Zack" Miller, outdoor showman, was in Fort Worth on rodeo business.

Jay Ralston (Ray Alston), Little Theatre player who had a role in "What a Life" at the San Pedro Playhouse, is throwing a stag house party for the "press" this week.

Odessa Ritter Starter On Six-Week Tour

ODESSA, TEX.—Tex Ritter, Monogram's singing cowboy star, opens at the Rio here Saturday on the first stop in a six-week personal appearance tour.

Included in his itinerary are appearances at the following cities: Amarillo, Denison, Jefferson, Austin, El Campo, Alvin, and Wharton in Texas, and Mansfield, La.

During the week of April 21, Ritter will be a guest star at the Variety Club national convention in Dallas.

Brisk Theatre Activity In New Orleans Area

NEW ORLEANS—Brisk theatre activity is reported in this territory.

Guy Adams will open the 800-seat Grand, a colored house, at Vicksburg, Miss., within 60 days.

Neil Robinson has disposed of his interests in the Fort Walton, Fort Walton, Fla., to James Tringle.

Joe Barcelona has reopened his renovated Tivoli, Baton Rouge.

W. L. Moses is rebuilding the fire-leveled Ritz, Picayune, Miss.

Myers Brothers will open the Myers, 700-seater in Biloxi, Miss., around the middle of May.

Pine Bluff Saenger in Top Metro Prize Money

PINE BLUFF, ARK.—For having the best advertising and promotional tieups in this area in connection with the recent showing of "On Borrowed Time," Paul Jones, manager of the Saenger, has been awarded a $50 cash prize by M-G-M.

This is the second time the Saenger has won top honors in the district in connection with Metro pictures in recent months, having won a similar prize on "Honolulu."

Permit to Film Transit For Tennessee Service

MEMPHIS—Elsie Wagner, secretary of Film Transit, Inc., advises a permit has been issued by the State Utilities Commission in Nashville enabling them to haul film advertising and newspapers between Memphis and other towns in western Tennessee. Miss Wagner advises operation in the state will start within the next 30 days. They have been operating in Arkansas for the past two years.

Daughter of E. H. Rowley Marries Dallas Man

DALLAS—Many social functions preceded the marriage Wednesday night of Miss Frances Louise Rowley, former debutante and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Rowley, to Richard Carl Heinen. The ceremony was performed at the Rowley home on Turtle Creek Boulevard. Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO Radio, flew down from New York to attend the wedding.

Plan New Theatre

MEMPHIS—A building permit for a theatre at 1819 Madison Ave. has been issued to W. Percy McDonald, attorney, for an undisclosed client. McDonald stated work on the structure would start as soon as plans could be completed. He declined to reveal the owner's name. The new theatre's estimated cost of $24,000 does not include furnishings or projection equipment, he said.

By "AL" HENDERSON

MRS. BILL CARMICHAEL of the Crystal at Crystal Springs, Miss., has installed new Simplex sound and redecorated the front.

Visited Harvey Hurt of the Princess, Waynesboro, Miss., and found him fully recovered after a recent automobile accident. In addition to being a showman, Harvey is a newspaper publisher, putting out the Wayne County News each week.

Perry Elliott, assistant manager of the Alberta, Meridian, Miss., is resigning to become program director for the new radio station being erected for L. J. Duncan, president of Al-Dun Theatres, at West Point, Ga.

It seems Joy Houck has added some more houses to his string, having bought out his opposition in Rolling Fork, Miss. He has also acquired the St. Francis, St. Francisville, La., from W. A. Prewitt, representative for American Desk.

Had the pleasure of seeing friend Maurice Artigues in Hattiesburg, Miss., where he was selling Paramount product to Bob Sigler at the Royal.

Josephine Imbrogulia, one of the few women theatre managers in Mississippi operating the Richton at Richton, Miss., is also a school teacher.

Seen about the territory were: F. H. Buchanan of the Strand at Vicksburg, who did me a favor, which is appreciated; Harry Hunter, Alamo, Vicksburg; Henry Seale, Paramount, Jackson, Miss.; G. L. Rawls, Palace, Mt. Olive, Miss.; Mr. Alford, State, McComb, Miss.; Gordon Ogden, Chimes, Baton Rouge, and our good friend, Earl Kelly, who manages the Strand, Meridian, Miss.

Ricardo Montiel, manager of the Saenger, Mobile, Ala., is a proud grandfather. His daughter, Mrs. J. H. Beard, recently gave birth to a daughter named Frances Montiel Beard. How about the cigars, Ricardo?

Sid Levy, who manages the Alberta at Meridian, Miss., for Saenger, has been transferred temporarily to the Paramount Greenville, Miss. He is relieving Adolph Miese, who is in the hospital.

Met an oldtimer in the person of H. Rittenhouse, who once peddled film for Vitagraph and later for United Artists. He is now traveling over the south with his picture, "The Seventh Commandment."

Bradley Sudduth, manager of the Ritz at Laurel, Miss., reports his house will be enlarged. Two hundred balcony seats will be added, and the front of the house will be streamlined. The theatre is doing away with its balcony for colored patrons.

The Lincoln, Laurel, Miss., is now under the management of Clyde and Kenneth Graves, who have purchased part interest in the house.

Barnes's Open New House In Alvarado, April 1

ALVARADO, TEX.—Willard M. Barnes and Mrs. Barnes opened their new Alvarado on April Fool's night, but there was no joke attached to it. Filmrow talked this week about the people there being given one of the finest and nicest small town theatres in Texas.

The mayor clipped the ribbon that marked the formal opening, and the pastor of the First Baptist church made the dedicatory address. W. B. King, who decorated and appointed the house, talked on the modern features of the show. The new house is just across the street from the site of the old which was destroyed by fire early this year.

Among the visitors were Ernest Rockett, Mrs. Rockett and their daughter, Miss Ernestine of Waxahachie; C. N. Cooper, Mrs. Cooper, their son and daughter, Bob and Sue of Mart; (Cooper was a former partner with Barnes in Alvarado); C. M. Fox of the Griffith theatres, Cleburne; C. M. Miller of Universal; Buddy Harris of Midlothian; Burt King of RCA; J. M. "Soda" Reynolds of Allied; Henry Sorenson, Modern Theatre Equipment Co.; Neal Houston, 20th Century-Fox; W. B. Hardin, National Theatre Supply and Mrs. Hardin; W. B. King of King Scenic and Mrs. King.

Stephens, Sherman, Sherman, Miss.; R. X. Williams, Lyric, Oxford, Miss.; W. E. Malin, Lura, Augusta, Ark.; Guy B. Amis, Princess, Lexington, Tenn.; V. Murphree, Faye, Jonestown, Miss.

Paul Jones, Malco's city manager in Pine Bluff, Ark., has been elected vice-president of the Kiwanis Club . . . Ned Greene of the Legion, Mayfield, Ky., advises his father has been seriously ill for the past 10 days, which accounts for his absence along the Row . . . This spring weather brought two exhibitors to town for the first time in many, many months—Judge G. Carey of the Strand, Paris, Ark., and Glen Caldwell of the Princess, Aurora, Mo. . . . H. R. Mitchell of Memphis Scenic Studios spent several days in Memphis this past week before leaving for his headquarters in Hartselle, Ala. . . . Lyle Richmond advises he has changed the name of his theatre in Hornerville, Mo., from the Strand to the Missouri.

Owen Reeves of the Dixie, Fulton, Miss., was on the Row booking for the first time in several weeks—he advised his absence had been due to a badly burned foot, which was just about completely healed . . . Pete Dawson, NTS salesman, is driving a new Buick . . . Jess Norman of the Best, England, Ark., who is now making his home in Memphis, had a slight stroke this past week and is still confined to the Baptist Hospital. Mrs. Norman advises he is improving and will soon be able to return home.

M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ark., made his regular monthly booking trip to Memphis . . . F. B. Howell has taken over the Ritz, Crenshaw, Miss., as of April 1 and was in arranging his bookings . . . W. C. Anderson, Ross Federal's southern district manager, spent several days in Memphis with Cliff Wallace, his local manager. Incidentally, this is Anderson's first trip to Memphis in six months . . . M. A. Lightman, who sponsored the "Bridge to Finland" week in Memphis, has been advised that the Memphis contribution led the nation in its population class, and many cities even larger.

Miss M. L. Van Slyke, who is handling the advance publicity on RKO's "Pinocchio," spent several days in Memphis making local tieups, and now is working Hot Springs, Pine Bluff, Owensboro and other towns in the Memphis territory . . . M. H. Brandon, president of Film Transit, postcards from Miami that he is having a grand vacation . . . Floyd Schaffer, representative of American Desk Mfg. Co., is on an extended trip through Arkansas and Missouri. He advises it will be some three weeks before he is back at his desk . . . C. P. Lester, southern district manager for National Screen Service, spent several days in Memphis with Bob Conway, his local manager. This is Lester's first visit in several months.

HOLLYWOOD—Jane Murfin has completed the script of "Farewell Waltz," Victor Saville production for Metro.

Julius Levy Dead

SAN ANTONIO—Julius Levy, theatre owner at Brady, is dead.

DALLAS

CARL MILENTZ of Daisetta and his brother-in-law, W. Roy Wright of the Winona in Hempstead were on the Row contacting exchanges. Unconfirmed reports have it that Johnny Long has made overtures to build a show in Freeport where the Milentz interests operate and that Milentz is countering with a proposition to build in one of Long's coastal towns.

Clinton Bailey jr., who recently reopened the Cona at Nocona, was setting in pictures, and said the house started off with pretty good business. Farris Squibb opened it as a new venture last year but abandoned it several weeks ago. The Baileys own the new building.

E. F. Keith, Palace, Granbury, and Mrs. Wooten, Queen at Pilot Point and A. V. Wade, Gainesville, were among the out-of-town showmen here this week . . . The regulars were S. G. Fry, Tyler; J. W. and Steve Curley, Bridgeport; H. S. Usry, Decatur; Bob Hooks, Mineola; John Stewart, Kaufman; L. C. Tidball, Ft. Worth; Willard Sadler, Weatherford; Rip Condron, Forney; L. B. Crow, Leonard; Karl Lybrand jr., Wills Point; M. S. White, Ft. Worth; R. Q. Coleman, Mabank.

C. W. Matson, Dixie at Rockdale, said Mrs. Matson is getting ready to build a new show at Caldwell where she operates the Matsonian. An old building is being cleared from property she purchased some time ago . . . Dave Young, independent exhibitor of the old school operating the Dittman at Brownsville, was up for a few days calling on exchanges.

Ben Hill, Paramount's publicist, put over one out at SMU to boost Dorothy Lamour's popularity quite a bit. The eds and coeds were producing a play, "Paradise Preferred," so Ben decided one of Dorothy's sarongs was needed. The star wired him she had a spare to loan. SMU gets it, but now the problem has arisen whether or not a coed can be found to do the abbreviated garment justice.

Jack Lilly, at Greenville, is doing nicely after an appendectomy . . . Steve Curley, up at Bridgeport, celebrated his 23rd birthday recently. His parents, the J. W. Curleys, gave a dinner in his honor. Steve now practically runs the National there, and is credited with several improvements in operation which have helped business. He was graduated from A&M last year.

P. W. Cloud of Snyder and Johnny Blevins of Dublin were on the Row Wednesday by coincidence. Oddly enough they look somewhat alike and are often taken one for the other . . . L. F. Cowsert, projectionist at the Texan in Junction, was here on business representing Mrs. Erma Ragsdale, manager of the show. T. B. Phillips, who has extensive ranch holdings, owns the house, which has always been operated by one of two daughters.

K. M. McFarland jr. of the new Public at Garrison and E. Lee Scarborough, Queen at Teneha, were among the bookers in town. McFarland formerly operated in Teneha, but moved out a few weeks ago to open Garrison's first show, where there has been some revival in building. Scarborough then went into Teneha to fill that gap.

1937 — Glenwood and Centenary; Shreveport; and 13 other theatres in Louisiana; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; C. & C. Enterprises, Inc.

Paramount forced C. & C. Enterprises to sell it their theatre by operating opposition theatres and depriving it of desired product.

MISSISSIPPI

1937-38—Crescent; Belzoni; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; H. H. Alexander.

Paramount sought to acquire Alexander's theatre by building in opposition and depriving him of desired product.

1938—Ritz, Laurel; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; E. D. Lawrence.

Paramount sought to acquire Lawrence's theatre by building in opposition and depriving him of desired product.

1937-39—Strand; Temple; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Mrs. F. L. Marshall.

Paramount forced Mrs. Marshall to sell her theatre to it by depriving her of desired product and by acquiring a small interest therein which was used as a lever to oust her.

1937-39—Strand; Vicksburg; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Independent Theatres, Inc.

Paramount acquired the Strand by threatening to deprive and by depriving it of desired product and by threatening to build and by building an opposition theatre.

1937-38—Yazoo; Yazoo City; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Mrs. A. J. DeVoto.

Paramount forced Mrs. DeVoto to sell her theatre to it by threatening to deprive and by depriving her of desired product and by threatening to build and by building an opposition theatre.

NORTH CAROLINA

1935—Granada; Lexington; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Ellis Blumenthal.

Refusal of distributors to continue licensing of suitable product; threats to build another theatre in Lexington and actual preparation to do so including the measurement of a lot and the announcement a new theatre would be built.

1935—Carolina; Lexington; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Ellis Blumenthal.

Distributors refused to continue furnishing suitable product; threats to build another theatre in Lexington and the actual measurement of a lot with the announcement a new theatre would be built 100 feet from Carolina Theatre.

TEXAS

Condron took a lease option on building in Harlingen for the purpose of erecting a theatre to use second or subsequent run product. Agent of Paramount's affiliated corporation threatened to deprive Condron of product and further threatened to open an opposition theatre to Condron's theatre in Laferia, Texas, in the event he opened a house in Harlingen.

In the face of this condition Condron abandoned his plans for Harlingen and permitted his option to lapse, after which the Paramount subsidiary constructed a theatre at the proposed location.

1929-32—Unknown; Henderson; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; W. H. Powers.

Producer-exhibitor (through its affiliate East Texas Theatres) sought to force independent exhibitor to sell it his theatre for an inadequate consideration by building and operating an opposition theatre, by threatening to deprive, by depriving and by causing others to deprive him of desired product.

1936—Delman; Houston; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; I. B. Adelman.

Independent exhibitor was forced to sell his theatre because of threats to build in opposition, inability to get product, unfair clearance and the enforcement of minimum admission prices.

1933 — Victoria and Uptown; Victoria; Normana, El Campo; L'Arcade, Yorktown; Orphic, Columbus; Alamo, Bellville; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Rubin Frels.

Producer-exhibitor, through its affiliate, Jefferson Amusement Co., sought to force independent exhibitor into partnership with it by threatening to open and by opening and operating opposition theatres, and by depriving and causing others to deprive him of desired product.

1939—State; Wichita Falls; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; V. E. Hamm.

Over 100 Georgia Houses To Show "Biscuit Eater"

ATLANTA—Fifty prints of "The Biscuit Eater" will be delivered for showing in more than 100 theatres, principally in Georgia, during the week following the world premiere of the picture at the Albany, Albany, Ga., on April 11, John Kirby, local Paramount branch manager, announces.

The number of prints of a picture ordinarily handled by his office is five.

To Unveil Monument in Tribute to "Prince"

ALBANY, GA.—Albany citizens are collecting funds for the erection of a monument to the most famous hunting dog in Georgia history, which will be unveiled during the world premiere of Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater," April 11, at the Albany here.

The canine aristocrat, a pointer named Prince, is credited with having sold more Georgia real estate during his lifetime than any man. Originally owned by Charles Black, Atlanta business man, and Y. Frank Freeman, now Paramount vice-president in charge of studio operations, Prince was loaned by them some years ago to Richard Tift, Albany real estate man. When northerners came to Albany to hunt quail, Tift loaned the dog to them.

Hundreds of wealthy sportsmen saw the possibilities of the Georgia countryside while hunting over the animal. Many returned to buy thousands of acres as hunting preserves.

Aristocrats of Southern Dogdom to Premiere

ALBANY, GA. — Aristocrats of southern dogdom, as well as scores of human notables, will assemble here for the premiere of Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater."

Since the film deals largely with Georgia hunting dogs, local officials have arranged for many of the south's most famous canines to attend the festivities with their masters. Cooperating in this endeavor are Roy Smart, district manager, Wilby-Kincey Theatres; Guy Kennemer, Florida Theatre, Jacksonville; William Wilson, Paramount Theatre, Montgomery; Bob Blair, Saenger Theatres, New Orleans; R. M. Kennedy, Alabama Theatre, Birmingham, and Emmett Rogers, Tivoli, Chattanooga.

Over 300 Exhibitors and Newsmen to Be There

ALBANY, GA.—That more than 300 prominent exhibitors and newspapermen will be in Albany for the world premiere of Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater" on April 11, is indicated in acceptances pouring in from southern and eastern states.

Among theatre operators who have indicated they will be on hand for the opening at the Albany Theatre and attendant festivities are William K. Jenkins of the Lucas-Jenkins circuit; R. B. Wilby of the Wilby-Kincey circuit; M. A. Lightman of Malco Theatres, Memphis; Mrs. Alma King, theatre executive of Brunswick, Ga.; Clark Gurley of Brainbridge, Ga.; Joe Schmit of Valdosta and R. H. Dunn of Camilla.

Billy Lee, nine-year-old star of "The Biscuit Eater," will make a series of personal appearances in connection with the opening of the picture throughout Georgia.

A MEMPHIS couple was divorced last week for an old reason, but there was an entirely new slant involved. The wife charged the husband with cruel and inhuman treatment. When she could persuade him to go to the theatre, he always "fell asleep during the show."

The Cumberland Amusement Co. has purchased a property in Fayetteville which, it is believed, will be converted into a new theatre . . . Panic was narrowly averted at the Bijou, Wilby-Kincey theatre in Knoxville, during a performance of "Springtime for Henry," when a wastebasket in the second balcony caught fire. Manager Eugene H. Street and his staff, however, were able to quiet the crowd and assure them there was no danger.

A small boy who fell asleep during the show, was rescued from the Woodland, Nashville, by a policeman who heard the boy pounding on the door which had been locked for the night.

The City Theatre, Spring City, which was destroyed by fire, is being rebuilt. Manager Russell Standburg believes the house may be ready by May 10 . . . The Orpheum in Memphis, recently purchased by M. A. Lightman, is being repaired and re-equipped and will probably be ready to reopen by April 15. The Malco offices are to be moved to this building from the Strand.

Grant Film Transit, Inc. Permit in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, TENN. — The state utilities commission has granted a permit to the Film Transit, Inc., Memphis, covering the hauling of film, theatrical advertising and newspapers between Memphis and other towns in western Tennessee. Elsie M. Wagner, secretary-treasurer, advises plans will be completed and operation will start within the next 30 or 45 days.

A Remodeling Program For Drive-In in Miami

MIAMI—A $35,000 improvement program on the Miami Drive-In, the world's largest, is now under way.

The improvements will include new projection equipment and a new screen, 80x60 feet. All ramped driveways, from which patrons watch the screen showings as they sit in their cars, will be paved.

The local Drive-In operates the year around.

Atwell on "Lincoln"

DALLAS — Ben Atwell, publicity agent known from coast to coast, who has handled many of the biggest attractions on stage and screen, has been in Dallas working on the campaign for RKO's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which opens a test run at the Palace on April 5.

Cole to Washington

DALLAS—Col. H. A. Cole, Allied national president, left Tuesday by plane for Washington where he will confer with department of justice representatives. He takes little stock, he said, in published reports that a basis for settlement has been worked out in the government suit.

Filmites to Wed

JACKSONVILLE—Irene Shad Hawkins, assistant manager at the Palace, will be married to Archie H. Adams jr., manager of the San Marco, on April 17. Both have been with Sparks here many years.

Bar Sunday Shows

HAMLET, N. C.—City officials have refused A. W. Stanford, owner and operator of a new theatre here, permission to operate on Sunday and have instructed the police to see that the edict is observed.

Reconstruction Forward

FORT MILLS, S. C.—Reconstruction work is progressing on the Majestic here, which was badly damaged by fire some time ago.

"Rebecca" in Four Miami Theatres

Miami—It's a four-way go for "Rebecca" after its recent elaborate debut, playing now at the Miami and Mayfair here and the Surf and Lincoln at Miami Beach.

A New Problem For "Drive-Ins"

For example, Horace Denning, manager of the Drive-In Theatre here, received a call from an elderly woman inquiring whether the colors in a Technicolor feature ran on the screen when it rained.

Denning thought he was being "ribbed," but recovered in time to inform the lady that that was something he had not experienced to date.

Extensive Remodeling For Melba in Dallas

DALLAS—Remodeling plans for the Melba on Elm Street will include a new front, modernization of the interior, and new seating. The work will start around June 1, according to Pettigrew & Worley, architects, who also have completed plans for the remodeling of the Palace, San Marcos, owned by F. W. Zimmerman in affiliation with the Texas Consolidated circuit.

Robb & Rowley Acquire 50% Interest in Two

DALLAS—The Robb & Rowley circuit has purchased a 50 per cent interest in the Sequoyah and New theatres at Tahlequah, Okla., from J. P. Thompson.

Parish Plans "A" House For Huntsville, Tex.

HUNTSVILLE, TEX.—Sam Parish, veteran theatre owner here, has purchased a lot opposite his Avon where he contemplates the construction of an 800-seat class "A" theatre soon. For the past few years, he has operated his Dorothy and Avon in affiliation with Robb & Rowley-United.

: Their Love in Mid-Air :

HOUSTON—The Rev. Theodore S. Will, Atlanta minister who was here to preach special Lenten services, says the theatre public is entitled to a sequel to "Gone With the Wind," since "it left the audience in mid-air, because Rhett and Scarlett's romance was never brought to its logical conclusion."

"From the beginning, the public had the feeling they were made for each other, but fate kept them from learning of their true love. The story, therefore, ended in a state of transition and should be continued," according to Dr. Will.

He further states that whenever southerners talk of the play, they are always glad Melanie was in it; she epitomizes the "finest traditions of the south." Rhett Butler is a bounder, Ashley a weakling and Scarlett doesn't represent southern womanhood at its best.

Visual Education Aid to North Georgia Farmers

DALTON, GA.—Visual education of farmers through the use of motion pictures and exhibits is being tried out in 13 North Georgia counties in what may develop into another important outlet for products of the film industry.

Born of an idea hatched by agents in Whitfield, Walker, and Catoosa counties last year, the novel means to improve farming practices attracted some 30,000 spectators in Whitfield county alone last year after it had been introduced by B. M. Drake, Whitfield agent.

This widespread interest and similar results in Walker and Catoosa counties prompted the extension service to provide better equipment, more films and put Drake in charge of the expanded project which will include these three counties, plus Union, Dade, Gordon, Chattooga, Floyd, Murray, Towns, Fannin, Rabun and Gilmer.

Arkansas ITO Will Elect At Meet April 28-29

BARTLESVILLE, OKLA.—It is understood that the Crown, destroyed in January by fire, will not be rebuilt. It was owned and operated by Pete Crown of Borger and Pampa, Tex.

New Parliament to Convene on May 9

TORONTO—The new Canadian Parliament is scheduled to open its first session on May 9 following the recent general elections and the sittings will get under way almost three months later than usual because of the decision of Prime Minister W. L. M. King to go to the country for what was virtually an expression of confidence in the government in connection with its wartime program.

The return of Premier King to power virtually gives him carte blanche in the matter of war orders, financial control and new taxation and there is already much conjecture regarding the measures which will come before the House.

Expect New Taxes

New and increased taxes there will be aplenty, it is believed, and one of these will be a new levy on radio sets and equipment, automobiles and so-called luxuries including cigarettes and tobaccos, it has been intimated. Whether the luxury class will take in moving pictures remains to be seen, but film executives here are touching wood in the meantime.

Further prohibitory orders were imposed on transactions involving international exchange commencing April 1, but the new regulations do not interfere with the use of cheques or money orders for business dealings between countries although clamping down on foreign currencies. There is a suggestion of regulated imports, applicable to the moving picture business as well as other industries, in a move toward a better balancing of international exchange, but no details are available. Another forecast has touched upon the possibility of a federal assessment on film revenues in addition to the present tax on excess profits sent to a foreign country.

Training and Navy Patrol Films Are Released

TORONTO—With the Canadian federal elections out of the way, the national film board is releasing two official pictures to Canadian theatres in April, prints of which are being shipped to the United Kingdom and France for propaganda purposes and for the entertainment of Canadian troops in Overseas service. One of these is "Atlantic Patrol" which tells intimately, within censorship limits, of the work of warships of the Royal Canadian and Imperial Navies along the Atlantic Seaboard of the Dominion. This film pays tribute to the "silent service" in its various ramifications. The second film, which was produced in England, shows the training of Canadian troops at Aldershot.

Operations of the national film board are under the direction of Col. John A. Cooper, acting film commissioner of the Dominion Government in the absence of John Grierson in Australia. Col. Cooper was temporarily appointed on an honorary basis, being nominally a $1 per year man while continuing in his duties as president of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada.

F-P Adoption of Giveaways Climaxes Situation in Ont.

TORONTO—The lid is off with respect to giveaways among the theatres of Ontario with the decision of Famous Players Canadian Corp. to offer an array of premiums at circuit houses with the exception of the big ace theatres where first-run attractions are given special exploitation.

This means that the battle is on between independent exhibitors and the big chain in the matter of gift offers as patronage inducements. The indes have been indulging more and more in premiums and Associated Theatres, an Ontario circuit, has also been featuring the Bank Night stunt. Recently a group of independents as well as the Associated chain started to give books for which a special charge was made and finally the B&F Theatres in Toronto, affiliated with Famous Players, came out with an encyclopedia offer to counteract the silverware nights. The climax has come with the decision of Famous Players to adopt the premium idea and, with the exception of the key theatres, everybody will shortly be doing it.

It is expected that the battle of gifts will result in a showdown which will lead to an agreement to abolish premiums. This came about some years ago when giveaways became general in theatre operation, with everybody losing money because of the expense of the free goods. Correction may be difficult under current conditions, it is pointed out, because of the gift and contest idea which is overrunning radio broadcasting. There are some who declare that exhibitors were compelled to offer something because radio advertisers were doing so while the defense has been offered by independents that extended first-runs have made subsequent showings less profitable and the neighborhood houses "had to do something."

Another possible development is that the government may step in with restrictive legislation such as was done with the once-popular trading stamps. The Canadian government controls broadcasting and if the premium stunt becomes obnoxious in radio, the obvious move would be to call a halt everywhere by legislative means.

Incidentally, one Toronto theatre manager was heard to remark that he was going to stage "Moving Picture Nights" each week for which he would advertise that his theatre had "absolutely nothing but good screen entertainment that night."

Detroit Ban Finds No Ontario Ditto

TORONTO—The banning of "Primrose Path" and "Strange Cargo by the police department in Detroit caused a stir in Toronto film trade circles but a check-up showed that all was quiet on the censorship front in Canada.

At the office of Regal Films, Ltd., it was stated that a license had been issued for "Strange Cargo" by the Ontario board of moving picture censors while officials of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada reported that "Primrose Path" had not yet been submitted to the Ontario board but that the picture had been approved by the censor board of Quebec where a print had been sent for examination because of a scheduled early release.

Immediately after the federal elections the Ontario board had issued a license for the release of the March of Time "Canada at War" which had been held up by Premier M. F. Hepburn in accordance with the board's policy of keeping politics off the screen in Ontario theatres. "Canada at War" had its first Ontario release at the Ottawa Capitol where it opened March 29 as an added attraction to "Broadway Melody of 1940." It was to have had its Toronto first-run on the same date at the Imperial but was delayed a week because of the holdover of "It's a Date" on the same program with which appeared another March of Time release, "The Vatican of Pius XII."

Rideau in Ottawa Plays An All-French Program

TORONTO—An example of wartime screen propaganda was seen in an all-French program at the Rideau, Ottawa, when the two features consisted of "Le Patriote," dealing with the viciousness of tyranny in Russia, and "Sommes-Nous Defendus?" The latter deals with France's war preparations.

Extend Thrift Ticket Plan Following Successful Test

TORONTO—Commencing April 1, theatres of Famous Players Canadian Corp. offered books of Thrift Tickets for sale, these containing one extra admission coupon for the quantity purchase of ten tickets. This is the revival of a plan which was in effect some years ago but which passed out because of amusement tax hindrances in Ontario.

The Thrift Ticket idea was really announced at the circuit's national managers' conference at Niagara Falls last July and it was to have gone into effect September 1 but the outbreak of war caused a cancellation of the arrangement. A further delay was made when the Ontario government announced its intention of restoring the amusement tax in January but the levy was dropped. In the meantime the sale of Thrift Tickets was given a lengthy test in scattered theatres of the chain where it was found to have satisfactory results and the sale has now been given a broad scope.

Grosses Surge Up as Lent and Election End

TORONTO—Record-breaking business was registered at all Toronto first-run theatres and at many neighborhood houses in the period following Easter, with holdovers the rule at all principal cinemas with the exception of Shea's where the policy of weekly changes of vaudeville is a governing factor.

At the Uptown, Manager Fred Trebilcock reported that he had "never seen such crowds" with standees lined up three and four deep for a distance of almost 300 yards several times each day, all waiting to see "Pinocchio." The Disney feature was held over for a second week and there is a prospect that it will exceed the five-week run of "Snow White" at the same house. "Snow White" built up after a comparatively slow opening but "Pinocchio" started off with smash proportions, no less than seven performances being necessary on March 30.

"It's a Date" at the Imperial, "The Blue Bird" at the Eglinton, "Roaring Twenties" at the Tivoli and "Northwest Passage" at Loew's were all holdovers among the key theatres while neighborhood managers piled in extra matinees during Easter Week to take care of the demand which was in pleasant contrast with patronage during the preceding weeks.

Apart from the fact that Lent was over and the weather conditions in Toronto were favorable, an important development having an influence upon business also became a matter of history in the holding of the Federal elections on March 26. Business was flat during the election campaign period as usual because of the cautious attitude of commercial interests but the clearing of the election atmosphere was the signal for activity on all sides and the theatres were among those to reap the benefit.

Throughout the Province there were various districts which suffered because of late heavy snows which tied up traffic, many communities being isolated for several days. Unusual cold for the last week in March also hurt business in some sections but this did not apply to the Toronto metropolitan area where balmy weather prevailed. Locally, the consensus of opinion was that theatre patronage during Easter week on the whole was far in excess of that for the corresponding week of 1939 and even for some years past.

"Gone With the Wind" for eight weeks at Loew's from January 26 to March 21 recorded big business but other Toronto theatres found the situation rather slack until Easter but the rush is on everywhere now.

Neon Shows Profit

MONTREAL—Claude Neon General Advertising, Ltd., 1939 report shows a net profit of $200 after interest, depreciation, etc., as compared with a net loss of $1,053 after similar charges for previous year. NIAGARA FALLS—A permit to start construction on a new theatre for Famous-Players Corp. has been granted.

TORONTO—A net of $904,324 for the year ended Dec. 30, 1939 has been reported by F-P Canadian Corp. . . . A profit of $6,048 during 1939 is reported by Mansfield Theatre Co.

MANITOBA

WINNIPEG—A. P. Cote, Ottawa distributor of educational films, is a visitor here. He is on tour to study the film needs of educational bodies in the west.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

VICTORIA—A permit to build an extension to its theatre has been granted the Victoria Little Theatre Ass'n.

MONTREAL

NOW that Lent is in the discard, theatre managers look for a decided pickup. So far this year both chains and independents report business somewhat ahead of last year's first quarter. Recalling a similar condition during the Great War, they put it down to a craving for amusement to lighten spirits burdened by uncertainty as to the future, rather than to any general business improvement.

Morris Davis, energetic manager of the Belmont, managed a trip to Quebec recently to confer with his friend and colleague, Harold Vance, manager of the Cambrai, and late of the Midway, Montreal. He found Vance full of vim and enterprise, having just cashed in on a smart business move. In connection with the booking of a skiing film he sent out letters calling attention to it to a number of winter sports and ski clubs and had the satisfaction of seeing their members turn out in large numbers to see the picture.

"Professor Mamlock," the Soviet film which was banned for a time in many countries, and still is banned in Germany and Italy, as well as in Russia, was shown three nights at the Mount Royal at regular hours and prices. It made its first appearance in Montreal some months ago at a midnight show at the Mayfair.

Free samples of "Seven Up" have been left with local theatres for distribution to patrons . . . A record of a kind which may indicate how the wind is blowing in regard to Quebec's ban on juvenile admissions was created when three Montreal theatres, the York and the Westmount were permitted to admit children to see "Gulliver's Travels" and the Capitol was allowed to show them "The Blue Bird," all in one week. The previous week saw many children at the Imperial where "Gulliver's Travels" was the attraction.

George Ganetakos, managing director of United Amusement Corp., is due back within a few days from Havana and Florida where he spent several weeks vacation—Gordon Dahn, manager of the York, and Mrs. Dahn, have returned from a trip to Vancouver and Seattle.

Carbons for projectors are being rationed in the United Kingdom, but there is no actual shortage. Germany was a competitor of British carbon makers, and after war was declared British manufacturers met all demands, with the result that stocks decreased and manufacturers formed a pool from which the trade and the government received supplies. Temporary scarcity was due to delayed deliveries.

Arthur L. Brown, general merchandising director of Northern Electric Company, is serving his third term as president of the Radio Manufacturers Ass'n of Canada. His job with the Northern Electric covers merchandising of a wide range of appliances from electric organs and telephones to motion picture sound equipment.

Capitol Theatre, Quebec, announced the first showing in the province of "Pinocchio," with the intimation that children, accompanied by adults, would be admitted . . . "Sinking of the Graf Spee" was vividly shown by R. G. Perry, traffic manager of Provincial Transport Co. at a luncheon of the Canadian Progress Club. Mr. Perry also showed a travel film, "Outdoors in Florida."

S. Morgan-Powell, veteran critic, reveals that the British Ministry of Information has begun work on an elaborate program for production and sponsoring of films on a large scale designed to combat enemy propaganda . . . "Tevya," first film by Maurice Schwartz to be shown in Canada, was recently at the College Playhouse, Toronto.

Premier Operating Corp. is building a theatre on St. James St., Parry Sound . . . Famous Players Canadian Corp. will open its 1,000-seat Niagara Falls, Ont., theatre, the New Seneca, about June 15 . . . A theatre is under construction at Beaverton, Ont. . . . Seville Theatre is giving variety stage shows Sundays . . . Plaza, United Amusement house, announces that it will show no French programs in future, and will change pictures twice weekly.

One dollar will be the regular charge for admission to the new 500-seat house which H. E. Peffer plans to build at Aklavik, Northwest Territories, and which he announces will be "the nearest theatre to the North Pole." . . . Algoma Theatre, Saulte Ste. Marie, Ont., is being renovated. It will be air conditioned.

Two-Day Sharp Chain Calgary Meeting

CALGARY—First of its kind here was the convention held of the Sharp circuit operating a dozen theatres at Alberta country points. The delegates spent two days in Calgary, held a luncheon and an evening banquet after the business meetings and saw screenings of "Pinocchio" and "Swiss Family Robinson."

Joining with the Calgary office staff of the Sharp organization were the following delegates:

Ken Robbins, Westlock; Frank Sibbald, Fort Sask; Alf Durrer, Athabaska; Jim Holroyd, who operates from Camrose; Rusty Hansen, Three Hills; Bill Waldron, Bentley; Frank Tyler, Innisfail; John Coates, Olds; Norman Miller, Didsbury; Ray and Leo Chabillon, Longview; Mr. and Mrs. Bussard, Turner Valley, all of Alberta, and Joe Haugh of Kerrabert, Sask.

WINNIPEG

COMPETITION for theatres was offered by the appearance of the "Ice Follies of 1940" which played to very good houses . . . "Siege," a single-reeler depicting the siege of Warsaw, will be shown by Don Gauld at the Metropolitan next week.

"France Is Ready," now being shown in cooperation with the Canadian Legion, has been booked for repeat engagements throughout the city and adjoining territory . . . I. H. Allen returned from an eastern trip to visit his father at Akron, Ohio. He reports his father's health is considerably improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Rothstein of Rothstein Theatre Enterprises have returned from a trip south which included the studios in Hollywood as well as side trips to Mexico and Honolulu. After spending a few days in the city, Rothstein left for an inspection tour of his western circuit.

E. A. Zorn, district manager of Famous Players, has returned from a trip through the territory . . . J. Miles, president and managing director of Western Theatres, Ltd., has returned from a trip to Florida and a rest at Hot Springs . . . Mrs. H. A. Morton has returned from a vacation trip to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Heppner are motoring to Minneapolis . . . John A. Schuberg of Vancouver, who has been in the city looking after the Rio and Bijou theatres, has returned to his home on the coast . . . Dave Griesdorf of United Artists is on a trip to the coast . . . Lou Geller of Vitagraph is back from a trip through the territory . . . E. A. Zorn of Famous Players and Jack Fitzgibbons of the head office are both on the sick list.

A. E. McLean of Rainey River has been laid up with the flu . . . The Playhouse, which has been temporarily closed, is scheduled to reopen with a new picture policy. The house is under the management of Joe Freed, operator of the Elm here.

SASKATCHEWAN

WITH spring late in coming after a mild winter, and plenty of snow storms followed by melting, the fears of this agricultural province over the spring moisture conditions are abating somewhat, with resultant improvement in business. Because the roads were open most of the year, a great many more picture houses in the smaller centers remained open than in previous winters. The improved financial situation of the farmers after the 1939 crop also was reflected in the trend to 35mm pictures again instead of the 16mm type which mushroomed all over the province a few years ago. Exhibitors, generally, anticipate a good year in 1940.

Manager Otis Bowes turned the Grand, Regina, over to the Salvation Army Sunday night for the finale of their campaign to raise funds for war services. The Grand presented the famed war services concert party, "The Dumbells," who are touring Canada.

New sound equipment has been installed at the Herbert municipal theatre, Herbert . . . Following the lead of larger centers, the Grand, Lumsden, has commenced advertising the value of buying books of Thrift Tickets . . . A special St. Patrick's Day program was staged at midnight in the Grand Theatre, Maple Creek. It tied in with announcement of the winner of the sweepstakes on when the creek would start to rise with the spring thaw.

Increased prices for matinees after March 27 was the decision of A. Wilson, operator of the Unique Theatre, Rosetown . . . The Red Cross Society joined with F. W. Falkner, operator of the Falkon, in stirring up interest in "The Royal Visit" by encouraging Tisdale people to hold dinner and supper parties prior to or after showings of the picture, the guests attending in a group.

Canada at war has cut into the staff of the Rex, Regina, again. Walter Barker, projectionist, has joined the South Saskatchewan Rifle Regiment and is currently stationed at Weyburn as instructor with the rank of staff sergeant. His son is in the same regiment. Walter saw service in the last war.

Getting its Canadian premiere in Regina, "Pinocchio" did tremendous business at the Capitol, starting the last Friday of Easter week. It came while thousands of the city's school children were still holidaying and long queues formed for every performance as a result.

Indicative of the trend towards more and more patriotic angles to showmanship in Canada at war, W. P. Mahon, operator of the Orpheum, Prince Albert, has encouraged various patriotic organizations to appear on his stage with skits, novelty turns and even playlets. The usual 35-cent admission price is then put at 50 cents and the additional sum given to the patriotic outfit represented. The stage show is in addition to the regular feature.

When the Port Arthur, Ont., senior hockey team came to Regina for their play-off championship game with Moose Jaw last week—Regina having neutral, and artificial, ice—Manager Charlie Bahrynowski of the Metropolitan galloped over to welcome the boys from his home town and invite them to the showing of "The Fighting 69th." Charlie, when manager of the Royal, Fort William, Ont., the adjoining city was prexy of the hockey club there.

With more than 5,000 people coming into town by train, 'plane, dog sled and motor car for the third annual World Championship Derby, Nipawin was a busy spot last week due to the excellent advertising given its snowplane, dog and horse races on a snow-covered course. The Orpheum did the biggest business in years.

VANCOUVER

JACK MUIR is back on the job again after several months away from the Strand. He is taking it in small doses, just a few hours each day, but every one is pleased to see even that much of him.

M. E. Fairleigh is now a grand-daddy, for his son (or was it his daughter-in-law?) presented him with a seven and three-quarter pound grandson.

"Stump the Experts," at the Capitol, is being carried on along the lines of "Information Please," with guest experts on the program. Jimmy Butterfield, a local columnist, is one of the latest to sit on the platform to show how well informed he is. Depend upon Maynard Joiner, the house manager, to carry out an idea in correct detail.

Ralph Calladine is back from California but no one has seen the horses he was reported to be bringing with him. Some have suggested that he should name them after his two Victoria theatres, Columbia and Plaza.

A. G. Blaine opened his new Orpheum at Kimberly last week. Mirrophonic sound, and Motiograph projectors were installed by Dominion Sound Equipment.

Leo M. Devaney, Canadian general manager for RKO, came to Vancouver in connection with the exploitation of "Pinocchio," on which W. S. Jones, B. C. manager for the company, has been devoting his energies of late.

The film exchange table tennis club is the busiest organization on Filmrow with the development of champions and elimination of those who "can't take it" going steadily on.

The many friends of Beryl Carew are congratulating her and her parents, on her selection for a part in "Meet the People." Beryl is only 16, but her voice, lyric soprano, won her a place in Hollywood as quickly as it did among radio listeners.

WINDSOR

THE five F-P houses have effected a tie-up with a local restaurant whereby a patron presenting a theatre admission stub is entitled to a free cup of coffee. The theatres take turns putting displays in the restaurant window.

Twenty-six motorists who attended the showing of "Gone With the Wind" at the Capitol in Chatham were fined for overtime parking. Incidentally, the Capitol had its sound system completely overhauled before unreeling the special.

Art Duscharme has returned to his work at the Palace after several days illness . . . Simon Meretsky seems in much better health since his recent return from Hot Springs, Ark.

Joe LeFave, manager at the Palace, has added a quiz night, broadcast from his stage, to his weekly Bank Roll night, to boost patronage . . . Garry Hogarth is using silverware to draw them to his houses in Essex, Harrow and Kingsville . . . Encyclopedias are doing the patron-pulling for Bob Brown at the Vanity.

The proposed hockey games of the theatre staffs were proposed too late in the season and now are filed away among the plans for next year . . . Ed Lamoureaux netted his Empire Theatre a tidy bit of publicity when he recently presented a cup to the player voted the most popular in the Chrysler Hockey team.

Harry Zeilig, F-P artist in Windsor, was invited to display some of his paintings in a Toronto exhibit.

TORONTO

JOHN GRIERSON of London, England, appointed national film commissioner of Canada last fall, is scheduled to return to Canada from Australia at the end of April on the expiration of his three-month leave of absence from the Canadian government service.

Miss Billie Hallam has been appointed cashier of the Belsize, Toronto, by Manager Al Sedgwick. Miss Hallam is more prominently known as the official "Miss Toronto" of 1938 when she was the choice of judges in a beauty and personality competition.

L. M. Graburn has returned to Famous Players head office, Toronto, after having filled in as manager of the Capitol, Halifax, in the absence, through illness, of R. S. Roddick, formerly western Ontario district manager of the Canadian chain . . . L. M. Devaney, general manager of the RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada, returned to his Toronto office after a business trip to the Pacific coast.

Addressing the annual meeting of Eastern Theatres, Ltd., R. W. Bolstad, vice-president, reported boxoffice revenue during the first quarter of 1940 was higher than for the same period last year. Eastern Theatres operates the Toronto Imperial.

Clair Hague, Canadian Universal executive, has been busy as chairman pro tem of the Canadian Pictures Pioneers Club and has unearthed many oldtimers of the film trade. The first big dinner of the club has been held up, he says, because of the lawyers who have been tardy in getting the club charter from the Dominion government. The new organization is being incorporated under the Societies Act. The dinner is scheduled to be held April 17 but the date may be changed, according to Hague, because it conflicts with the National Variety Club convention in Dallas, Tex.

Charles Dentelbeck, director of projection with Famous Players Canadian Corp., is planning to attend the annual spring convention at Atlantic City on April 22 of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, of which he is one of the few Canadian members.

Mrs. Lloyd Mills, wife of the manager of the Elgin, Ottawa, has returned after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. McNabb, at the family home in St. Thomas . . . H. C. D. Main, supervisor of Associated Theatres, has returned to headquarters after spending several days in western Ontario.

Among the film men who attended the Canadian premiere of "Young Tom Edison" at the Majestic, Stratford, were Raymond Allen, supervisor of Allen Theatres; Jack Melzer, exploiteer of Premier Theatres, and D. D. Bloom of Regal Films. They were the guests of Manager C. B. Hider.

Gordon Lightstone, sales manager of Regal Films, went to New York for the M-G-M district managers' conference . . . Proceeds of the first performance in the new Strand at Beaverton, Ont., were donated to the Canadian Red Cross by John Grylls, the owner.

Manager T. B. Daley of the Imperial, Toronto, cooperated with the Toronto Daily Star in arranging a treat for newspaper delivery boys when they were admitted with special tickets on any one of five days during the run of "It's a Date" . . . A cooking school was held in Belleville when "The Old Maid" was playing the Capitol, which is managed by T. Mascaro.

Manager Grant Garrette of the Geneva, Orillia, got a lot of fun out of distributing a hiddden word card for "The Secret of Dr. Kildare." Linking up an assortment of printed dots with a pencil revealed the answer . . . Manager Leo Coyle of the Granada, St. Catherines, wrote a personal letter to all the local doctors when he played "Disputed Passage."

Renovated Sussex Strand Opens Easter Weekend

SUSSEX, N. B.—The Strand reopened Easter weekend after undergoing extensive renovations. A new projection booth has been built and Mirrophonic sound installed by the Northern Electric Co. through the Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd. In addition to sound, new equipment for projection and light, a Cyclex power plant, has been installed, the first made east of Montreal by the C. S. Ashcraft Mfg. Corp. of New York. Nor has the outside of the theatre been neglected. A new glass front supplied by the Hobbs Glass Co. of Montreal, and an unusual marquee, made by the Claude Neon Sign Co., have completely changed the facade of the building. The lobby and waiting rooms have been renovated and have new chromium furnishings.

MPDC Reappoints Officers At Annual Toronto Meet

TORONTO—The annual meeting was held of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada at Toronto when all directors and officers were reappointed for the ensuing 12 months, the president being Col. John A. Cooper. A second meeting is being held April 8 at which further routine matters will be dealt with.

Informal reports showed conditions within the motion picture business had resumed a normal stage following readjustments which had been found necessary following the outbreak of war eight months ago. Information from England indicated that the theatre business is well above average in spite of blackouts, removals from large cities and enlistments, receipts being 25 per cent better than expected.

VICTORIA

MANAGER J. M. ROBERTSON of the Capitol adopted the policy of selling reserved seats for the evening showings of "Gone With the Wind" and unreserved seats for afternoon showings. The picture was booked for one week, but did such good business it was held for another week. During intermissions, Coca Cola and souvenir programs were sold in the theatre lobby by young girls. They were members of the Victoria Girls' Drill Team, which created much favorable comment at the San Francisco Exposition last summer. Special arrangements were made with the Electric Railway Co. and suburban bus lines for a late transportation service during the run of the picture.

"Canada at War," March of Time release which was banned by Premier Hepburn of Ontario, was shown here at the Capitol. Since pictures of Victoria as a naval and military base were included in the film, it created much interest locally.

F-P theatres here are making a special effort to sell thrift tickets. They are put up in special book form and are offered at a lower price for buying in quantity. Special lobby displays, screen trailers and newspaper advertising are being used.

Five Little Peppers at Home

Very good story, live-wire characters. Patrons' reaction—good. Boxoffice: Fair. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 2,800. Capacity: 300-200.—Sid Metcalf, Ritz and Metro, Purcell, Okla.

First National

Castle on the Hudson

One of those good prison pictures and is O. K. Attendance above average. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 380.—W. H. Mayfield, Clay, Celina, Tenn.

Three Cheers for the Irish

Good performance turned in by Dennis Morgan. Priscilla Lane also good. Reaction good. Failed at boxoffice. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Very windy. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 2,800. Capacity: 300-200.—Sid Metcalf, Ritz and Metro, Purcell, Okla.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Another Thin Man

For those who like good, clean fun together with a good detective story, this picture is the answer. Powell is always good and especially so in this one. About average boxoffice. Tues., Wed. Weather: Rain-Snow. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Blackmail

A picture much like the rest, however it had enough plot and oomph in it to keep the crowd satisfied. Doubled it with a Jones family picture. About average boxoffice. Fri., Sat. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Dancing Coed

This is a swell show, pleased well and boxoffice above normal. Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 184.—R. C. Vantrease, Rex, Watertown, Tenn.

Fast and Furious

Plenty of laughs and that's what the people want now. Everyone enjoyed it. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Fast and Furious

Went over the best for a long time. Tone and Sothern make a good team. I think voice is the best on the screen. You can understand every word without any trouble. Sat., Sun. Weather: Stormy. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—Floyd Wolfe, Lynch, Lynch, Neb.

Ghost Comes Home, The

Interesting story, fair acting. Lousy boxoffice. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 2,800. Capacity: 300-200.—Sid Metcalf, Ritz and Metro, Purcell, Okla.

Goodbye, Mr. Chips

Very good acting in this but English pictures or settings don't go over in this town. Did not do so good on it. It is not a small town picture. Sat., Sun. Weather: Bad. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—Floyd Wolfe, Lynch, Lynch, Neb.

Strange Cargo

Undoubtedly Metro produced this picture because of the success of "On Borrowed Time." In this instance, however, the director and cast seem to have failed to get their hooks into the meat of the story and therefore it loses much of its original awe-inspiring quality in its transition to the screen. Gable and Crawford fit their roles perfectly, but that isn't enough. You have to respect Metro for taking such a big bite, but from what appears on the screen it would seem that someone had a few molars missing. Audience: Some went out raving—both for and against. The other half went out indifferent. Boxoffice: About average. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Paramount

Beau Geste

This one proved to be a total flop as far as the boxoffice went. However patrons who saw the picture were well pleased and liked it very much. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Jamaica Inn

Please don't ask me to pass comment on this one. When the customers came in, the sun was shining. When they left, they were in a fog. I don't blame them. I was, too. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Capacity: 668.—Frank Blocher, Kimbark, Chicago, Ill.

Star Maker, The

I played this late. The kids were great in this one. Bing not so bad, but Paramount put this as a special and on percentage and of course they add the score charge. Sat., Sun. Weather: Stormy. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—Floyd Wolfe, Lynch, Lynch, Neb.

RKO Radio

Nurse Edith Cavell

Anna Neagle and balance do a wonderful acting job, but the direction seems to lack the necessary pace to make the picture take hold. As is, the picture just unwinds and the audience watches without any reaction much one way or the other. Boxoffice: No good. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Pacific Liner

An average picture of its kind that had a good amount of action in it to keep up the interest. Played two lively shorts with it to balance out the program. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 15-10. Colored patronage. Capacity: 480.—W. C. Mathews, Frolic, Bessemer, Ala.

Three Sons

A sweet picture—but it lacked B. O. (Edward) Ellis turns in a wonderful performance. About time the public started giving him a little support. Tues., Wed. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Capacity: 668.—Frank Blocher, Kimbark, Chicago, Ill.

20th Century-Fox

Day-Time Wife

A good comedy, but not strong enough for Sunday. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Drums Along the Mohawk

Good picture that seemed to please most of my patrons, but personally I think there were entirely too many dark scenes. Mon., Tues. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 184.—R. C. Vantrease, Rex, Watertown, Tenn.

Hollywood Cavalcade

This is one of the best. Seemed to please my audience 100 per cent Business fair. Mon., Tues. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 184.—R. C. Vantrease, Rex, Watertown, Tenn.

Swanee River

We've just closed a three-day engagement of this feature, with the best business we've had in many a day. There was nary a complaint, except that it was sad, but in our opinion it's got about everything. Everyone had a good word for it, and we were truly sorry when the engagement was at an end. We sure can't say that for many pictures.—Walter Lavan, Park, El Dorado Springs, Mo.

United Artists

Man in the Iron Mask

Historical pictures die with us. We tried to sell this one but couldn't. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Mild. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Universal

Call a Messenger

A good programmer if your patrons like action. Business average. Tues., Wed., Thurs. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,500.—C. W. Ritenour, Milford, Milford, Ill.

I Stole a Million

A mighty fine picture, had quite a few comments from the small crowd which attended. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Laugh It Off

No good. When you show it you will have to laugh it off. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 380.—W. H. Mayfied, Clay, Celina, Tenn.

Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love

This one is sure good. Don't miss it. Tops for program picture. Everyone liked it. Good business both nights. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 380.—W. H. Mayfield, Clay, Celina, Tenn.

Tower of London

I wish Karloff had used that ax of his on the picture. No good for me. Plenty of squawks. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Capacity: 668.—Frank Blocher, Kimbark, Chicago, Ill.

Regular Price on "Wind" Was Erroneous Listing

The listing of "Gone With the Wind" at 40 cents and 10 cents in the report of E. A. Stein of Out-Wickenburg-Way Theatre, Wickenburg, Ariz., in the issue of March 23, was an error. The usual admission price scale of Mr. Stein's theatre was written instead of the roadshow prices of $1.00 evenings and 75-cent matinees prevailing throughout the country. Mr. Stein advises he is pursuing the roadshow scale on this picture.

Warner Bros.

A Child Is Born

I did not like this one, but the women did and I did good business. Wednesday. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 380.—W. H. Mayfield, Clay, Celina, Tenn.

Dead End Kids on Dress Parade

Not as good as the other Dead End Kid pictures. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 380.—W. H. Mayfield, Clay, Celina, Tenn.

Four Wives

It didn't seem to equal "Four Daughters," but the women liked it. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Time Spent on Shorts Proves Resourceful

CHICAGO—The careful selection and compilation of short subjects for the "Esquire Hour" at the Esquire for more than two years has proven a big draw.

Almost any day Harry and Elmer Balaban, the owners, can be found together with William Galligan, house manager, engrossed in screening shorts. Galligan cuts and chops the various newsreels to fit subjects together. One cartoon may not balance with a travelogue, so he has to cut in various spots, or at the last minute book a more suitable subject. Likewise, the entire short series must balance with the feature. All in all, it takes time and money, but the Balabans have found results well worth both.

The use of outstanding musical or dramatic sequences from feature-length pictures was started at the Esquire. They are still used and cut into the "Esquire Hour," whenever something appropriate is available.

"Interlochen" Campaign Under Way on Coast

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount's national campaign for "Interlochen" got underway April 4 when delegates to the biennial convention and festival of the Music Educators National Conference visited the studio. They were given a demonstration of music recording on a sound stage, with Allan Jones and Susanna Foster, both starred in "Interlochen," featured in music from the picture.

More than 15,000 visitors came in, among them being 10,000 youthful musicians, many of whom received training at famed Interlochen in Michigan.

Boxoffice Becomes House In N. J. "Wind" Stunt

PERTH AMBOY—Jerry Bookbinder of the Majestic remodeled his boxoffice into a replica of a southern ante bellum house during the advance sale of "GWTW."

CHARLOTTE—A local "Scarlett O'Hara" search made the front page of the Charlotte Observer in the course of the advance campaign for "GWTW" by Emil Bernstecker of the Carolina.

Indians Sell "Passage"

ATLANTA—Twelve Cherokee Indians were recruited by Eddie Pentecost of Loew's Grand to help with a "Northwest Passage" stunt he put on at a children's hospital.

WATERBURY—A book review contest, tied in with the local bookshop, was utilized by Ed Fitzpatrick, of Loew's Poli, as part of his "Northwest Passage" campaign.

Flash Front Gets Job Done—

Flash front, accomplished at little expense, which really got the job done for "Santa Fe Marshal" during its run at the Empire, San Antonio, Tex. Art work by "McBride," of the theatre staff.

"Blackout" in Slater Aids "Hunchback" Campaign

SLATER, MO.—Harold Sachse promoted "Hunchback of Notre Dame" with an unusual midnight show. He put out 1,000 handbills in Slater and surrounding towns advertising "A 'blackout' in Slater . . . It's all for our first 'blackout' midnight show. Mystery . . . Suspense . . . Excitement . . . It's different. Absolutely all lights will be turned out for the sublime entertainment spectacle of the decade."

In a window next to the theatre was a Maytag washer tub with rub-board and a card, one-sheet size, reading "Don't become like the Hunchback of Notre Dame . . . Maytag washers turn Hunchback to joyous minutes."

NUGGETS

TO promote "Three Cheers for the Irish," Larry Lehman of the Orpheum at Kansas City and Monroe Rubinger of Warner's exchange, arranged with Chief L. B. Reed for members of the police force to give 15 single tickets to safe motorists each day beginning with the opening.

●

With the warmer weather making its bow, Jimmy McConnell, Hamrick-Evergreen resident manager at Eugene, Ore., suddenly brought forth a fully-attired Santa Claus to parade the town's streets. Lettered on his shirt front was the explanation: "I came back to see 'Gone With the Wind.'"

●

Plenty word of mouth advertising was obtained by Floyd Faubion, manager of the Star and Plaza at Teague, Tex., when he built a grave upon a table in the lobby of his theatre, to advertise "Charlie McCarthy, Detective." The wording on the board tomb read, "Here lies a fellow who laughed himself to death when he saw "Charlie McCarthy, Detective."

Three-Week Buildup in Detroit for "Dr. X"

DETROIT—Exploitation for "The Return of Dr. X" at the Palms-State here centered on a three-week advance buildup with stage effects. A new trailer was used each week as well as special lobby displays. Ushers were called on to "double" as walking corpses, sinister figures of sundry sorts, stretcher bearers, etc., on the stage and in the aisles, during the running of the trailers.

Lobby displays included a collection of stretchers, oxygen tanks and medical equipment—all guaranteed eye-catchers.

As a final touch, a man was hired to walk the streets dressed as Santa Claus, with a sign reading, "I've been waiting since Christmas to see 'The Return of Dr. X.'"

The campaign was planned and executed by Manager Donald Kuhn.

Posters in N. Y. Schools To Publicize "Pinocchio"

NEW YORK—Through an endorsement and the cooperation of the Parent Teachers Ass'n, bulletins on "Pinocchio's" run at the Center have been sent for posting to all high school, grade, elementary and vocational schools in New York.

A second phase of the theatre's school promotion was the extending of invitations to editors of all school papers to see the film and review it for their respective publications.

A Sunday for Lincoln

KANSAS CITY—As one approach on his handling of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," Lawrence Lehman, manager of the Orpheum, arranged an Abraham Lincoln Sunday. The plan included sermons on the Great Emancipator in 15 Protestant churches. Parish priests in Catholic churches also made reference to the film.

DANGEROUS WITHOUT BRAKES

FROM behind a smoke screen cast up by innumerable cigarettes, David O. Selznick was remarking the other afternoon that murder in the foreign markets ought to galvanize peaceful pursuits at home.

Inevitably drawing upon his current experience with "Gone With the Wind," and a most natural process for him to indulge, the producer of that attraction expressed it as his belief affairs in the domestic scene not only can be maintained, but bettered, by more lavishness than even opulent Hollywood in jittery 1940 has mustered.

The theory is extensive enough to cover a number of films made without brakes on the treasury on the twin concept (1) they will be extraordinary enough to blow the current average of grosses sky high and (2) thereby confirm the much-discussed and infrequently demonstrated idea the domestic field has a long way to go yet before maximum heaves into sight.

Selznick ties in two required corollaries and one warning. The corollaries are story material warranting new-level negative costs and a variety of admission prices permitting the producer to get out with a handsome profit and the exhibitor, presumably, with some. The warning is the resistance he knows will be thrown up by the theatreman and the need, as he sees it, for a campaign to convince the showman the plan has sense. He also fully appreciates the difficulty of locating the material and quickly admits a number of producers probably would go broke in the attempt.

From the occasional word out of Hollywood these days, it is to be hoped ardently the effort is not already under way.

This, of course, is strictly an approach born out of "Gone With the Wind" and, to repeat, Selznick cannot be quickly blamed, if at all, for viewing part of the future in terms of the glow with which that film has enveloped him. As the producer of the $4,000,000 film that has returned cost and earnings from about one thousand engagements, he has that right which is more than can be said for Hollywood rivals who can turn to nothing in their own records by way of justifying a similar point of view.

Yet this department surveys such a prospect with misgivings. The general good would not be served by a trend like this.

It would represent too much of sheer gamble—even Selznick readily concedes he probably will never find another vehicle worthy of a chance to test his own theory.

It would strain the industry's financial structure.

It would size up as a voyage perilously close to the jumping off place in times when brains, coupled with dollars but certainly not the latter alone, are on test.

By far the soundest fundamental for this business to follow is one of conservatism drawing its detail from the general pattern of known equations. They are simple and cannot be repeated too often:

Reliance on overseas returns is shot and that does not mean no revenue is coming from abroad. But where it is not frozen tight, it is solidifying in directions which ever and again, stress the essential nature of the domestic field.

The answer and the survival are here, not in any other country. Costs, therefore, must be geared to known, not to speculative and ambitious, possibilities.

This does not mean cheap pictures. Neither does it mean less quality. Very definitely, however, it does mean attractions more ingeniously and more cleverly tooled out of budgets, still generous, which make investments safe prospects for adequate returns within the confines of the American market.

This is the one road leading to a safe and final journey.

TRIAL POSTPONEMENT BEYOND MAY 1 SEEN INEVITABLE; MAJORS TO REQUEST DELAY

Field Witness Checkups By Majors Expected To Take 2 Months

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—More than ever before does it become apparent that it will be the majors who will seek a delay in the government suit and not the plaintiff as the May 1 date nears. Major counsel, in most cases, are not prone to admit this, but those speaking frankly see it no other way.

An intensive campaign of investigation is being carried on by the majors who are checking into the 680 probable witnesses listed by the plaintiff. Each company is acting independently with branch managers, salesmen and checkers digging up whatever information possible on the names submitted by the home office.

This checkup will take at least two more months to complete, it is held, with exchanges conscripting everyone with any knowledge of the facts into service.

As soon as the data dribbles into the home offices, the lawyers then begin to correlate the complaint and findings in each territory.

Many Listed Are Dead

From reports which have already filtered into some headquarters, close to 50 of the probable witnesses have been dead for some time; others recently passed away. Also, it is claimed in a number of cases, no complaints to the government were ever made by the men whose names appear on the lists. This leads distributors to believe these exhibitors may have been mentioned by others who have a grievance and who have telegraphed it to the government.

That the government is further prepared to go to trial on the appointed day is suggested by the fact it already has ordered 14 witnesses beyond the 100-mile area to be ready for appearance on or after May 1.

In addition, it is held that the dispatch with which information ordered from the government by Judge Goddard was supplied indicates there will be no dilly-dallying by the department of justice.

Inside legal circles, lawyers see the government playing a smart game, a contest with distributors, by keeping them in doubt as to the actual facts and issues in the case. This is deductible by virtue of Paul Williams and his assistants' continued declaration that the information the government has is "hearsay," and that the witnesses to be called will produce and testify to the actual evidence. In other words, the department of justice is not tipping its hand.

Yet, it still is striving to get the trial under way on the appointed day. In some quarters, this is viewed as a tactic designed to move distributors into line for the consent decree which is under serious discussion.

As some insiders size up the situation, the delay in checking or in contacting probable witnesses is regarded as the most likely reason for seeking a postponement. Lawyers also point to the past by emphasizing that rarely has a first request for a delay been refused by the courts, no matter how loosely the facts may hold together. Impressing as feasible, too, is the stand expected to be assumed by the distributors that a postponement will prove less onerous on the bench in that the trial period may be shortened.

Allied Looks to the Government

WASHINGTON—Asked to comment on negotiations looking toward a consent decree, H. A. Cole, president, and Abram F. Myers, chairman of the board of Allied, go into a combination on this:

"Major companies having ignored Allied's suggestion regarding arbitration last winter and having chosen to treat only with the government, we are relegated to the same procedure and hence do not think a statement would be appropriate.

"It is the government's prerogative to make announcements on matters under consideration by it and we imagine that, in due course, the government will speak, or act, and that will be that."

Complete Company Accord Not Required for Consent Decree

WASHINGTON—Refusal of some of the defendants in the industry suit to go along with others in the development and submission of consent decree proposals would not, of necessity, make ineffective the efforts of the latter to secure an out-of-court settlement, according to qualified observers.

While the department of justice prefers to have all parties to a case covered by a single decree, there have been several instances where a decree was accepted with respect to part of the defendants and the others taken to trial.

Most notable recent instance of this nature was in the automobile financing prosecutions, when the department accepted one consent decree covering four companies and another submitted separately by the Chrysler Company and then took to trial and won its case against General Motors, which had refused to participate in a settlement.

Accordingly, it is said at the department, there would be no bar to the acceptance of a consent decree from four or five of the eight companies involved in the New York suit. In such an event, the case would simply be dismissed as to those defendants and be continued as to the others.

Department of justice officials are highly skeptical of a consent decree in the New York suit and refuse to hazard an opinion as to how such a settlement would take care of the circuits.

However, it is pointed out, any agreement signed by the major companies would apply with equal force to all subsidiaries and affiliates. The case of the independent chains might be somewhat different, but several have suits pending against them and it is expected they will be dealt with on the basis of the results of those suits.

However, it is made clear, no consent decree accepted in the New York case would cover the whole industry. It would apply only to those companies signatory to it.

Midnight, April 30--Or Beyond

NEW YORK—Why proponents of an end to the government suit, via the consent decree method, are working against time:

Unless the trial date, now earmarked for May 1, is delayed, such a decree must be signed by midnight April 30. If, however, a postponement is granted, the deadline automatically extends itself in like manner.

A decree may be entered upon after the trial gets under way. However, under Section 5 of the Clayton act, the terms may be used in private law suits or as the basis for new litigation if evidence for as short a period as one day is taken. This opens the way to a flood of triple damage suits, running into more millions than any authoritative source has been able to calculate successfully. The majors know the possibilities.

But, if a decree is entered before trial, the terms may not be used in evidence, or as the basis of any other action, presently on the docket or filed at any future date.

ENABLING LEGISLATION BOLSTERING DECREE A MIRACLE THIS SESSION, CAPITAL FEELS

Seen Possible Only If Every Trade Faction In Complete Accord

WASHINGTON—Old Father Time this week assumed a dominating role in the efforts of the major companies to resolve their differences with the government.

If those differences are to be settled by translation of the principles of the consent decree now being negotiated into law by act of Congress, time is the principal element of consideration.

Congressional leaders say Congress can adjourn before June 1. In practice, that would probably work out as some time in June or early July—at any rate before the Democratic national convention.

Thus, with but two—or at the best, three—months of the session left, the major question is, would and could Congress enact a broadly amended Neely bill which would incorporate the principles of the proposed decree?

Accord Essential

In Washington, it is said this is possible only if every interest in the industry is agreed that that is the proper solution, if all interests impress upon Congress their desire for this form of settlement—and if there is no effort by anybody at behind-the-scenes influencing of members of Congress. Additionally, enactment of such legislation presupposes a general agreement among those members that the bill should be enacted without debate, which spells delay.

The general consensus is that it cannot be done this year.

Reports to Washington indicate that there is no reason to suppose that all interests in the industry would favor such a bill. There is no reason to believe that Congress, which has seen this issue fought bitterly over a period of more than a decade, would accept without question the change of heart which would seem now to be imbuing the distributors with brotherly love for the exhibitors, and the latter with gratitude and forgetfulness of the past.

Aside from the question of time, the technical details involved in the enactment of the suggested legislation also are important. Doubt as to the potency of the proposed law in the light of the present anti-trust statutes has been expressed, and the thought has been voiced that the latter might have to be amended to make the former possible. Such a move would have no chance of success this session. It would involve the consideration of the effect of such amendment generally—as to industries other than motion pictures—and is not a task to be lightly undertaken.

In seeking a legislative settlement of an anti-trust suit, the motion picture industry is groping in heretofore unexplored territory. The situation has never before arisen, and in fact could arise only in an industry like the film business.

In Washington it is generally believed that the suggestion for legislation is a defensive move on the part of the major companies rather than a desire for federal regulation. The theory is that a law clearly defining the policies to be followed in the distribution of motion pictures would be general in application, whereas a consent decree would apply only to those companies involved in the suit; thus, the distributors now under attack would be protected against any others who, under a consent decree, might be free to operate as they will, without restraint.

Another angle suggested is that under a law, the distributors would be protected against each other, and if one committed a violation the others would be in no danger of being involved in any ensuing proceedings. And, further, penalties for violation of the law probably would be less severe than those which might be meted out for violation of a consent decree and without the latter's danger of paving the way for triple-damage suits.

There is no reason to believe that the independent exhibitors, who have been fighting the major companies for years and now undeniably have them with their backs to the wall, would give their support to legislation of the sort which appears now to be desired, according to informed opinion here.

It is the impression here they would prefer to have the distributors in a position where they can be brought into court quickly. Under a law, they would be back at scratch; every violation would be a new case, the cases would be scattered all over the country and would have to be tried in the districts in which the violations occurred. It would be much simpler, it is represented, to have the companies under court order, with the threat of really heavy penalties hanging over their heads.

No Guide Posts

There are no precedents for the film situation. Never has Congress sought definitely to lay down the terms and conditions under which an industry shall do business. It has ordered that certain practices shall be prohibited—as in the case of the Robinson-Patman anti-price discrimination act—but those prohibitions apply to all industries and trades alike.

The furthest Congress has ever gone in industry regulation is in the coal control act, in the communications act and similar measures, and in those instances, it set up federal agencies to administer the law—and those agencies are exercising very broad powers, particularly the federal communications commission which can and does put broadcasters out of business for violating its regulations.

The question interesting observers here is, would the film industry like step-by-step control under a federal commission which might at any moment, even though not specifically authorized by Congress, go into the field of censorship?

The suggestion that the situation be

They Know "From Nothing"

NEW YORK—None of the lawyers "on the firing line" for the majors in the all-industry suit presumes to be informed of developments which may eventually lead to a settlement. The theory seems to be to keep the legal battery preparing the suit undisturbed so that, in the event an amicable agreement is not reached with the government, the actual trial will proceed unhampered.

Department of justice representatives appear to be working along the same lines. Special assistants to the attorney general in New York and Washington confess they are in the dark on what is going on. Hence, they are inclined to deny all reports of any out-of-court disposition of the suit.

Less Wear on Swivel Chairs

NEW YORK—Those comfortable revolving chairs, a necessary piece of equipment in every sales manager's office, would be submitted to less wear and tear if the industry suit is settled by consent decree under its present terms. The reason is a cinch and here it is:

Limiting sales to exchange territories would mean a buyer must strike his deal in the exchange center which serves the theatres for which he proposes buying. Example: Charlie Skouras, sparring around for a deal blanketing southern California, would do it at Washington and Vermont, which is Fox West Coast headquarters in New York.

If the deal were to be with Warner and Grad Sears would want to sit in, he'd have to transport himself to Los Angeles. Ditto on Carl Leserman. Or any other headquarters executive designated for the job.

Comes the consent decree, there'll be a new high in traveling expenses for all sales operations. But the swivel chairs—they'll get a break.

PRECEDENTS FOR DECREE-INTO-LAW PROPOSAL ARE UNKNOWN, OBSERVERS AT CAPITAL ASSERT

dealt with by legislation is in line with the belief of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold that the anti-trust statutes should be made more effective by laws directed at individual industries. But anti-trust legislation applied to individual industries would not outline the methods or policies to be followed—it would be a prohibitive measure, setting forth that certain practices would be unlawful. There might be some difference of opinion between the industry and the department of justice as to what should go into the law.

Two final points remain. One is the question of the government's attitude toward a consent decree to which all parties do not agree. There is some question whether the department would accept a consent decree from four companies and proceed against a fifth in a case in which the relations between the several companies is the basis for some of the issues. Conspiracy to restrain trade had been charged by the government—and it takes two to conspire. It is believed in usually reliable quarters that no consent decree will be accepted to which all of the defendants do not subscribe.

Detail May Prove Snag

The other question deals with the content of the legislation which it is proposed to seek. In Washington, it is believed that if everything that is going into the consent decree is to go into the modified Neely bill, the measure will sink when launched. Too much detail might be fatal to the bill; yet without every item which has been under consideration in connection with the settlement of the suit, the measure could not be a full substitute for a consent decree.

As the situation stands, the department of justice is prepared to fight the case to a finish but is sympathetic to proposals for a consent-decree settlement. It is not regarded as likely, however, to dismiss the case in favor of legislation, unless the legislation already has been enacted by Congress when the proposal is made. Nor, is it believed, will be the department undertake to ask for postponement of trial on the chance of getting legislation; it probably would be reluctant to ask a postponement on the chance of getting a consent decree.

Familiars with the situation point to this: The department of justice did not feel that the companies had improved their position when they began to suggest a consent decree. On the contrary, it imbued department officials with confidence that finally, after years of effort, they actually had a chance to bring about major changes in the motion picture structure and a possibility of winning many of the issues they had raised.

Accordingly, the government believes it is in a position to dictate the terms of peace and will not be disposed to accept any procedure which it has reason to suspect may deprive it of the fullest fruits of its victory.

A Lot of Early History Was Reviewed— —Photo by Cosmo-Sileo

Accompanying Adolph Zukor into the government's den where the chairman of Paramount's board made his deposition before trial in the all-industry suit were three lawyers. In left to right order, the group includes Former Judge Thomas D. Thacher of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, special attorneys for the company; the witness; Louis Phillips, of Paramount's home office counsel, and Albert C. Bickford of Thacher's office.

Eastern Witnesses Come First; Then Further West As Needed

NEW YORK—In line with the government's plan to take each state by itself in the prosecution of the all-industry suit, witnesses from the eastern part of the country will be called upon first to testify. Exhibitors and others "having relevant facts" from New York will be the starters. Contiguous territories, such as New Jersey, New England and Pennsylvania are expected to be in the second group of witnesses. As the case proceeds witnesses from areas further removed from New York will be summoned.

It may be that no witnesses may be called from the far west. It is a certainty Col. H. A. Cole, president of Allied, will be one of the government's "must" men to testify about alleged evils existing in the industry. With his brother, he operates two houses in Greenville, Tex.

One of the surprises, according to major counsel, is the presence of Nathan Yamins, former head of Independent Exhibitors of New England, in the government's lineup. His understanding of code problems during the NRA and subsequent negotiations with distributors on trade practices cannot be reconciled with the position he has taken, these lawyers profess to believe. Further, he has asked for immunity from reprisals, intimidation and other acts imposed which may bear on the operation of his three Fall River, Mass., theatres.

The government, through spokesman handling its suit, states it wants to conduct the case as economically as it possibly can. Its chief expense is not in counsel fees, such as distributors are experiencing, but in bringing witnesses to New York.

Witnesses are usually paid their mileage to and from point of origin, plus $3 a day for hotel and living expense. Hence, it is to the advantage of the department of justice to call exhibitors as near New York as possible and then decide later if others from distant points are necessary.

This all depends on the speed with which the case progresses. There is no advance information on the number of witnesses to be called and how long the prosecution will take to present its issues. However, one thing is practically certain, and that is there will be an in-

THEATRE DIVORCEMENT NEW NEELY BLAST; WOULD ALLOW 18 MONTHS FOR DIVESTMENT

Flatly Bans Distributor-Producer Ownership; Penalties Heavy

WASHINGTON—Divestiture by the integrated companies of their theatre interests is demanded by Senator M. M. Neely (Dem., W. Va.) in legislation which he has introduced in Congress.

The application for an unlimited divorce was filed with the Senate April 9. It provides flatly that "it shall be unlawful for any producer or distributor of motion picture films engaged in commerce to own, control, manage, buy or book films for, or operate, in whole or in part, any motion picture theatre or theatres located in any state, territory or the District of Columbia, or to have any interest, direct or indirect, legal or equitable, through stock ownership or otherwise in any such motion picture theatre or theatres."

The bill defines a person to be engaged in commerce if he "engages in transactions whereby motion picture films produced in one state are by the producer or a subsidiary or affiliated corporation of such producer shipped to film laboratories and to local exchanges in other states, or are by the producer sold, leased or licensed at the point of production to a distributor and so shipped to film laboratories or local exchanges in other states, and, in either case, are distributed by the local exchanges in the several states to motion picture theatres in various cities and towns throughout the United States, the films moving from the studios to the laboratories and thence to the exchanges, thereafter circulating from the exchanges to and between the various theatres. Persons normally engaged in such commerce, and films normally in the course of such commerce, shall not be considered out of such commerce through resort being had to any means or device intended to remove persons or transactions from the provisions of this act."

Record of Holdings

The bill would give the companies 18 months in which to divest themselves of all theatre holdings and interests. However, within 30 days after the passage of the act, every producer or distributor engaged in commerce would be required to file with the attorney general an affidavit stating whether he owns, controls, manages, buys or books films for, or operates in whole or in part, any motion picture theatre, or has any interest, direct or indirect, legal or equitable, through stock ownership or otherwise, in any theatre.

A similar affidavit would have to be filed annually, on or before January 15, and if any producer or distributor has any interest in or connection with any theatre, he must state fully the nature and extent of such interest or connection.

Enforcement of the law would be administered locally, with the several district courts empowered to hear cases brought by prosecuting authorities. Violations of the law would be subject to penalties of not more than $5,000 in fines or not more than one year's imprisonment, or both; directors, officers and agents of corporations could be held personally severally responsible for violations by their companies, and the courts, in preventing and restraining violations would be empowered to order the divestiture of theatres or interests in theatres held in defiance of the act.

Theory Behind Proposal

The theory back of the legislation was disclosed in the preamble to the bill, in which it was set forth that "the condition which exists in the motion picture industry whereby certain producers and distributors of motion picture films (1) produce and distribute in commerce a majority of the quality films available for exhibition, (2) have acquired control of or an interest in a large number of motion picture theatres, known as 'affiliated theatres,' and (3) are continuing to acquire additional theatres, is contrary to public policy in that it (a) has resulted in granting to affiliated theatres undue preferences, (b) has caused unfair discrimination against independent theatres with respect to the leasing of films in commerce, (c) has enabled such producers and distributors to acquire a virtual monopoly of the first-run theatres in the principal cities and a virtual monopoly of subsequent-run theatres in certain cities and sections, (d) interferes with the freedom and opportunity of independent exhibitors to select and obtain an adequate supply of quality films for exhibition in their theatres, (e) prevents the people of the several states and the local communities thereof from influencing such selection in the best interests of the public, and (f) tends to create a monopoly in the production, distribution and exhibition of films in commerce.

"The Congress," the bill holds, "finds and declares that the condition herein described and the methods and practices bringing it about and resulting therefrom adversely affect and constitute a burden upon commerce, and it is the purpose of this act to eliminate such condition by making it unlawful to engage in such practices."

"The bill supplements my other bill to prevent the compulsory block booking and blind selling of motion pictures which has been twice passed by the senate and is now pending in the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce," Senator Neely explained in introducing the measure. "The passage of these bills will accomplish important and necessary reforms in the public interest. I hope for early action on both measures."

The legislation, he said, is parallel to the law enacted by North Dakota in 1937, but approaches the problem from the other end in that the North Dakota law prohibited the operation of any theatre in which a producer or distributor had any interest whereas the national bill would prohibit any producer or distributor from having any such interest.

The state law, he pointed out, was unanimously affirmed by a statutory Federal court consisting of Circuit Judges Sanborn and Thomas and District Judge Sullivan, whose decision referred specifically to the "power and influence inherent in the combination of production, distribution and exhibition.

"Separation of production and distribution from exhibition is the only effective remedy," Senator Neely asserted, "since the evils are inherent in the combining of these functions and the motive and temptation to discriminate in favor of the affiliated theatres and against the independent theatres will continue as long as the combination endures."

"Proper for Legislation"

The decision of the court in the North Dakota case and the "known facts of the situation," he contended, "make it plain that the subject is proper for legislation and that the bill when enacted will be sustained by the courts. In fact, I am convinced that while the measure makes specific provision in regard to a particular industry it really is declaratory of the common law on the subject of restraint of trade and the divestiture is in line with the remedy applied by the courts in Sherman anti-trust act cases."

"In introducing this bill I desire to call public attention to the amazing record of the major producers and distributors,

Senator Neely Has A Panacea for It

Washington—A United Press dispatch from Monongah, West Va., quotes Senator Neely, author of the anti compulsory block booking bill on other matters. He would appoint John L. Lewis secretary of the navy and Joe Louis secretary of war, if he were President. "Then let any bewhiskered or mustachioed gentleman like Stalin or Hitler look cockeyed at the American flag and they'd regret it."

Seen as Notice Consent Decree Must Embrace Gov't Suit Aims

EARLY SELLING STYMIED BY DECREE TALKS; 10 COMPANIES TO BULK ABOUT 498 FEATURES

Uncertain Boundaries Of Sales Policies Add to Confusion

NEW YORK—Early selling, which appeared likely, now is regarded as remote, in the opinion of a majority of sales managers. This switch now holds forth, despite first indications from various distributors they would advance their sales conventions to this month and next.

As it stands now, however, the majors, plus Republic and Monogram, point to a total of 498 features for the 1940-41 season.

Directly responsible for delaying full-blast sales activities are the negotiations now being conducted with the government, looking for a possible settlement of the all-industry suit via the consent decree method. The situation in that direction is susceptible to drastic change in working formulas, although it is widely assumed that, if a settlement is reached, full-time forcing must end. There is a possibility, as well, that the blocks-of-five arrangement will be numerically revamped. In view of this, it is pointed out that, obviously, it is impossible to make selling plans now that will hold later.

Time for Chain Deals

Normally, the time of the year is approaching when distributors sit down with major circuits to discuss deals for the next season. These meetings are being held in abeyance until it is learned what pattern is to be followed. If the sales stipulation, as currently set up in the tentative consent decree draft holds, circuit palavers which have been common to the New York scene until now, will be out in favor of contracts discussed and drawn in the exchange city out of which the contracting theatres are served.

Distributors would view unwound sales as costly in point of operation. Several of them privately are frank enough to declare the uppage in overhead would have to be borne by circuits and individual exhibitors and that they would expect the theatre fraternity to meet the new situation with a full realization of its various angles.

Quality Is Oboe Note

Another distributor viewpoint subscribes to the anticipation exhibitors would be willing to pay more for certain attractions for the right to buy them in small blocks.

Quality again will be the oboe note of all conventions during the next few months. Each studio is striving for a better lineup of product and, if the small block sales plan is adopted, higher quality output would be sought to the fullest extent by all producers, it is anticipated.

A. Montague is seriously thinking of a May convention for Columbia. He has not determined on the number of films for 1940-41, but the total is expected to be about 48, exclusive of shorts.

M-G-M will adhere to its regular policy by announcing 44 to 52, the stress being on the latter number. William F. Rodgers, general sales head, states he has not given thought to a convention at this time.

Monogram franchise holders meet in Dallas, April 21-22 when W. Ray Johnston, president, and Edward A. Golden, sales head, will divulge plans for 50 features and eight John Wayne reissues.

No change is forecast for Paramount. Neil F. Agnew, sales head, returns in a few days from a vacation in Mexico City. Before he left he stated he planned on a mid-May convention of branch, district and division managers in Los Angeles. The company has 58 this season.

Republic most likely will hold regional sessions, as in the past, with no change in the numerical lineup of 50 features and four serials indicated.

RKO has definitely set its annual get-together for May 27-30 at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. According to George J. Schaefer, president, the schedule will comprise 52, with as many "A" films as can be turned out. The company for the current season announced four more than the goal for 1940-41.

Twentieth Century-Fox leads the vanguard, having held its annual meetings in Chicago over the weekend where 52 features and as many shorts were listed.

While UA is looking forward to an early convention, Murray Silverstone, on his return from the coast, stated 11 producers are slated to contribute about 30 pictures. Although advance indications are Samuel Goldwyn is not committed, those presumably in the know feel the producer will have at least two, or more, on the roster.

William A. Scully, sales generalissimo for Universal, has returned from a visit to the studio with anticipations of 58 features, the same number as this year. Serials and shorts will not change in number and this goes for the 104 issues of the newsreel. There will be two early May conventions for Universal with Atlantic City and Chicago as the probable cities.

Gradwell L. Sears is on the coast conferring with Harry M. and Jack L. Warner on next season's plans. The indication here is for 48, the same as this season, with a convention possibly in May.

1940-41 Score Card

New York—It's subject to change, in some instances, but the possibilities are against any switches in these lineups for the new season:

Columbia	48
M-G-M	52
Monogram	50
Paramount	58
Republic	50
RKO	52
20th-Fox	52
United Artists	30
Universal	58
Warner	48
Total	498

It Works Like This; Sometimes, Anyway

New York—Strange as it may seem, competition in some situations has brought down prices. So stated A. Montague, who went on to explain in his pre-trial deposition:

"Take Woonsocket, R. I. where we did a nice business with a lone account. Opposition came into the town. He crowded the original house, which then couldn't afford to pay the price. He went down. We stayed along with him and even now he is our customer."

Greene, the Columbia customer, first had an independent as a competitor, then Paramount came in.

Overseating also may spoil a situation, Montague held.

Higher Quality Target Of Studios in Talk Of Small Blocks

Same Number From Republic Next Year, Says Yates

LAWRENCE, KAS.—Republic will have the same number of films for the 1940-41 season that it has for 1939-40, of which 24 will be westerns, according to Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Laboratories, Inc., and chairman of the Republic board. Republic's current list is 50 features.

Budgets will remain at substantially the same as prevailed for the current season, and hiked on individual pictures that show signs of extra drawing power, despite the fact that the war and attendant currency restrictions have reduced Republic's income 18 per cent, Yates said.

Of the features in the new season's lineup, at least four will be high-budgeted fare, he said, asserting that the details will be developed for presentation to the annual sales convention at a yet-to-be-determined date and location.

Asked for his views on the progress of negotiations for an out-of-court settlement of the government's suit against the major distributors, Yates smiled. "We are not being sued by the government," he said.

Shortly after the elaborate twin-theatre world premiere here of "The Dark Command," Yates returned to New York with James R. Grainger, president.

Notes to You from Red Kann

HAVING concentrated some attention on him on page three, David O. Selznick slops over into part of this space as well today.

Optimism on a high plane is reflected in his conviction that "B" pictures will go into complete discard in five years. We were always a victim of the impression a couple of weeks represents the outside limitation of forecasts in this business. Anyway.

Selznick thinks that, when the "B" dies, the public will have been lifted to a point in its tastes, either inflicted on the producer or in reverse, where the demise will be from natural causes because the demand no longer will exist. Therefore, the elimination of the need.

This, of course, envisions an entirely new kind of business. It suggests double features will become a matter for the archives, that perhaps exclusive runs will return to the business once more, that certainly extended runs in a true meaning of the adjective will be general around the country and that the two-or-three-changes-per-week house will be viewed as something which once was.

Some of these deductions become pretty obvious stuff. Obvious, for instance, in that the "B" picture will not shrivel up and decay unless several of these eventualities come to pass. For, as long as the double feature thrives, the minor efforts have to be made. Too, as long as anything less than a week's run is to be found in the national exhibition picture, the second-letter attraction remains a market requirement.

It goes further. When the alert Selznick happily contemplates no "B's," he naturally contemplates all "A's." We would more readily lean toward a general subscribing of his forecast if he, or anyone else for that matter, would suggest how the liquidation of the one guarantees a blossoming in the other. We suppose there is some truth in the generally accepted argument that, in making fewer pictures, the chance lurks the residue might be better. But, unfortunately, something goes awry in transferring the theory from paper to practice and the result easily could be that many of the "A's" will emerge as something else. This presents the likely possibility that "A" budgets will result in "B" values and it may even be negatives costing more will return less.

In no way would this of necessity impugn Hollywood's considerable overall abilities. The explanation, we feel, is to be found in the lack of sufficient adequate manpower to produce several hundred genuine attractions a year, if the material were there which it is not. The truth clearly is that this is not in the cards. It never has been and, to bravely cover all times to come, it never will be in an industry which must make its merchandise by the wholesale lot no matter how it may trim the total manufacture.

Slant on Duals

The single feature, plus selected shorts, hasn't a chance according to three major chain operators, according to Harold Heffernan in his syndicated N.A.N.A. column from Hollywood. In widely separated areas where the return of prodigal was hunted, singles resulted in a drop ranging from thirty to seventy per cent, he reports. But of chief interest is a slant not usually mentioned in the double film controversy, if it is still that after all these years. "Duals first popped into the movie landscape early in 1930 as a depression antidote," is Heffernan's historical statement, to which he appends:

"It mustn't be overlooked that ten years of duals have reared an entirely new audience that can't even remember the days of single feature shows. This faction would not submit to a return to the slimmer diet without a bitter battle. Ask any moviegoer between the ages of 12 and 20 (and this youthful group comprises at least fifteen per cent) to state a preference and you'd get an almost solid vote in favor of doubles—and the longer the show the better."

.00157 Per Cent

Simple mathematics, applied once over to the Legion of Decency's activities, prove interesting. Nine pictures of 573 reviewed in 1939 were condemned; that's how the percentage of the whole got into caption form above. But of this bracket of nine, five were domestically made and the remaining four, foreign. On the basis of the 511 produced in this country and reviewed, rejections, therefore, reduce to less than one per cent. Or .0099 per cent if you want it in decimals.

That's quite a performance.

"Slot Films" to Get Under Way Shortly

CHICAGO—Jimmy Roosevelt will start production immediately on three-minute 16mm films that will be used in the slot-machine movies to be put out by the Mills-Globe Co. Roosevelt planed to Chicago to make final the preliminary deal he announced some months ago.

Roosevelt is expected to have some films ready for the machines when the first ones come off the assembly lines in about six weeks.

BOXOFFICE learns that the contract signed between Globe Productions (Roosevelt producing company) and Mills is for a 12-month period, calls for production of between 16,000 and 18,000 machines the first year, and for six shorts monthly from Roosevelt's studios.

Tentative name for the coin-machine movies is Teletone, and it is understood they will sell for around $500 each.

It also is learned that the Scott Automatic Nite-Site Co., Inc., of Hollywood, claims patent rights on the machines and has informed Mills Novelty Co. here that the Mills-Globe machines are an infringement. The Scott Company has patents Number 1,940,148, 2,008,878, 2,020,521, 2,088,096, 2,094,162, 2,120,005, 2,150,992 and 2,144,088, which they claim directly cover all such machines. A. B. Scott, who developed the machines, is head of the Scott Company, and passed through Chicago this week en route to the west coast after eastern conferences.

Sound Directors to Coast After Erpi Study Session

NEW YORK—Sound directors of major studios have returned to their posts after a week here as guests of Erpi for a study of recent and pending technical improvements in film recording and reproduction. The visit was in line with Erpi's policy of establishing close relationship between Bell Laboratories, its own research engineers and the studio licensees of Western Electric sound recording.

Clifford W. Smith, Hollywood vice-president of Erpi, was in charge of the trip. Others in the party included Douglas Shearer, M-G-M; Elmer Raguse, Hal Roach studios; E. H. Hansen, 20th Century-Fox; Loren L. Ryder, Paramount; John Licadary, Columbia; Thomas Moulton, Goldwyn studios; Bernard Brown, Universal; E. I. Sponable, Fox-Movietone News; Jack Whitney, General Service Studios, and K. F. Morgan, Erpi's commercial manager.

No New Cosmopolitan Deal With 20th-Fox Yet

NEW YORK—There are no new deals for distribution of Cosmopolitan pictures under way at present, although an arrangement may be made with a major company at a later date, Edgar B. Hatrick, general manager of Hearst's film enterprises, stated upon his return from Miami. Cosmopolitan's four picture deal with 20th Century-Fox expired recently.

Sequel to "Wind" Not Likely; So Thinks Selznick Anyway

High Point Reached, Only It's in Reverse

New York—Foreign departments, according to one executive, are reaching a millennium in reverse.

"If things get any worse," he says, "we won't have any worries left."

NEW YORK—A sequel to "Gone With the Wind," continuing the characters of Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler is not likely "although it is obvious it would prove a killing," according to David O. Selznick.

In answer to a question, he tells BOXOFFICE he had heard reports M-G-M was endeavoring either to persuade Margaret Mitchell, author of the novel, to write a follow up or permit the studio to use a story already roughed with the two principal characters.

Selznick expects to deliver two for UA release next season as part of a continuing arrangement the exact terms of which he declared he did not recall. Probably one will star Vivien Leigh whom he has under contract with a proviso allowing her to do an outside picture each year and the second, Ingrid Bergman, who first appeared in "Intermezzo." Alfred Hitchcock, the director, is also under S-I contract for five years.

While "Gone With the Wind" is slated for release in its current form right down the line, its producer declares there is a possibility some day it may be released as two full features. "Joan of Arc" with Miss Bergman is slated as a big one, but all reports about a budgeted $4,000,000 for it is "nonsense," according to Selznick. On the future, he foresees economic stringency precipitated by the foreign markets dictating fewer pictures out of Hollywood. Likewise does he believe production is breaking up into independent units along lines of the Capra and Lasky deals with Warner.

Declaring every kind of film has a right to be made, Selznick feels "propaganda" pictures ought to be so designated so that the public will know what it will see. On a direct question as to what constitutes propaganda and who is to determine it, Selznick offered no direct reply.

The producer proposes going ahead with the Benchley series of shorts talked of some time ago. Following a few weeks here, he will return to Hollywood and, by his present plans, spend a long vacation in South America.

Sees Buying Power Uptrend in Earnings

NEW YORK—Evidences of increased consumer purchasing power so far this year are reflected in indicated first quarter earnings of Paramount and Loew's, which are "expected to top the corresponding 1939 periods," states the Wall Street Journal.

Despite the effects of war on foreign income earnings, Loew's will report larger earnings for the 16 weeks ended March 15 than the 1939 first-quarter net of $3,388,744, the article declares. The increase is attributed to "Gone With the Wind."

"Paramount, with its production operations now in black figures and its theatre chain doing better than last year, will report bigger earnings for the March 31 quarter than the 41 cents a share reported for the common a year ago," it is said.

If the war should be prolonged, Loew's 1941 earnings may have to depend primarily on domestic rentals and theatre receipts since a further decline in the pound sterling or further restrictions on exchange are possible, the article points out. Meanwhile, it adds, profits this year as a result of "Wind" may run close to the $5.37 a share earned in 1939.

Paramount is pictured as suffering "less from the decline in foreign income than most of the producers because it has the largest chain of theatres. As a result film income and foreign revenues are a small percentage of total gross and fluctuations in domestic theatre attendance far outweigh foreign business in affecting profits."

The article states Warner, for the quarter ended in February, "will probably show a net of less than $1,000,000 against $1,562,084 in the quarter ended Feb. 25, 1939."

Drop Ramish and Rogers As Defendants in Suit

NEW YORK—Adolph Ramish and Charles R. Rogers, the former a director and the latter one time vice-president in charge of Universal production, have been dropped as defendants in the all-industry suit since neither is now identified with the company. Charles Prutzman, head of "U's" legal department, has been substituted for Ramish.

The Ramish angle is interesting because, as a result of the fact he was the only individual to file an answer to the government's opening charges, the action was placed on the trial calendar.

See "U" Cochrane Buyout "Unloading" Refutation

NEW YORK—The purchase by eight Universal executives of "all the available" stock holdings of R. H. Cochrane, former president, is termed "a clear cut refutation of reports that we are disposing of our stock" by a spokesman for the group of new buyers.

While declining to reveal the number of shares that changed hands, this source declares Cochrane's holdings "or all that we could find" were taken up. The former president was said to have held about 15 per cent of the common shares.

In the group that acquired the stock are J. Cheever Cowdin, Nate J. Blumberg, Matthew J. Fox, Cliff Work, W. A. Scully, Charles D. Prutzman, Joseph H. Seidelman and Milton Feld.

20th-Fox to Continue Blocks Unless Gov't Writes New Deal

CHICAGO—Twentieth Century-Fox will follow the general outlines of its long-standing policy of selling in a block unless the government or the major companies work out a different kind of formula, Herman Wobber, general manager of distribution, told BOXOFFICE.

Completing a three-day sales convention at the Drake, Wobber informed the approximate 248 delegates in attendance that the company again will release 52 features next season, 18 of which will be produced personally by Darryl F. Zanuck, four by Sol M. Wurtzel and four by Lucien Hubbard.

[The properties from which the new lineup will be drawn were published in all available detail in last week's issue of BOXOFFICE.]

Additionally, however, Zanuck will turn to the following hitherto unnamed vehicles for the new program:

"For Beauty's Sake," by Clarence Budington Kelland.
"Down on the Wabash."
"Too Much for One Man."
"Steinmetz, the Wizard."
"Comrade Stalin."
"Sun Valley."
"Falling Star."
"Strange Bedfellows."
"The Bride Wore Crutches."

Jane Withers will appear in four as will Cesar Romero in four Cisco Kids. As reported, the London studio is expected to furnish a like number.

Aside from Wurtzel and Hubbard, Zanuck will be assisted in fashioning the program by Harry Joe Brown, Ralph Dietrich, Raymond Griffith, Fred Kohlmar, Nunnally Johnson, Gene Markey, Walter Morosco, Kenneth Macgowan and John Stone.

The directorial battery includes Otto Brower, David Burton, Irving Cummings, Alan Dwan, John Ford, Eugene Forde, Henry Hathaway, Henry King, Walter Lang, Fritz Lang, Archie Mayo, Irving Pichel and Gregory Ratoff.

Technicolor Increase By 20th-Fox Indicated

CHICAGO—An increased use of Technicolor in 20th Century-Fox short subjects for the new season was predicted by Herman Wobber in announcing the company has scheduled a total of 52 one reelers, in seven series.

Amplifying that statement in a detailed analysis, Truman H. Talley, Movietone News producer, and his staff comprised of Lew Lehr, Lowell Thomas, Ed Thorgersen, Edmund Reek and Vyvyan Donner, dwelt on the material in their respective fields.

The series breakdown shapes up this way:

"Lowell Thomas' Magic Carpet of Movietone," four subjects.

"Ed Thorgersen's Sports Reviews," six.

Four each of Vyvyan Donner's "Fashion Forecasts," "Adventures of a Newsreel Cameraman" and Lew Lehr comedies.

Also four "Father Hubbard's Alaskan Adventures."

Twenty-six Terrytoons, 13 of which will be in Technicolor.

Distributors Must Produce Franchises

NEW YORK—Basic franchise contracts between distributor defendants in the key government suit and affiliated circuits dating from 1930, documents and correspondence pertaining to deals between majors and independents who were plaintiffs in anti-trust actions and contracts with opposition houses to these plaintiffs are called for in eight subpoenae duces tecum served upon the majors.

While the information sought is returnable May 1, "as a practical matter we are not expected to bring it all in on that day," a major attorney declared after a meeting of defense attorneys. Each of the subpoenas is based on the particular transactions of respective distributors and their customers. It is understood the government is centering its attention on New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

terruption of the suit for a summer recess. Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, for the past 18 years, has taken advantage of the warm months to set aside his judicial robes and sources close to the bench insist he will repeat the vacation program this year.

Such a recess will be of considerable advantage to the defendants by giving them extra time to prepare their defense.

In line with its plan of minimum operating expense, Paul Williams, assistant to the attorney general, has retained only two outside lawyers, David Podell and William P. Farnsworth. The latter will not be active in the court presentation.

Southern Showmen Throng Premiere

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ALBANY, GA.—Approximately 300 theatre operators in the south, newspapermen and trade paper representatives gathered here Thursday for the world premiere of "The Biscuit Eater" at the Albany. The picture is based on a pointer named Prince, which had been owned by Y. Frank Freeman, production head of Paramount, and Charles Black, Atlanta business man. To sportsmen who hunted quail, Prince is legion in these parts.

Exteriors were made here with Freeman's son participating in the production. He attended the opening in lieu of his father, who could not break away from the studio at this time.

A program of entertainment featured the activities after the New York group alighted from the Crescent Limited in Atlanta and traveled by car. Dog races and a banquet figured in the festivities. Billy Lee, nine-year-old star of the film, made a personal appearance here and will continue when the picture opens next week in 100 day-and-date situations in Georgia. Jean Cagney and William Henry, also of the film, took bows from the stage. Stuart Heisler, director, and Jack Moss, producer, also were on hand for the occasion.

Among theatre operators who gathered from various southern cities were William K. Jenkins and E. E. Whitaker of Lucas-Jenkins; R. B. Wilby and J. H. Harrison of Wilby-Kincey; Charles Karr of Martin Theatres; John Harrell of the Martin and Thompson circuits; William Pratt, manager of the Paramount; Harold Wilkes and John Kirby of the Paramount exchange, all of Atlanta; O. L. Benson, Royal, Gainesville, Ga.; Mrs. Alma King, Bijou, Brunswick, Ga.; R. M. Kennedy, city manager for Wilby-Kincey, Birmingham; Roy and Hugh Martin and A. E. Adams of Martin Theatres, Columbus, Ga.; J. N. Morgan, Rylander, Americus, Ga.; Clark Gurley, Ritz, Bainbridge, Ga.; R. H. Hightower, Ritz, Dublin, Ga.

New Bioff Delay

CHICAGO—William Bioff has been granted an additional week to prepare his appeal to the state supreme court on the 18-year-old pandering sentence facing the Hollywood labor leader. The case comes up April 15 before Judge Prystalski.

Disney Not Pledged Beyond '40-41 Year

HOLLYWOOD—Although Walt Disney has four feature cartoons and 12 short subjects in various stages of production at an aggregate cost of $4,363,000, he has no contract for distribution of either features or shorts after the 1940-41 season. He also has invested over $600,000 in additional scenarios and story rights.

Feature cartoons now in work are "Bambi," "Alice in Wonderland" and "Peter Pan." The new concert feature, "Fantasia," featuring the Philadelphia Philharmonic Orchestra has already cost more than $1,000,000. This went principally into shooting over 500,000 feet of sound recording during the orchestra's concerts in Philadelphia last season. "Pinocchio" is understood to have cost $2,635,000 to produce.

Disney's share of income on "Snow White" rentals up to December 31, 1939, totaled $4,677,862. For 1939 alone, his income from the film ran to $2,127,091, while short subjects, fees for licensing use of cartoon characters for commercial purposes and newspaper comic strips sent the 1939 figure up to about $4,000,000.

L. J. Ludwig Enters the Film Advertising Field

MINNEAPOLIS—On his return from New York with J. J. Friedl, L. J. Ludwig, treasurer of Minnesota Amusement Co., resigned to enter the film advertising field on his own. It is unlikely a successor will be named. Minnesota Amusement is wholly owned by Paramount with Friedl and Ludwig having management contracts which give them a percentage of the gross receipts of the circuit. How Ludwig's contract will be straightened out has not yet been determined, but it is learned he and Friedl will meet Sam Dembow and Leonard Goldenson of the home office early next week in Chicago for a final conference.

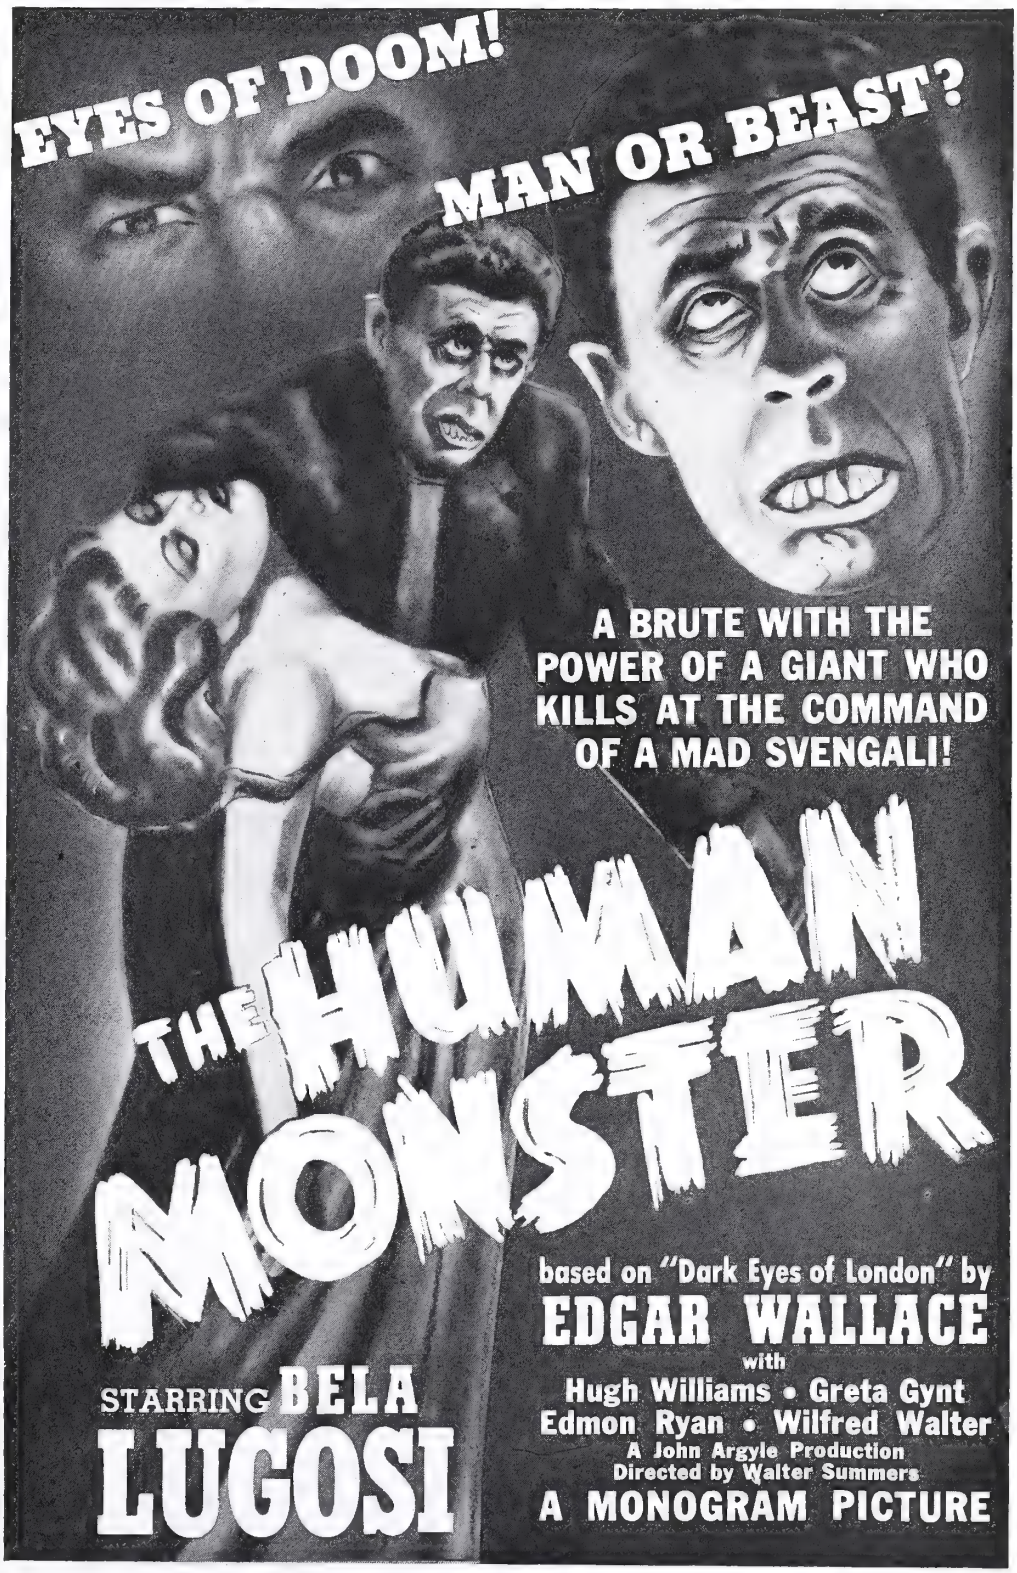
Three RKO Houses Drop Vaude for New Season

NEW YORK—Three RKO houses, the Shubert, Cincinnati; the Colonial, Dayton, and the Palace, Chicago, are discontinuing vaudeville and will operate under a regular film policy for spring and summer.

The Shubert dropped stage shows Friday while the Colonial wound up on April 12 and the Palace on May 9. Combination stage and film policy continues at the Golden Gate, San Francisco, and the Keith's, Boston.

20th-Fox's Convention Stymies Examinations

NEW YORK—Examinations before trial of Sidney R. Kent, William Sussman and William J. Kupper, slated for this week, were postponed because of the 20th-Fox sales convention in Chicago over the weekend.



Kupper goes on Tuesday, Sussman on Wednesday and Kent on Thursday.

Strive to Raise Level Of "Film Commentary"

NEW YORK—The newly-formed National Radio Film Commentators Circle is polling its members to determine a code of ethics in an effort "to raise the standard of film commentary above the level maintained by a few isolated commentators." The group has sent out the first issue of a new weekly bulletin service for benefit of stations that do not broadcast film news. The copy, prepared by David Lowe, who is president, is edited so as to provide "angles" that are not picked up by newspapers.

First and "C" Week Units Back to Regular Prices

CHICAGO—There is a general tendency current for first week and "C" week release houses to return to regular prices for their allocation. This has been especially true on the west side where "C" week houses in some instances have been charging 35 cents admission and now are down to the regular 30-cent charge. Likewise, houses in first week of release which have been getting 30 cents, are down to the minimum of 25 cents allowed for that group.

Due to Map Allied Convention Plans

CHICAGO—Col. H. A. Cole, president of Allied, and Al Steffes, head of Northwest Allied, back on the scene in Minneapolis after his recent illness, are expected here shortly to begin working on details of the forthcoming National Allied convention, June 19 to 21, at the Morrison Hotel. They will confer with Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois, who is the convention chairman.

Kirsch said that all of the major company sales heads will be invited to attend the convention, but that the list of speakers had not yet been completed. The agenda for the convention now is being prepared in Washington by Abram F. Myers, general counsel.

Kirsch announced the general convention committee, in addition to himself as chairman, as follows: W. L. Ainsworth, Herman Blum, Ray Branch, Col. H. A. Cole, Roy Harrold, Frank Hornig, Frank Lydon, Richard D. Marks jr., Myers, Lee W. Newberry, Charles H. Olive, Seth D. Perkins, M. A. Rosenberg, Sidney E. Samuelson, Al Schumann, Martin G. Smith, W. A. Steffes, Orville Von Gulker, P. J. Wood and Nathan Yamins.

A national committee on transportation also has been named.

Emphasis has been placed on entertainment arrangements for women, the committee inviting delegates to bring their wives.

Neely Divorcement Bill to Senate

known as the Big Eight, in defeating all attempts to legislate with respect to their activities or to curb their predatory activities under the general law," he continued.

"Bills to prevent compulsory block booking and blind selling were passed by the senate in 1938 and 1939, despite the intense opposition of the producers' lobby, but they advanced no farther.

"Three resolutions to investigate the motion picture trust, one in the senate (by Senator Brookhart) and two in the house (by Congressmen Sirovich and Hobbs) were successfully smothered by the lobby.

"The statute of the state of North Dakota, above mentioned, was repealed after it had been sustained by the district court and before a hearing could be had in the supreme court. The methods by which its repeal was accomplished were an open scandal.

"Although the government has filed more than 20 actions against the motion picture industry under the Sherman law, no effective or lasting remedy has been obtained.

"In July, 1938, the department of justice filed an action against the Big Eight asking, among other things, that the defendants be separated from their theatres. The case has not been tried and predictions are being made in the trade press that it will not be tried for many months, if ever. The law contemplates that anti-trust cases shall have an early hearing but the Big Eight, by dilatory tactics, have obtained delay first on one pretext and then on another. An aggravating circumstance is the fact that the new federal rules of civil procedure, designed to expedite the hearing and determination of cases, have been used as an instrument of delay.

"I am informed that the government has been required to furnish bills of particulars disclosing the minutest details of its evidence. Among other information required of the government were the names of all prospective witnesses, including the complaining exhibitors who are wholly dependent upon the Big Eight for necessary supplies of films. And although the court ordered the disclosure of their names, it denied the motion of the Government for an order which would protect these exhibitors against coercion, intimidation and retaliation by the Big Eight.

"I hope that the hearings on my bill will serve to focus public attention on operations of the motion picture trust, which, due to the power and influence of its lawyers and lobbyists, have heretofore been beyond reach of the law."

Introduction of the bill raised new conjectures in Washington as to the future course of the proposed consent decree in the all-industry suit, the timing of the act rather than its content leading to speculation as to the position on the consent decree of Allied States Ass'n, for which Senator Neely has been the Congressional mouthpiece.

It has been reported repeatedly that Allied is not attracted by any consent decree which gives less than its avowed objectives of the elimination of block booking and the dissolution of the integrated companies, and the two Neely bills, between them, accomplish those purposes.

The interest in timing was due to the fact that it is generally predicted that Congress will adjourn by June 1. That means that there will not be time for the exhaustive hearings which Senator Neely apparently will seek, or for the long debate which would attend any effort to secure enactment. Thus, the measure is seen as a notice to the department of justice and the industry that Senator Neely and his supporters are still firm in their demand for a clean-up of the situation along the lines they have laid down, rather than by a consent decree in which the government will abandon its attempt to secure divorce in favor of new selling policies as outlined in the commerce department report.

Introduction of the bill also is seen as warning that the reported suggestion of the industry that the principles of the consent decree be translated into a statute which would apply to all members of the industry will not go through Congress unopposed.

Players Score Neely

HOLLYWOOD—Taking the position that the Neely bill "is highly harmful to the American screen and against the best interests of the American public," 23 players have signed and sent to Clarence F. Lea, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee in Washington, a letter expressing opposition to the measure.

Continental Europe Further Drying Up

NEW YORK—Continental Europe, as the foreign departments know it, is slowly ceasing to be a source of revenue. Extension of the Second World War into Scandinavia means a halt of money from markets which have netted the major companies approximately $3,000,000 annually in the past.

At the current writing, Holland and Belgium are the only steady sources of revenue for the majors which mean anything, and there is no guarantee the picture will not change over night.

One company reported it had received as recently as a week ago a sizable remittance from Sweden. Considered very likely by one executive is that Sweden will invoke a ban on films along with other imports to preserve its foreign exchange. The measure has been pending for some time.

The recent developments, naturally, have disrupted business in Denmark and Norway. Until word is received from distributors' representatives, no film shipments will be made to these two countries.

Approximately 10 per cent of the foreign business done by the companies on the continent is "frozen," one executive estimates. Branch offices are operating wherever possible and reports from abroad show no appreciable loss of business. The aggravating fact, he states, is that, when and if the money is released, the companies are bound to take a loss on the exchange.

Rename KAO Board; Returns All Officers

NEW YORK—KAO stockholders at the annual meeting re-elected the incumbent slate of seven directors, who, in turn, re-elected the entire slate of present officers. Directors are Donald K. David, Monroe Goldwater, Malcom Kingsberg, John J. McCaffrey, N. Peter Rathvon and George J. Schaefer. Officers are Schaefer, president and chairman of the board; Kingsberg, executive vice-president and vice-chairman of the board; Leon Goldberg, treasurer; William F. Whitman, secretary; O. R. McMahon, W. J. Kernan, William Murray and H. E. Newcomb, assistant treasurers, and Louis Joffe and Harry M. Pimstein, assistant secretaries.

Stockholders approved a resolution authorizing the corporation to buy up to 3,000 shares of preferred stock at $100 a share. Letters will go out next week to stockholders asking for tenders. If shareholders do not wish to sell, the corporation may purchase the stock in the open market.

Army Boosts Sales

NEW YORK—Sales to U. S. Army posts are responsible in good measure for increased business in Panama, according to Harry Prosdocimi, Columbia manager for that territory.

Eastern Funeral Rites For Louis Diamond

—George Maillard Kesslere Photo

NEW YORK—Funeral services for Louis S. (Lou) Diamond, who was in charge of Paramount's short subject department, were held at the Riverside Chapel Tuesday. Death came following a heart attack on the dance floor of the Empire Room of the Waldorf-Astoria. Diamond was also president of the Paramount Music Corp. He was 47. Surviving are his widow, Celia, and two sons, Paul and Richard, and three sisters.

Among those who attended the funeral were Barney and John Balaban, Stanton Griffis, Sam Dembow, Leon Netter, Leonard Goldenson, Russell Holman, Hiller Innis, Austin C. Keough, Joseph J. Unger, Charles R. Reagan, Alec Moss, Al Wilkie, Herb Berg, Dick Murray, Ed Fay, Harry Royster, Eddie Brown, John McDermott, Frank Meyer, Milt Kusell, Harry Nadel, Leslie Roush, Justin Herman, Bob Weitman, Ben Griefer, Herman Lorber, Arthur Dunne, Harry J. Kalchein, Monty Gowthorpe, Louis Phillips, Charles Zenker, O. O. Dillenbeck, Lanny Ross, Jessica Dragonette, Leo Robin, Benny Goodman, Kay Kyser, Frankie Masters, Phil Spitalny, John Paine, Sammy Kaye, Irving Mills, Gus Schirmer, Carl Fischer, Benny Field, Jack Rosenberg, Orrin Tucker and Ginny Simms.

Matthew Carroll Rites

BRONXVILLE, N. Y.—Burial rites for Matthew V. Carroll, treasurer and a director of General Theatres Equipment Corp., and treasurer of National Theatre Supply, were conducted here. Carroll, who was 47, died following a long illness. Surviving are his wife, Mary; two daughters, Jean and Phyllis; and two sons, James William and Walter Green.

Lease House for "Wind" After Terms Difficulty

BUENOS AIRES—M-G-M is reported leasing the first run Broadway here for three months as a result of the difficulty in obtaining desired terms for "Gone With the Wind."

Seek to Lift Heavy Australian Impost

NEW YORK—Although a ban of 50 per cent on remittances from Australia in light of current events is deemed inevitable, the distributors' representatives there are pressing hard in negotiations for a reconsideration of the Australian government's stand.

No official action has been taken as yet. General feeling among the foreign managers is that for Australia to follow Great Britain would be "unfair" in view of the contrasting conditions for distribution.

For one thing, cost of operation, it is pointed out, in Australia is much higher than in Great Britain since the former is almost as large as the United States with transportation a considered problem.

Another bane of distributors is that exhibitors in New South Wales and two other important states are entitled to a 25 per cent rejection in all contracts. Australia, it is said, has higher amusement taxes and tariffs which adversely affect the income of the film companies.

The United States consul general in Australia has been taking an active part in all negotiations with members of the distributors' committee. Annual revenue from Australia is computed at $9,100,000.

Embassy Radio Program Response "Satisfactory"

NEW YORK—The Embassy Newsreel management is "perfectly satisfied" with the weekly broadcasts it has inaugurated over WQXR to promote attendance, a spokesman declares, although admitting "it is too early" to determine whether the series will be extended beyond a 13-week trial period.

The unique air presentation is heard each Thursday from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. The program's commentator, James Clemenger, gives a five-minute resume on latest news events as shown currently at the circuit's theatres, conducts a brief interview with a newsreel personality and highlights the short subjects on programs. The broadcast is entitled "History in the Making."

Nat Wachsberger Plans a New Distribution Setup

NEW YORK—Nat Wachsberger, vice-president of Film Alliance of the U. S., is back from Europe with what purports to be an elaborate setup for distribution here of 50 British films, production in Hollywood with English and French producers, film rights to French stories, and establishment of the company's own exchanges in key cities. Wachsberger declined to reveal details in connection with any aspects of the program.

Takes New Duties

NEW YORK—Eddie Solomon, former B&K publicist in Chicago, has taken up his duties here at 20th Century-Fox, where he will handle national exploitation under supervision of Rodney Bush.

Reported U. K. Ban Unheard of in N. Y.

NEW YORK—No information has been received here concerning a reported statement by Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, president of the British board of trade, that banning of Hollywood films is contemplated as part of Great Britain's campaign to build up the British dollar surplus for the purchase of war supplies here.

Plans regarding the limitation of films, according to the Associated Press, are supposed to be announced shortly. The move would be in line with the drive for fewer purchases of non-war materials in this country.

Sir Duncan's statement is discounted at the Hays office where it is said if anything "was brewing" the Hays office representative in London, F. W. Allport, would have relayed the information at once. Also a check of foreign managers reveals no knowledge of any such contemplated action.

The general feeling is that the agreement negotiated between the distributors and the British government over remittances last November will not be rescinded or altered. In most cases, foreign managers are inclined to believe the British will hold to the bargain until the year is up.

More pessimistic observers, however, think if the war becomes more intensified, the British would not hesitate in stopping remittances. It is pointed out Australia, New Zealand and South Africa likewise would follow suit if such an eventuality materialized.

Andy Leads in Battle Of "Smiths" for RKO

NEW YORK—A. W. Smith's eastern division has topped Cresson E. Smith's in a contest based on combined film shipments against quota during the RKO "Smith Month." The three leading exchanges were Calgary, H. F. Taylor, manager; J. F. Meyers' Toronto; and Buffalo, C. Boasberg, manager. L. M. Devaney's Canadian district topped the others.

Appeals Court to Hear UA on "Tumbleweeds"

NEW YORK—The court of appeals on April 15 will hear UA's appeal from a lower court decision in favor of William S. Hart in his contractual dispute over distribution of "Tumbleweeds." The full bench of seven judges will hear arguments of Max D. Steuer for Hart and former Judge Joseph Proskauer for UA.

Ind'p'ts Columbia's Backbone-Montague

NEW YORK—Most of Columbia's franchises are with independents and there are outstanding 75 or more such deals, according to A. Montague at pre-trial examinations in the big suit. He worked on such franchises with the Griffith, Golden Gate, E. M. Loew, Schine, Feiber & Shea circuits while others include Lou B. Metzger, A. C. Hayman and a group in Oakland.

Most of the deals are for two and three years. There are no five-year arrangements. Many are with exhibitors for individual houses.

"It wasn't until three years ago," the witness said, "that we made up our mind to go into the franchise business. We were reluctant until we knew we would have a standardized type of program." The number of pictures before then had been more or less uncertain, he said.

Where there has been no trouble with an exhibitor and he has been deemed a good customer, Columbia sold a franchise. Not unmindful of its disadvantages, Montague stated he had to be careful "because some exhibitors had used them to sell the theatres to competitors" or other customers.

Policy "Succeeded"

The policy originated when Montague was a district manager in New England for the company. Joe McConville was his partner. "We sold substantial theatres on a franchise and instituted the policy nationally and succeeded. We always wanted to sell independents. We never wanted all our eggs in one basket," he gave as his reason for selling away from major circuits.

"We wanted the type of customer who could use our product steadily. We were not interested in circuits, but individual theatres in the circuit. We don't like to sell wholesale; we like to do business retail. There are some circuits which will not buy that way, but in the majority of cases we do want to sell the individual theatre; we are not interested in mass sales because we want to know what each theatre will do, how long it will play a picture and what kind of treatment will be given our product," he declared.

"Also, we are able to get better terms this way. It sets a better standard. Where there are mass sales, prices are low and they try to follow through in the entire circuit."

It was at this juncture Montague said the average account plays 29 units of Columbia product, that 33 to 34 per cent of exhibitors buy 100 per cent of the output, that the company had a 10 per cent cancellation clause in its contract but withdrew it after one year.

Pacific Group Invites Kuykendall and Cole

LOS ANGELES—Ed Kuykendall for the MPTOA and H. A. Cole for Allied have been invited to be chief speakers at the first annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners here, May 8-10.

Entered Theatres For "Protection"

NEW YORK—Adolph Zukor's reason why Paramount and its predecessors acquired theatres was "to assure permanency of its product and the protection of our interests." He so stated in pre-trial depositions in the government suit.

In this respect he said there was no set policy. "It was only where a definite need existed; where there was inadequate representation of our product and where film deals with other theatres could not be made," he declared in describing the rise of the industry's largest chain.

The first such deal was with T. L. Tally in Los Angeles which resulted in Famous Players acquiring a 50 per cent interest in Grauman's Chinese, then near completion. This was back in 1917. Tally had a First National franchise and Famous Players could not make a product deal with him.

The next theatre interest was acquired about a year later when F. P. bought into the Stillman, Cleveland, in which Marcus Loew was interested. The basis of this deal was to induce Loew to make the house, then playing vaudeville, an exclusive film theatre: "Just to show we had faith in our policy," was how Zukor put it.

In 1919, the company was unable to make a deal with the Strand on Broadway because the theatre was a member of the First National group. In order to circumvent this, F. P. bought the Rivoli and Rialto with Zukor handling the negotiations personally with Felix Kahn, who represented the operating company.

Difficulty in South

At about the same time, S. A. Lynch, then a Famous Players franchise holder, started complaining about "the difficulties in selling in the south." This was aggravated by First National, which, Zukor said, "was very active at the time in a booking combine." A 50-50 deal was made with Lynch handling the acquisitions and management of the houses. Southern Enterprises was the company formed for the purpose and, in the latter part of the same year which was 1919, F. P. bought out the remaining 50 per cent.

The Black circuit in New England was the next takeover. F. P. was "hampered" in the smaller houses in this territory, Zukor said, particularly in view of First National's drive to acquire sub-franchises. A 50-50 deal was made. In about two years, F. P. took over the remaining 50 per cent due to a difference of opinion over operation. Black had been operating while a partner.

In March, 1920, F. P. got together with M. Cornwall, who was building the Missouri in St. Louis. The exhibitor also had 15 or 16 other small units in the territory. There was a first run theatre operated by the First National franchise holder and the deal for the Missouri was made because F. P. could not get together with him, according to Zukor.

The next five or six years saw virtually no theatre acquisitions. "We were doing a very satisfactory business and were not being annoyed as much as be-

Unhampered Distribution Is Needed for Progress, Zukor

NEW YORK—It is Adolph Zukor's belief that, if industry progress is to be maintained, there must be "free an unhampered selection in the distribution of product to large and small exhibitors alike." The 67-year-old Paramount board chairman made this observation during pre-trial examinations in the all-industry suit. Although it was expected Paul Williams himself would handle the interrogation, he did not appear with the result Robert L. Wright undertook the job without an explanation for Williams' absence.

Zukor's opinion apparently has not changed since he voiced similar sentiments back in 1918. Although he claimed circumstances and conditions have altered since then, his convictions are unaltered.

"Producers do not compete with their own customers by owning theatres," he said. "Affiliated houses do not affect competition any more than if anyone else ran those theatres." At this point Wright wanted to know whether or not affiliated houses did not have "a distinct advantage in having its producing companies product on first call." To this Zukor replied, "Affiliated houses have an advantage in that the producer has a home for his output."

Recalls 1919 Expansion

It was in 1919 that Famous Players Lasky, of which he was head, began to acquire theatres on a large scale. It was about that time Sidney R. Kent was in charge of distribution. However, as far back as 1917, the company had acquired a 50 per cent interest in Grauman's Chinese in Los Angeles. The formation of the First National circuit presented somewhat of an obstacle to F.P.L., Zukor said, and acquisition of the house was primarily for the purpose of securing permanency in the exhibition of Famous Players output and to offset the moves being made by the competition.

Famous Players also encountered "resistance" from First National in the form of sub-franchises which the latter made with other exhibitors in a move to gain a foothold for its product.

The witness said he did not attach any importance to borrowing or loaning talent. "It is an everyday occurrence in show business and was practiced on the stage long before films, especially where someone was needed to portray a certain character."

The particular incident which led to Famous Players' belief pictures could stand on their own feet was the showing of "The Passion Play" in 1907 in Newark. The film ran for one hour, which was unheard of in those days "because people were not willing to sit that long through a picture." The experiment proved that patrons did not care how long they sat through a film, Zukor said. "The Passion Play" was acquired from Pathe Freres in Paris.

The first Famous Players production venture was "The Prisoner of Zenda," with James K. Hackett, who had then been appearing in the stage role. It took about six weeks to make at a cost of $40,000 and was distributed by 12 to 14 state rights who bought it outright, the practice of distributing on a rental basis then being unknown.

Other producers at this time were General Film, Universal and Mutual. The next feature was "The Count of Monte Cristo," which was shelved when it was learned Selig had produced one earlier. This was back in 1912. During the season 1913-14 Famous Players produced about 30 features, all of which were state righted.

The next year the company, critical of the sales policies adopted by the state righters, called them all together and suggested formation of Paramount Pictures Corp. W. W. Hodkinson was active in the organization of the company. It was agreed Famous Players would produce 80 per cent of the total output for the new company giving them 104 pictures a year and allowing for two changes a week. F. P. got 65 per cent of the rentals plus a $35,000 guarantee on each negative.

Five Years Became 25

The original contract between Famous Players-Lasky and Paramount Pictures was for a five-year franchise which was later extended to 25 years. In 1916, F. P. acquired Paramount Pictures because, as Zukor said, the original franchise did not allow Famous to cover the cost of increased negatives.

Principal California production started gradually after 1913. From 1915 to 1919, Famous Players produced from 120 to 136 pictures a year, while the combined output of F. P., Fox, Goldwyn, Warner, Vitagraph, Triangle, Metro was from 700 to 800 a year. There was no borrowing or loaning during this period.

Famous Players began to cut its program from 100 to 60 a year around 1924, the witness stated. This was due to the management's belief the 40-odd produced annually by Realart, a subsidiary producing the less expensive type of film, were no longer in demand.

When Famous Players gave up Realart and concentrated on a higher type of production, theatre admissions were increased, Zukor said. It was at this point that Wright questioned the witness on minimum admission clauses in contracts. To the best of his memory, Zukor said "from the very beginning there were minimum admission provisions."

The period from 1920 to 1930 saw no changes in production methods with the exception of 1928 which introduced sound

Rule Monday on Trial Date Postponement

New York—Senior Judge Knox on Monday will rule on the trial postponement of the all-industry suit to June 1 requested by the majors. Meanwhile, indicating the government's determination for a May 1 start, subpoenas have been served on all defendants ordering a court appearance on the proscribed date.

and revolutionized the business, in his opinion. Sound decreased the number of features and increased the cost, which caused a corresponding increased in film rentals and "also in receipts," he emphasized.

Wright wanted to know if pictures would have to get a first run in order to cover negative costs. "The income of pictures from the first run is the greatest. This is very substantial" in ratio to the total costs, Zukor declared.

Former Judge Thomas D. Thacher, representing Paramount, got in the final question, which was in the form of an aside to Zukor and which did not get into the record. He asked "You've got to have a first run before a second run, don't you?"

Zukor merely nodded. Throughout the hearing, the witness talked in low tones.

GN's Priority Creditors Seen Out in the Cold

NEW YORK—What is left of the Grand National estate will be insufficient to pay priority creditors anything, Joseph Dannenberg, attorney for the trustee, has informed Referee Pete B. Olney jr. The trustee now has in his possession $116,664, subject to a $50,000 claim by the National City Bank and Arcadia Pictures and to a $20,000 claim of the Chase Bank, leaving assets of $46,664. Against this are $44,713 in debts incurred by the estate since the filing of the bankruptcy and $9,386 by the trustee personally. An additional $3,000 is expected before the end of the proceedings.

Referee Olney rejected an attempt to open bidding on the assets again when Gustave Delemos sought to raise his bid to $37,500, but awarded the assets to Mohawk Pictures for $17,500, plus 30 per cent of the profits up to $100,000 and 50 per cent above that amount. Dannenberg told the referee he expected the films to gross $150,000 which would bring the estate an additional $50,000-$55,000.

Planning Ind'p't Poster Exchanges in Midwest

CHICAGO—Frank Fisher, operator of the independent Wisconsin Poster Service in Milwaukee, says he will open several independent poster exchanges in the middle west, in competition to Advertising Accessories, Inc. Fisher did not sell out his Milwaukee exchange during the recent acquisition of practically all independent poster companies by Advertising Accessories.

Fisher opens the first of his new exchanges here in Chicago this week. In about three to four-week intervals regularly thereafter, he plans to launch exchanges in Detroit, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Indianapolis, successively.

Associated with Fisher in the venture is Leonard Katz of Chicago.

He Didn't Remember His Own Rebuttal

New York—Abe Montague drew a rousing chuckle from spectators during his pre-trial examination when he was asked if he was familiar with his answer to the government's petition and said, "No." Upon which Robert L. Wright, the examiner, proceeded to read all about Columbia's difficulties in selling booking combines, circuits and closed towns.

"Standard" to Give Lots of Clearance

NEW YORK—Clearance is a ticklish situation and Columbia grants a lot of it to affiliated and independent houses, not because it is necessary but because it is standard to do it that way, states A. Montague. His views are recorded in his deposition in the all-industry suit.

"We have more trouble on clearance where there is an independent against an independent rather than an independent against a circuit."

He added there has been a great deal of complaining about clearance. It was considerably discussed during the NRA days, but as he looks at it "clearance is more a problem between an exhibitor and exhibitor than exhibitor and distributor."

In most cases exhibitors insist on protection, he pointed out and added that where they don't Columbia does. In Chicago, he stated, his belief is that independents and affiliated members drew up a clearance schedule a number of years ago which has been accepted since as a standard.

"Generally Local"

Columbia's only interest is how clearance affects its product, particularly on percentage pictures, he added. Generally speaking, branch and district managers handle this phase of all deals because of their knowledge of local situations, and if the home office makes any changes, it is because of a suggestion from the field. In many cases clearance does not enter into the discussions of a contract, he said.

However, where Columbia feels it will be hurt by any protection schedule or demand, clearance is not granted, particularly where an important individual has had something to do with it, Montague maintained.

Although split deals sometimes work to the company's disadvantage, they are preferred by Columbia "because we usually want it that way for a better playoff; generally, however, it works out all right. It depends entirely on the situation."

The number of split deals are few over the country, he observed.

Arguments on Goldwyn's Appeal Expected in May

WILMINGTON—Arguments are expected to be heard in district court here in May in the appeal of Samuel Goldwyn from Judge Neild's decision dismissing the producer's original complaint.

Entered Theatres For "Protection"

fore," Zukor said. However, in 1925, William Fox became very active on the west coast, in Wisconsin, in Chicago and elsewhere and again F. P. "faced difficulty in getting its product exhibited."

The next step was the acquisition of the Olympia circuit in New England. The operator, whose name Zukor did not recall, wanted to dispose of his holdings because of ill health. This was in 1925.

In 1926, F. P. was approached by A. H. Blank on a deal and one was consummated. When asked by Wright who came to whom in the matter of acquisitions, Zukor said, "Many circuits came to us. We selected Blank after much competitive bidding."

Later that year, a 25 per cent interest in the Butterfield circuit in Michigan was bought. B. F. Keith also had an interest in this operation. William S. Butterfield continued to operate, as was the case in all deals for a half interest.

In October, 1926, F. P. bought a two-thirds interest in B. & K. in Chicago. "It was recognized in the trade that they were good operators," Zukor said of the firm of which Barney Balaban is president as well as current head of Paramount. Sam Katz was then shifted to New York in charge of all theatre operations. Shortly thereafter, stockholders asked F. P. to acquire up to 90 per cent of the stock, which was done. Prior to the B. & K. deal, F. P. had a lease on the McVickers in Chicago which was merged with B. & K. operations.

Into Saenger in 1926

In October, 1926, F. P. bought into the Saenger group in New Orleans which was building a first run in the city at the time.

For the next three or four years there was again a lull.

In 1929 and 1930, Warner and Fox, particularly Warner, became very active in buying up theatres on a large scale. In order to "protect their interests," F. P. did the same thing.

In September, 1929, the Finkelstein & Ruben circuit in St. Paul and Minneapolis, regarded "as tough buyers," was acquired after Fox competed strenuously and lost out. In the same month, same year, a half interest in the Dent theatres in the southwest and Texas was acquired.

Without enumerating the number, Zukor said that the summer of 1929 saw the acquisition of houses in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, operated by Saenger Theatres, Inc.

Rickard & Nace, who operated in Arizona, were acquired in 1929 from Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprises.

In the same year, an interest was acquired in the Indiana-Ohio Theatres Corp.

In 1930 a half interest in the Comerford circuit was purchased by Paramount-Publix. The latter company, of which Zukor was president, went into receivership in 1933.

"Command" to Roxy

NEW YORK—The Roxy has booked "The Dark Command," Republic's current big effort. No date has been set.

Switched to Ind'p'ts For Faster Playoffs

NEW YORK—Where Columbia has previously sold a major circuit but switched to an independent, the transition was made because of an assured quicker playoff under the new arrangement, A. Montague, general sales manager for seven years, asserted in his deposition at pre-trial examinations in the government action. Where a theatre has had the company's output before entering a pool and returns to individual operation later, the original customer gets the product, he added.

Splits are worked out between the theatres involved, Columbia playing no part in allocating its pictures, he asserted, and said this is particularly true in Newark where Loew and Warner share evenly. Explaining how it works, Montague said one month he will notify Warner of the list of pictures to be released during that period. Don Jacocks will then divide the pictures into two groups and offer them to Joseph R. Vogel for his choice. The next month the same procedure works in reverse, Vogel grouping the films and Jacocks making the selection.

The following first run accounts in the 36 cities outlined by the government were detailed by Montague:

Albany—Si Fabian for the Palace, Grand and Harmanus Bleecker Hall. Has never sold Warner. Prior to the Fabian deal, sold RKO. Previous to that to Charles Buckley who operated Harmanus Bleecker Hall.

Atlanta—The Rialto, an independent house. Some Lucas & Jenkins units buy second run.

Baltimore—I. Rappaport for the Hippodrome. Has sold some to Morris Mechanic of the New.

Boston—Loew's Orpheum day-and-date with the State. Has sold some to RKO where Loew's could not give a quick date.

Brooklyn—Si Fabian for the Fox, Strand and Paramount.

Buffalo—Charles Hayman for the Lafayette.

Charlotte—Mike Kincey for the Kincey circuit.

Chicago—B. & K. for about five or six years. Prior to that to RKO Palace. About three or four years ago sold season's product to State-Lake in opposition to the Chicago.

Cincinnati—RKO Albee, Keith, Lyric and Palace.

Cleveland—Warner for the Hippodrome, Allen, Palace and Lake. Before that to the independent who operated the Hippodrome.

Dallas—Interstate.

Des Moines—RKO Orpheum. Some years back sold Tri-States for the Orpheum, Des Moines, Paramount and Roosevelt. When the RKO-Tri-States pool was dissolved sold back to RKO for Orpheum.

Detroit—Dave Idzal for the Fox. Also has sold Adams. Sometime back sold RKO for the Downtown, Detroit.

Denver—National Theatres for Denver, Aladdin, Broadway, Paramount, Rialto and Tabor. Before Harry Huffman for all, but Rialto and Tabor.

Houston—Interstate. Before that split deal between RKO and Loew.

Indianapolis—Loew. Before that Dave Chatkin. He had two houses, closed one and hence Columbia was not in demand.

Kansas City—Loew. Before that Tower, operated by an independent who pooled with Fox Midwest.

Los Angeles—RKO Hillstreet and Pantages, the latter operated by Rodney Pantages. Before that to Paramount for three or four years. Harry and Milton Arthur operate it.

Memphis—M. A. Lightman for the Strand and Malco. Before that to an independent who went out of business.

Milwaukee—Fox Wisconsin for the Palace and Wisconsin. Also has sold the eliminations to Riverside, independent, three or four years.

Minneapolis—Minnesota Amusement for Orpheum, State, Century, Astor and Minnesota. Had sold Mort Singer for Orpheum before he pooled the house.

Newark—Loew and Warner.

New Haven—Loew since it began operating Poli circuit about five years ago. Before that to A. J. Vanni for the Poli circuit.

New Orleans—Mort Singer for the Orpheum. Used to sell Singer direct, but RKO circuit has been handling deals for three or four years.

New York City—Music Hall has first choice; Globe second with understanding pictures can be sold to house charging higher admissions. "Bitter Tea of General Yen" first picture into Music Hall. Before this to Mayfair, operated then by RKO.

Oklahoma City—State, independently operated by M. Noble. Before that to Joe Cooper who bought as he felt like. Won't negotiate with anyone else as long as State is open.

Omaha—RKO Brandeis.

Philadelphia—Warner.

Pittsburgh—The Harris circuit for Alvin and State. Sold Warner before but find Harris a better account.

Portland—Fox West Coast.

Salt Lake City—Harry David for Studio, Center, Utah, Victory, Capitol and Paramount. Before to Harry Arthur for the Orpheum and Studio.

San Francisco—Harry and Milton Arthur for the Orpheum. Before that RKO Golden State.

Seattle—Jensen Von Herberg for the Liberty.

St. Louis—Fanchon & Marco since Harry Arthur entered the town.

St. Paul—Minnesota Amusement for the Orpheum, Paramount, Tower and New Riviera.

Washington, D. C.—Warner for Earle and Metropolitan. Some day-and-date with Earle and Ambassador.

Neely Air Blasts If Hearings Held

NEW YORK—While claiming no connection with the introduction by Senator Neely of a second measure in the senate, this one seeking divorcement of theatres, authoritative sources declare the once proposed, but tabled, plan to inaugurate a series of broadcasts to combat the Neely block booking will go into effect immediately following hearings in Washington before the interstate commerce committee, if and when.

The purported strategy in starting the direct-to-the-public campaign at that time is said to hinge on the theory that many of the public groups now supporting the measure will be reached in their homes and may be converted into taking a new view on the subject. "We might only reach a handful of them at the hearings," one source declares, "but the chances are much wider if we use the radio."

Views 33 Cities Not Cited as More Vital

NEW YORK—In point of total revenue from contracts involved, Columbia considers 33 cities not cited by the government as more important than the 36 listed in the complaint as "key cities," according to A. Montague.

In his deposition in the government suit, he named the following as bearing importantly on Columbia's revenue:

Akron, O.; Altoona, Pa.; Berkeley, Calif.; Birmingham, Ala.; Canton, O.; Evansville, Ind.; Erie, Pa.; Elmira, N. Y.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Hartford, Conn.; Lincoln, Neb.; Lynn, Mass.; Long Beach, Calif.; North Adams, Mass.; Norfolk, Va.; New Bedford, Mass.; Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Oakland, Calif.; Pawtucket, R. I.; Portland, Me.; Richmond, Va.; Springfield, Mass.; Stockton, Calif.; Sacramento, Calif.; Springfield, Ill.; Stamford, Conn.; San Diego, Calif.; Tacoma, Wash.; Trenton, N. J.; Toledo, O.; Utica, N. Y.; Woonsocket, Mass.; and Youngstown, O.

Akron is regarded as more important to Montague than Atlanta, Charlotte and Memphis, he said.

The cities listed are where the company sells independents against affiliated circuits. The unaffiliated houses, he added, give pictures a longer run and can play more pictures than the circuits.

"We are able to get better, or greater revenue, because independents have a lower overhead, which enables us to get higher terms. It is also because independents do not have so many pictures available to them and are not choosey. They are better advertisers for us than the so-called affiliates," he said. Hence, he sets up these accounts as more vital to the company despite the operation of majors in those towns.

Davis Replaces Jaffe

NEW YORK—William B. Jaffe of Rosenblatt & Jaffe, attorneys, has resigned as a Monogram director and is replaced by Col. T. C. Davis of Standard Statistics.

Negotiations Lurch on Consent Decree

New York—If weekend reports from the inside are to be credited, the negotiations for the consent decree that would settle the all-industry suit, either are on the rocks or approaching them. The difficulty reputedly traces to the inability of the interested parties to get together on language into which the principles must be reduced before a final draft becomes possible for consideration of the decree proponents as well as the commerce and justice departments. It is probably inadvisable to draw the conclusion that negotiations have collapsed, or even face collapse, but the best informed opinion inclines to view either as a possibility that cannot be discounted.

Stereophonic Sound Awaiting Outlets

NEW YORK—Bell Telephone Laboratories developed it. Erpi will handle it. But exactly what the practical application of the sound recording and reproducing system known as "Stereophonic Reproduction of Enhanced Music" will be, and when it appears are factors its sponsors do not know.

Within the trade, however, an impression is afloat the first public demonstration at paid admissions may await completion and release of "Fantasia," musical cartoon feature on which Walt Disney has been working for some time and for which Leopold Stokowski, noted conductor, has recorded about 500,000 feet of sound track.

The system was demonstrated at Carnegie Hall Tuesday evening before a specially invited audience which heard musical sounds at a volume probably never before reached without distortion. The tones, say the engineers, ranged from as low as 40 to as high as 15,000 cycles, thereby embracing the entire average range of human hearing.

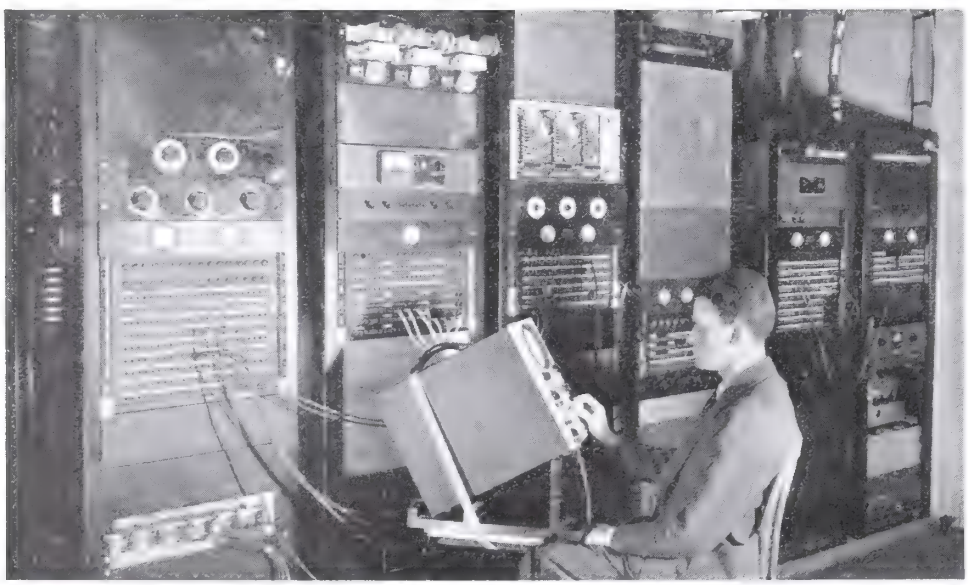
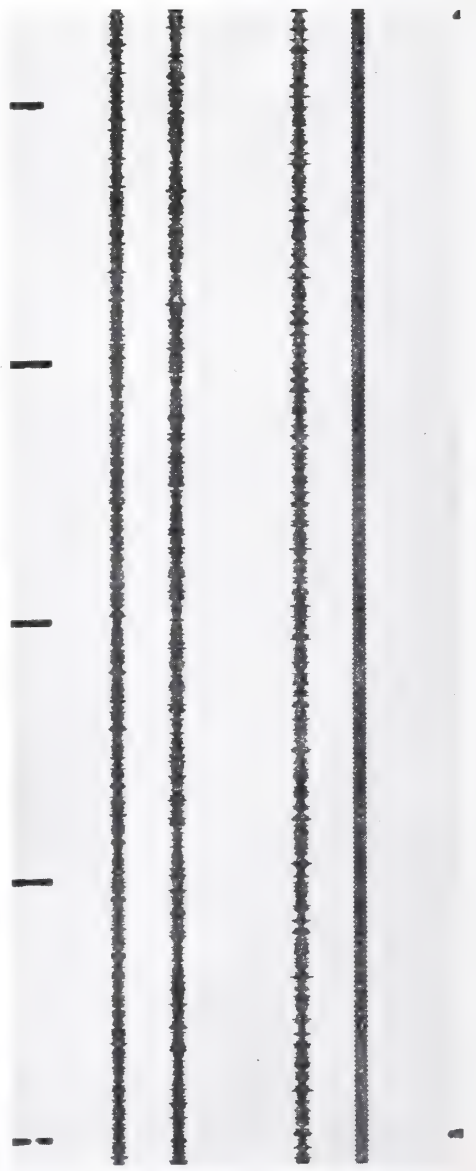
On a fourth track, account was kept of the amount of compression, as an automatic control of the "expansion" of volume range which must be made in reproduction. When the film ran through the reproducing equipment, three separate sound currents were created. Each sound current actuated its own set of loud speakers on the right, center and left of the stage. This arrangement, plus the reputed wide frequency and volume range of the system, gave the music "spatial and emotional values heretofore unknown either in reproduced or original productions."

Through the control equipment, which is illustrated below, sound volume at the demonstration rested entirely in the hands of the engineer at the equipment which somewhat resembled a cash register. From extremely low frequencies which created sounds barely audible to the human ear, the volume was readily expanded to ear-shattering proportions which rolled and reverberated like thunder throughout Carnegie.



The recordings were played against a scrim on which colored lighting effects were employed. The orchestra was the Philadelphia with Stokowski wielding the baton. The selections included Moussorgsky's "Night on Bare Mountain" which is expected to be a part of "Fantasia;" Debussy's "Moonlight," Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods," and Moussorgsky's "Pictures in an Exhibition." Dialogue and voice comprised the second half, which was made up of a scene from "The Emperor Jones," by Eugene O'Neill, with Paul Robeson playing the character; "Come, Come Ye Saints" and "Hear My Supplication," sung by the Tabernacle Choir of Salt Lake City; Widor's "Toccata in F," played on the organ by Frank Asper; Vierne's "Westminster Chimes," also played on the organ by Alexander Schreiner; the Tabernacle Choir singing excerpts from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," Hazel Hayes singing "Bruennhilde's Immolation" from Wagner's "Die Goetterdaemmerung" with the Philadelphia Orchestra accompanying.



The development is the result of experiments which began in Washington in 1933, but the recordings heard were made in 1939. In connection with its commercial applications, T. K. Stevenson, president of Erpi, observes:

"We do not know how, where, nor when we may look for industry to bring to the public the advantages inherent in the Laboratories' development of enhanced music. Now, as a result of continued research by this same group of engineers, we can record and reproduce sound to cover the entire range which the human ear can hear and we can reproduce it stereophonically and raise it to any de-

BROADWAY

LOUIS LOBER, manager of M-G-M's Cairo, Egypt, office, is here for a vacation and business trip . . . Lillian Jeffries, Joe Vogel's secretary, didn't go to Hollywood, Fla., over the weekend after all. She had to postpone her departure until April 19 . . . Ann Cohen, wife of Max A., is out of Le Roy Sanitarium after a minor operation. Mark Sandrich is in from the RKO studios on a three-week siesta . . . Leila Ernst got in from the coast Friday and immediately left for Boston to resume her role in "Too Many Girls" . . . Ray Milland is another visitor from the west . . . Sam Dembow will be among the group of Paramount home office executives entraining for Dallas early next week for the annual Variety Club convention . . . Oscar Doob was back on the job Tuesday after a brief throat cold . . . Adolph Schimel, Universal attorney, returned from the coast after a week there on contractual matters.

Harry M. Warner may come East soon to be on hand for conferences with Robert Schless, general manager of the United Kingdom and the continent, who is expected here at the end of the month . . . Harry Kalmine, Warner theatre zone manager in Pittsburgh, was in New York to buy live talent . . . John J. Nolan, general manager of the Comerford circuit, was in town over the weekend as usual and telling about a collision with the dashboard of his car on the way up from Atlantic City recently. He had fallen asleep when his driver came to a sudden stop. That's how it came about and put him out of the running for a week . . . Joe Shea, well-known press agent, is handling publicity for "Separate Rooms" which opens at the Mansfield. The cast is Hollywood-flavored with Glenda Farrell and Alan Dinehart in the leads . . . Arthur W. Kelly, UA's vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, has returned from a brief Bermuda vacation.

Joe Parlante, manager of the Plaza, Bayonne, is the father of a nine-and-a-half-pound boy, his first, born at Midwood Hospital in Brooklyn . . . Leto Hill, formerly managing Warner's De Witt at Bayonne, has been shifted to the Branford, Newark . . . Leon Rosenblatt of Rosenblatt & Welt will remain at the Shelbourne Hotel in Atlantic City for about another week. Meanwhile, Bernie Brooks has been doing a swell job on Rosenblatt's activities since he took ill last December . . . Arthur Jacobson, Paramount talent scout, has been spending the past week in town . . . Tyrone Power and Annabella, his wife, have returned to the coast after a brief vacation here . . . Herb MacIntyre and Harry Michalson have completed a tour of RKO exchanges on behalf of the Ned E. Depinet drive. They left here February 23. The drive closes May 10.

Irving Barry is celebrating his tenth year with Spyros Skouras this month. He started as secretary to the National Theatres head and is now short subjects buyer . . . Carter Barron paid the Loew home office one of his regular visits the other day . . . Jack Shea of Feiber & Shea returned early in the week from a tour of the circuit's theatres in Ohio and Pennsylvania . . . Charles Kurtzman stopped in at the Loew circuit headquarters before officially shifting to New England from Pittsburgh . . . Sam Rosen, Si Fabian's brother-in-law and general manager of the Fabian circuit, has returned from his 13th annual trip to Miami . . . Neil F. Agnew and the missus are due back Monday from Mexico City where they have been vacationing.

Steinbeck Opposes Steinbeck—In Films

New York—Metropolitan theatregoers are taking their pick of John Steinbeck, and it doesn't entail hours of reading. By hopping from an RKO house to a Loew's theatre, it is possible to see the author's two outstanding novels in film form. In other words, Steinbeck is playing against himself.

The RKO circuit is showing "The Grapes of Wrath" billed over the coupled "Free, Blonde and 21." Loew's is dualling "Of Mice and Men" with "I Take This Woman." The latter circuit's newspaper ads, however, are lining up both titles side by side, with "Woman" going before "Mice." Both circuit's copy bill Steinbeck's name before the titles of both his efforts.

Walter Gould, UA's Latin American supervisor, is at Mt. Sinai Hospital undergoing a physical checkup . . . Bill Ornstein, foregoing all trains, buses and government case hearings, is vacationing in Miami . . . Also in the Florida vacationland is Lee Cameron, manager of the Astor, who is due back April 22 . . . Planning to head that way are Seymour Meyer, Loew district manager, and Harry Moskowitz, but at different times . . . Hattie Helborn, secretary to N. M. Schenck, has returned after a coast siesta, during which she visited the M-G-M studios . . . Arthur M. Loew took time off to see the circus. Loew incidentally is getting his tennis arm in shape for the season . . . Jack Rosenfeld has taken over Film Products, Inc., and will operate under his own name . . . W. Ray Johnston, Gilbert Josephson, Charles L. O'Reilly, Jack Bowen, Joe Malcolm, J. Myer and Louis Schine and Sam Strausberg are latest members of Picture Pioneers.

Emma Carbone, secretary to Harry Mandel at RKO, and Norma Davis, John J. O'Connor's secretary, leave here April 26 for a vacation in Mexico . . . Sydney Singerman derides the idea that one has to have a cold in order to receive attention in these columns. Therefore: Sydney Singerman is happy to report he has no spring cold . . . Ted Krasner and Murray Le Boss of the Cinema Circuit, Lew Fischler of Belle Theatres, and Ed Barison of World Pictures deciding the merits of Allied war strategy over a Cadillac luncheon table . . . Mort Singer isn't altogether happy over the prices name bands are asking for stage shows . . . That must have been a blistering bridge game on the Chicago-bound 20th Century Limited between Spyros and George Skouras, Leonard Goldenson and Sam Dembow. John Balaban was chief kibitzer. Goldenson and Dembow were due back Saturday after B&K conferences . . . Jack Granara, RKO's Boston publicity manager, was in for a visit . . . Rutgers Neilson has been on the sick list with a bad case of rheumatics . . . George Sharf, who studied law at night while handling Loew's publicity, has been promoted to the M-G-M legal staff. He is working on the government case under Tyree Dillard . . . Walt Disney and Gunther Lessing have returned to the coast after two weeks here.

Erif Resolutes—But Late

I have the honor to present an alibi for my father, Mox Shobbus, whose sudden return from the Foreign Legion was as much a surprise to me as to the landlord. It seems he heard you easterners were practicing blackouts in Broadway theatres and he thought there might be an opening as technical advisor. He could also be helpful in luring patrons back to the boxoffices, which is a swell trick even if it doesn't work.

The idea is to offer a free screen test with every purchase of a two-year block of admission tickets, which the management reserves the right to cancel after the first night. This is similar to block booking except that the patrons can insert their own synopsis clause and designate the prison they would like in case of a violation. If this idea doesn't work, exhibitors could always fall back on an autographed picture of Ali Gaga for a giveaway. This would automatically entitle them to free hospitalization in case of nausea, which would surely follow.

And just to show we on the fringe of Hollywood are not influenced by any list of "10 best" pictures, the prices of which always go up when we try to rebook them, here's a list of better ideas to help a recovery revival.

In 1940, be it resolved that:

1.—There should only be one change of title for any picture.
2.—There should only be one new attorney general.
3.—There should only be one income tax.
4.—There should only be one Hollywood—and not in Astoria.
5.—There should only be one Thanksgiving Day.
6.—There should only be one Broadway columnist.
7.—There should only be one Rose Bowl game.
8.—There should only be one bathing beauty contest.
9.—There should only be one exhibitor testimonial luncheon.
10.—There should only be one sales drive.

Hearings on Status of Clerical Workers

WASHINGTON—Status of approximately 1,500,000 clerical workers now covered by the wage-hour act, including many thousands in all branches of the motion picture industry, may be markedly changed as a result of hearings now going on before the wage and hour division of the labor department as to what constitutes bona fide executive, administrative and professional work.

Under the law, employes in such positions are exempted from the wage and hour provisions, but under definitions issued by the former administrator, Elmer F. Andrews, relatively few were actually exempted from the requirement of pay at one and one-half times the regular rate for overtime.

For the past 17 months, employers in all lines of industry have protested that the definitions were unduly harsh. Representatives of the industry, shortly after enactment of the law, unsuccessfully sought to have a liberal interpretation of the exemption written. The complaints of industry were carried to Congress, where sentiment was aroused for amendment of the act to make it more specific and the hearings called by Andrews' successor, Col. Philip B. Fleming, are designed to develop the basis for new definitions and avert legislation which might seriously weaken the law.

For the industry, the Hays office suggested that the definitions should exempt workers whose employment is strictly of an executive, administrative or professional character, providing that executive employes are paid not less than $50 per week, administrative workers not less than $30 per week and professional workers not less than $200 a month.

Other recommendations would exempt all office workers receiving a fixed salary and getting vacations and sick leave with pay, and still others would exempt workers receiving variously stated weekly salaries.

UA's First Regional Is Planned for May 15

NEW YORK—A tentative date of May 15 has been set by United Artists for the first of a series of regional meetings. The number of such regionals has not been determined, and the setting of a definite date is dependent upon when the UA producers complete their lineup of releases for next season.

Voluntary Bankruptcy Petition by Walker

NEW YORK—A voluntary bankruptcy petition listing $11,725 assets and $28,839 in liabilities has been filed by Thomas Walker, Hal Roach's representative here.

No film creditors have been listed.

KAO Preferred Earns $1.75

NEW YORK—KAO has declared a quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the seven per cent preferred, payable July 1.

Division on Value Of Trade Pursuit

Irvington, N. J.—There seems to be a division of thought among the local Allied fraternity as to whether exhibition is a worthwhile pursuit.

For while Sidney Samuelson, former Allied of New Jersey president, has divorced himself from his Newton, Newton, N. J., Irving Dollinger, also a former Allied of New Jersey president, has taken over the Liberty here, formerly operated by Harry Doniger. Dollinger also operates the Plaza, Linden.

Metropolitan Turns Over Mosholu to Ben Knoble

NEW YORK—Unable to complete arrangements with Skouras Theatres for the Mosholu, Metropolitan Playhouses has turned the Bronx house over to Ben Knoble, who has taken a long-term lease. Skouras, however, is now operating the Tuxedo, in the same vicinity. Both units were formerly a part of Consolidated Amusements.

This circuit recently sold the lease on the New Yorker, on 43rd St. and Broadway, as yet uncompleted, to Harry Brandt who is expected to make it a newsreel house. Brandt has been studying the idea of making the New Yorker a show window for Film Alliance output, but is said to be definitely inclined toward the newsreel project. Arthur Mayer, who is interested with Brandt in the Rialto, is not tied up in any financial way in the New Yorker.

Four Operation Changes Effective in Gotham

NEW YORK—Four changes of operation and two closings are reported in the metropolitan area this week.

The Bridge on St. Nicholas Ave., Manhattan, formerly operated by Oscar Haring, has been taken over by Louis Chasin and Sidney Goldstein.

Alvin Locks, who operates the Model and Garden in Brooklyn, has taken over the new 14th Street, Manhattan.

Ben Knoble has acquired the Mosholu on East 204th St., from Consolidated.

The Mosque, Newark, which has figured in considerable litigation, is now being operated by Al Rogers.

The Storm King, Cornwall-on-Hudson, operated by Fred Faulkner, and the Williston, Mineola, operated by Dave Kah, are closed.

W. E. Re-elects

NEW YORK—All directors of Western Electric have been re-elected with the exception of Charles L. Rice who retired on January 10. The directors immediately thereafter re-elected all officers.

Again Defer Move Against Davidson

NEW YORK—There was comparatively little activity in the courts this week with the second postponement of applications to remove James A. Davidson, trustee of Educational Pictures Corp., and William Stephen Brown, trustee of Educational Film Corp. of America, heading the list. These applications now are scheduled to be heard April 17. Harry G. Fromberg, trustee of Grand National, is bringing the first application and De Luxe Laboratories, the second. Both want Fromberg appointed trustee of the Educational corporations.

Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Hofstadter has dismissed Harry Segal's $32,400 suit against George Leganas and Standard Picture Distributing Corp. The plaintiff claimed he was hired as general sales manager at five per cent of the gross which, if the defendants had heeded his counsel, would have been $216,000 yearly for three years. The judge found that, since there was no gross, no salary was due.

Standard Pictures Productions, Inc., has dropped its $50,000 suit against De Luxe Laboratories in the federal court in which it sought damages for the alleged illegal retention of the negative of "The Headleys at Home."

Para't Asks $170,000 in Suit Against Ameche

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount has filed a suit against Don Ameche for $170,000 in damages alleged to have resulted from the actor's refusal to perform in "The Night of January 16."

Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of Paramount's studio operations, stated, "His services had been borrowed from 20th Century-Fox for this picture and his failure to live up to the terms of his contract cost Paramount approximately $170,000 in producer and director charges, writing costs, set construction expenses and other charges."

Local 306 Into World's Fair Wage Controversy

NEW YORK—Local 306 has joined AFL theatrical unions in their wage dispute suspending major shows at the World's Fair here. Officials of the exposition charge that the operators are demanding $117 weekly as opposed to the scale of from $65 to $80.

"Delightful Streamlined Yippee"

Hollywood—Cash customers in droves should climb into their saddles and burn up the trail to the theatre where this delightful concoction of streamlined yippee, Paramount's "Buck Benny Rides Again," is showing. Jack Benny and his radio playmates—Rochester, Phil Harris, Andy Devine, Dennis Day and even Carmichael the polar bear—go western in a subtly satirized hoss opera which packs more laughs than lassoes, more swing than six-guns. Producer-Director Mark Sandrich didn't spare the horses in his extremely effective efforts to see that the vehicle which carried his troupe of competent mummers into the great open spaces was lavishly equipped with every device necessary to assure an entertaining and profitable feature.—SPEAR.

WASHINGTON

JOE PASTERNAK, Universal producer, while visiting Washington for the first time made a mental reservation of all points of interest, became intrigued with the official atmosphere of the capital city, and commented that combined with the natural beauty of the city a story for Deanna Durbin would be in order . . . The entire roster of the Universalites at the local exchange was favored with a visit from "Uncle" Joe, the visit being culminated with a group picture.

Ray Bell has returned from his prize trip to the coast and is bronzed like a warrior . . . Carlton Duffus, Metro exploiteer; Frank LaFalce, Warner publicity chief; Sam Bendheim jr. of Neighborhood Theatres, Richmond, and Hunter Perry of the Dominion circuit toured the territory to judge the winners of the recent "Ninotchka" contest, prizes being awarded for the largest gross and best exploitation campaign . . . The Bijou, Olney, has changed ownership from John Fox to B. N. Mears jr.

Eddie Heiber, Universal's Detroit branch manager, visited his many friends along the Row while homeward bound from the south . . . Ike Notes is planning to close the Empress and divert the patronage to his other Ninth street houses . . . Bob Folliard advises that "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" will return to Keith's on or about May 1 at popular prices . . . The Salesmen's Club of Washington held the drawing on its recent radio raffle. Oliver Donohoe, a local attorney, was the winner. The remaining nine near-winners (ten tickets were drawn), included Lou Tunick, Scotty Wilson, Guy Flannery, Edgar Moss, Eleanor Freer, Viola Spear, Mrs. J. F. Adcock, Frank Storti, and Spriggy Lloyd.

Mildred Ellis, UA, has resigned and will flash the glad tidings later . . . John Kase, former assistant manager of the Paramount, Charlottesville, has been transferred to the home office of Dominion Theatres . . . Emmett Cashman, RKO auditor, is making the usual check at the local branch . . . Bernie Kreisler, Universal branch manager, pulled a nifty when he enclosed a real date for a reel date in his letters to exhibitors regarding "It's a Date."

Metro chatter: Carlton Duffus, exploiteer, journeyed to Orange, N. J., to join with W. R. Ferguson, fellow exploiteer, to map out the exploitation campaign on the forthcoming "Edison, the Man" . . . Buddy "Duchess" Hall, secretary to Rudy Berger, is acquiring a suntan and you know where . . . Esther Blendman is due to return to her duties shortly . . . Mrs. Harriet Kenworthy celebrated her first wedding anniversary April 8 . . . Joe Young, Universal salesman, has returned from flamingoland looking mighty healthy.

Director Frank Lloyd is now on location in Williamsburg, Va., shooting amidst the historic landmarks for "Tree of Liberty." The town sure is antique looking what with six inches of dirt covering the main stem to provide the colonial effect . . . Birthday greetings to Universal's Barney Frank . . . Sam Tabor's wife purchased a large sack of salt to provide the Atlantic City effect in the bathtub and keep Sam ever remindful of his recent sojourn . . . Charles Raymond, more recently affiliated with the Fox interests in London, stopped off enroute to Cleveland to accept an executive position with the Loew organization . . . Paramount's Eddie Fontaine is back from his southern jaunt feeling fine as silk . . . Paramount's "Vince" Daugherty, Bob Grace, Harley Davidson, and "Tommie" Thompson are sporting new cars, which means it must be clear sailing on "The Road to Singapore."

The Salesmen's Club of Washington will hold its first open luncheon April 22 at Harvey's restaurant . . . The 20th-Fox entourage consisting of Sam Wheeler, branch manager, Salesmen Jerry Murphy, Sammy Diamond, Freddy Klein, and Glenn Norris, together with Joe Cohan, office manager, and Sara Young, booker, entrained for the 20th-Fox convention in Chicago . . . Ira Sichelman, booker, will hold down the fort in their absence . . . Incidentally, Ira, is foregoing eating lunch and is concentrating on his diet . . . Universal's Ina Pritchard is vacationing.

Seen along the Row: Tom McCaskey, Williamsburg; Ray Quillan and son from Selbyville, Del.; Herman Hable, Winchester; H. O. Thrush, Keyser, W. Va. . . . Monogram's branch manager, Harry Brown, and Salesman Buddy Hansen have returned to their desks, still nursing the colds that kept them at home for a spell . . . Oscar Blumenthal, Universal's office manager, became the granddaddy of a seven-pound boy . . . Tom Rayfield, Clark Film, is back on the job after having been hospitalized for a number of weeks with an injury.

Coast Sound Men Learn What's New—

They're back in Hollywood now, but into New York as guests of Erpi came these sound engineers to get a close-up of recent and pending improvements in recording and reproduction: Loren L. Ryder, Paramount; Jack Whitney, General Service studio; Elmer Raguse, Roach studio; John Livadary, Columbia; Douglas Shearer, M-G-M; Clifford W. Smith, Hollywood vice-president, Erpi; and Kenneth F. Morgan, same company. In the rear are E. H. Hansen, 20th Century-Fox, and Bernard B. Brown, Universal.

Delay Rogers Week

NEW YORK—The Will Rogers National Theatre Week has been postponed one week to April 25 in order to film Bette Davis, Judy Garland and Kay Kyser for the short subject, "If I Forget You," which is provided gratis to all participating theatres during the drive.

sired volume. It is for the motion picture industry to determine how rapidly they are justified in applying these new techniques commercially to the picture business. I believe these changes will be gradual in their impact upon an industry which is always alive to the possibility of improvement; they will not cause any sudden revolution in the art as did the advent of sound 14 years ago, but these disclosures are the most significant developments in sound in the last decade and unmistakably point the way to continued progress in the recording and reproducing of sound either in connection with motion pictures, or possibly without pictures, as a separate medium for making the best music available to audiences throughout the country."

Serge Rachmaninoff, noted musician, attended the Tuesday demonstration. He told a New York Times reporter, "I would like to hear more music without enhancement, perhaps some of the things I know well. Then I might be able to say something." He regarded the showing "a marvelous thing, from the standpoint of enhancement, but sometimes unmusical because of the loudness."

To Appoint Master to Hear Three Maine Trust Suits

BOSTON—Judge Peters, in district court, has informed distributor defendants that he will shortly appoint a master to hear three anti-trust cases originating in Maine.

Catholics Boycott "Cargo"

ALBANY—Catholics in the Albany diocese have been urged to refrain from seeing Metro's "Strange Cargo," now showing at the Palace here.

ALBANY

MANAGER MOE GRASSGREEN, Salesmen Fred Sliter and Benny Dare and Booker Dan Houlihan boarded special 20th Century-Fox convention train out of New York when it stopped here Wednesday night en route to Chicago. They were due back Monday morning . . . Mrs. Pearl Merges, 20th Century-Fox biller, has been on a vacation and settling a new home purchased in West End. The Merges—he's a police officer—were married last summer . . . Mrs. Anna May Leonard, Warner-Vitagraph inspectress, returned to work after an illness . . . Gov't Mediator Sounds Warner-Musicians Tiff

PHILADELPHIA—A federal government mediator has come to town to try to settle the contract dispute between Warner and the American Federation of Musicians. So far his efforts have been confined to informally sounding out the sentiments of both sides.

REVIEW FLASHES

AN ANGEL FROM TEXAS (WB)—A merry farce about show business that travels along familiar lines. The accent is on humor. Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris. Directed by Ray Enright.

GRANDPA GOES TO TOWN (Rep)—Among those who can take their slapstick in broad, obvious doses, this latest chapter in the adventures of the Higgins family will find its most satisfactory patronage. Producer-Director Gus Meins, whether purposely or not, implanted every corny gag on record into the motivation—along with a few genuinely funny sequences.

HI YO, SILVER (Rep)—Most of the material which has been included in "The Lone Ranger" serial finds its way into this feature. Good entertainment for the juveniles. Lee Powell, Herman Briggs, Chief Thundercloud. Directed by William Whitney and John English.

HIDDEN MENACE (Alliance)—A fairly good story treated with little imagination, poorly performed, featuring photography that evidences need of an exposure meter. Otto Kruger, Gertrude Michael, John Clements.

LIGHTS OUT IN EUROPE (Mayer-Burstyn)—Grim and realistic, but in every respect sincere, this documentary recounts the recent past of Poland, Danzig, England and France in terms of the horrors of war and its devastation. No cast. Narration by Fredric March from a script by James Hilton.

MURDER ON THE YUKON (Mono)—Brought in on a small investment, this is good enough for juvenile appeal and a fair share of the action-inclined adults. James Newill, Polly Ann Young. Directed by Louis Gasnier.

RHYTHM ON THE RIO GRANDE (Mono)—Tuneful Tex Ritter goes hunting for a Texas wrongdoer, flanked by a new crony, Frank Mitchell. It proceeds very slowly. Also featured are Susan Dale and Warner Richmond.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Bioff Denied Bail

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Denied bail by the state supreme court, William Bioff, Hollywood labor leader, is expected to go to jail Monday in his fight against serving out a sentence imposed years ago on a pandering charge.

Foreign News Casts Hurt Subsequents

NEW YORK—Independent subsequent run operators in this territory claim the past week was one of the most disastrous in point of business "in many months." They claim, as they did last September, that the foreign war news being broadcast at frequent intervals is keeping suburbanites and neighborhood patrons glued to their radios. A clincher for the week was Monday's steady downpour, which, in many situations, caused admissions to drop decisively.

However, a checkup among affiliated circuit executives discloses the claim that first-run, downtown business "is excellent" in most spots. In fact, Barney Balaban, Paramount president, asserted grosses in Chicago "are better than they have been in some time."

N. J. Allied Due to Act On Samuelson Honor

NEW YORK—Allied of New Jersey was to have acted over the weekend on appointment of Sidney Samuelson to honorary membership on the organization's board. Although he held an active post on the board, Samuelson submitted his resignation upon selling his theatre in Newton, N. J.

The organization was to take up the matter of his resignation at a meeting Tuesday, but failed to get around to it. Asked what occurred at the session, a spokesman replied: "It was a small meeting. Reports were read; there was no action on anything."

Decision Is Reserved on "The Birth of a Baby"

ALBANY—The court of appeals has reserved its decision after hearing arguments in the appeal by the American Committee on Maternal Welfare for an order directing the board of regents and Motion Picture Division Director Irwin Esmond to issue a license for public exhibition of "The Birth of a Baby."

The regents offered to grant a special license for showing of the film before limited groups, but appellants did not accept.

Angle for Reissue

NEW YORK—Teaser trailers attached to all releases of Walt Disney's Academy winning "The Ugly Duckling" seeking audience reaction to their desire for return engagements of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" are designed to determine a "possible reissue," according to Hal Horne, Disney's eastern representative. Horne says there is no thought of reissuing the feature length cartoon "at present."

Monogram Schedules Four

NEW YORK—Monogram's new season schedule includes "The Old Swimmin' Hole," and three stories by Hugh Wiley —"Phantom of Chinatown," "While Frisco Sleeps" and "Alias Jimmy Hogan."

Marhenke Adds to His Many Duties

Baltimore—To his many duties, Robert Marhenke, manager of the Broadway here, added another last week, when he chased down a bandit who tried to hold up his cashier and turned him over to the police.

In his spare time, Marhenke is a magistrate-at-large and BOXOFFICE'S Balto correspondent.

Landis Records Study Ruling Into Snag

PHILADELPHIA—The examination of the distributors' clearance books by attorneys for the Landis, Vineland—which was sanctioned by U. S. District Judge William H. Kirkpatrick—ran into a legal snarl on the first day.

State Senator Harry Shapiro and William B. Rudenko, Landis attorneys, asked to see clearance records of all distributors as they affected certain independent theatres. They said their purpose was to show that when clearance was changed, it was changed by all distributors simultaneously and in the same way, and in favor of Warner theatres.

Attorneys for the distributors objected that Judge Kirkpatrick's ruling gave the plaintiffs the right only to go over the clearance records of one distributor at a time.

Referee David Bachman, assigned by the court to supervise the examination, referred the matter to Judge Kirkpatrick, who ruled in the plaintiff's favor. Further examinations were held up temporarily to give the defendants time to decide whether to appeal the judge's ruling.

All Except Stanley-Warner File Affiliated Replies

PHILADELPHIA—Answers to the Affiliated circuit's suit against Stanley-Warner and the majors have been filed so far by all defendants except S-W. The answers consist mainly of denials that the exhibition contracts involved are part of interstate commerce, and express "no knowledge" of Affiliated's specific charges about changes in "zoning" by Warner, which allegedly affected the clearance of Affiliated theatres.

RCA Sound at Eltinge

NEW YORK—Max Rudnick, head of Rosebill Amusement Corp., will equip the Eltinge on West 42nd St. with RCA Photophone.

QUEENSTOWN, MD.—S. E. W. Friel, operator of the Queen, is installing RCA Photophone sound.

Patricia Donovan

WASHINGTON—Funeral services for Patricia Donovan, who died following an automobile accident in Virginia, were held here Wednesday with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Miss Donovan, 23, was the daughter of William J. Donovan of the law firm of Donovan, Newton, Leisure & Lumbard, which is representing RKO in the government suit.

To Albany Staff

ALBANY—Irving Shiffman of Universal's Boston office, and Charles Weil are newcomers to the company's local sales staff, replacing George Jeffrey and Tony Ryan. William Murphy replaces Shiffman at Boston.

PHILADELPHIA

WALTER DALEY, National Screen, and John Hall, RKO, are the newest recruits to the ranks of the papas. And over at Warner's, Sid Mesibov and Lester Krieger are anxiously crossing off days on the calendar, waiting for their bundles to arrive. It looks like a good season for free cigars . . . The Film Center building is getting its face done over . . . Censors are reported holding up Paramount's "Typhoon." Too much exposure . . . Charles Hite, Monogram salesman, has resigned; too busy handling his Gloucester taproom business . . . Warner's Broadway and Commodore are scheduled for remodeling.

Charlie Goldfine, Alden, has flown himself back from Florida . . . Also among the returning expatriates is Joe Leon, Universal . . . Harry G. Bodkin, UA, is back after two weeks in Mexico City. He was there at the same time as a convention of 500 Missouri college girls, but insists it was a mere coincidence . . . Towers, Camden, had a hobby contest in its ballroom in connection with Dave Elman's Hobby Lobby show . . . Nelson Eddy came to his home town for a recital at the Academy of Music . . . Mel Koff's Darby is getting a thorough doing-over.

Jimmy Miller, formerly of the Byrd, now is managing a house in Egg Harbor for Sam Frank . . . Edgar Moss, Al Davis, Sam Gross and the rest of the 20th-Fox regiment galloped off to the Chicago convention . . . Showmen's Club boys—still out in the cold and still looking for a new meeting place—will discuss the state of the nation at the Broadwood Tuesday . . . Lou Schliffer, Price Premiums, got his license restored by the kind-hearted highway department . . . Joe Sapsis, clothing tycoon, is looking cheerful, because his place hasn't been broken into in two weeks . . . Arthur Hyman, Masterpiece up-State salesman, associated with the company for 20 years, is leaving.

Among this week's visitors were Pete Magazzu, Coaldale; Lloyd Seibert, College, Bethlehem; E. M. Tannenbaum, Roxy, Olyphant; Mrs. Joseph Emashovski in from Larksville, with a new red hat . . . Roy Leitzel, former exhibitor of Sunbury, won the super-super radio in Motion Picture Associates' raffle. The organization expects to have about $1,500 when all the receipts are in. The executive board, headed by W. C. Karrer, Republic, held a meeting in its attorney's office on a petition for a charter . . . Earle Sweigert has lent the group the Paramount projection room for meetings.

The Horlacher Bowling Team won the second half championship in the transportation league. The boys will play the first half champions, Erb Trucking Co., April 19, then—win or lose—be dined by Oscar Neufeld at the Shanghai Restaurant. The Horlacher tossers are Tom Clark, John Clark, Tom Lark, Al Rinker, Phil Lomonaca and Spencer Fletcher.

The red-hot rhumba contest at the Variety Club was won by Harry Wiener, Columbia, and Mrs. Dave Milgram. They were awarded bottles of champagne . . . Lester Loper succeeds the late Charles Rapoport at the Fenwick, Salem, N. J. . . . The local Preferred exchange is going through a reorganization, which may leave out some of the well-known local boys . . . Sid Mesibov and Bill Huffman, Warner, West Chester, crashed into the American Business Club's annual charity ball by having it named the "Scarlett O'Hara Ball," arranging a contest for the town's Scarlett, and in general boosting the showing of "GWTW."

Warner Club sent out flyers for its annual spring dinner dance at the Cedarbrook Country Club, May 10. J. Ellis Shipman is arranging the works, aided by Al Zimbalist, Helen Mahoney, Joe Feldman, Gert McMonigle, Catherine McNamee, Bob Nydick, Mortimer Brodsky, Paul McGowan and Winnie Caulfield . . . Sid Samuelson is reported as having given up his theatre interest in Newton, N. J., to give all his time to his Allied affairs . . . Lester Jeffries, assistant at the Fays, is ill with pneumonia in Presbyterian Hospital.

There was a birthday on the 6th for Ella E. Rue; on the 9th for Joseph A. Salmons, Capitol; 12th, Jean Straub, Columbia; 14th, Rose Kennedy, Warner, and Harry Gessner, RKO . . . Frances Cooper, Columbia, had a wedding anniversary on the 4th; Helen Haggerty, UA, on the 8th . . . Mar McKinny is back on the job at RKO.

Ben Harris, Masterpiece, reveals that April 7 was the 29th anniversary of his entrance into the business—as a water boy in the North Penn Theatre, which now is a church . . . Al Zimbalist, Warner, is battling a cold, and hopes to have it downed by July . . . Art Cohn dug up a first edition of "Swiss Family Robinson"—1888—to ballyhoo the show . . . Bert Leighton, Grand, Lancaster, got four big book stores to enclose notes about the showing of "Rebecca" in all their mailed advertising.

Bill Morgan, Grand, Vineland, has become a scintillating civic figure. He has been elected director of the chamber of commerce, director of the Kiwanis Club, trustee of the Diamond Social Club, director of the High School Athletic Ass'n, chairman of the school's football dinner; chairman of the town's Mardi Gras committee; chairman of the annual horse show and the YMCA drive, and member of the board of the Red Cross drive. And he still has time to run his theatre.

Albany Front Office Union Drive Revived

NEW YORK—The movement to unionize front offices of Albany exchanges is said to have been revived. It was started a year and a half ago, since which time periods of activity and inactivity have alternated.

Last summer there were reports definite action would be synchronized with the opening of the selling season. However, this did not develop. A meeting was to be held last week to further the drive, and organizers for several locals are understood to be busy.

Leon Bamberger Elected New President of Ampa

NEW YORK—Leon Bamberger, sales promotion manager for RKO, has been named president of Ampa after Lou Pollock of Universal's eastern publicity staff, on a tie ballot, withdrew.

The remainder of the slate was elected unchallenged and includes Vincent Trotta, vice-president; Joseph Gould, secretary; Edward Schreiber, treasurer. Board members are Eli Sugarman, Martin Starr, Rutgers Neilsen, Louis Lifton and Paul Lazarus jr.

Full Screen Projection By Television Soon

NEW YORK—RCA will shortly make available television facilities to theatres that will reputedly be capable of projecting scenes on a full size screen. This was revealed by David Sarnoff, president of RCA, to the interstate commerce committee during hearings ordered by the FCC to learn if unlimited commercialization of the television industry would prevent its normal development.

Mark Conclusion of Drive With Dinner to O'Connor

NEW YORK—On Monday night, RKO executives will tend John O'Connor, general manager of RKO theatres, a dinner at the Warwick Hotel to observe the conclusion of O'Connor Month in the company's houses.

Report Phillips Sellout

PHILADELPHIA—Trade developments reported here have Simon O. Venus taking over the Capitol, Throop, Pa.; the Phillips Brothers closing the Rio, Chester, indefinitely, and turning over the Park, Allentown, to George Kurlansik, who has the Town in the same city. Those developments leave the Phillips Brothers without a house in that territory.

Grad Sears Busy on Convention Plans

To discuss plans for the forthcoming Warner sales convention, details of which have not yet been announced, Gradwell L. Sears, the company's general sales manager, has checked in at the Burbank studio for an indefinite stay. He was accompanied by Mrs. Sears and by Sam Scheider, homeoffice executive. Sears and Schneider have begun a series of huddles with H. M. and Jack Warner and Hal B. Wallis.

Discussion of his company's yearly sales meeting was also the primary purpose for the departure for New York of John Joseph, Universal's advertising-publicity chieftain, who headed east for two weeks of conferences. Also checking out for New York were William A. Scully, Universal's sales chief, and William J. Heineman, western sales manager, who spent ten days at the studio looking over current and forthcoming product.

Joe Pasternak, Universal producer, was expected in from New York, where he has been vacationing and conferring with company executives for several weeks. Pasternak's next production, Deanna Durbin's "Spring Parade," is scheduled to start May 10 with Henry Koster directing.

Another arrival was Harry Edington, executive producer at RKO Radio, who spent a week in New York talking over the 1940-41 production setup with President George Schaefer and other company executives.

Plans for Academy Productions' second RKO Radio release are being discussed with Schaefer in New York by Lee Garmes, head of the independent unit, which recently completed "Beyond Tomorrow." Academy's production headquarters have been transferred from General Service to the Selznick International Studios.

Samuel Goldwyn wound up a three-week vacation in Arizona and returned to his studio desk, where his next chore will be that of arranging for a release date for "The Westerner," starring Gary Cooper, which United Artists will distribute.

Anticipated Production Boom Arrives; 47 Films Shooting

By IVAN SPEAR

It came a little earlier than was expected, but Hollywood's long-anticipated production boom is here—and here to stay for some months to come, if the majors' crowded schedules are any criterion. The mass assault, which finds a seasonal peak of 47 films already in work, is the first determined drive to be undertaken since the industry pulled itself out of the war-inspired doldrums of the fall of 1939.

No less than 42 features are geared to roll before June 1—the bulk of them this month and early in May, and a substantial proportion of them in the high-budget brackets. In most cases they are for 1940-41 distribution.

Making heavy bids are 20th Century-Fox, Warner, Paramount and RKO Radio, although most other majors, too, list ambitious future schedules which will keep them in the running.

Twentieth Century-Fox is cleaning up its 1939-40 schedules with "Maryland" and "Four Sons," now in production. On the early docket are "Street of Memories," "I Married a Nazi," "The Great Commandment," "The Return of Frank James," "Down Argentine Way" and "The Great Profile." "Brigham Young," for 1940-41, is already before the cameras. Later in the season four Jones Family films—"Love Thy Neighbor," "Lucy Steps Out," "The Gay Old Dog" and "The Love Budget"—will also be filmed.

Warner will gun 11 before June 1, including "Episode," "Honeymoon for Three," "This Man Reuter," "No Time for Comedy" and "January Heights." Paramount lists "The Eyes of Texas," "A Night at Earl Carroll's" and "Rangers of Fortune" to start before April 15, with "Ghost Music," "Dancing on a Dime" and "Comin' Round the Mountain" to be launched immediately thereafter.

April 15 will also mark the start of RKO Radio's production spurt, when three films —"Lucky Partners," "Have It Your Own Way" and "Millionaires in Prison"—are rolled. They will be followed by "Thousand Dollar Marriage" and an untitled Lum and Abner comedy which Voco Productions will turn out.

Metro lists four for camera work this month, including "I Love You Again," "One Came Home," "To Own the World" and "The Yearling."

Production activity on other lots will find Universal starting "Spring Parade," starring Deanna Durbin, May 10; Monogram launching two this month, "First Assignment" and an untitled Frankie Darro starrer; Columbia also gunning a pair, an untitled Bill Elliott western and Larry Darmour's "Keep 'Em Alive;" two from United Artists—Hal Roach's "Captain Caution" and Edward Small's "The Son of Monte Cristo," and the revival of production by Boris Morros, who has chalked in "Second Chorus" for a May start.

Paramount Changes Trail Ginsberg's Appointment

Currently occupying the center of the stage as regards changes in studio personnel is Paramount, where, on the heels of Henry Ginsberg's appointment as general manager in charge of studio operations, the following shifts have been made:

Keith Glennan becomes studio manager in full and complete charge of all departments which, previously, were under the supervision of Fred Leahy, who turned in his resignation. Leahy bore the title of production control manager, while Glennan was in charge of back-lot activities.

Dorothy Robinson has been added to the research department, succeeding Wilma Vogt, resigned.

Unable to agree with studio executives on the terms of a new contract, Producer Harlan Thompson checked off the lot. He had been a writer and producer with the company since 1936. His last assignment, currently in release, was "The Road to Singapore."

The studio has granted a release from her contract to Judith Barrett, featured player, who plans to retire following her recent marriage to Lin Howard.

Lead for Walter Pidgeon In "When Daltons Rode"

Universal has borrowed Walter Pidgeon from M-G-M for one of the leads in "When the Daltons Rode," in which Andy Devine has also been cast. Production will start in May.

"Sharecropping" Producers Up In Number; Lasky Latest Case

With the signing of Jesse L. Lasky to a one-picture deal with Warner, the trend toward semi-independent production for distribution through major channels has attained a new high. Lasky is the second big name to be brought under the Warner banner on a semi-partnership deal, the independent company headed by Frank Capra and Robert Riskin having secured a release through that organization for their first film.

Under terms of the contract, Lasky joins the Warner staff to produce "The Amazing Story of Sergeant York" on a $2,000,000 budget. He will use Warner players in most of the roles and, studio spokesmen indicate, will probably employ studio contract writers to prepare the screenplay. Alvin C. York, who captured 132 German prisoners singlehanded during the first World War, has been signed by Lasky to function as technical advisor on the filming of his life. No information has been forthcoming as to the financial arrangements under which Lasky will work, but Warner attaches intimate he will receive a flat sum plus a percentage of the gross.

A Production Trend

Formation of the Lasky unit marks the fifth such arrangement made since late in February, at which time the 1940 edition of BOXOFFICE BAROMETER traced the growth of these "sharecropping" producers during 1939. Since then, and exclusive of Lasky, the following deals, along similar lines, have been set:

1. Voco Productions, headed by Jack Votion and Sam Coslow, incorporated and secured an RKO Radio release for four pictures to star Lum and Abner, radio comedians—first of the series to go into work within three weeks.

2. Again for RKO Radio, Harold B. Franklin and Ralph Blank have just completed "The Villain Still Pursued Her," based on the stage play, "The Drunkard." No further plans for this company have been announced as yet.

3. Lester Cowan has negotiated a two-picture deal with Columbia along the Lasky-Warner lines. For that company Cowan will make James Hilton's "And Now Goodbye" and F. Scott Fitzgerald's "Babylon Re-Visited."

4. To be given a United Artists release through the facilities of Walter Wanger Productions, Argosy Corp. is preparing to film "The Long Voyage Home," from a play by Eugene O'Neill. Director of the picture, and one of the founders of the company, is John Ford.

It was in 1939 that the "sharecropping" producer attained his precedental stature in the Hollywood scheme of things. The cause?

Economic reasons, say some industry dopesters. They hold that studios are desirous of stepping up production quality without, at the same time, erecting a top-heavy personnel. Others opine that the quality of independent producers has risen to the point where the calibre of their films equals, or exceeds, that turned out by the majors themselves. Too, from the "sharecropper's" standpoint, he is allowed more individuality in the choice of stories, stars and production procedure.

A Producer Signs—

Jesse L. Lasky affixes his signature to the deal under which he joins the Warner production roster to film "The Amazing Story of Sergeant York" on a projected $2,000,000 budget. Jack L. Warner, production chief, looks on to make sure everything is legal.

Regardless, the trend was one of the dominant developments of the year, and one of which RKO Radio was the leading exponent. President George Schaefer signed partnership deals for two pictures with Max Gordon and Harry Goetz; a four-picture release with Lee Garmes' Academy Productions; another four-picture contract with Stephens-Lang for the production of a "Dr. Christian" series starring Jean Hersholt; four more from Gene Towne's and Graham Baker's The Play's the Thing unit; a three-picture arrangement with Franklyn Warner's Fine Arts Productions, and a tieup for an indefinite number to be turned out by Herbert Wilcox, British producer. To these, of course, are added Voco Productions and the Franklin-Blank unit, as cited above.

Move to Offset Loss of Capra

Columbia, relinquishing Frank Capra, took concrete steps to overcome the loss by signing Charles R. Rogers to produce four films with independent financing, and holds a one-picture commitment with Irving Starr to turn out a musical starring Tony Martin. It will also release Frank Lloyd's first independent venture, "The Tree of Liberty." Lloyd had been signed by Columbia to a straight producer-director ticket upon his departure from Paramount, under which "The Tree of Liberty" was to be his initial assignment; the contract was abrogated almost immediately, however, with Lloyd, going out on his own, taking that story property with him.

Universal moves into the picture when Lloyd completes his chore for Columbia, having signed him to a two-year deal. Another Universal "sharecropper" is Jules Levey, ex-RKO Radio distribution executive, soon to gun "The Boys From Syracuse."

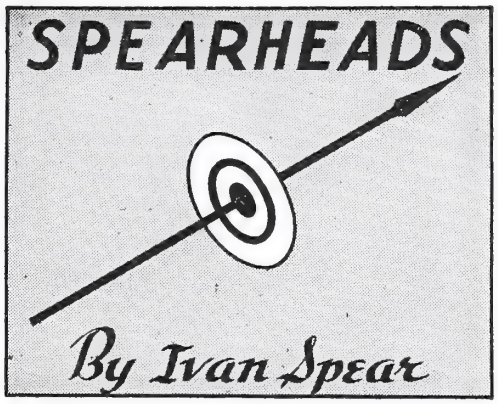
Other "partnership" deals negotiated in 1939 included:

A four-picture deal whereby Monogram will release the output of Golden West Productions.

Purchase by 20th Century-Fox of Cathedral Films' first production, "The Great Commandment," which is to be almost entirely remade.

Release by M-G-M of David O. Selznick's "Gone With the Wind."

Signing of a new two-year contract by Paramount with its stand-by "sharecropper," Harry Sherman, producer of the "Hopalong Cassidy" series.



The plentiful pouring of new production blood into United Artists, which was founded and has been successfully operating on the partnership basis for more than 20 years. In 1939 such names as Richard Rowland, Sol Lesser and Ernst Lubitsch, David Loew and Albert Lewin, and James Roosevelt's Globe Productions all secured UA releases.

23 Stars Condemn Neely Bill As "Harmful" to the Screen

Contending motion pictures are their "job" and their "life," and asserting they are convinced the proposed legislation would be "highly harmful to the American screen," 23 topflight stars affixed their signatures to a letter opposing passage of the Neely bill, the communication being forwarded to Clarence F. Lea, chairman of the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce.

The stars branded the advance synopsis section of the bill as an "absurdity," which would "destroy the experimental progress so vital to the screen." They declared that "exceptional pictures are never cut to a pattern," and cited the numerous instances in which highly entertaining films were the result of "constant revision, gradual shaping of structure, compromises to strengthen story values."

The letter was signed by Joan Crawford, Madeleine Carroll, Fredric March, Bob Hope, Edward G. Robinson, Gary Cooper, Tyrone Power, Joan Blondell, Don Ameche, Dick Powell, Alice Faye, Eddie Cantor, Ralph Morgan, Robert Taylor, Billie Burke, Norma Shearer, Conrad Nagel, Wallace Beery, Jean Hersholt, Ralph Bellamy, Joel McCrea, Jeffrey Lynn and Joan Bennett.

IT IS reported that the Ritz—nee Joachim—Brothers are planning to produce their own pictures independently, starring themselves in just the types of stories and roles they feel are best suited to their individual and collective talents. Following their latest unjustified manifestation of temperament, such a plan, however impractical it may seem, probably is the only remaining open avenue to their further appearance before Hollywood's cameras.

Set for featured parts in "The Boys From Syracuse," Jules Levey's initial feature for Universal release, the Ritzes withdrew because they considered themselves Thespically above sharing billing with Martha Raye, Allan Jones and Rosemary Lane, any one of whom can point to a more impressive boxoffice and popularity record.

On two previous occasions the brothers left producers high and dry for similar reasons. Under contract to 20th Century-Fox, they refused roles in "Three Wise Men" and balked at a projected loanout to Republic for "Hit Parade of 1940." Their refusal to accept either assignment automatically washed up their pacts with the Westwood studio. Since that time, with the exception of a limited personal appearance tour, the trio has been idle.

In view of which it will be entirely understandable if the colossi of casting completely forget henceforth the availability of the Ritzes.

Jimmy Fidler, barnstorming through the hinterlands, has undertaken to report in minutest—albeit bewhiskered—details "fan reaction" to everything connected with the entertainment world; except, of course, Fidler himself. The tone of the veteran air gossiper's observations indicates he is of the belief he is the one and only person from Hollywood who ever talked to a theatre patron or exhibitor east of Whittier. His latest erudite contribution for the edification of picture-makers declares:

"I'm being perpetually astonished by the professional tone of fan criticism."

Perhaps the reverse, fan astonishment at professional criticism, is responsible for Jimmy's current search for a sponsor.

And the same purveyors of the obvious established some sort of a new speed record when they produced in less than 15 minutes a locksmith to release Ann Sheridan from the alleged dilemma which arose when a college student handcuffed the star to himself as she entered the Hollywood Theatre to attend a preview. To make matters worse, the student reportedly swallowed the key.

Of course, it isn't possible that the locksmith could have been arranged for in advance.

The reactionary critics, who questioned the soundness of Darryl F. Zanuck's judgment when he purchased and translated to celluloid John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," must find themselves considerably confounded by the news that conservative Metro has bought the film rights to the novelist's "Tortilla Flats."

Mighty Leo, who has a very definite propensity toward looking before he leaps, must have convinced himself that the theatre-patronizing public is pro-Steinbeck minded and the business being done by "Grapes" and Hal Roach's "Of Mice and Men" indicates a market for more offerings from the pen of the crusading author, which fails, somehow, to square with the hecklers' contentions that Steinbeck's fiction, because of its sociological facets, has no place in the entertainment world.

Dogs, Desperadoes and Dinosaurs

"Happy Days Are Here Again" became the theme song of Hollywood's reviewing battalion as the week's preview lineup increased to eight features, no less than two of which were debuted to the accompaniment of free grog and groceries.

Two of the octette merit special attention on several counts, Republic's "The Dark Command" and Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater." Undoubtedly the most pretentious and impressive photoplay ever undertaken by the Studio City film factory, the former compares favorably with any of the several super-westerns turned out during recent seasons by other companies. It has action, spectacle, excitement and suspense and spells quality in production, story, direction and Thespic talent. There can be little doubt that it will register as a solid success. Sol C. Siegel's handling of the many elements going into the completed effort rate him plenty of praise as associate producer, while Raoul Walsh's directorial hand displayed verve and distinction throughout. Grover Jones, Lionel Houser and F. Hugh Herbert wrote a crisp and seemingly historically authentic screenplay from the novel by W. R. Burnett.

Jack Moss' initial production chore, "The Biscuit Eater" is so refreshingly different that it should command the attention and the plaudits of the entire industry, particularly those connected with the exhibition branch; consideration, incidentally, that was lavishly bestowed by consensus of critical opinion. For all of its production and entertainment excellence, there is no gainsaying the fact that the feature may be handicapped, especially in its subsequent showings, by the lack of established cast names and, perhaps, by a title which will require some explanation. Consequently, the picture affords individual showmen a precedental opportunity to prove their sincerity in the attitude—which most exhibitors have taken—that, given pictures which are off Hollywood's beaten path and which contain the necessary ingredients to please audiences, they are eager to give them the additional exploitation to assure successful runs. Treated to such merchandising, aided by the favorable word-of-mouth it is sure to engender, the film should attain the hit class. It is doubtful whether the popular theme—a boy's love for his dog—has ever been more understandingly treated than in the script by Stuart Anthony and Lillie Hayward, from a story by James Street. The natural backgrounds—the famous quail-hunting country around Albany, Ga. —provide additional interest and no little of the film's excellence can be traced to the steadiness of Stuart Heisler's direction.

* * *

Above average is Warner's "Saturday's Children," a compellingly human document stamped by an all-too-rare atmosphere of utter sincerity in the telling. A convincing re-make of an early talking picture which, in turn, was adapted from Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, it should prove an intriguing and popular addition to any program which will be particularly well received by young couples. The type of literate screenplay that has marked the previous collaborative efforts of Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein again is evident in this writing job, while Vincent Sherman's direction is straightforward and realistic. Producer Henry Blanke has endowed it with every necessary element to make the film a worthwhile investment for showman and patron alike.

A Doggy Premiere—

A novel highlight of the recent preview of Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater" at the Village Theatre in Westwood was the display of distinguished canines by 30 dog-loving Hollywood notables. Foyer of the theatre resembled a dog show, as it was lined with cages containing filmdom's pets. Shown above is a study in contrasts, with Virginia Dale and Stuart Heisler, who directed "The Biscuit Eater," guarding a half-pint number while a champion Great Dane looks on gloomily.

"Delightful Streamlined Yippee"

Cash customers in droves should climb into their saddles and burn up the trail to the theatre where this delightful concoction of streamlined yippee, Paramount's "Buck Benny Rides Again," is showing. Jack Benny and his radio playmates—Rochester, Phil Harris, Andy Devine, Dennis Day, and even Carmichael the polar bear—go western in a subtly satirized hoss opera which packs more laughs than lassoes, more swing than six-guns. Producer-Director Mark Sandrich didn't spare the horses in his extremely effective efforts to see that the vehicle which carries his troupe of competent mummers into the great open spaces was lavishly equipped with every device necessary to assure an entertaining and profitable feature.—SPEAR.

SWG's Negotiation Request Heeded

In what may well be the final step toward the complete washup of the Screen Writers Guild's long battle for recognition by the producers as sole bargaining agent for film scriveners, two studios have already notified SWG leaders they are willing to reopen negotiations "at the mutual convenience" of both parties. Other studios, also, are expected to file similar notices within a short time.

First to reply to the SWG's request for conferences was Paramount, followed immediately by 20th Century-Fox. The move was made following an SWG executive board meeting at which a letter to the major plants, requesting that parleys be reopened, was drafted. The action was keyed closely to a recent intermediate report rendered by the national labor relations board in which the trial examiner recommended that producers post notices indicating they would not interfere with the writers' efforts to bargain collectively. Producers immediately acceded to the request. Reopening of the SWG-producer negotiations was also expedited, the Guild board explained, because of the recent dissolution of the Screen Playwrights contract.

Meantime another postponement in the series of parleys between producers and the Conference of Studio Unions relative to the ten per cent wage boost granted 12,000 members of the latter last fall was ordered, pending receipt of word from Chicago as to whether William Bioff, chairman of the CSU negotiating committee, may be able to return to take charge for the labor contingent. Meeting was also slowed because A. H. Peterson, AFL international representative and a member of the CSU committee, was injured in an automobile accident.

Follow Up Independents

The Society of Motion Picture Film Editors, having secured its ten per cent wage boost from the majors, is conducting a drive to sign up independent producers on the same basis. Contracts have already been worked out with Stephens-Lang, Dixie National, Boris Morros, Sig Neufeld and three commercial outfits, Rodney Gilliam, Roland Reed and Cinema Sales, Inc. Negotiations are being handled by Walter Sharp, the SMPFE's business representative. A general meeting was called for April 11 to discuss the feasibility of attempting to sign film editors in other industrial and commercial fields throughout the country.

Sound Technicians Local 695, still negotiating with Republic for a new contract calling for increased wages, is continuing its drive to line up other independent companies, and has signed new pacts with Sigmund Neufeld Productions and Scientific Films.

Producers scheduled parleys with the Screen Office Employes Guild, which claims a majority of office workers in its membership and is asking for designation as sole bargaining agent.

A parley was also held by producer representatives with the Society of Motion Picture Artists and Illustrators concerning the contract which the latter group has drawn up and submitted. Another conference was held with Herbert Sorrell, business representative of the motion picture painters and the Screen Cartoonists guild, relative to the SCG's demand for recognition as bargaining agent for Metro cartoonists.

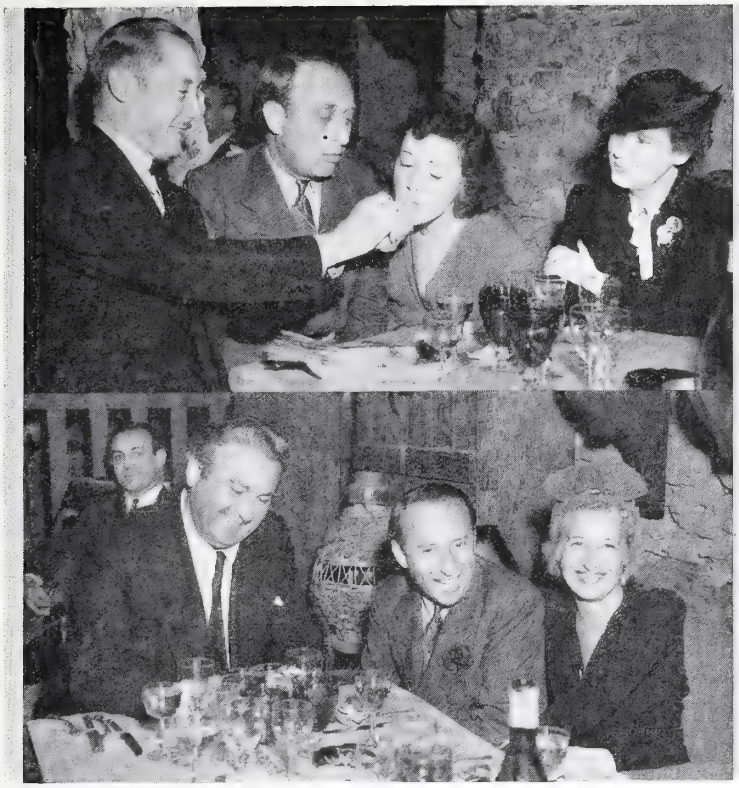
A jurisdictional squabble between the American Society of Cinematographers and the International Photographers Local 659 pertaining to location work is being ironed out in a series of confabs between representatives of both groups.

The Hollywood Guild Council has invited the Screen Publicists, Set Designers, Readers, Artists and Illustrators, Film Editors and Interior Decorators to attend a general meeting called for April 18 at SWG headquarters to discuss proposed changes in the organization's constitution.

The Screen Actors Guild council held a long session to discuss the announcement by Kenneth Thomson, SAG secretary, that a draft of the proposed autonomy plan for extras under a separate charter is nearing completion. Thomson indicated the draft would be placed before the "A" and "B" directorates within a few weeks.

Elaborate Premieres Tax Bally Artists

Apparently overcome by their own herculean labors, filmdom's exploiteers have charted a week's pause to catch their second wind before plunging anew into the seemingly endless task of selling new films via elaborate previews and premieres in key spots throughout the country.



Next item on the calendar will be in the hands of Paramount with the debut of "Buck Benny Rides Again" at the Paramount Theatre in New York April 24, attended by Jack Benny, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson and Dennis Day—all from the cast of the picture. Producer-Director Mark Sandrich, as well as members of Benny's radio troupe, including Mary Livingstone and Don Wilson, will also be on hand for the festivities.

Tied in with a "civic pride and progress" celebration in Albany, Ga., was Paramount's world premiere there of "The Biscuit Eater," April 11. The delegation attending from Hollywood included Billy Lee, nine-year-old star of the film, Joe E. Brown, Evelyn Keyes and Jean Cagney, as well as Producer Jack Moss, Director Stuart Heisler, Y. Frank Freeman jr., 300 newspapermen and exhibitors and Robert M. Gillham, Paramount's director of exploitation and publicity. All concerned voted the affair a complete success, highlighted by such events as a two-mile parade, a gala ball, a barbecue and showings in two theatres—all covered by national radio outlets.

Final report on Republic's premiere of "The Dark Command" in Lawrence, Kas., revealed that some 75,000 fans from that city and the surrounding territory turned out April 4 for the event. Back home in Hollywood after participating in the celebration are Walter Pidgeon, Wendy Barrie, Ona Munson, Roy Rogers, George Hayes and other local notables.

Following the "Buck Benny" stunt M-G-M will take over the reins by staging a mid-May premiere of "Edison, the Man," in East Orange, N. J., where Edison spent many years of his life.

RKO Radio is also stepping into the picture by planning four day-date premieres of "My Favorite Wife," starring Irene Dunne, in as many key cities, east, west, north and south.

highly acceptable imaginative novelty offering concerning the emotions and habits of prehistoric man and his enemies in the animal world. Trick photography plays a more important part in the picture than do story or cast. The feature compares favorably with previous entries in its field and should fare satisfactorily at the turnstiles. One sequence involving an erupting volcano and an earthquake is particularly impressive. The screenplay, which contained only incidental dialogue—and that a studio-devised jargon—was prepared by Mickell Novak, George Baker and Joseph Frickert, while Grover Jones fashioned the descriptive narration which appeared on the sound track as the voice of Conrad Nagel. Worthy of especial mention are the photographic effects created by Roy Seawright and Norbert Brodine, director of photography. Hal Roach and Hal Roach jr. shared the directorial megaphone.

Three rate as adequate program offerings. Metro contributed "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," Universal entered "Enemy Agent" and 20th Century-Fox brought forth "On Their Own," a new "Jones Family" adventure.

The new chapter in Dr. Kildare's career has its engrossing moments, holds attention pretty consistently and works in some convincing romantic and comedy angles. However, it does not quite measure up to the high marks established in previous entries. Harry Ruskin and Willis Goldbeck wrote the screenplay, based on an original story by Goldbeck and Max Brand. Harold S. Bucquet was the director.

Universal has an interesting piece of entertainment in "Enemy Agent," convincingly enacted and well written by Sam Robins and Edmund L. Hartmann. Lew Landers' direction was briskly-paced. Ben Pivar was the associate producer.

The same brand of wholesome, all-ages entertainment that has always characterized "Jones Family" vehicles is delivered in 20th Century-Fox's newest chapter, although it is marked by the absence, for the first time, of "Pa"—Jed Prouty. His recent contractual difficulties with the studio made it necessary for Writers Harold Buchman, Val Burton, Jack Jungmeyer jr. and Edith Skouras to eliminate the head of the family from the script, which they did through the expedient of a nervous breakdown. Otto Brower pointed up the comedy angles in his direction. Max Golden handled the production reins.

RKO Radio's entry in the week's lineup, "Curtain Call," is a lightweight farce with a backstage theme, imbued with a substantial-enough load of laughs to serve satisfactorily in most theatres. Dalton Trumbo's screenplay and Howard J. Green's original story are cut to the standard pattern. Howard Benedict, making his production debut after serving as the studio's publicity-advertising chieftain for a number of years, handled his assignment capably. Picture also marked the first directorial effort for Frank Woodruff, heretofore connected exclusively with radio dramatizations.

Exclusive to Disney On Use of Sonovox

A four-year contract, granting Walt Disney the exclusive rights to use his recently-invented Sonovox in cartoon production, has been signed by Gilbert Wright, creator of the device.

The machine makes it possible to translate any sound, from the bleat of a lamb to the whistle of a locomotive, into articulate English, yet preserving the sound's original tone and volume. Similarly, English dialogue may be transposed into any foreign tongue, or vice versa. Wright is the son of the late novelist, Harold Bell Wright.

National Pictures Is New Boris Morros Company

Incorporation of National Pictures Corp., independent of his former company, Boris Morros Productions, Inc., has been announced by Boris Morros, together with the disclosure that he is dissolving his partnership with Jacques Grinieff, French producer, which was the basis for the old firm.

Morros' principal partner in the new setup is Robert Stillman, vice-president, treasurer and associate producer. Morros is president, Sam Rheiner is secretary and the board also comprises John Stillman, father of Robert, and A. Robert Simon. The new company's first production, "Second Chorus," will feature Paul Whiteman and his band and will go into work between June 15 and July 1 at General Service Studios. Henry Potter will direct from an original by Frank Cabett.

Release for this and a second film is now being negotiated. Morros' old company made one picture, "Flying Deuces," for RKO Radio.

Ameche's Walkout Cost $170,000, Says Para't

When Don Ameche walked out on a loan-out assignment in which he was to appear in "The Night of January 16," the cost to Paramount was approximately $170,000.

That is the studio's contention in a damage suit filed against the actor in superior court seeking judgment in that amount. Ameche had been borrowed from 20th Century-Fox for the commitment, and his failure to live up to the terms of the contract meant a heavy loss to Paramount in "producer and director charges, writing costs, set construction expenses and other charges," according to Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations.

O'Melveny and Myers, attorneys, are representing Paramount in the suit.

Rosemary Lane, Nancy Kelly Loaned to "U"

Universal, going on a borrowing spree, negotiated the loan of Rosemary Lane from Warner for a feminine lead in Jules Levy's "The Boys From Syracuse." The studio also worked out a deal with 20th Century-Fox whereby Nancy Kelly moves over from the Westwood plant to appear opposite Robert Cummings in "One of the Boston Bullertons."

Crosby, Hope and Lamour Cast in "Blue Lagoon"

Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, stars of Paramount's "The Road to Singapore," are to be reunited in "Blue Lagoon," now being prepared for an early camera start. Story is by Frank Butler, with production assignments to be made shortly. Crosby will first appear in "Ghost Music."

Featurette to Eason

Breezy Eason will direct "Buffalo Bill and the Pony Express," a Warner historical featurette.

REVIEW FLASHES

AN ANGEL FROM TEXAS (WB)—A merry farce about show business that travels along familiar lines. The accent is on humor. Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris. Directed by Ray Enright.

HI YO, SILVER (Rep)—Most of the material which has been included in "The Lone Ranger" serial finds its way into this feature. Good entertainment for the juveniles. Lee Powell, Herman Briggs, Chief Thundercloud. Directed by William Whitney and John English.

HIDDEN MENACE (Alliance)—A fairly good story treated with little imagination, poorly performed, featuring photography that evidences need of an exposure meter. Otto Kruger, Gertrude Michael, John Clements.

LIGHTS OUT IN EUROPE (Mayer-Burstyn)—Grim and realistic, but in every respect sincere, this documentary recounts the recent past of Poland, Danzig, England and France in terms of the horrors of war and its devastation. No cast. Narration by Fredric March from a script by James Hilton.

MURDER ON THE YUKON (Mono)—Brought in on a small investment, this is good enough for juvenile appeal and a fair share of the action-inclined adults. James Newill, Polly Ann Young. Directed by Louis Gasnier.

RHYTHM ON THE RIO GRANDE (Mono)—Tuneful Tex Ritter goes hunting for a Texas wrongdoer, flanked by a new crony, Frank Mitchell. It proceeds very slowly. Also featured are Susan Dale and Warner Richmond.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

HLDA's Open Forum Topic Is Scandian Invasion

Tying its discussional periods directly into news headlines, the studio committee of the Hollywood League for Democratic Action has scheduled an open forum to analyze the Nazi invasion of Norway and Denmark, the meeting to be held April 17. Representatives of the Hollywood Peace Forum have been recruited to lead the discussion, in which the chief speakers will be Guy Endore, Herbert Biberman and Sam Ornitz, screen writers, and Dr. Herbert Alexander of City College.

This will be followed a week later by another forum at which the plight of four students expelled from City College will be discussed. HLDA representatives hold that their expulsion was undemocratic and that one of the students, Dan Ginsberg, was wrongfully expelled because he admitted to membership in the Young Communist League.

Michael Elkins has been named executive secretary of the HLDA, succeeding Mrs. Gene Sackheim, who held the post temporarily after it had been vacated by Sonja Dahl.

Research Council Adds Raguse to Roster

Elmer Raguse, Hal Roach's sound director, has been made a member of the Academy Research Council by Darryl F. Zanuck, council chairman, Roach being permitted representation since he has begun contributing to the financial support of the council's research program. Membership, in addition to Zanuck and Raguse, now comprises John Aalberg, RKO Radio; Bernard B. Brown, Universal; Farciot Edouart, Paramount; E. H. Hansen, 20th Century-Fox; Nathan Levinson, Warner; John Livadary, Columbia; Thomas Moulton, Samuel Goldwyn; Douglas Shearer, M-G-M, and Gordon S. Mitchell.

FitzPatrick Will Produce "Life of Captain Cook"

Lined up for Metro's 1940-41 schedule as the first feature to be produced by James A. FitzPatrick, maker of the studio's Traveltalks, is "The Life of Captain Cook," story of the navigator who explored the Sandwich Islands, now Hawaii.

Present plans are to film the picture in Technicolor, shooting most of it in Hawaii. Script is being written by Hugo Butler.

Cinematography Students Re-Film "Lincoln" Scene

A four-hour lecture, during which a scene from "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" was re-filmed, was delivered to cinematography students at the University of Southern California by Director John Cromwell. Students handled all phases of the production under Cromwell's supervision.

Wexley to "Danger Signal"

"Danger Signal," novel by Phyllis Bottome ("Mortal Storm"), will be adapted for Warner by John Wexley.

Roosevelt Ready to Begin Production

A swing into action on two fronts is in the offing for James Roosevelt's Globe Productions, following Roosevelt's return here after six weeks of conferences in Chicago with executives of the Mills Novelty Co.

Roosevelt will immediately begin filming the first musical short subject to be made for the coin-operated projectors which Mills is manufacturing, and the handling of which will be under the supervision of the recently-formed Mills-Globe Corp. Henry Henigson, Roosevelt's executive assistant, will be in charge of production on the shorts, which will be shot on 16mm film and will average about 100 feet in length.

When production of the shorts has been launched, Roosevelt will turn his attention to preparations for the two feature-length films which are to be turned out for United Artists release by fall. First of these is "The Bat," on which the screenplay is now being written. Roosevelt has also announced that his UA release may be augmented through a deal now being negotiated with Samuel Bronston Productions. Globe's UA distribution channels will be used to release Bronston's product if the merger is made.

Neufeld Rolls First

Sigmund Neufeld Productions has rolled "Sons of the Finest," first on its 15-picture schedule for distribution by Producers Releasing Corp., with Sherman Scott directing and Gordon Jones heading the cast. First Neufeld western will be "Frontier Crusader," starring Tim McCoy and rolling April 26. This will be followed almost immediately by a Bob Steele western, "The Sagebrush Family Rides On." Peter Stewart will direct both. Production space has been secured at International studios.

Million Dollar Productions has turned its cameras on "Gridiron Graft," an all-Negro vehicle featuring Kenny Washington, former U. C. L. A. football star. Leo C. Popkin is the director.

A meeting of the creditors and stockholders of Grand National Studios and Grand National Films, Inc., has been scheduled for April 16, at which the latest trustees' report will be presented. Loyd Wright has been administering the assets of both organizations, against which claims totaling $350,000 or more have been filed.

Incorporation of the Phonovision Corp. of America, as announced here by Frank Orsatti, Sam Sax and Sol Freedman, to produce films and automatic projection machines for use in cocktail bars, hotels, restaurants, etc., will in no way affect James Roosevelt's plans to produce a series of shorts for the Mills Novelty Co., to be distributed in the same manner, spokesmen for Roosevelt assert.

Although Freedman insists the Mills machine is an infringement upon patents obtained by him, whatever litigation between the two companies might ensue will not involve Roosevelt, it was declared, as the producer is interested only in the manufacture of the films and has nothing whatever to do with their distribution. His contract, it was pointed out, carries a definite production starting date to which he intends to adhere.

Officials of the Phonovision company have disclosed that the films to be used in the machine will be produced in the Warner Vitaphone studio in Brooklyn under the executive supervision of Sax, former British production head for Warner. The eastern property has been leased by Phonovision and Warner will be in no way connected with the enterprise, it was emphasized. Phonovision reels will contain ten subjects with a total running time of 18 minutes, to be made in both black-and-white and color. The projector's screen will measure 16 by 20 inches, compared to the 18 by 24-inch screen on the Mills device. Freedman claims to have spent more than two years perfecting the device and asserts it was submitted to the Mills Co. several months ago and rejected.

Joins Riskin on Script

Myles Connolly has joined Robert Riskin on the script of "The Life of John Doe," Frank Capra production, which Warner will release.

Gets "Street of Memories"

Shepard Traube will direct "Street of Memories," Lucien Hubbard production for 20th-Fox.

Cole and Kuykendall Invited by PCCITO

LOS ANGELES—Among the chief speakers at the first annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners here May 8-9-10 may be Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, and H. A. Cole, president of Allied States. Formal invitations were dispatched to them by R. H. Poole, the PCCITO's executive secretary, who expressed confidence their acceptances would be returned immediately.

Cole and Kuykendall would discuss matters "of supreme importance to all independent showmen," Poole said. The program, as tentatively worked out, calls for them to address the gathering on May 9, second day of the session. The two nationally prominent exhibitor leaders were selected as the result of a meeting of the PCCITO convention program committee, headed by Poole and comprising Hugh Bruen and Jack Y. Berman, of Los Angeles, and Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin of San Francisco.

Another highlight of the affair will be a banquet for the visitors at which the producers association in Hollywood will be the host. From 250 to 300 showmen are expected to attend the conclave from the PCCITO's various units, extending from Alaska down the coast. The ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., functioning as host, has set up permanent program headquarters at the Ambassador Hotel, where the convention will be staged.

Many Topics Await

Subjects to be discussed during the three-day session will range from the double-bill situation to zoning and clearance problems, and will include such topics as "The MPTOA Viewpoint," "The Government in Our Business" and "Your Relations With Your Public." Complete list of invited speakers, as disclosed by the program arrangements committee, includes:

From the PCCITO—Hugh Bruen, Jack Y. Berman, Bob Poole, A. West Johnson, Ben Levin, L. O. Lukan, Bob White, Rotus Harvey, W. G. Ripley and J. M. Hone.

Sales managers for the major companies—Abe Montague, Columbia; W. F. Rodgers, Metro; Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox; Neil Agnew, Paramount; Ned Depinet, RKO Radio; J. R. Grainger, Republic; Gradwell Sears, Warner; William Scully, Universal; L. J. Schlaifer, United Artists.

Producer-Director Frank Capra; George Dembow of National Screen Service; Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA.

PCCITO trustees will hold all-day meetings May 7 and 11, as well as short sessions May 8-9-10. Business sessions will be held daily.

The ladies' committee has also lined up a schedule of entertainment during the three days for the wives of the conventioneers. The itinerary includes a tour of the major studios and a banquet at the Warner plant May 8; a "personality parade," another studio tour and the climaxing event, a dinner dance at the Ambassador Hotel, May 10.

Support Columbia's Montague Drive—

Caught in Vise Created by a Building Boom and Zoning

Mercy Circuit Will Build Second in Toppenish

SEATTLE—The Seattle office of the Mercy circuit announces that within the next 20 days work will begin on a new theatre to be added to the chain in Toppenish. Also plans have been completed for a new house to be built in Clarkston. This will be the first theatre for Clarkston.

The Mercys are operating a house at the present time in Toppenish.

A 1,000-Seater Will Be Put Up in Pasco, Wash.

SEATTLE—Construction of a new $75,000 theatre in Pasco, Wash., will start in a month's time, Fred Mercy sr. of Inland Theatres Company announces. House will seat 1,000.

The Mercy circuit is already operating in the town of Pasco but due to its fast growth the spot warrants a second theatre.

New 700-Seater Planned For West Los Angeles

WEST LOS ANGELES—A new 700-seat house is to be constructed by Paul Dietrich and Manny Feldstein of the Oxnard Amusement Co., with ground to be broken shortly. It will operate on a 15-cent admission scale, and will be located close to two Fox West Coast theatres in Westwood, the Village and Bruin.

"Go West" to Buzzell

HOLLYWOOD—Metro's "Go West," starring the Marx Bros., will be directed by Eddie Buzzell.

Gets "Secretary's Holiday"

HOLLYWOOD—"Secretary's Holiday," Sam Zimbalist production for Metro, will be adapted by Maury Grashin.

LOS ANGELES—The southern California theatre-building boom, during which many observers have expressed grave fears as to the danger of over-seating the territory, coupled with the complexities of the zoning restrictions in and around this area, have combined to put one theatre operator squarely in the middle—and, he admits, with no immediately visible solution to his problem.

Unless Ralph Grunaur, president of South Side Theatres, is successful in his present efforts to secure concessions on product buys from the major distributors, the latest unit in the circuit, the $80,000 Fifth Avenue in Inglewood, will be forced to play fifth-run product at an admission scale of no more than 15 cents. This despite Grunaur's contention that the 1,050-seat house is the finest and most modern in Inglewood.

Grunaur has not disclosed just how successful his parleys with distributors have been so far, but other observers point out that the zoning ordinances, established under the NRA in 1934, have never since been changed. Meantime the Fifth Avenue, which was completed last December, has not yet opened its doors. The circuit head contends he is entitled to concessions because his house is much closer to Los Angeles proper than it is to the center of Inglewood, although it still falls within the Inglewood city limits.

Five other theatres are in operation in that suburb, with a total seating capacity of around 4,500. Three of them—the United Artists, Academy and Granada—are operated by Fox West Coast. The Ritz and Seville, independent houses, both operate on a fourth-run basis, with the United Artists as the town's first-run.

Grunaur has not indicated what he will do if unsuccessful in obtaining a second or third run at an admission scale of from 30 to 35 cents. Because of his $80,000 investment, however, it is considered possible he may accede to the fifth-run ruling in an attempt to realize some returns.

LOS ANGELES

THE local M-G-M exchange club tossed a farewell party at the home of Ed Collins, clerk, for Pearl Gogel, who has resigned to go to Chicago, and Gladys Brownsey, who will take up residence in Juneau, Alaska . . . A number of women's clubs attended Majestic's trade showing of "Mill on the Floss" at the Fox Boulevard Theatre April 10.

Katherine Sessions, secretary at Monogram, has pulled out for Minneapolis on a three-week vacation . . . Another departure was Eddie Cruea, who resigned his post as booker and headed for the Panama canal zone where he will either join the American Tobacco Co. or take a government job. No replacement for him has been set at the exchange.

Charlie Fogel, service supervisor for Metro exchanges around the country, is spending a couple of weeks at the local office . . . Booking visitors included Irwin Kanowitz, Union Theatre; Phil Greenbaum, Castle and Mecca, and George Bromley of the Campus.

Charles Auerbach, Chicago showman, and Robert Ashton, who operates several theatres in northern Wisconsin, were guests at the Warner studio.

Pearl Gogell, general clerk at M-G-M, leaves for Chicago April 20 for a vacation . . . "Lucky Jack" Galpey, Metro's head booker, was the fair-haired lad April 4. It was his birthday and the line of girls who waited their turn to offer osculatory congratulations was a sight to behold. Jack's wife, incidentally, spent the weekend at Frank Capra's ranch—without Jack's company.

Coast Pictures has acquired western distribution rights to "A Gangster Talks," featuring Noah Beery sr. and J. Carroll Naish . . . Remodeling of the Republic exchange is about completed . . . Agnes Leeming of Metro's contract department, lists archery as a new hobby.

Joseph Brilliard, well-known figure along Filmrow, died suddenly of a heart attack and his body was removed to Groman's Mortuary for burial. Brilliard, once connected with the Lindley Carpet Co., had, during the past few months, been in the rug and carpet supply business for himself.

Filmrow visitors: Ben Peskay, Banner and Palms theatres; Harvey Perrizo, operator of the Dreamland . . . Fox West Coast has booked "The Challenge," a Film Alliance release, as the second half of a dual bill with "Rebecca" at the United Artists in Long Beach . . . Sam Nathanson has appointed Ralph Dostal head booker at the local coast exchange.

Harry Stern, local manager for Film Alliance, reports the Sterling circuit of Seattle has set the FA production, "Torpedoed," for first-runs in Seattle and Portland . . . A trade showing of "Mill on the Floss," starring Geraldine Fitzgerald, was held at the Fox Boulevard April 10 by Majestic.

Booking visitors: Judge LeRoy Pawley, Desert, Indio; L. W. Robbins, Roxy, Huntington Beach; Jimmy Poynter, San Clemente, San Clemente . . . Ben Goldberg of Goldberg Film Delivery and Billy Sobelman, operator of the Victor, returned from the Shriners' convention at Las Vegas, indicating they considered the weekend well spent.

H. W. Dodge, district manager for Altec, has returned from a sales session in Denver . . . Maurice Klein, operator of the Verde in San Francisco, dropped in for a short vacation . . . Wayne Ball represented the local Columbia office at the April 6 meeting of Columbia's western territory exchange managers. Others attending: Bob Hill, Denver; Bill Seid, Salt Lake City; L. N. Walton, Seattle; Jack Dilman, San Francisco, and Jimmy Beal, Portland.

Ben Fish, United Artists western district manager, has returned from a jaunt around his exchange circuit . . . Bernard Leavitt has booked "The Eagle," starring Rudolph Valentino, into his El Miro and Majestic theatres. The deal was set by Hi Peskay of Majestic Pictures.

The Southern Poster Co. officially went out of existence this week when its old name was replaced by the new one, Advertising Accessories, Inc. This is the name under which it was absorbed by National Screen Service recently . . . Jack Y. Berman of the Eastland circuit, handing out the proverbial cigars—he became the father of a baby girl, his second child.

In for bookings: Louis Berkhoff, Cinema and La Tosca theatres; George Haines, Washington Theatre, Pasadena; Bill Knotts, in from the Covina, Covina . . . Dorothy Ackstrand, Universal bookkeeper, is back on the job after a trip to Minneapolis to visit her sick sister.

W. J. Heineman, Universal's western sales manager, and Al O'Keefe, western district manager, pulled out for San Francisco . . . C. R. VanDerbergh, Forum Theatre, Ontario, in for bookings; ditto George Christoffers, Orpheum, Yuma; Earl Strebe, Plaza, Palm Springs.

Independents Form "Security" Group

SALT LAKE CITY—A group of theatre owners, representing four independent circuits operating some 35 theatres served out of local exchanges, have formed Theatres Security Corp. under the laws of Idaho, with application to also transact business in Utah. The group also operates in Nevada, Wyoming and Oregon.

Officers include: C. E. Huish, Salt Lake City, president; I. H. Harris, Burley, Idaho, vice-president; Claude Hawk, Salt Lake City, secretary; Paul DeMordaunt, Blackfoot, treasurer. Besides the officers, Hugh Drennen, Rexburg, Idaho; C. C. Voeller, Buhl, Idaho; L. C. Denton, Caliente, Nev., and V. A. Hilhool, Salt Lake City, comprise the board of directors.

The company, according to its articles of incorporation, will "own, lease, purchase and operate motion picture theatres in the five states and may extend its operations to other areas; may buy and distribute film or may engage in the theatre supply business; may acquire television franchises or own and operate radio stations; may purchase, lease or mortgage real and personal property; or may acquire, hold and dispose of securities of all kinds and stocks in other corporations."

Offices will be maintained here and in Blackfoot.

The company's authorized capital is $500,000, divided into $100 par value shares.

A Story to RKO

HOLLYWOOD — RKO has purchased "Cross-Country Romance," an original by Eleanor Browne. Gene Raymond and Wendy Barrie will co-star in the Cliff Reid production which Frank Woodruff will direct.

Havel Considers Bids

SEATTLE—Rex Havel of Tekoa, Wash., who contemplates a new house in that town, has called for bids. Bjarne Moe and George Groves are among the local architects submitting bids.

Move Into "Tucson" To Film "Arizona"

TUCSON, ARIZ.—A company of 146 players and a technical crew of 200 men on Tuesday moved into Columbia's $500,000 adobe city of "old Tucson" to film the Clarence Budington Kelland historical drama, "Arizona," starring Jean Arthur, William Holden and Warren William.

The day before, which was given over to a formal dedication of the "Tucson" created with Columbia money, was observed as "Wesley Ruggles Day." Participating in the ceremony was Gov. R. T. Jones and 23 mayors of as many cities of Arizona.

The festivities started at a luncheon in the desert roof garden of the Santa Rita Hotel where Director Ruggles met the governor and visiting mayors and was presented with an official scroll designating him as state historian.

Then the guests were conveyed to within a half a mile of "old Tucson" in studio buses, and from there continued the journey in ox-drawn wagons, stage coaches and carrettas. Catherine Jones, daughter of the governor, snipped the streamer officially opening the pioneer city.

Northwest B-Locals Call Meet to Pick Delegates

SEATTLE—Conference of all B-locals of theatre employes in Washington, Oregon, Montana and British Columbia, has been called for April 15 in Seattle according to George T. Hood, business agent of Theatre Employes Union B-22. The conference includes cashiers, doormen, ushers, and film exchange workers.

Purpose of the meeting will be to select two delegates to the convention of International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes at Louisville next June 3. A district convention will precede the main session there on May 31, Hood said.

SEATTLE

WOULD have been grand if that census taker could have asked how many people went to shows and the types of picture they enjoy. Would have saved the producers a lot of headaches . . . It is that time of the year again when the conventions get under way. Herndon Edmond, local branch manager for 20th Century-Fox, his sales staff and bookers are off to attend the company's get-together which opened April 12 at the Drake Hotel. Among those accompanying Edmond were Jean Spear, Hap Frederick, and Jim Brooks.

Ben Fish in town, and conferring with Pete Higgins, local manager for United Artists. Ben, who is western division sales manager, tells that he missed the sales conference in New York a few days ago, being grounded en route from Los Angeles . . . Loretta Scarp and Luther Souder surprised everyone by eloping and getting the knot tied . . . Keith Beckwith of the Columbia Pictures sales staff will leave April 16 for a month's business trip in Alaska.

Guy Maxey of the Warner office enjoying a birthday and among his presents was a pocket knife. Warning to exhibitors. Don't get too sassy with Guy for he is awful handy with the new weapon we found out . . . With the playing of the San Carlo opera in Seattle, work was provided for 30 local people according to the Theatrical Federation. About 11 stagehands were used and the rest were ushers, cashiers and doormen.

Word from California tells that Art Aaronson becomes western division manager for the new consolidated Western Poster and Advertising Accessories. Harry Taylor, former district manager for National Screen, will headquarter in Chicago . . . Filmrow learned of the death of Morgan Walsh in San Francisco. He was one time district manager for First National and lately with the Mann circuit . . . Madge Spear mending rapidly and able to go out for a car ride . . . Mrs. George Morgan of Colville gradually improving from the effects of her car accident according to word from Al Bloom, UA salesman in that district.

F. C. Weskil and wife on their way to their home and theatre in Sand Point. The Weskils have been touring for the past few months. They bought a new car in the east and drove back through the southern states. They were met here by their son and daughter-in-law of Colfax . . . Mrs. Ed Ohm of Twisp, spending a weekend with her son and daughter-in-law, Bob and Celia Estill . . . Neal East, manager for Paramount in San Francisco, has named his country home "Eastacre."

Eugene O'Brien, auditor for the Warner exchanges, is in town and doing his stuff . . . Murray Peck making a business trip to Spokane . . . Neal Walton, local manager for Columbia, off to San Francisco to attend a managers meeting . . . Duke Ellington enjoying a special preview of fight pictures that he had missed . . . Eddie Lamb getting his picture in the paper along with his life's history . . . Charles Comfort with his mug in his own sheet and looking so demure.

Visitors this week included, George Borden jr. from Blaine; Billy Hartford, Everett; Captain Lathrop and Mariam Dickey from Alaska; T. L. Carpenter from Mabton; "Dad" Abbott from Sedro Woolley . . . Among the out-of-towners attending the Skouras meeting, whom we missed last week were, Mike Rosenberg; Andrew Krappman, Charles Buckley, and Tom Paige from Los Angeles; Willard Coghlan, Frank Newman jr., Zollie Volchek, from Portland; O. T. Taylor, Aberdeen; R. J. Monoham and Mrs. Mathes, Bellingham; Jimmy O'Connell, Eugene, Oregon, and James Carey, Vancouver, Wash.

Frank J. Beck of the portable circuit has gone to California for a short visit . . . Erwin Fey announces that he will be opening his new theatre in Renton in about 30 days . . . Junior and Edgar Mercy and B. F. Shearer over to Yakima for a couple of days . . . Carl Obery now working out of the National Screen office . . . Mrs. Mac Rubenfeld celebrating her birthday . . . Eddie Rivers working late but doing a swell job on "Pinocchio."

SEATTLE—Jack Flannery, Seattle branch manager for National Screen, announces the consolidation of Advertising Accessories, a subsidiary of National Screen, and the Western Poster Co.

Don Beckman, former manager of Western Poster, is assisting Flannery with the moveover and it is expected that he will remain with the new organization in an excutive capacity.

Los Angeles Delegates To 20th-Fox Meeting

LOS ANGELES—Local delegates to 20th Century-Fox's annual sales convention in Chicago April 12-14 are: Jack N. Dillon, exchange manager; B. F. Robinson and W. T. Wall, salesmen, and Nathan Sudmin, head booker. The contingent left for the Windy City, April 11.

Blowitz, Meyer Represent Young Fun Club, Inc.

LOS ANGELES—Local offices for the Young Fun Club, Inc., new national giveaway stunt, have been established at 1910 S. Vermont. Representatives for the firm here are Sam Blowitz and Max Meyer. It features a new method of stimulating juvenile attendance at matinees via giveaways.

Mrs. Ray Robbins

WATTS, CAL.—Mrs. Ray Robbins, wife of Ray Robbins, operator of the Largo Theatre, died here April 7.

SALT LAKE

SALT LAKE bank clearings for the first quarter of 1940 were 11 per cent greater than for the corresponding period in 1939 . . . Mayor Ab Jenkins, members of the city commission, and staff members of the board of health attended a special showing of "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" as guests of Manager Earl E. Baughman at the Utah.

Channing Pollock, author and playwright, addressed local civic organizations on "I Am a Reactionary" . . . Earl Smith, manager of the suburban Tower, reports that after breaking in a window at the theatre, thieves stole two candy vending machines.

Manager Sam Gardner of the local M-G-M offices is in the east on a combined pleasure and business trip . . . Edward Arnold paused here briefly en route to his home in the east . . . Gene Austin makes his farewell appearance at the Hotel Utah after appearing at the Roxy with his radio and stage group the past week. They go next to Denver and Texas.

Herschel Stewart, manager of the Salt Lake offices for Fox West Coast, and Fred Glass and Bill Steege, went to Denver for a meeting of managers of the circuit's theatres in the Intermountain area . . . "Pinocchio" is being held over at the Rialto for an indefinite period.

PORTLAND

CHAIRMAN CARL WERNER of the "Miss Streamline" contest, sponsored by the Broadway and the Oregonian, named six lucky men on the judging committee: Frank Sterrett, Ralph Lee and Don McLeod of the Oregonian staff, and Milton Werschkul, Douglas Nicol and A. A. Bailey jr. The gal they pick will go to Frisco and compete for the title of "Miss Theme Girl" of the 1940 Golden Gate Exposition.

Western mayors convened here early in the week, booking Hizzonner, Mr. La Guardia of New York as the stellar attraction. La Guardia previously had challenged Mayor Joe Carson of Portland to enter a barber shop quartet at the New York Fair. So Joe scurried about and had the foursome ready to greet the distinguished visitor. Reading down the scale from High C, they are Ray Sichau, Virg Spencer, Seth Smith and J. M. Coffey.

Boxing tries another comeback, with the city dads revoking the license of the Al Morse Club of Spokane and giving a "go ahead" to Herb Owen, erstwhile wrestling impresario. Associated with Owen is "Tex" Salkeld, matchmaker. The opening cards will be made up of four-rounders, on the theory patrons will go for variety and action.

Back from California, Raymond Wray has returned to his old spot as emcee at the Variety Hall . . . The Columbia River area is massing behind a world's fair venture of its own: An exposition in miniature celebrating the 150th anniversary of the discovery of the river by Capt. Robert Gray. The show is scheduled for 1942 and is being staged by Ilwaco . . . Jimmy Wyatt returned from a month in Hawaii on the day Mauna Loa began spouting. He walked into KOIN to resume his "Five Star Final" news broadcast just as the news of Hitler's Denmark grab came over the wires.

Here's one we picked up from the newspapers. A guy pays his way into the Paramount, and the usherette controls her excitement with difficulty as she shows him a seat. Then she rushes in to tell Manager Sobottka that Abe Lincoln or his twin brother is in the house. Herb takes a gander, and sure enough, the guy is the living image of Old Abe. Which is a coincidence, because the Paramount is showing a picture filmed at Eugene and starring Raymond Massey. Yeah . . . "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

Lou Stang, Paramount booker, returned Monday after more than two weeks of illness . . . Manager Charlie Powers, Chilt Robinett and Herschel Fox of the 20th Century-Fox branch went to Chicago to attend the company convention . . . Portland is looking forward to a golden era of lower taxes, practically no traffic deaths, economy in the city hall and Bonneville power at cost after the coming elections. Can't miss, regardless of who wins, as the candidates seem to have gotten together on the above issues. The question remains as to how much "Bonneville power at cost" will cost, and a citizens' committee is digging into it.

"Look" Magazine Into Documentary Field

CHICAGO—Look magazine is entering the documentary film field.

Initial release is "Lights Out in Europe," being offered in association with American Pictures, Inc., which has head offices in Chicago, with branches in New York and the west coast, and of which Barrett King is president and general manager.

Look is said to have no financial interest in the combination company, which is called Look-Ampix Productions, but is giving editorial support, such as a six-page feature, scheduled on "Lights Out in Europe," in the April 23 issue of the magazine.

King told BOXOFFICE that Look-Ampix "hopes to present current events and the reasons behind them, without bias of any sort." He said that not all of the subjects will be devoted to Europe, but that several will have American backgrounds, such as a forthcoming one on the United States. The concern's immediate successor to "Lights Out in Europe" will be a feature documentary on Mexico, being produced by John Steinbeck and Herbert Kline.

Kline, who also produced and directed "Lights Out in Europe," was to be here this week for conferences with King. This picture, which had its world premiere at the Little Carnegie in New York, has a commentary by James Hilton, with narration by Fredric March, and was photographed by Alexander Hackenschmid. Arthur Mayer and Joe Burstyn of New York are releasing the picture.

King said that the plans at present are for issuance of about three documentary features every two years, with about six to ten short subjects a year.

CHICAGO—"Lights Out in Europe," a documentary film of Look-Ampix Productions, is expected to be shown here in the loop about May 1.

Lottery Charge Against George Settos Dropped

INDIANAPOLIS—George Settos, president of Settos Theatres, Inc., and Orvin Moore, manager, were discharged by Judge Charles J. Karabell in municipal court on charges of operating a lottery scheme and gift enterprise in connection with awarding of cash prizes at the Ohio.

Signs advertising the drawings, a mesh wire ticket "mixer," and books registering names of patrons and numbers assigned to them, seized as evidence, were returned to the owners. The arrest of Settos and Moore were made the night of February 22 after a raid on the theatre.

Similar charges against employes of the Ohio were dropped several weeks before the arrest.

Special Showing in Baraboo

BARABOO, WIS.—The Al Ringling Theatre here staged a preview of "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" by a hospital committee which conducted a benefit theatre party in connection with the showing.

Give Multiple Programs Credit For Prosperous Legit Season

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—While Chicago exhibitors, primarily independent subsequent-run operators, have been decrying conditions at the boxoffice this season, Chicago's legitimate houses have been enjoying their best season since 1929.

And while legit shows have been good this year, many of the press agents handling the shows attribute the hike in boxoffice returns to another reason—the fact that neighborhood houses in the Windy City are showing double and triple features.

"Double and triple features are definitely taking patrons away from the movies," said one publicist. "There used to be a time when patrons would go two or three times a week to a film theatre. Now, however, they are finding themselves tired of sitting through so much, and, as a consequence, are seeking other avenues of entertainment.

Long Programs Weary Them

"That is where the legitimate houses come in. We have had patrons tell us that rather than sit through lengthy film programs, they are now coming to see stage attractions two or three times a month. They tell us they get more entertainment and over the long run it costs them no more."

And despite exhibitors competing among themselves and finding traffic drifting away from their boxoffices, more of them are considering using triple features.

"I am far from favoring triples or even double features," said Lester Retschen, operator of the Howard, a north-side stronghold of three-feature programs. "But it has been a case of do something desperate to stay in business. And I will have to be looking for still other boxoffice stimulants, including premiums and other plans to keep patrons coming in." Retschen said he is now using three features on a once-a-week change and finds patronage steadily increasing.

Profitable at First

A few years ago, when singles were in vogue, the initiators of double features found their novelty programs profitable. However, as the newness of the experiment wore off and all Windy City operators turned to dual bills, multiple feature programs, as a boxoffice stimulant, proved of little value.

The some 20 or 30 houses now trying triple bills here are finding their grosses better temporarily. "But the day of reckoning will come, and when all houses are finally running triple features—and finding that they are not helping their business—where will they turn?" asks one independent.

"The one answer is to find a way back to the safe-and-sane plan of single features," said Jack Kirsch, president of the local Allied unit. Kirsch has a committee working to effect a general return to single features. The members are Van A. Nomikos, Verne Langdon, Jack Rose, Ludwig Sussman and Charles Nelson.

Commercial That Is "Non-Competitive"

CHICAGO—The Edison-General Electric Appliance Co. of Chicago, manufacturers of the nationally-advertised Hotpoint electrical appliances, through their advertising agency, Maxon, Inc., claim to have devised a means of producing a commercial film and exhibiting it without hurting the business of local exhibitors. J. L. Sholty of the agency says he has worked out a plan whereby exhibitors will come in for their share in the showing of the film.

Sholty told BOXOFFICE that the Hotpoint film, "Blame It on Love," produced with a Hollywood cast in the Hal Roach Studios by Wilding Co., will be shown through the company's dealers in theatres during that part of the day when the houses are not in regular use.

There are now 100 prints of the 54-minute feature ready for use, and currently there are about 1,000 dates to fill.

The Hotpoint company plans to have its dealers conduct the showings similar to cooking schools, mainly in the mornings. Dealers in many spots will distribute heralds on the showings, at the same time mentioning the current attractions at the theatres, while the theatres will run trailers on the special morning showings of the appliance film. Joan Marsh and John King are featured in the film.

The dealers will buy out the theatres for the morning performances, with admission to the shows being free to customers. At present, practically all of the showings will be in smaller cities and towns or suburbs of the larger metropolitan centers.

Report Mandel May Build New Republic Exchange

CHICAGO—Irving Mandel, Republic franchise holder here, is understood to have purchased the entire corner location at 13th and Wabash, on which is the Republic exchange. Mandel is said to be preparing plans for a new structure there to house his Republic exchange, in addition to making available space for other concerns.

To Supreme Court

MILWAUKEE—Max Raskin, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zrimsek, operators of the Bahn Frei hall here, will appeal to the United States supreme court from a recent decision by the state supreme court holding Bingo to be a violation of the anti-gambling laws.

Scripts "Broadway Lawyer"

HOLLYWOOD—Walter DeLeon will adapt "Broadway Lawyer," an Edmund Grainger production for Warner.

And Now, "Frank"—

Henry Fonda pauses at the Chicago airport westbound for his next role in "The Return of Frank James." First, however, he was to do a day of retakes on "Lillian Russell." Fonda visited New York, a new son and his wife, the former Frances Brokaw.

The Press Boys Give Eddie Solomon Fitting Farewell

CHICAGO—Chicago's press and publicity corps turned out to bid Eddie Solomon, B&K publicist, who has joined 20th Century-Fox in New York as an exploiteer, farewell at a gathering atop the State-Lake Bldg. Solomon was presented with a luggage gift, but the boys and girls couldn't resist a gag, so a large banner was hung reading, "Scram, Solomon."

Among those in attendance were Eddie Levin, Archie Herzoff, Eddie Seguin, Jimmy Savage, Herb Lyon, Art Thayler and Boris Riedel of B&K, who were the committee members who engineered the party; Bill Hollander, Walter Immerman, Nate Platt, Dave Wallerstein, Harry Lustgarten, Roy Bruder, all of B&K; Harry Smythe, Bill Westlake, Millie Anderson, Fred Bartow, Dorothy Deere, Jack Garber, Hal Tate, Rosemary Wayne, Duke Hickey, Burt Ofstie and Irving Mack.

To Let Contract

MCLEANSBORO, ILL.—Contracts will be awarded soon for the new 518-seat theatre to be erected here for S. E. Pirtle of Jerseyville, Ill., head of a circuit of theatres in southern Illinois and eastern Missouri. Pirtle now operates the Capitol here.

Dunlap Heads West End

CHICAGO—Paul Dunlap is new manager of the West End (Essaness unit). Dunlap has been an assistant manager for several years.

To Build in Churubusco

CHURUBUSCO, IND.—Fred Pennell, operator of the Busco here, will build a new 450-seat house to replace the Busco. Work is expected to start in the near future.

Coffee With Ellen—

Ellen Drew has a cup of coffee in the Dearborn Street Station with Jim Donohue, Paramount's Chicago branch manager, during a brief train stop. The Paramount starlet was en route to New York for the world premiere of Jack Benny's "Buck Benny Rides Again," in which she has a prominent role.

Three Change Hands in Fortnight in Chicago

CHICAGO—A change in the operation of three houses here, in the last two weeks, with a fourth reportedly about to change hands, lends credence to the oft-repeated contention of independents that drastic operation changes are necessary.

Latest house to change hands was the Hillside on West 69th, which was acquired by Israel Goldberg, new to the theatre business, from James Stepaneck. Ike Ettelson recently sold his Lakeshore to Ray Goldstein, operator also of the Olympia on 22nd Street, while Bland Brothers disposed of their Rodgers to Milton Brotman of the Avaloe. Richard Rabiner is understood to be dickering for the sale of his Sunnyside on Wentworth Avenue.

A "Pinocchio" Coloring Contest in Janesville

JANESVILLE, WIS.—In a tieup with the local daily, the Jeffris conducted a "Pinocchio" contest in connection with which sketches appeared daily for six days to be colored. In addition to turning in the complete set of colored sketches, contestants were required to write a 25-word story on "Why I Like to See Pinocchio." First six winners received completely dressed Pinocchio dolls, and the next 50 each received a free ticket to see the film at the Jeffris.

Cleanup of No. 143 Is Nearing an End

ST. LOUIS—The final cleanup of the tangled affairs of Local 143 will probably be worked out when George E. Browne, IATSE president, returns here this week for further conferences with the new officers of the Local.

John P. Nick's resignation as first vice-president of the IATSE was announced at the same time that the International restored autonomy to No. 143. The peace agreement, in its major details, was worked out at a special meeting of No. 143 on April 4, which Browne attended and at which time he announced that autonomy had been restored to the Local.

At this meeting Robert Tomsen, leader of the fight against Nick and Clyde A. Weston, former business manager of the union, was elected business manager. He in turn was succeeded as president by Harry Barco, another leader in the clean-up fight against Nick and Weston.

Other officers selected: William Robinson, vice-president and chairman of the executive committee; Harvard O'Laughlin, recording and corresponding secretary; Harry A. Meyer, financial secretary; A. H. Bode, treasurer; Charles Mulcahy, guide, and Jules Anthony, sergeant-at-arms.

Two of the defense intervenors in the suit brought by the anti-Nick faction were elected to the executive board and board of trustees. They are Joseph Schuler and H. L. Albright. Other trustees elected are Fred Kelsick and Tony Blust. Homer Tong was named a member of the executive board.

Prior to the election of officers, the 105 operators who were held to be bona fide members of No. 143 under the decree of Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley on March 5, last, voted to admit as members 47 projectionists, some of whom had received membership cards from Nick but had not previously been voted to membership by the local. About 20 others who had received cards from Nick, were voted down.

Among matters still to be ironed out by Browne and the new officers of the Local is the dispute with certain Fanchon & Marco theatres. Pending the outcome of new negotiations on that point, pickets have been withdrawn from the theatres. Also some arrangement must be made as to the $38,399 Judge Oakley directed Nick and Weston to pay to No. 143 and the additional $10,000 the court ordered Nick personally to pay. The latter sum is the money allegedly collected by State Representative Edward M. Brady from certain theatre owners in October, 1936, while the $38,399 includes the $6,500 theatremen are said to have paid in the fall of 1937 when a new wage agreement with the operators was up for consideration.

Also there is the question of what became of the original charter for No. 143. This charter was reported to have been returned to the International but Browne has stated he did not receive it personally.

Nick has been a member of No. 143 for many years, and the question of his continuing as a member is not at issue. Weston was a member of the East St. Louis operators' local when Nick made him business agent for No. 143 and gave him a card. He was among the 20 Nick men who were not admitted to membership at the meeting on April 3-4.

THE $75,000 drive-in, now under construction in Des Peres, is the first theatre of its kind in the St. Louis territory. It will have accommodations for 500 automobiles . . . It is estimated Missouri's sales tax this year will pick $2,000,000 more from the pockets of its populace than it did in 1939. In March, collections were $1,880,707, or $216,379 more than for that month last year. The first quarter pickings ran $537,635 ahead of the first three months of 1939.

The Directors Association of Greater St. Louis has been organized here with Harold Bassage, director of the St. Louis School of the Theatre, as president . . . The St. Louis film colony was pleased to hear of the recent promotions of Charles Kurtzman and Charles Raymond by the Loew circuit. Both are former St. Louisians. Kurtzman, manager in Pittsburgh, has been hiked to division manager at Boston, while Raymond is the new district manager in Pittsburgh.

Two films, one showing the Graf Spee before and after it was scuttled, and the other containing a series of shots of Finland during her war with Russia were exhibited at the Congress Hotel in connection with the annual Army Day meeting of the St. Louis Chapter of the Military Order of the World War.

The exploitation campaign for "Rebecca," current attraction at Loew's, included the "planting" of a three-week serial in Star-Times, and a radio dramatization over KXOK. The newspaper also used several large promotion ads from the press brook to sell the serial and picture. Additionally, 75 trucks of the Star-Times plastered with bumper cards and banners were utilized to the same end. All this broke three days before the film opened its run at the theatre. Credit Jimmy Harris, again.

Vincent Price, former St. Louisian, who has won fame on screen, stage and radio, and Norma Terris, Broadway prima donna, have been inked to appear in St. Louis Municipal Theatre productions at Forest Park this summer. They will appear in "The American Way" which opens the season June 3 and runs through June 16.

The new streamlined excursion steamer, The Admiral, will start plying the Mississippi June 12. It has two air-conditioned decks and three open decks and is the largest passenger steamer ever built for Mississippi River service. Its reported capacity is 5,000 persons.

The critics plugged for all they were worth, but the cash customers wouldn't believe them. So "Suspect," a British meller, reached a new low for the season.

Supreme Court Writ Returnable June 5

ST. LOUIS — The state supreme court, which on April 3 issued an order temporarily blocking enforcement of a judgment assessing a fine of $2,000 against the Pulitzer Publishing Co., publishers of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and fines and jail terms against two members of the editorial staff imposed by Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe jr., has made its writ returnable on June 5, at which time the sheriff for St. Louis must show cause why he should continue to hold the defendants.

Counsel for the newspaper on April 8 filed suggestions with the supreme court setting forth various reasons why it should review the action of Judge Rowe in holding the publishers, and two staff men, Ralph Coghlan and Daniel Fitzpatrick, in contempt of court because of editorials and a cartoon commenting on the action of Judge Rowe in clearing John P. Nick, former vice-president of the IATSE, and State Representative Edward M. Brady of extortion in connection with $10,000 allegedly collected by Brady from certain theatre owners in October, 1936, when a new wage contract for union projectionists was up for consideration. Judge Rowe on January 11, last, sustained a defense demurrer at the trial of Nick, and on March 4 at Rowe's suggestion Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller nolle prossed the companion charge against Brady "to save the state the expense and trouble of a trial."

The petition filed with the high court charged that Judge Rowe "pre-judged" the contempt case in his citation of March 11 and that his punishment inflicted on April 3 "constituted a denial of the liberty guaranteed under constitutional provisions."

Shurman Made a Colonel By Wisconsin Governor

MILWAUKEE—It is now "Colonel" Sam Shurman of M-G-M. That's the newest title for Metro's branch manager here, who was to be named an aide on the staff of Wisconsin's Governor Heil this week. We detect the fine hand of Exploiteer Louis Orlove in the matter.

Eddie Saunders Confers In Chicago With Flynn

CHICAGO—Eddie Saunders, M-G-M western division sales manager, here on a tour of his exchange territory, stopped off to confer with Jack Flynn, district manager. Saunders said that openings thus far of "Northwest Passage" and "Young Tom Edison" have been "very good."

New Sound for Congress

ST. LOUIS—The Congress, a link in the St. Louis Amusement Co. chain, will be outfitted soon with new RCA sound.

Heeds Protest Over "Birth of a Nation"

MINNEAPOLIS—Finally heeding protests from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples against the showing of "Birth of a Nation" on the grounds that it arouses race prejudice, Irving Gillman, Esquire owner, withdrew the film.

At first Gillman resisted the demands for the picture's withdrawal and defied Marvin Kline, acting mayor, who threatened to revoke the theatre's license.

Following an appeal by the colored peoples' association, the WCTU and several labor unions, Mayor Kline notified Gillman that unless the showhouse stopped the showing of the film its license would be revoked. Gillman then went into court and obtained an order directing the mayor to show cause why he shouldn't be restrained from carrying out his threat. Before the court's decision Gillman decided to capitulate.

As far back as 1915, Minneapolis mayors here have acted against the showing of "Birth of a Nation." In 1915 the state supreme court upheld Mayor Wallace G. Nye's ban against it. But the U. S. district court in 1931 issued a temporary injunction to restrain interference by Mayor William Kunze.

Percentage Deal Rejection Holds in Twin Cities

MINNEAPOLIS—RKO here still is demanding a 30 per cent split from Twin City independent neighborhood exhibitors for "Pinocchio."

In line with their policy of abstaining from percentage deals, the Twin City independents have made it clear that they'll "lay off" "Pinocchio" unless they can buy it flat. L. E. Goldhammer, RKO district manager here, has asserted that they'll have to come across with percentage if they want the film. The percentage asked of Twin City independents is 30 per cent up to specified control figures, but outside of Minneapolis and St. Paul RKO is said to be demanding and getting 50 per cent for it.

Cliff Gano Rejoins NTS Branch in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY—Cliff Gano, who formerly was here for National Theatre Supply, has returned after a year in Detroit, replacing Francis Keilhack on the sales staff. Keilhack, with the company eight years, goes to Chicago where he will be in the branch for a period and then do sales work.

Keilhack has been in show business for a long time. He was operator at the Granada, Gauntier, Home and then Electric, in Kansas City, Kas., and as a musician played in some of the largest theatres in the U. S. He comes from a family of show folk. His uncle, Fred Meyn, operates the Park in Kansas City, Kas.

Griffith-Dickinson Circuit Is Taken Over by H. J. Griffith

KANSAS CITY—Twenty-one of the 23 units of Griffith-Dickinson Theatres, Inc., were taken over late last week by H. J. Griffith and Partnership Theatres, Inc., when the latter two companies purchased the remaining 50 per cent interest in the circuit from Glen W. Dickinson. Griffith and Partnership acquired a half interest in the circuit April 1, 1939. The corporation is to be renamed, along with three units that still carry the Dickinson name.

The purchase was consummated as the result of a voluntary arrangement between Griffith and Dickinson. Dickinson, who entered exhibition 18 years ago at Manhattan, Kas., later expanding into Lawrence and other Kansas and Missouri towns, will continue to be an exhibitor. He retains the Macon at Macon, Mo., and the Dickinson at Olathe, Kas. He has also the Mission Hill Acres in Johnson county, near Kansas City, a house that did not figure in the original Griffith-Dickinson deal last year.

Coincident with the Griffith acquisition of complete ownership of the circuit, Ray E. Higdon, formerly with National Screen Service at Dallas and later theatre broker in this territory, becomes assistant film buyer for all Griffith houses, including the group here. Higdon has been with Griffith-Dickinson the past nine months. He will headquarters here. With Higdon assisting R. E. Griffith, H. J. Griffith expects to spend more time on the theatre management end.

The theatres that figured in the Griffith purchase are: Dickinson, Beloit, Kas. (Bill Gabel); Grand and Ritz, Chillicothe, Mo. (Glen W. Dickinson jr.); Fayette, Fayette, Mo. (Irwin W. Tucker); Chief, Hiawatha, Kas. (Francis Wright); Booth, Beldorf and Mainstreet, Independence, Kas. (William H. Wagner); Junction and Cozy (closed), Junction City, Kas. (Temple DeVilbiss); Carlton and Dickinson (Barnes Perdue), and Wareham (Harry Wareham), Manhattan, Kas.; Uptown and Chief (closed), Marceline, Mo. (Louis Higdon); Osage, Osage City, Kas. (Stanley Gartside); Osawa and Kansan (closed), Osawatomie, Kas. (R. W. Ferguson); Dickinson, Paola, Kas. (Turner Morrisett); Kansan, Uptown and Ritz, Parsons, Kas. (David Dallas); People's, Pleasant Hill, Mo. (Mark Cadle); Kiva, Slater, Mo. (Harold Sachse). Closed houses are not included in the 21 figure above.

Dickinson expressed himself as "very happy about the matter." He has developed several ventures in the Mission Hill Acres section other than his theatre there. Glen W. Dickinson jr., who has been managing a circuit house in Chillicothe, Mo., will join his father.

A Biblical Pageant Likely Film Story

DES MOINES—Representatives of two film producers are expected to see the presentation of Lemuel Eshelman Gibson's dramatic Biblical pageant, "A Broken Idol," at the Shrine auditorium here April 23, 24 and 25.

The production, written by Gibson, a 59-year-old studious, grayhaired law clerk and Bible class teacher, has been termed by some religious authorities as greater than "Ben Hur" and the "King of Kings," and possibly the equal of "The Miracle."

Gibson conceived the play at first as a simple Sunday School lesson for his class in Highland Park Church of Christ. That was 15 years ago. It was so well accepted he had to perform it for the entire church. Since then he has edited it, added scenes and taken them away. He has had the advice of dramatists and historians.

The late Chief Justice Scott M. Ladd of the supreme court wrote the opinion of the pro-consul which concludes the play and clinches its theme: The victory of eternal life over death.

A corporation with sufficient backing by Des Moines business houses to provide for an $8,000 stage production, is sponsoring the showing here now. Any profits will go to the Iowa Society for Crippled Children, the Council of Churches, the Catholic Foundation, and the Jewish Welfare Fund.

Names of the film firms interested in the production were not released.

Holdovers Weight Fears Product Shortage Near

MINNEAPOLIS—With holdovers at two of the three loop "A" houses again last week, the threatened shortage of product for local neighborhood houses later in the spring or summer was emphasized once more. "Road to Singapore" went into a third week at the Century and "Pinocchio" remained for a second week at the Orpheum. The World also held over "Sidewalks of London" for a second week.

Write "Cisco Kid" Story

HOLLYWOOD—Albert Duffy and Walter Morosco are writing an untitled "Cisco Kid" story for 20th-Fox. Ralph Dietrich will produce.

Shifts in H. J. Griffith Circuit Are Announced

KANSAS CITY—H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., has shifted Barnes Perdue, who has been assisting Harry Wareham at Manhattan, Kas., with the Wareham, Dickinson and Carlton, to Chillicothe, Mo., to manage the Ritz and Grand. Perdue succeeds Glen W. Dickinson jr.

Roscoe Hopkins has been transferred from the Booth and Paramount at Nebraska City, Neb., to Denver City, Tex., by Griffith interests, and Stanley McSwain, formerly at Auburn, Neb., succeeds him. At Auburn (Auburn and Booth) now is Glen Leonard, formerly of Post, Tex., as partner-manager.

Minn. Amusement's Release of Films to Benzes "Discussed"

MINNEAPOLIS—"Discussions" have occurred between counsel and principals of the Minnesota Amusement Co. on the one hand and the Benzes and the latter's lawyers on the other regarding the release of major product for the 4,000-seat Minnesota here, on which the Benzes have an option, and for the lower loop Palace, a Benz house.

This is the statement of John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. general manager, relative to reports that a "deal" between his company and the Benzes is pending.

Those "in the know" are certain there will be no "deal"—that the Minnesota Amusement Co. will not relinquish any of the major product now sewed up by it to the Minnesota and will take no steps to help the Benzes reopen the 2,000-seat Palace for subsequent-run double features at a dime admission, as is desired.

The Benzes, who operated the Minnesota for its owners during a recent 22-week period with a policy of stage shows and independent pictures which did not prove successful, have an option on the theatre, the exercise of which is contingent upon their obtaining major screen product. They attributed the recent operating failure to lack of such product.

While Friedl declined to explain the nature of the "discussions" with the Benzes and their counsel and while he would not comment on the possibility of any "deal," local film circles have their own opinions.

It is believed that Rosenberg, Stein & Stein, prominent Chicago film attorneys, representing the Benzes, requested the conferences with Friedl and the Minnesota Amusement counsel and that the request was readily granted. It also is regarded as a certainty that the matter of the Benzes entering the Minnesota Amusement Co.-Mort H. Singer pool of local loop first-run pool with the Minnesota and Palace theatres came up for discussion.

While Friedl asserts emphatically that the Minnesota Amusement circuit, a Paramount subsidiary, is not for sale and positively will not be sold to anybody, it is believed that he evinced a willingness to dispose of all of the Twin City first-run houses, except the 25-cent Gopher, to the Benzes. The prevalent opinion is that Minnesota Amusement has been finding the Twin City neighborhood and out-of-town situations profitable operations, but is not pleased with the Minneapolis and St. Paul downtown results.

MINNEAPOLIS

FILM salesmen, as a rule, are classy dressers, but Stewart (Ben) C. Martin, Ross Federal's assistant branch manager, can give most of the boys cards and spades on that score. Stewart, who always looks immaculate and is attired in the best of taste at all times, is one of the reasons for the Ross Federal popularity with the exchanges. A regular fellow with a million-dollar personality . . . A large advance ticket sale assured the success of the gala Twin City Variety Club grand ball at the Hotel Nicollet April 13 to raise money for the Minneapolis Milk Fund which the club sponsors. Net proceeds will go to the Fund. Music was provided by a 30-piece orchestra, comprising Minneapolis Symphony members, and there was a midnight supper.

Fred Finnegan, popular RKO assistant booker, moving to his Lake Minnetonka home, May 1. Unseasonable weather has kept Fred in town a little longer than usual this spring . . . Charlie Weiner of Monogram killing two birds with one stone. Attending the Variety Club convention and his company's sales convention. Both are being held in Dallas. The one on April 18 and the other on the 21st.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included: Gay Hower, Worthington, Minn.; George Schroeder, Mountain Lake, Minn.; Bim Lakie, Barnesville, Minn.; Harry Green, Windom, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; George Westerman, Milaca, Minn., and Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis. . . . Marvin Wolfish, RKO assistant booker, celebrated his birthday by buying cake for the office gang . . . An attack of flu kept Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, confined to his room in the Nicollet Hotel.

Donald Swartz, Warner assistant booker, back from his honeymoon and on the job again . . . Local filmdom mystery: Who sent Lowell Kaplan of the Welworth circuit those herring? . . . Friends of Billy Evidon, Columbia office manager, gave a stag for him Thursday prior to his wedding . . . Handwriting experts much in demand at local showhouses. Numerous theatres, including the State, ace loop Minnesota Amusement Co. house, going in for this sort of added attraction . . . Harry Hirsch's Gayety stock burlesque season terminated Thursday.

RKO exchange still at top in Film Bowling League and championship is practically assured. Season ends April 26 . . . "Rebecca," which has been doing a land-office business throughout the country, opens at the State here and St. Paul Paramount day and date April 19 . . . "Kelly" Evidon, Warner ad sales manager, reports swell returns in response to a letter which he sent out to exhibitors asking for cooperation in the Sears drive. His department is second in the district.

Al Aved, Columbia salesman, awaiting the stork's arrival . . . The RKO boys chipped in for a horseshoe set and they plan to go in for the tossing this summer . . . Helen Carney, veteran M-G-M office staff member, in the hospital with a minor ailment . . . Harold Kaplan, manager and part owner of the highly successful St. Louis Park Theatre, took an afternoon off to attend a Gayety Theatre performance. The magnet was the beautiful Ada Leonard.

Republic's "South of the Border" had its first runs here at the Paradise and Nile, neighborhood theatres, and did a big business at both houses. Showings followed at the Camden and Edina. Gene Autry, its star, is a topnotch magnet in most of the out-of-town situations throughout the territory, but up to the present the Twin City houses haven't given him much of a tumble . . . George Granstrom, prominent St. Paul exhibitor, going to St. Louis to visit relatives. May fly from there to the Variety Club convention at Dallas if he can get away.

Gilbert Nathanson, Republic distributor, went to Lawrence, Kas., to attend the premiere of "Dark Command" . . . Maurice Evans in "Richard III" and George White's "Scandals" coming into the Lyceum here next month . . . Max Torodor, local independent exhibitor, called back from his Los Angeles vacation by his daughter's illness . . . M-G-M exchange installing new women's rest room . . . Columbia's present new enthusiasm is "Doctor Takes a Wife." Ask "Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, if you don't believe it's a wonderful picture . . . Wife and small daughter of Cliff Gill, Welworth circuit publicity and advertising head, back from a visit with Mrs. Gill's parents in Seattle.

Bennie Berger, prominent independent circuit operator, and the wife off for a Hot Springs vacation. From there they'll go to the Variety convention . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, visiting Des Moines and Omaha branches . . . Universal screened the new Deanna Durbin picture, "It's a Date," and they're claiming emphatically it's the best of all Durbins . . . Morrie Abrams, M-G-M exploiteer, back from Redfield, S. D., and Valley City and Grafton, N. D., where he worked on "Gone With the Wind."

Paramount was sitting on top of the world last week downtown here with two of its pictures, "Road to Singapore" and "Sidewalks of London," making the best boxoffice showing, comparatively, of all the loop offerings. Former now is in its third week at the Century . . . Eddie Ruben, independent circuit operator, on a one-day hop to Sioux Falls, S. D., to look over his theatre there . . . "Bruz" Rubel, the film men's broker and a double for Ricardo Cortez, is a shy young fellow. He sent Ada Leonard, whom he greatly admires, a beautiful bouquet of roses at the Gayety performance which he attended. But he refused to sign his name to the attached card. For a laugh, get him to tell you what he did write.

Marty Lebedoff of the Brynwood brought in Moishe Oysher, Yiddish film star, into the North High Auditorium last Sunday night for a concert. The event proved a big success, artistically and financially. The Homewood, another Lebedoff house, has shown several pictures starring Oy-

Clinton Sizzles Over Title Change Rumor

CLINTON, IA. — If 20th Century-Fox changes "The Life of Lillian Russell" to "Glamour Girl of the Gay Nineties," Clinton's gonna howl.

In fact, the mere rumor of such title-juggling last week had sizzling protests steaming westward from the city's leaders, including Mayor Harry Pape and heads of various civic organizations.

Lillian Russell was Clinton's most famous daughter, they contend, and achieved a success that made her name foremost among the great actresses of her day.

They have heard that New York wants the "Lillian Russell" premiere and some even suspect that the suggestion that the actress' name be taken from the title, is a bit of skullduggery on the part of La-Guardia-town.

Few of Clinton's leaders crying "no title change" today realize they are reversing their city's stand. For, when Clinton's founding fathers first laid out wide Fifth Avenue here, they called this settlement "New York."

That title was changed, wasn't it?—R.C.

Successor to L. J. Ludwig Still Remains Unknown

MINNEAPOLIS—The vacancy created in the Minnesota Amusement Co. by the resignation of L. J. Ludwig as assistant to John J. Friedl, the big circuit's general manager, is still open.

Ludwig, who has been connected with Paramount, the parent company, since 1927, was seriously injured in an automobile accident several months ago and never has recovered completely. Finding his present duties too arduous, he decided to engage in an occupation less strenuous and will enter the screen advertising business. In the interim, however, he expects to undergo another operation.

Fox Beatrice Theatre Corp. Asks Suit Particulars

LINCOLN—Asking particular and more definite statements on 20 questions, defendants in the Frank E. Hollingsworth anti-trust action against the Fox Beatrice Theatre Corp. filed this week in federal court.

Hollingsworth maintains that most of the major film companies entered into collusion with Fox-Beatrice in Beatrice, Neb., as a subsidy to Fox Midwest, to squeeze him out of business in Beatrice, where he operates two theatres, the Pix, first run, and the Rialto, second run.

Harry Vickers Des Moines Commissioner of Finance

DES MOINES—A few years on Filmrow here is an education for most any job.

Harry Vickers, newly-elected finance commissioner in Des Moines, was booker at First National for 10 years and formerly was chairman of the joint film board of trade.

Competition to Sport Not Permitted

Minneapolis—Because he wished to attend the state high school basketball tournament in the Twin Cities and, particularly, to watch his son, a member of the Mountain Lake high school team, play, George Schroeder shut down shop for three weekend days, closing his Mountain Lake Theatre, ordinarily its best days. Many of the other Mountain Lake residents accompanied Schroeder to the Twin Cities. The Mountain Lake team, which won the state championship last year, failed to retain the crown.

KAYCEE

IN CASE you hadn't noticed it, WDAF no longer is broadcasting the "Pot O' Gold" program. Its elimination followed the FCC's note on the matter to the department of justice.

C. A. Botkin has purchased a pair of new high intensity Simplex lamps and a Hertner generator from John Kelly of the National Theatre Supply for his Harper at Harper, Kas. . . . W. D. Fulton is installing the same equipment in the Vogue, Kansas City, with Walt Shreve, NTS manager here, making the sale . . . Dubinsky Brothers are putting in a pair of the new lamps with rectifiers in the Electric, St. Joseph, Mo.

Budd Rogers of Alliance Films was here conferring with W. L. Norris of Norris Distributing Co., who will handle "The Outsider," Alliance feature, in western Missouri and Kansas. The picture goes in the Midland, April 19, for first run.

I. C. Gregory, Chicago, father of Charley Gregory here, died April 5 at his home in Chicago. Funeral services were held there Monday. Charley is a vice-president of Variety Club and branch manager for NSS.

Little damage was done to Dominic Donnici's Palace, downtown subsequent in Kansas City, the other night when fire broke out in the hotel above the theatre. What damage was done was caused by water.

Hugh Asmus, head shipper for RKO and with the company over 17 years, died at the Veterans' Hospital in Excelsior Springs last Saturday. He was 60 years old.

Griffith Tries Again For Minny Permit

MINNEAPOLIS—Another effort is being made to get the city council to let down the bars and permit new theatre construction here. For the fourth time H. L. Griffith has made an application for a license to build and operate a $200,000 showhouse on his neighborhood property.

Griffith has been fighting for this license for several years; it was granted once, only to be revoked. He then went into court to compel its issuance, but lost out.

Irving Gillman, Esquire Theatre owner, also recently suffered a reversal in a court fight to mandamus the aldermen into issuing a license for a theatre on another neighborhood site. He has not decided yet whether he will take an appeal.

The council's principal reason for refusing to issue any more theatre licenses is the belief that the city already is overseated and additional theatres would jeopardize present showhouse investments. If the aldermen changed their minds it's indicated that anywhere from six to a dozen new theatres would be built. In St. Paul, where there's no taboo, two houses now are being constructed.

Bizon Succeeds Charack On Warner Sales Staff

MINNEAPOLIS—Filling the vacancy on the Warner sales staff created by the transfer of Tommy Charack to Los Angeles as city salesman, Leon Bizon has been transferred here from the Omaha branch. Bizon takes over North Dakota which Myron Adcock has been covering. Adcock goes to South Dakota where Charack formerly held forth.

Two Aberdeen Houses Are Taken by Ralph Green

ABERDEEN, S. D.—The Pix and Time theatres here have been acquired by Ralph Green, owner of the Loop Theatre, Minneapolis, and a house at Fort Dodge, Ia. Art Johnson, Sioux Falls, S. D., exhibitor, is the former owner.

DES MOINES

YOU'LL have to make allowances this week. BOXOFFICE & Co. have moved. BOXOFFICE, her hair in pigtails, her arms full of curtains, and her mouth full of tacks, is blitzkrieging her way through five rooms . . . & Co. has barricaded himself in his last stronghold, the den . . . For lack of better occupation he's trying to make sense of these BOXOFFICE notes . . . If it all ends abruptly, you'll know & Co. found an opening for a quick dash to sanctuary—the office.

Lessee, first there's something about happy, dapper George R. Giroux being in town to tell the managers what to do with those Technicolor pictures . . . He cut a coupla notches in the Orpheum electric bill by turning out a pair of side lights down front, but admitted he couldn't do much about those "yellow torches at the Des Moines and Paramount" . . . That ring on Giroux's little finger is quite a torch itself . . . Bobby Stone, the Aranow boy from Des Moines, has a part as a pearl diver in "Pago Pago," says his maw, and will get screen credit (that woulda been a scoop if & Co. hadn't told Ashby about it).

That Kendall Community players' screening of "Craig's Wife" was set up by Columbia's Bing Miller, who didn't have to get a New England accent to locate an old print in Boston . . . It was all arranged so the locals could pick up some tips before their own five-day run . . . Bing, incidentally, is switching from booker to salesman in Mel Evidon's plant since Marv Godwin signed up with Lou Elman over at RKO . . . Marv hardly knows he's changed jobs. He's covering the same old territory.

The Elmer Tiltons and the Clyde Pratts got back from the Lawrence, Kas., premiere of "Dark Command" intact . . . Wonder if Elmer knows that Doris Day, who has a bit in Republic's "Thou Shalt Not Kill," has an Iowa background. She used to flirt with the professors over at Cornell College in Mt. Vernon . . . Harry Holdsberg gave "Young Tom Edison" a shot in the arm at the Des Moines and Roosevelt by locating Mrs. Ettie Huckins, 77, out at 2920 Maple St. . . . She knew Tom Edison as a youth in Michigan and affirmed the incidents portrayed in the film—for the public prints.

Lou Elman's keeping us informed about RKO screenings with "Bill of Divorcement" at noon Thursday and "Beyond Tomorrow" at noon Friday, but whyineck doesn't he have 'em when workin' people can see 'em? . . . His "Irene" was big news for the trade at the Orpheum last Monday morning . . . Other big news on the Orpheum front is the speed with which Emil Franke snapped up that mystradrama combo, "Fall of the House of Usher" and "Black Friday," after it got the cold shoulder over on Grand Ave.

& Co. looked like a walking ad for Technicolor after Franke explained (in the barber shop) why that Oakley called for a staff consultation . . . All's forgiven, Emil, and we'll get those Pinocchios out of your office and into our den just as soon as we get a path through the doorway wide enough to accommodate 'em.

Harry Herman's back from his Broadway hegira with the news that the Spandau rumor has spread clear to Albany . . . Harry visited Doc Banford on the way east and saw Max Friedman, former Paramount-Publix booker here, in Albany . . . Harry is visiting the Tiltons for the nonce while compiling ideas to pull the public into his New Hampshire Theatre after May 16 . . . He promises a new canopy and other changes in the house when he takes over.

If these notes on the back of a Younker bill make sense (those on the front don't), BOXOFFICE scored when she suspected romantic goings-on up in Foxy Stan Mayer's sector . . . Not only was Ida Peters sneakretly wed to Jon Sherman (?) Green, the Colfax, Ia., barrister, last November, but Custodian Victor Anderson repeated the words with Wilma Pulis, and Bert Rabb of the ad sales department did the Mendelssohn tread with Gladys Ankeny . . . which reminds us of that January 13 snowstorm and how's the Gilly Wells recreation room holding up?

That phone call was from Jeanette MacDonald's manager reminding BOXOFFICE & Co. of the time. That draft was BOXOFFICE going past the door on her way to pin up those pigtails . . . And that press conference is & Co.'s none too graceful exit from this chore. After BOXOFFICE & Co. have welcomed Miss MacDonald, BOXOFFICE is gonna decipher (3 to 1 she can't) her own notes, and & Co. is gonna hang the curtains (3 to 1 he can).

Such a braggert as & Co. turned out to be (he's been going around with BOXOFFICE) . . . betting 3 to 1 on his ability as a curtain-hanger after the curtains are all hanged! Look at him, lopping over there on the davenport with a book and a pan of popcorn, busily NOT hanging curtains! Jeanette MacDonald turned out to be very much all right, talking about how she used to have broomstick legs and spent much of her time as a kid exercising her leg muscles to develop her calves (an excellent device with which to call the attention of the press gents to her current underpinnings).

Emil Franke sends home a miniature rolling pin tagged "Too Many Husbands" . . . nothing personal, we hope . . . Howard Dunn was another Filmrower who thought that those red lights Stan Mayer installed in the Little Fox aisle were a good idea . . . We see Hazel Dunn got the new spring hat after all, and mighty pretty she looks too in that shade of blue (you know, it's one of those with a great gob of posies right up here in front) . . . what was all that chatter Pearl Stansell was doing about not bothering Frank Gaskill at Metro if he'd just send the funnies over?

Most theatres seem to have blonde gals in the boxoffice . . . We think the Orpheum has the right idea, though . . . Emil has a blonde for them as prefer 'em, and a brunet to smile for the customers who like 'em dark . . . the pretty blonde-brunet combo who rule the Orpheum boxoffice are Crystal Ryan and Grace Spayde, and step right up, boys, they're both single (but when you step up, be sure you got the dough for your ticket, brother). Word arrives from Clint Bolton, who has been hiding out in Sioux Falls since his BOXOFFICE three-sheeting, that Terry Turner okayed that expense account.

DM Filmrow was shocked to hear from Oklahoma City that Tom McKean, formerly with Paramount here, has suffered the loss of his three-year-old daughter. She was fatally burned, when gasoline poured on a bonfire exploded . . . The only issue between the two candidates for mayor in Davenport was that the Republican opposed cash Bingo prizes and the Democrat promised the voters he'd bring them back. Theatre owners aren't neutral.

Walt (Dimples) Lohman says he will probably deny DM Filmrow the pleasure of his sunny disposition and look outside the corn capital for chores more to his liking . . . Walt quit Monogram April 2. With a sensahuma like the Dimples has, we can't see why he waited the extra day . . . Stan Mayer's brown suit, brown tie with hanky to match make a very spinorty getup even on the Row . . . Haven't seen Art Anderson's cheery, suntanned little face for a coon's age, and can't help wondering how he's doing on those hills these days.

Dog to Premiere

MINNEAPOLIS—Newest and strangest film contest ever held here was that sponsored by the Times-Tribune for Paramount's dog picture, "The Biscuit Eater." The contest was open to all hunting dogs and the lucky canine won an airplane trip to Albany, Ga., for the film's premiere. A committee of prominent dog experts here chose the finest looking dog as the winner. Merle Potter, Times-Tribune critic, accompanied the canine to Albany.

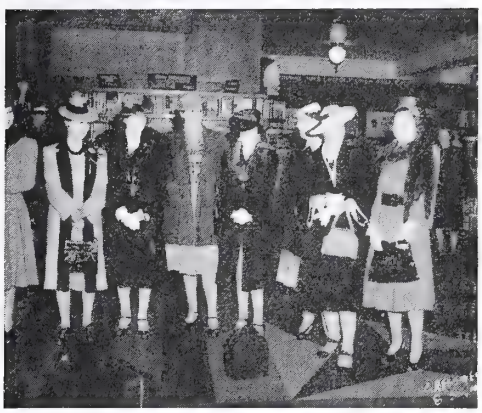
In his column explaining the contest, Potter said: "There are no strings to this offer whatever. The dog gets the honor of the trip, national publicity, chance to see a lot of new country—something the dog will remember all its life. Transportation will be by airplane, most luxurious travel trip ever enjoyed by any dog any time."

Showing of Swedish Film Nets $60 for Finland

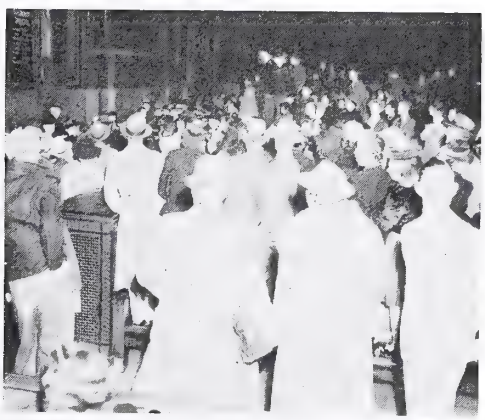
DES MOINES—Showing of the Swedish film, "Rena Rama Senningen," ("Nothing But the Truth") at the Avalon here last month netted $60 for the Finnish relief fund. The presentation was sponsored by Tryggve Lodge No. 67, Independent Order of Vikings. The contribution put Iowa's Finnish relief fund near the $20,000 mark.

Lawrence Jammed for Republic Premiere

LAWRENCE, KAS. — By plane, train, bus and private auto, people streamed into this Kansas town for the elaborate premiere staged by Republic for "The Dark Command," making a crowd estimated at 70,000 on hand for the festivities.



And there were plenty of festivities, starting with a rousing welcome to the official train at the station, a parade of the stars up Massachusetts to the Eldridge Hotel, individual and group receptions, an oldtimers' parade in the vehicles and costumes of Civil War days, and the enactment of the burning of Lawrence by Quantrill (Cantrell in the film). To top it off, came the premiere, a double-barrelled affair at the Granada and Dickinson theatres, with a popular-priced midnight opening at the Varsity trailing. The Patee, the fourth Lawrence house, booked two Republic films to make it unanimous.



From New York for Republic came Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board, and J. R. Grainger, president. From Hollywood: Gene Autry, Walter Pidgeon, Roy Rogers, John Wayne, Wendy Barrie, June Storey, Ona Munson, Mrs. Gene Autry and George "Gabby" Hayes.

Included among Kansas City trade people present were E. C. Rhoden, C. A. Schultz, Robert F. Withers, O. K. Mason,

About the Photos—

Start at the top of the left column: A group of stars and film people in front of Union Station, Kansas City. Wives of some of the Kansas City filmites who accompanied their husbands to Lawrence. A crowd at the station platform as junketeers board the special. "Going up!" In Lawrence, probably bound for the Republic Hospitality Rooms in the Eldridge Hotel. A group of Kansas City film men at luncheon in the Eldridge. Directly below, Herbert J. Yates, Republic chairman, and E. C. Rhoden, president of Fox-Midwest, exchange pleasantries while the pretty onlooker absorbs the scenery. Starting at the top of the right column: Vanguard of the parade in Lawrence. Stars besieged by autograph hunters. Walter Pidgeon signs for a couple of Indians while E. C. Rhoden (left) and Jack Moffitt of the Kansas City Star look on. Roy Rogers gives out, supported by William Saal, Republic's dynamic generalissimo of the premiere. One of the five Kansas University co-eds on the official welcoming committee to the stars.

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By RENE CLAYTON

THOSE Iowa State collegiates at Ames were only trying to chase down all the publicity angles for their Veishea festival, but they landed right in the no-man's-land of the Burton Jerrell-Joe Gerbrach feud.

Jerrell recalled his Harvard degree and his unsigned Ames contract. Joe made some remarks about "Hitler tactics" and national newsreel possibilities.

Keeping mum and sitting tight is Pella, Ia., which has its "Tulip Festival" available for the cameramen on the Veishea dates, May 9, 10 and 11, and may benefit if Joe's theatres continue as holdouts and Iowa News Flashes looks for subjects elsewhere.

If we'd only remembered what happened to blond Hal Sheridan when he left the KSO programming job here, we wouldn't have had to disturb so many people trying to find who manages the Paramount in Cedar Rapids. Now we can't even convince ourselves we knew it all the time.

It's labeled a rumor just to be safe but we believe it's a fact . . . Earnie Hagerman, former owner at Independence, bought the Strand from Mrs. Ida Pahnken Gibbs.

Why is it, no one has ever accused Walter Carroll of Colfax of being hasty about anything?

The Smith Bros. of Corydon, still famous for their lack of beards, were seen lurking around the Row.

The Howard Pollards have something in common, but in different towns. Mr. Howard runs the house at Dows, Ia., and Mrs. Howard runs the house at Reinbeck.

Bob Malek of the Uptown in Gladbrook recently acquired the Grand and Iowa theatres at Independence from E. W. Hagerman.

Hope the diphtheria scare in Webster City isn't cutting in on Percy Long's grosses.

The nice weather brings 'em all flocking to the Row. M. L. Dickson of Mt. Pleasant; Eben Hays of Memphis, Mo.; Stuart Peake of Maquoketa; Floyd Rafferty of Coon Rapids, were all among the exhibitors who sauntered down High in the sunshine last week and rather incidentally did a little booking here'n there.

Even a few of the lady exhibitors got spring fever and spent a little time in DM. Mrs. E. G. Holben of Lenox; Mrs. C. S. Hoffman of Knoxville; and Beulah DeNune of Tipton were here.

A. C. Maenck of Anamosa now has the house at Riverside which was formerly operated by Tony Chado.

LINCOLN

PICTURE of the week: Slim Fraser of Havelock dressed up in overalls as part of the town's annual celebration, Farmer's Institute, during which all the farmers come to town. Reason the business men, like Slim, dress in overalls is to look like farmers, but they don't, because the farmers put on their best—and look like the business men.

Look-back at Lawrence Kas.: Nebraska delegation to Republic's "Dark Command" premiere was small but enthusiastic about the company's job, which went over better than some of the larger company blow-outs . . . Howard Federer, Lincoln, conducted experiments on how to lose friends, by calling Elmer Tilton, Des Moines, and William "Wild Bill" Saal, the preem chief, out of bed at 5 a. m., when he arrived. They, especially Bill, had been without sleep for hours . . . Milton Overman, Omaha, watched the whole parade from Wendy Barrie's bathtub (Wendy didn't know it). Overman, with Harry Lefholtz, also Omaha, found the bathroom window afforded a swell view—of the parade, of course.

Carl Reese, who peddles Republic celluloid in the Husker state, was plugging the product in the Eldridge Hotel corridors. Couldn't get out of the habit . . . Elmer Rhoden, graduate of the University of Nebraska, but now a Kansas City transplant, showed Autry a couple of chords on the guitar . . . Jerry Zigmond, ex-Lincolnite, wondered if his old boss, J. H. Cooper, and his old opposition, L. L. Dent, were going to stay that way, or make a deal. And there's a Warner picture of the same name, Jerry: "We Are Not Alone" . . . Benny Marcus, Columbia, Kaycee after spending some time in Omaha, said he was spying, because Columbia may blow-off the "I Married Adventure" story of Osa Johnson, in Chanute, Kas., her home town. In two tests, "Dodge City" and "Dark Command," Kansas has been found to be very hospitable toward Hollywood.

Applause for William Saal: Take it from this arm of BOXOFFICE, which is by now a veteran in matters of premiere attendance, Republic's show for smoothness, neatness of presentation from arrival to bows at the picture houses, and for excellent public approval on all sides, rates with the best. This is made doubly interesting because there was early opposition in Lawrence to holding the picture there, some of the natives objecting to the life story of Quantrill being kicked off in the town he sacked in 1863.

Back home again: R. W. Huffman can't be dialed anymore, one has to drive to reach him. Golf, that's it! . . . Joe Scott is running Eddie Cantor a race, three girls in a row. If they were all going to be girls, says Joe, why not five at a time, like old man Dionne? . . . Mrs. Bob Livingston, who got sick at the last minute, had to nix the prospective Hollywood trip . . . No word from Harold Hellerich, who made a quick hop the other day to Montana, and a new theatre connection.

The hinterland: Carl Reese will vote for any president who will okay Bank Night as a platform plank . . . Ray Holtz read that the game warden would punish by fine all those who kept fish less than six inches long, but it doesn't worry him any. His catch this spring as yet to number "one," of any size . . . Silence from Ed Schoenthal and Holdrege would indicate the season of flora, fauna, and femmes has him busy . . . Maynard Nelson is one of the most faithful watchers while the new Empress goes up in Kearney. It's all right to watch the opposition build, he says, as long as it isn't the gross.

And with this stint, ye correspondent beats it down the Lincoln highway to Hollywood for two weeks. Plaza Hotel, for complaints!

First-Hand View—

An insight into the production technique—from one who should know—is garnered by Max Torodor, owner of the Ritz Theatre Corp., Minneapolis, as he and his son Donald and daughter Fern chat with Cecil B. DeMille. They're on the set of DeMille's "North West Mounted Police" at the Paramount studio.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Michael G. Mayen

MINNEAPOLIS—Film circles here are mourning the loss of Michael G. Mayen, district manager in charge of Minnesota Amusement suburban houses in Minneapolis and St. Paul, who died following a heart attack.

Mayen, who was 46 years old, was a veteran Twin City theatre man. Prior to joining the Minnesota Amusement company in 1927, he managed theatres in Duluth and St. Paul. He started in the show business at the age of 15 as an usher.

Projection Equipment for Bankers Life Auditorium

DES MOINES—Complete film projection equipment is included in the auditorium of the new $2,000,000 Bankers Life Co. building here which will be opened for public inspection next Tuesday.

The auditorium will seat 1,200. Special sound equipment is installed directly back of the screen on the stage and two Simplex projectors are included in booth equipment.

The Show Must Go On

LINCOLN—Well, the post of theatre manager at Lancaster for the next 13 years has been filled at last.

It was a tough job to get a man, because nobody outside of Lancaster was interested in the money or the location or the opportunity for advancement, and no amount of advertising for a replacement for the departing impresario would do any good.

Lancaster, here, is what is known to the more blunt as the Nebraska State Penitentiary, in which, for the past eight years, Jules Rachman, doing a 15-year stretch for the shooting of Harry and Sam Goldberg, former Omaha exhibs like himself, has been the operator of the prison theatre.

After being refused one try at the pardon board, he was promised a springing by the second group hearing him, and walks out of the institution some time in early October. Rachman had worked hard with the prison theatre, and built it up to the one recreation of paramount importance in the prisoner's week. Warden Joe O'Grady didn't want the theatre to go to pot after Rachman left, so a search was instituted for some one to fill the vacancy.

By this method, the name of Tommy O'Connor, a former St. Louis hoodlum and member of the Shelton gang, who is approaching the hump of a 25-year stretch, was drawn. O'Connor, already an old settler, has enough time to go that the theatre manager problem won't crop up again for ten years or more.

O'Connor's record:

He's in the Nebraska pen for participation in the greatest daylight robbery in the history of the world, that of September, 1930, when a crew at pistol point, took $2,500,000 from the Lincoln National Bank. It's quite different from the money he now draws—because he gets only $2 a month, $24 a year, for being the prison theatre manager.

However, his experiences in the Lincoln job shows up in his statement of policy for the prison theatre. When asked if he would make any changes, O'Connor said he wouldn't.

"Especially," he said, "will I make a firm stand against that theatre practice elsewhere—Bank Night. If it wasn't for a bank, I wouldn't be here."

sher . . . "Grapes of Wrath" continues to do a terrific business throughout the territory.

It finally got past the censors: The discarded first name of Reno Wilk, RKO salesman, is Elmer . . . Bill Crystal was so well received when he talked before the Twin City Variety Club on film product that there's talk of taking him on a tour of all Variety chapters around the country. Bill has developed a system which, through a quick glance at a chart, tells the strength of various film products.

Eddie Swanson, veteran showman and manager of the Metro, Red Wing, Minn., is a daddy, his wife having presented him with a girl baby . . . Joe Floyd, manager of the Hollywood, Sioux Falls, S. D., and Clayton Severson, manager of the Monte, Montevideo, Minn., were declared tied winners in the recent Eddie Ruben managers' drive, the big Welworth circuit's March campaign. Each receives a beautiful desk trophy. Harold "Swede" Bartlett of the Roxy, Langdon, N. D., is second place winner.

Business was suspended for a day at the Welworth circuit offices to celebrate the birthday of Bess Crane, Eddie Ruben's private secretary . . . Mannie Goodman, the valance man, proud of a 60-foot street banner which his Hollywood Advertising company has made for a political rally in Sioux Falls, S. D. Mannie Sgutt, Columbia salesman, is staging the rally.

Busch to "Belle Starr"

HOLLYWOOD—Niven Busch will adapt "Belle Starr" for 20th-Fox.

Over 30 Kansas City Barkers to Dallas

KANSAS CITY—Between 30 and 35 members of the local Variety Club will leave next week for the national convention in Dallas. The special leaves here 5:30 p. m. Wednesday and arrives the next morning in Dallas at 7:15. It will be equipped with a club car, and drinks will be furnished by the club.

Among those who are definitely planning the trip are Sam Abend and Earl Jameson of Film Delivery; Jack Shriner of the Gem, Chuck Esterly of the State and Roanoke, George Harttmann, North Kansas City; George Baker and Peck Baker of Baker Enterprises; E. C. Rhoden of Fox Midwest; Jack Gregory of Altec; Charley Gregory of NSS; Ward Scott of 20th-Fox; Reube Finkelstein of the Belmont; Frank Hensler of Metro; R. R. Biechele, Osage, Kansas City, Kas.; Charley Knickerbocker, 20th-Fox; E. L. Harris of Alexander Film; Bev Miller of Book Night; Fred Bredehoft, attorney; Finton Jones of the Travelers; Judge James H. Anderson, Kansas City; Pete Dana, district manager for Universal; Jim Winn and Don Woods of Warner Bros.; Frank Cassil, St. Joseph; Roy Dunnick, Atchison, Kas.; H. J. Griffith of H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., Rube Melcher, Kansas City.

Among those who are tentatively planning to go are Homer Strowig, Abilene, Kas.; Jay Means, president of Variety Club, Oak Park; Bob Withers, Republic-Midwest; Lon Cox, Fox Midwest; C. A. Schultz, Commonwealth; R. C. LiBeau, district manager, Paramount; H. P. Wolfberg, district manger, Metro; Jack Barnett, 20th-Fox cameraman; Charley Potter, Saline Theatre Corp.

OMAHA

A DANDY bit of exhibitor philosophy from W. W. Troxell, Nebraska circuit owner: "The show business is a habit. You have to get them coming and you have to keep them coming" . . . Joe Bartos, manager of the Time at Crete, Neb., was in town. The house is owned by Adolph Rozanek and was built by Bob Ballantyne.

Johnny McBride, Republic office manager, had an operation on his nose to clear up some trouble. The doc couldn't figure out what was wrong until Johnny admitted his nose was broken when he was a kid . . . Sol Francis is all excited about "Son of the Navy."

Bernadine Johannsen, Wonderland, Paullina, Ia., was on Filmrow doing the booking for her dad, W. A. Johannsen, who owns the house . . . Omaha Variety Club has a big delegation lined up for the national convention and all have been listed in BOXOFFICE the past week or so except Meyer Stern of Capitol Pictures.

M. Marino is changing the name of his Maryland in Omaha to the Berkley when it reopens soon after a remodel job . . . Heinie Saggau, Ritz, Denison, Ia., is getting to be Filmrow's most regular visitor, and it's a good place to add that he's one of the friendliest exhibitors in the Omaha territory.

Elmer J. Tilton, the Republic boss from Des Moines, was here to see Carl Reese, Republic exchange manager. The two boys were getting their heads together on "Dark Command" . . . Al Boudouris, the Strong lamp man, came to Omaha to see Carl White and took a trip with him through the territory . . . Frank Good, Iowana, Red Oak, Ia., reported in town this week.

Earl Kerr, the Iowa circuit owner, here on Filmrow and reported a lot of the exhibitors in his territory had not had anticipated business increases after Easter. They're still looking on the bright side, however, says Earl . . . Howard Federer, Lincoln theatre operator, also in town.

Mervin Neely, owner of the Globe at Griswold, Ia., granted BOXOFFICE one of those famous one-minute interviews in which Merv said he was not the sponsor of the Neely bill.

Max Facter, new booker in this area for Pioneer circuit, came to Filmrow . . . Also John Noffsinger and wife, Capitol, Madison, Neb., and Fred Dethlefs, Crystal, Manning, Ia. . . . Sol Francis sold C. A. Lane of Carroll, Ia., a Holmes portable for another six-town circuit around Sheldon, Ia.

Rebuilding of the Empress at Kearney, Neb., is progressing nicely, according to our scouts . . . C. C. Moore, Dunlap, Ia., exhibitor, was a visitor on Filmrow . . . National Poster and Capitol Pictures have moved their offices to the old Grand National exchange under the new National Screen deal . . . George Bonacci is growing a fancy beard for Golden Spike Days.

20-Mule Team Eastward After Stay in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—A borax wagon and a 20-mule team left here April 12 for a tour of 42 eastern cities. The exploitation is for "Twenty-Mule Team," M-G-M picture starring Wallace Beery. Capt. Volney Phifer is in charge.

The menage will move by truck from city to city, but will be driven around in each city. The team and wagon are almost a block long when hitched. Cities to be visited include St. Louis and Chicago, and the outfit will reach New York World's Fair in about 60 days.

"Monterey" to Caesar

HOLLYWOOD—Arthur Caesar is adapting "In Old Monterey" for Charles R. Rogers, who will produce for Columbia.

Windsor, Mo., protected by his two "stalwart" bodyguards; Mr. and Mrs. John Brandt, Oregon, Oregon, Mo.; George Nescher, Rio, Valley Falls, Kas.; Frank Weary, Farris, Richmond, Mo.

Miss Ruth Kelly of Universal went to Fort Smith, Ark., over the weekend for "fun."

It's to be H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., instead of Griffith-Dickinson Theatres, Inc. Incidentally, the Carlton, Manhattan, Kas., is closing April 13. The Wareham will be No. 1, Dickinson (name to be changed) No. 2.

The two S's from the three M's (Sam and Louis Sosna from Manhattan, Kas., and Moberly and Mexico, Mo.), were on Filmrow Wednesday . . . Film Delivery is repainting and redecorating its offices. This news is so fresh the smell of paint is still around it.

June Medcalf is in Marlow, Okla., where her mother is ill.

On the Row: Shields Wilson, Camden, Camdenton, Mo.; Chuck Lancaster, Uptown, Strong City, Kas.; Mr. and Mrs. Simon Galitzki, Coed, Topeka, Kas.; J. Ward Spielman, Gem, Baldwin, Kas., and Rialto, Lyndon, Kas.; Elmer Bills, Lyric, Salisbury, Mo.; Warren Swank, Ritz, Burlingame, Kas.; W. F. "Doc" McDowell, Ritz, Caldwell, Kas.; Glen Martin, Linn, Republic, Mo.

George S. Lofink, who last week became district booker here for Universal, has gotten acquainted enough to know he likes it around Kansas City. Lofink formerly was with the Fabian theatres in Albany, N. Y. He replaces Joseph Rogatnick, who went to Des Moines as head booker.

They Use BOXOFFICE In Studying Neely

Cleveland—At a study session of the film division of the Federation of Women's Clubs on the Neely bill, previous issues of BOXOFFICE containing pro and con arguments on the measure, were used. The meeting, in charge of Mrs. Edna B. McLachlan, wound up with the group taking no definite stand on the bill.

Two Detroit Houses Bring Stage Shows

DETROIT—An agreement was reached Wednesday with the stagehands' union that will permit stage shows to go into the Michigan and Fox theatres, largest local first runs.

Shows for the Michigan appear definitely set, with a probable start on Friday, April 19, which is as soon as film commitments will allow. The Fox undoubtedly will follow suit, possibly a week later. Robert Corbin, Michigan manager, now in New York, is presumably arranging booking details.

A prior agreement was reached with the musicians' union covering only the Michigan, but the Fox management expressed its willingness to make the same arrangements.

Five Michigan Theatres Bring Back Vaudeville

DETROIT—Two Detroit circuits are establishing vaudeville in five theatres in Michigan currently.

Wisper & Wetsman, after trying out flesh at the Harper, has adopted it as a permanent policy at the Harper, Tower, Tuxedo and Oriole, and may add it at the Eastown as well. Program is for a half week at each house.

Associated Theatres is also reviving stage shows at the Rialto, Flint. This policy formerly was a big moneymaker at the house.

Moss Brothers Planning Second Detroit House

DETROIT—The Moss Brothers, who opened the Van Dyke as their first theatre about four months ago, will erect a new 1,000-seat house at Warren and Dickerson Aves., to be known as the Parkside.

The location is across the street from the new Parkside Federal Housing Project. It represents the only location in the city into which several hundred new families have been concentrated in the last few years, with no theatres within convenient walking distance at present.

Alton R. Warner

DETROIT—Alton R. Warner, 70, dean of active theatre men here, died Tuesday at his home following a paralytic stroke. At the time of his death he managed the Wilson. His widow survives. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

AMPTO Hears AA Defend Entry Into Poster Trade

PITTSBURGH—Members of AMPTO of W. Pa., at a meeting in exhibitor headquarters Monday afternoon, took no new action in the matter of its resolution of some weeks ago when the entry into the advertising accessory field by Advertising Accessories, Inc., was denounced as "tending to create a monopoly."

Stating that AA had been "pre-judged" and having asked to be heard on the subject, four NSS-AA executives were present to defend the new company. George Dembow, general sales manager for NSS, reviewed the history of this firm and explained how company goodwill had been designed for a period of 22 years, successfully serving 13,000 theatres. He stated that the AA enterprise had been in development for a number of years and that this company did not come into the field "half cocked." He emphasized that AA and its manpower are not paper peddlers but a substantial advertising agency. Charles Casanave, vice-president of AA, stated that motion picture advertising had not progressed through several decades until recent years when he introduced new types of displays through National Screen Accessories. He denied that AA was monopolistic, and explained that this company was representing only two accounts directly, Paramount and RKO. Billy Bien, who formerly operated an independent poster exchange at Cincinnati and who has recently joined AA as an eastern executive, talked on price and rental terms in the field before and after the advent of AA, explaining that his deal in transferring his poster company to the subsidiary company of NSS was profitable and entirely satisfactory to him. Perry Nathan, local representative of AA, was present during the session.

Casanave quoted the rental prices of accessories and gave his guarantee that these figures would not be increased within a period of five years.

Absorb Independent Display

AA officially absorbed Independent Display Co. last Saturday, Casanave announced. Dave Rosenfeld, manager of the poster service company which had been in business here for more than 30 years, was called upon to take a bow. He thanked exhibitors for their patronage of years past and expressed the hope that they would be entirely satisfied with the new and greater service available through the national setup. He stated that the transfer of Independent Display Company to AA was satisfactory and that for five years he would receive profits equal to the profits formerly earned for him by his old company. He will remain with AA in a special capacity for some months. Five or six of the former Independent Display employes will be continued in the employe of AA, Rosenfeld stated.

The meeting was one of the longest in years. A buffet luncheon was enjoyed by 35 AMPTO members prior to the meeting. A recess was taken when the NSS-AA representatives departed.

With no motion from the floor for the withdrawal or alteration of the resolution of "threatened monopolization," a suggestion was offered that a letter of thanks be forwarded to Messrs. Casanave and Dembow for their attendance. The communication will declare that the AMPTO members appreciate hearing directly from the parties concerned and the AA representatives will be assured that their remarks somewhat lessened the grief as expressed in the resolution.

Exhibitor leaders stated the membership was unanimous in its stand not to rescind or remove any part of the first communication.

Urges Convention Attendance

AMPTO of W. Pa., will endeavor to have a record attendance at the national Allied convention which will be held at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago, June 19-21, Fred J. Herrington, secretary, stated. He particularly urged the younger exhibitors and managers, or the sons of exhibitors who are now taking an interest in the theatre business to plan to be among the delegates. In addition to the "regulars" who are expected to turn out 100 per cent for the Chicago conclave, a number of other exhibitors of the local area have expressed their intention of being among those present, Herrington stated.

Another membership meeting will be held Monday afternoon, April 15. Arrangements for this session were made at the April 8 meeting. A number of new problems will be presented and other business will be on the schedule. M. A. Rosenberg, president of the local Allied unit, will preside.

"Trouble Now Past," Says Witness Weiss

PITTSBURGH—Al Weiss, McKeesport exhibitor, named with his father, Joseph Weiss, as among the first witnesses in the industry anti-trust suit, scheduled to be started in New York, May 1, this week stated that the complaint involved was entered between 12 and 14 years ago, and was quoted in the McKeesport Daily News as follows:

"The trouble we had at that time is now past. We have no trouble getting the type of pictures we want now and the motion picture producers have given us every cooperation in presenting our shows."

At mid-week no subpoenas had been served on William D. Davis, East Liberty; Thomas A. Gilbert, Oakland, or Harry Stahl, Sharon, among local exhibitors named in the first group of 14 witnesses. Chris Lampros, Farrell, and Harry A. Batastini, Punxsutawney, other local witnesses, were expected to be served with subpoenas.

A Good Time by All Is Had in Altoona

ALTOONA, PA.—One hundred and twenty-five exhibitors, distributors and supply dealers spent two days at the Penn Alto Hotel celebrating the second annual "Good Will Get Together" sponsored by film sales representatives of the "main" line. There was a banquet and music, and Burtus Bishop jr. was master of ceremonies. There were no speeches and not even the title of a motion picture was mentioned. Hollywood Amusement Co. entertained with a game of "Wahoo." A bar was open before and after dinner.

Visiting exhibitors took occasion to stop at several of Altoona's theatres and one of them went to sleep in the balcony of the Strand. A number of exhibitors brought along friends not in the theatre business, and several former film men showed up. There were no politicians present, which was surprising.

Many men in the local film area met for the first time and good friendships and acquaintances were established.

All present were well pleased with the "stag" affair and state that they hope to attend a "third annual" shindig at Altoona next year.

Among those present:

Exhibitors and Managers—Jake Silverman, Ike Silverman, Charles Lynch, Dave Murphy, Altoona; Jake Smith, Barnesboro; Melvin Helfant, Brackenridge; John Perry, Belle Vernon; Frank Panoplos, Clairton; Morris Fruhlinger, Donora; Peter Antonoplos, East Pittsburgh; Frank Orban jr., Hooversville; John Stahl jr., Homestead; Jerry Castelli, Hills Station; Carl Sherkel, Houtzdale; Oscar Stiefel, Lock Haven; Ike Berney, Paul O. Klingler, Lewistown; Theo. Mikolowsky, Masontown; Sam Fleishman, Al Glazer, McKees Rocks; Joseph Shapiro, Robert Shapiro, Mount Union; Bart Dattola, New Kensington; Joseph Delisi, Nanty Glo; Sam Neaman, Natrona; R. V. McCalmont, Jake Soltz, Pittsburgh; George Purcell, Uniontown; B. J. Redfoot, Windber.

Altoona Publix—A. N. Notopoulos, C. A. "Gus" Notopoulos, Alex Notopoulos, Charles Himmelein, K. "Gus" Vaveris; Blatt Bros.—Charles Blatt, William Blatt, E. B. Barnett; Ideal Amusement—V. F. Scott, F. Theatre Supplies—Art Morrone, Vince Josack, Superior; Walter E. Dyck, NTS; Peter J. Alderman, Theatre Supplies; Martin Terner, American Theatrical Valance; M. S. England, Jerry Wechsler, Dennis Games; Sam Steinberg, Jerome Valdenzer, A. and S. Steinberg; Martin Seed, Red Mack, Hollywood Amusement; Jack Judd, Theatre Service; Lou Vogel, Premium Promotion Syndicate; William C. Jervis, Frank Hamre, RCA; Vincent Scatena, Joseph Scatena, Scatena Studio; Edward Good, Meredith Negley, Exhibitors Service; Don D'Carlo, Theatrical Agency; E. A. Hill, W. R. Stich, Artkraft Sign; John Morin, Pittsburgh Plate Glass; Al Zalis, Globe Poster; R. F. Klingensmith, BOXOFFICE.

Also: Dr. I. C. Mishler, veteran retired Altoona showman; Sam Lubell, former film salesman, now engaged in the fur business; Maurice M. Kincler, former film salesman, now offering a theatre game; Bud Wilson of the Wilson Chemical Co., Tyrone, son of the late showman, George C. Wilson; William Interrante, son of Austin Interrante of 20th-Fox, and "Bo-Peep," Everett projectionist, who is on the disabled list following a leg injury sustained some months ago.

Goodwill Tidbits

NOTES from the Altoona banquet: Jake Silverman, as usual, distributed a number of his "regular Saturday kiddie novelties"—this time quacking ducks and another noise maker, a tin-fish hummer, and a Lucky Penny which was about twice the size of a silver dollar . . . Bart Dattola cashed in on a "Wahoo" game, although he later confessed he wasn't a winner (seems nobody checked up on him).

Artistic Jake Soltz copped a contest prize and shortly thereafter headed for home . . . What was Al Glazer's room number? . . . Sam Neaman didn't break his wrist this visit to Altoona . . . The two "Dinty" Moores were very much present and one of them publicly announced he had had to make good on a check issued by the other. Initials or identifications available upon receipt of postage stamp.

We were very glad to greet the veteran retired showman, Dr. I. C. Mishler, who is getting on in years, and Charlie Baird, active theatreman at Ray Allison's Rivoli, Portage, who has been connected with the business for 35 years . . . Jake (Oh-You-Kid) Smith was the life of the party. Or was it John Perry? . . . We missed Lee Conrad, Tom Bello, Bill Nidetch, Adolph Farkas, J. K. Stuckey, L. L. Chamberlain, J. E. Williams, Nicholas Notopoulos, Rudy Covi, John Stahl sr., Harry Rachiele, Mike Winograd, Bill Walker, Walter "Jess" Ackerman, Jim DiMauro and a flock of others who were present at the Altoona shindig last year . . . Max Shulgold and Pete Alderman were pleased to find that they had a lot of friends "up on the main line." They got pleasant receptions from everyone . . . Paul O. Klingler was around but we didn't see him.

Floyd E. McClellan took time out to compliment BOXOFFICE, stating all the Scott-Ideal house managers had voted it their favorite trade publication. For which, many thanks . . . Joe Shapiro brought a number of friends from Mount Union, and they seemed to have enjoyed themselves very much . . . Si Feld didn't wear a wig, as had been planned . . . Hiding his talents is characteristic of Sam Fineberg. He surely beat hell out of those drums and furnished one of the most entertaining acts of the early evening . . . Ike Berney promised to answer Louis Krieger's letters when Ike Silverman assured him that Krieger, a real veteran, was "a good kid" . . . Theodore Mikolowsky's friend, Mr. West, wasn't around? How come? . . . A number of the fellows who met Morris Fruhlinger for the first time, told us he was a swell guy. As if we hadn't known that for years.

Funniest story of the evening was told of Ace and John Stuckey of Everett. One had booked "GWTW" and the other had booked an Eskimo dog-team act for the same dates. The act, booked through a Mr. Logan, was used to ballyhoo the picture! What will these showmen think of next? . . . "Gus" Vaveris lost that Florida tan for a while, but he took a walk and was himself again in jig-time . . . Bob McCalmont, who "hadn't seen a Metro salesman in four years," saw several of them and may expect a visit at the theatre. Bob attends all the industry parties, and it's strange that he hasn't seen Leo's men before this. Bill Jervis is still putting it on and Charley Lynch is reducing.

The handsomest young fellow present was Melvin Helfant, a new exhibitor at Brackenridge . . . George Purcell was "in the mood" . . . We didn't inquire, but are of the opinion that Charlie Dortic thinks a lot more of the Clarksburg parties than the Altoona affairs. Which is a reminder that Dick Marks and his West Virginia gang are planning something for Clarksburg. We'll let you know in plenty of time . . . The room next to 252 was the noisiest in the hotel . . . One winner in a 12-hour poker game banked $250, but we can't prove it . . . Jim Alexander beamed when Johnny Barner's 12-piece orchestra played "South of the Border" . . . You couldn't go wrong in recommending this gang of music makers who can be located at Huntington, Pa.

Cinema Club Sponsors Cleveland Festival

CLEVELAND—The Cleveland Cinema Club will sponsor the third annual "Motion Picture Festival" to be held the week of April 28 to May 4, with special programs arranged for the last three days.

Mrs. Frank R. Anderson, president, has named Mrs. William Roger Thomas chairman of the festival committee. Mrs. Thomas announces the following program:

Thursday, May 2—Hotel Statler. Lattice Room.

3:00 p. m.—Membership Tea honoring the club's new members.

8:00 p. m.—Forum: "Shall We Organize a Northern Ohio Motion Picture Council?" Mrs. Bettina Gunczy, editor of National Board of Review magazine, will tell of similar councils.

Friday, May 3—Hotel Statler. Lattice Room.

10:00 a. m.—Conference on motion picture activities of clubs with special discussion of weekend theatre programs.

12:30 p. m.—Luncheon.

Saturday, May 4—Higbee Auditorium. Junior cinema groups and reports on their activities.

The object of the annual festival, as set forth in the latest Cinema Club bulletin, is to establish "a better understanding of the art of motion pictures which, in turn, results in a greater desire to see only fine films and a greater enjoyment of them when seen."

Helping Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Anderson on the festival committee are: Mrs. R. K. Jones, radio; Mrs. Dorothy Debernarde, youth program; Mrs. E. E. Louis, publicity; Mrs. C. W. Conrad, membership tea; Mrs. O. J. Deming, luncheon, and Mrs. B. M. Lyttle and Mrs. W. V. Fiske, organization programs.

Local Boy Returns With Roach Film

LOUISVILLE—A local boy who made good in Hollywood returned here April 5 to make a personal appearance in conjunction with a special pre-release premiere of Hal Roach's "1,000,000 B. C." at Loew's State.

Victor Mature, besides doing his turns at the premiere, was installed as "mayor" of Louisville for a day by Mayor J. D. Scholtz, who with Gov. Keen Johnson of Kentucky, also was very much a part of the day's activities.

Pre-release of the film locally sounded the opening gun of an extensive national exploitation campaign planned for it. The advertising campaign starts April 28 with a full page in the American Weekly, and ads in other leading publications will be spotted prior to general release of the film, May 3.

The cast of "1,000,000 B. C.," in addition to Mature, includes Carole Landis, Lon Chaney jr. and John Hubbard.

Shift Poster Service to NSS's Cleveland Office

CLEVELAND—Exhibitors in the local territory are now being serviced with poster supplies out of the National Screen Service building here. Since taking over Exhibitors Poster Service a month ago, NSS has been servicing exhibitors out of the former's office in the Film Building. Philip and LeRoy Kendis, who formerly operated EPS, are in charge of NSS's poster department.

Announcement of the shift in the poster servicing setup followed a meeting here of George Dembow, general sales manager, and Jack Cohen, eastern district head, with Nat Barach, local branch manager for NSS.

Condemnation Order May Be Contested in Ohio

MILLERSBURG, OHIO—A court battle is likely over closing of the Duncan at nearby Killburck, which was condemned recently. A notice of appeal to the order of the department of industrial relations was filed by Mrs. Frank Bedford and Dr. John H. Duncan of Killburck.

Golden and Deutsch Form 16mm Distribution Firm

CLEVELAND—Alton Golden and Martin Deutsch have formed Aalmar Motion Picture Co., with offices at 218 Film Bldg., for distribution of 16mm product.

Gets Barberton Lease

BARBERTON, OHIO—Nate Schultz, Pastime owner here, has completed a 15-year leasing deal for a building to house a 700-seat theatre. George Ebling, Cleveland architect, is preparing the plans and work on the theatre is expected to get under way this spring.

25th Trade Year—

Lee Goldberg, president of Big Feature Rights Exchanges, who now is celebrating his 25th anniversary as an independent exchange operator.

Goldberg Celebrates 25th Exchange Year

CINCINNATI—As a climax to the celebration of the 25th anniversary in independent exchange operation, his associates in the Cincinnati, Cleveland and Indianapolis branches of Big Feature Rights Exchange, Inc., are staging a May and June business drive for Lee L. Goldberg, president.

During its 25 years, Big Feature Rights has pioneered in franchises and distribution arrangements with a number of film companies which since have become major outfits. Among these were First National, Warner Bros., Columbia and Educational. The company recently acquired the franchise in its exchange territories for Producers Releasing Corp. and Fine Arts Productions.

A clipping under the glass top of Goldberg's desk (from the Louisville Courier-Journal for February 23, 1916) announces the formation of Big Feature Rights Corp. with its first roadshow, "The Fight for Peace." The company started its exchange operation with travel units through Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Tennessee, and quickly took on six additional states, extending from Virginia to Georgia.

In 1935, Goldberg became the sole owner of the three exchanges, acquiring in that year the interest of Col. Fred Levy, one of the founders.

Several employes have been with Big Feature Rights since its formation. Among them are Jos. W. Goldberg, now sales manager for eastern Kentucky, and Jos. W. Bohn, office manager in Indianapolis.

Leave for Col. Long; Raymond Successor

CLEVELAND—Col. Harry E. Long, Loew division manager here the past six years, is on an extended leave of absence, having turned over his duties to Charles Raymond.

Raymond previously was general manager of M-G-M's British theatres. He arrived in this country a short while ago. He has been in show business more than 25 years, having started on the other side of the footlights as actor and lecturer in silent film days.

In 1932 he opened Metro's theatre in Johannesburg, South Africa, and the following year was transferred to the Empire Theatre, London, where he has been until now. His wife, the former prima donna, Virginia Futelle, and their two children are joining him here this week.

Congestion on Bank Night Stirs Mansfield Mayor

MANSFIELD, OHIO—Mayor W. J. Locke wants the aisles of Mansfield theatres and sidewalks in front of them kept open on Bank Nights even if the National Guard—or at least deputies from the sheriff's office—have to be called, he said.

Locke notified Police Chief Meade K. Bates that the city traffic and fire laws must be enforced at the theatres on Bank Night. Bates said he couldn't do it because he didn't have enough officers.

"Then ask the sheriff's office for aid for an hour on Friday nights," the Mayor told him, "and if that isn't enough we'll call on the National Guard.

Irving Field Will Put on Open-Air Film Shows

CLEVELAND — Irving Field, who operates the Opera House in Burton the year 'round, has arranged to put on open-air shows in various towns for a 20-week period starting the last of May.

In cooperation with merchants, Field will put on a show at Willoughby-on-the-Lake Mondays, at Madison-on-the-Lake on Tuesdays and at Burton on Saturdays.

A novelty of his policy is to interrupt each performance for an intermission so that patrons may do their shopping and then return for the completion of the program. Standard 35mm films will be used.

Frank Cost Scoops Town By Some Fast Thinking

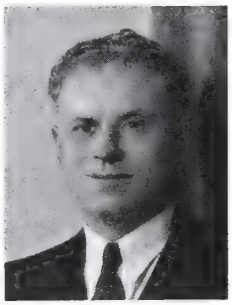
CLEVELAND—Because Frank Cost, manager of the Shore, thought fast and then acted, his theatre scooped every other one in town by showing pictures of the crash of a government airplane that occurred in the vicinity of the theatre one day last week. Hearing the crash in which the plane struck a house, he had a Tri-State cameraman on the scene within ten minutes to "shoot" exclusives which he showed on the screen at 8 o'clock the same night. The crash was front page news in all evening papers.

OLDTIMERS IN OHIO — SAM BARCK

WHEN SAM BARCK landed in New York from his native Poland at the tender age of 13, back in 1906, he arrived without geographical prejudice or preference. So, after knocking around New York for three years doing odd jobs by day and attending school at night, he one day opened his book at a map of the United States, closed his eyes, stabbed at it with a pencil and happened to strike Cleveland. So that's how Sammy Barck, as he is known around here, came to select the Forest City on the shores of Lake Erie in which to build his fortune.

It was in 1909 when he stepped off the train in the old Union Station down on Lakeside Ave. The Printz Biederman Cloak Co. was just opposite the station so he applied there for a job and what's more, he got it, working for seven months in the skirt department. Then he went to work for the H. Black Cloak and Suit Co., where he was made superintendent of the skirt department just one hour after hanging up his hat. It was a good job. He held it for seven years. Then he heard about the picture business. So he quit his job and took over the Michigan distribution of a two-reeler called "Sitting Bull." Either the picture was no good or Sam didn't shine as a film salesman because before long he was broke and had to wire the H. Black Cloak and Suit Co. for money to pay his hotel bill and for fare back to Cleveland and his old job.

During the next six years he superintended the manufacture of skirts, and in 1923 he, in partnership with Morris Klein, a presser with another manufacturer, bought the Chick Theatre. It was located on St. Clair Ave. at East 55th St. and they operated it at night. The following year they sold it and with Barck's share of the profits he leased the Market Square Theatre on Broadway. The deal was made with Victor Wolcott and Perc Essick as theatre brokers. This was Perc Essick's first entrance into the theatre field in which he now is such an important circuit owner.



The New Colonial at Superior Ave. and East 55th St.—now a gas station—the Duquesne at Broadway and Harvard Ave., and the National at East 55th St. and Payne Ave. were acquired by Barck within the next few years, and with almost as much speed as he acquired these houses he sold them again—the Markey Square to J. Grossman, the National to Jack Harwood and the others to men no longer in the business.

So having spent 17 years gaining experience in Cleveland, Barck grew restless and decided to plough new fields. There was the year in Rochester when he operated the Thurston Theatre, a year in Toledo running the Liberty, and then on to Detroit to take a second flier in the states right field. This time he had a full length feature. It was called "The Wilds of Borneo." He had the Michigan rights to this silent travel picture. But history repeated itself. So he turned it over to Nat Charnas.

Back in Cleveland in 1928, he negotiated with Victor Wolcott for the Weber in Dover. He lated sold it to George Chrest. Lorain was his next stop. With Victor Wolcott again as broker, he bought the Park, Pearl and Standard from George Schenker. He held them only a short time. Then one day he bought the Plymouth, in Plymouth, but he was restless there and traded it for the American at Leetonia, later sold to Mike Moranz.

Sam Barck, Cleveland exhibitor, in a photographic contrast. The accompanying article tells you more about him.

In 1932, Barck returned to Cleveland for the third time. And for the second time he leased the Market Square. The house had been closed. He opened it on Christmas Day and it has never been dark since then. Now, said Barck to himself, is the time to stop roaming and to settle down. So he bought the Market Square building, got married and today divides his enthusiasm between his business and his 2-year-old daughter.

Since 1932, Barck has had only one theatre enterprise outside of Cleveland. That was in Fort Wayne, Ind. It was of short duration and ended unhappily.

"The picture business was more fun in the old days," Barck says, "when a program consisted of a western and a short, admission was a dime and there was a quick turn-over. Today we have double features and two-for-one admissions. These, in my opinion, are death blows to the industry and the cause of present day poor attendance. The advantage today over the old days is that the small subsequent run theatre presents the same shows as the de luxe first run house. But the present day evils of duals and two-for-ones more than offset this advantage."

Burlesque's Absence Brief

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO—After two weeks of sex films, the Grand here has reverted to stock burlesque. Jack Kane is manager.

Film on Samuel Colt

HOLLYWOOD — Michael Simmons will adapt "First Trigger Man," a biography of Samuel Colt, for Warner.

Joe Mazzei, formerly of the Art Cinema staff, this week assumed duties as manager of the West View house.

Dave Fineman attended the Monday AMPTO meeting with Donald Stingel, who handles advertising for the Regent Square . . . J. G. "Glenn" Carruthers came in from Grove City with his son Ted . . . Manager McBride of the New Granada was another of the "exhibitor fraternity" who attended his initial Allied meeting. Dave Trimble of Masontown was another newcomer . . . Mrs. Mary L. Anton of Monongahela, widow of John Anton, is at Mercy Hospital for a checkup . . . E. M. "Ernie" Dock, Vandergrift city manager for the Manos circuit, has really gone to town on "GWTW" and here's something commendable: Not only has he arranged for a half-day holiday at the high school there, but he obtained permission to set up a boxoffice in the school lobby.

Miss Meercy Braff of M-G-M and Ralph "Ray" Mervis of the exhibiting Mervis brothers were winners in a rhumba contest the other evening, copping a case of beer as their prize. Miss Braff doesn't quaff the stuff . . . In no connection whatsoever, Ralph Mervis is now resting at a local hospital where he underwent the removal of his appendix . . . Phil Spitalny's girl band opens on the Stanley stage April 19 . . . Variety Club members honored Charles Kurtzman at a "farewell" dinner Monday evening . . . We understand there will be a new theatre in the neighborhood of the Mills, Huntington, W. Va.

If half of the rumored new theatres actually develop the building industry here will boom. Just recently we heard of plans for new houses in the Garfield and Greenfield districts. Plans are awaiting development for a neighborhood house on Walnut street, Shadyside. And the latest entries seem to be Overbrook and Crafton Heights. Construction of John Stahl's theatre will be started soon at Munhall (Homestead Park).

Mrs. Kihchel's Angel Food Cakes were delivered as promised for the exhibitor meeting Monday and we declared them the best we've ever tasted. So did all the exhibitors and some of the Filmrow girls who finished the "left-overs." The buffet luncheon was appreciated by all members of the AMPTO and following the unanimous favorable comments it is a foregone conclusion that most of the future meetings will be held in the large assembly room of the association right on Filmrow.

Restrainer Writ Granted Bixler Is Extended

GREENSBURG, PA.—Judge J. Hilary Keenan, who recently granted a preliminary injunction in an equity suit brought by John C. and David Bixler of Scottdale, against the Scottdale Theatre Co., a corporation, and Carl B. Pritchard, et al., trustees for the creditors of the First National Bank of Scottdale, has continued this injunction and will render a decision at an early date.

The order restrains the defendants from selling or transferring any shares of the capital stock of the theatre, restrains the trustees from dispossessing or interfering with John C. Bixler, as theatre manager and from liquidating the assets of the theatre.

The plaintiffs, in their bill of complaint, state that prior to January 2, 1936, John C. Bixler had negotiated a loan from the bank and had a balance due of $5,380. On January 2, 1936, Bixler bought eight shares of the theatre stock for $8,050 permitting the trustees of the bank to hold them as well as 29 other shares as security for the loan. Bixler claims he has since paid off the indebtedness and is entitled to deliverance of the 37 shares of stock which was refused. He further alleges that the trustees are attempting to sell the theatre and dispossess him as manager.

Clearfield Roxy Optioned To England Amusement

CLEARFIELD, PA.—Roxy Theatre has been transferred to the England Amusement Co., the deal being a "long-term with option to buy" lease. Owned by Tony Colose, the house had been booked and managed for a year by the V. F. Scott interests. For several months Colose had managed the Roxy prior to announcement of the new operators. M. S. England, former Pittsburgh exhibitor, stated this week that he and his brother, A. J. England, would be in charge.

Opposition houses here are owned by the Clearfield Amusement Co. of which H. J. Thompson is president.

Padolf Asquires Lease On Parkersburg House

PARKERSBURG, W. VA.—Lou Padolf, former Pittsburgh film salesman, has acquired the lease for the Virginian here. Padolf recently represented RKO at Grand Rapids, Mich., and prior to that had operated theatres at Leipsic, Ohio, and St. Marys, W. Va. W. D. Ward, another former film man, had managed the theatre here during the winter. The house is owned by C. B. "Dad" Hall, veteran exhibitor, who retired some months ago and who has recently returned from Florida where he spent the winter. Padolf has not announced any contemplated change of policy.

Autry In Rodeo

PITTSBURGH—Gene Autry will star in the annual rodeo to be presented in the Gardens for 10 days beginning April 24.

Seeks Weekly Circulation Of Decency Legion List

PITTSBURGH—Rev. A. W. Forney, director of the Legion of Decency here, has issued the following letter to all priests of the Pittsburgh diocese:

"To the Reverend Pastors:

"Some pastors who issue weekly bulletins list the movies to be shown at the theatres in their parishes for the coming week, giving the classifications established by the Legion of Decency.

"It seems a great many children are going to movies that the Legion of Decency has ruled unsuitable for them. If the above plan be generally adopted, we should see an improvement in this regard, as well as in the avoidance of Class B and Class C pictures by adults.

"The Pittsburgh Catholic carries the official movie listing of the Legion of Decency."

Catholics Urged to Avoid "Gone With the Wind"

Theatre Cooking Schools Started in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—The Lake Shore Sales Co. has inaugurated special matinee cooking schools in local theatres, which are conducted by the Electrical League.

An electric stove, valued at from $150 to $200, and 20 baskets of food are given away free at every demonstration show.

The school is put on as an extra matinee and patrons pay admission to attend. The Electrical League distributes as many as 15,000 tickets, which, plus 15 cents, entitle bearer to admission to the theatre. The classes are conducted only once in a theatre. Advertising for the one-day exhibition is on display two weeks in advance.

In Cleveland, cooking classes have been booked into the Broadvue, Lincoln and Ambassador theatres. F. Arthur Simon and M. M. Jacobs of Lake Shore Sales plan to use the idea nationally.

Ten Michigan Key Spots Await "Dark Command"

LAWRENCE, KAS.—Ten early key openings have been set in Michigan for Republic's Raoul Walsh production, "Dark Command," according to James R. Grainger, president.

The first of these openings will be April 20 in Battle Creek, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Saginaw, followed April 28 by Grand Rapids, Port Huron and Pontiac. These are all Butterfield-Michigan Theatres operations.

The other two Michigan key openings are in Bay City on April 28 and Flint on May 5.

CLEVELAND

MRS. H. A. BARLOW, owner of the Taplin at Powhatan Point, was in to attend the very swank Rankin-Taplin wedding. The theatre was named after the bride's father, owner of one of the mines in the district . . . Lee Chapman, former Monogram salesman, has bought Ohio distribution rights to "Secrets of a Model," with Sharon Lee and Phyllis Barry. The picture has been given censor board approval, so Chapman, with an office in the Monogram suite, is all ready for bookings.

Paul Gusdanovic got back from a winter in Florida just in time to supervise the installation of a new generator at his Norwood, by National Theatre Supply Co. . . . With the first sign of spring, exhibitors drove in from all four points of the compass. Spotted at the various exchanges were: Jack O'Connell, Toledo; Sol Bernstein, Mansfield; Leo Jones, Upper Sandusky; Harry Reinhart, Canton; Bob Menches, Al Ploenes, R. E. Paulus, Akron; A. G. Constant, George Delis, Canton; Joe Trunk, Walter Schwartz, Joe Shagrin, J. H. Steinberg, Youngstown; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Stone, Lodi; F. D. Krichbaum, Orville.

Morris Berkowitz of the Ritz and Ambassador theatres is back from Hot Springs . . . Roy Haines, Warner eastern division sales manager, and Bob Smeltzer, district manager, were here in a huddle with the local branch manager, Ted Mendelssohn. They said it was just one of the regular office conferences.

A. H. Bevington is now operating the Empress at Whitehouse . . . "GWTW" has finally gone with the sunshine, having come to a glorious finish after a record 10-week run at Loew's Stillman. No further local city bookings are announced . . . Miss Marie Flynn of the M-G-M office staff had a touch of appendicitis. Not enough to warrant an operation, however.

J. J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager, collected the male members of the local exchange, including Branch Manager Frank Drew, Office Manager Phil Harrington and all of the salesmen, for a discussion of forthcoming product. Maloney is holding similar meetings in all offices of his district . . . Miss Eleanor Tesch of National Screen Service narrowly escaped writing finis to her career one day last week when she was in one of three automobiles that tried to occupy the same space at the same time . . . Mrs. Ward, secretary to J. S. Jossey, who was operated on last week, is in the convalescent stage.

Local Paramount exchange got back most of the $1,000 worth of office equipment stolen several weeks ago. It was found in a stolen automobile located in the Lake . . . Bert Stearn, UA district manager, was in New York last week . . . Milt Harris, who thinks up all of the publicity stunts for pictures playing Loew theatres, worked out a good one for the "Road to Singapore." Cards were distributed which entitled bearer to one free lesson at the Arthur Murray Studios, Hotel Statler, to learn to dance the "Singapore." Furthermore, bearer of the card was entitled to participate in the Arthur Murray-Loew's State Singapore Dance Contest in the Statler Hotel April 10.

Regal Films is distributing the Louis-Paychek single reel picture. The picture played a simultaneous opening run at the Allen and Keith's East 105th St. . . . Nate Schultz, who was undecided as to whether he would attend the National Variety convention in Dallas, April 18-20, had his mind made up for him when it was announced that Monogram, of which he is a franchise owner, will hold its convention at the same place, and at about the same time.

Jack Marpole of "Ten-O-Win" stopped off on his way from the west to the east coast . . . Jack Shulman and Abe Schwartz, with their respective wives, left Miami Beach by car on April 9 for home . . . The M. B. Horwitzes leaves the land of sunshine and deep sea fishing on the 18th . . . Willard Hart of the Norka and Rialto, Akron, has gone south to put the finishing touches to his convalescence from pneumonia . . . Rudy Norton, Republic salesman, is out in the territory again after being kept in for two weeks with an eye infection.

BOWLING

PITTSBURGH—Coming into the home stretch with Republic and Universal tied—that is the position of the leaders in the Filmrow Bowling League until April 19. No games were scheduled for this week.

Universal pulled into the "tie" last Friday evening by winning three games from 20th-Fox; at the same time Republic lost two out of three games to Monarch. Pete Quiter of Universal, with a 185 score for one game, took the $1 award for high individual honors.

Standing of the teams to April 19:

	Won	Lost
Republic	50	25
Universal	50	25
Columbia	46	26
Monarch	39	36
Loew's	33	42
20th-Fox	24	48

DETROIT—McArthur is holding a slim lead as the Nightingale Club bowling race enters its final stages.

	Won	Lost
McArthur Theatre Equipment	63	45
National Theatre Supply	61	47
Oliver Theatre Supply	59	49
Motiograph	59	49
Amusement Supply Co.	57	51
Brenkert Projectors	45	63
National Carbon Co.	43	65
Lorenzen Flower Shop	43	65

High scores: Jack M. Hall, 610; F. W. Wise, 608; Mingione, 574; Bill Fouchey, 574; S. J. Lambly, 570; J. S. Goossen, 547; Edgar Douville, 527; W. L. Rickens, 526.

The Nightingales are going into "big time" Monday when they roll in the city tournament at Detroit Recreation.

COLUMBUS

IT SOUNDS like a frameup to us. Bernie Gardner, Paramount salesman, won a singing prize Saturday at the Ohio. (Organist Roger Garrett is currently using a portable mike to permit solos from the audience, applause to determine winner.) Picture was Paramount's "Road to Singapore."

Ethel Miles, head of the former Chesbrough circuit, is fighting the flu . . . J. J. Grady, Fox boss in Cincy, was a business visitor . . . "GWTW" has been made available for subsequent runs in the territory, but no takers as yet.

The many friends of Earl Futerer, Granville, will be shocked to hear of his death. Until his recent illness, which started about six months ago, he operated the Opera House.

Our congratulations to Marty Burnett, popular manager of Loew's in Dayton, who has been promoted to the headman job at Loew's Penn in Pittsburgh. He has been replaced by Sam Gilman, formerly in Harrisburg.

Watty Watson, Metro exploiteer, after 20 weeks on "GWTW," is now working on other pictures, first being world premiere of "Florian" in Dayton. Incidentally, the Metro "search for talent" caravan will be in Huntington this weekend, followed by Wheeling. Company is seeking a lad to play Jody in "The Yearling."

Bill Pullin jr., formerly associated with his father at the New Linden, has taken a post with the Butterfield circuit of Michigan . . . The "Twenty-Mule Team" ballyhoo unit is due in soon.

H. LeRoy Shonting has opened a publicity bureau in New York called "Copy Copy" . . . "It's a Date" was screened at the Grand for Variety Clubbers . . . Lion Gardiner is vacationing . . . Ed Bellew of UA was in on "My Son, My Son."

Admission tax collections in Ohio for the first quarter showed an increase of 11.6 per cent over last year. Comparative grosses are $379,809.44 and $340,043.97. State business, judged from the sales tax collections, was up 13.6 per cent during the initial quarter, increases being recorded in 81 of the 88 counties.

Book Night Given Good Sendoff in Auto City

DETROIT—Book Night made its debut here at two theatres of the Krim circuit, the Lasky and Harmony, backed by a big exploitation program handled by Eddie Jacobson, manager of the latter.

The deal is designed to build repeat business and is being handled in the territory by Barney Hoyt of Chicago who will open an office here.

Rites for Frank Merrill

CLEVELAND—Funeral services were held here for Frank Merrill, 57, for many years a member of IATSE Local 160. Until his recent fatal illness, Merrill was the operator at the Standard.

Merchants Planning New House in Eldred, Pa.

ELDRED, PA.—Local merchants have completed plans for a theatre to be erected here on Main Street, according to Louis Gabriel and Bruce Clark, who have taken the lead to establish such an enterprise. A one-story building, of brick and tile, or concrete block, 35x100 feet, is planned. Two storerooms will be included. Seating capacity will be around 350.

Southern Alpine to Build In South Charleston

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. VA.—Southern Alpine Theatre circuit, managed by Walter Urling of Wellsville, Ohio, will erect a theatre building with a storeroom here. A 600-seat auditorium is planned. Architect is Ben L. Batey of Stubenville, Ohio.

Plan to Rebuild Rivoli in Ebenburg Right Away

EBENSBURG, PA.—Rebuilding of the old Rivoli on Sample Street, which was destroyed by fire several months ago, will be started immediately, according to Ray Allison, general manager of Cambria Theatres, Inc. Cost will be upwards of $50,000. It will seat about 700.

M. C. Burnett Named to Helm of Loew's Penn

PITTSBURGH—Mike Cullen, division manager of Loew, Inc., has appointed M. C. Burnett, Dayton, Ohio, as manager of Loew's Penn, replacing Charles Kurtzman, who has been promoted to division manager of New England, Canada and part of New York state. Cullen is Kurtzman's predecessor at the local Penn. Burnett has been associated with Loew's for 14 years in Cleveland and Dayton.

Promotion of Kurtzman was made by Joseph R. Vogel, general manager of Loew's. Headquartering in Boston, Kurtzman, a theatre manager for 18 years, will supervise theatres in Rochester, Providence, Syracuse and Boston, in the American area, and in Toronto and London, Ontario, and a group of Loew partnership operated theatres in New England. Kurtzman came to Pittsburgh in July, 1938, from Washington, D. C., where he was a Loew executive. Previously he was vice-president of Fanchon & Marco in St. Louis, and also managing director of the Roxy in New York. He succeeds H. M. Addison, resigned, who was manager of the local Penn some years ago.

Interrante Making Plans For Scholastic Banquet

PHILLIPSBURG, PA.—Second annual Scholastic Banquet is being scheduled here for May, the event honoring outstanding students of Phillipsburg, Osceola Mills, Morrisdale and Cooper Township. Last year more than 75 honor students attended the banquet, which is sponsored by Austin Interrante, theatre owner and representative of 20th-Fox Film Corp.

Lavietes Faces Ascap Infringement Suit

NEW HAVEN—Ascap has filed a suit for $500 damages and a temporary injunction to restrain the Pequot Theatre here from any further alleged infringement of the music copyright laws of the United States. Plaintiffs are Gene Buck, president of Ascap; Irving Berlin, Inc., Santley-Joy-Select, Inc.; and Harry Lavietes of the Pequot is defendant. Announcement is made by attorney for the plaintiffs that this is the forerunner of a half-dozen similar suits to be filed in the near future. The complaint specifically charges Lavietes with the unlawful playing of the song, "Bye, Bye, Blues," copyrighted by Berlin and "An Apple for the Teacher," copyrighted by Santley-Joy-Select, and the maximum damage of $250 provided by the copyright law is sought.

Attorneys pointed out that all theatres, restaurants and other establishments where music is played for profit are liable to similar actions unless they enter into contracts with Ascap on a royalty basis.

On Agenda for Allied Meeting April 16

NEW HAVEN—The Allied luncheon meeting to be held Tuesday, April 16, will provide an occasion for the discussion of the Ascap suit against the Pequot Theatre and other exhibitor problems.

Federal Court Decisions To Occupy Conn. MPTO

NEW HAVEN — Connecticut MPTO will discuss recent federal court decisions affecting the industry, the Neely bill, and state-wide problems at its next luncheon-meeting, to be held April 16 at 12:30 p. m., at Ceriani's Cafe Mellone here. Arthur Lockwood will preside.

Herman Levy, executive secretary, has issued letters for a Connecticut exhibitors' poll on the Neely bill. Exhibitors are urged to reply whether they are for or against the Neely bill, without stating reasons, and the results will be published in the coming issue of the organization bulletin, edited by Levy. Members are advised that theatre programs or circulars left in home mail boxes will be picked up and held at post offices for postage, in accordance with regulations, which also provide for penalties for this type of circular distribution.

Majors' Concluding Defense in M&R Suit Denies Monopoly

By BRAD ANGIER

BOSTON—The first few days of the summations of evidence amassed during three calendar years of trial in the Morse & Rothenberg anti-trust case, Edward F. McClennen, major attorney for the defense, held the floor. Pointing his arguments, were, first, a reminder of the fact that new rules governed district court procedures, limiting the Master in a case to finding and reporting the facts of the case to the court; and second, that there was no call for any ruling of law to be included in the narrative of the facts. McClennen contended that testimony hereto revealed but one cause of action—that an unlawful conspiracy on the part of the defendants existed—and that all other charges were elaborations, that, with the first disproved, could not stand. Further McClennen held that a flexible interpretation as to what constituted "restraint of trade" was virtually an essential in such cases and reminded that the conditions presented as violations were not a development created specifically as an oppression of the plaintiffs.

The concluding arguments, commenced before Philip Hendrick, Master, last Monday, were recessed until Monday of this week.

McClennen urged that inasmuch as the eight respective suits "have no legal relation to each other except as the two Portsmouth suits have the same plaintiff (and the same defendant that is one is joined with the other defendants in the other)" the Master should make "a separate report in each case, so each case may be dealt with without any reference to any other case.

"That is my thought in the matter, and that will be my practice," Philip Hendrick agreed.

"We are dealing with new rules in the district courts of the United States which have hardly yet dried out behind the ears," McClennen continued. "How far they affect the course which should be pursued by the Master, differing from what course he might have pursued if he were an Auditor under our old system, it probably will become unnecessary to determine.

"The rule defines what the Master is to do, namely, to find and report the facts to the court, together with such questions of law as any party may request.

"We may indulge the presumption that the court knows all the law that is applicable to these cases and is not in need of being informed of rulings by the Master on what the law is. That seems to lie as the reason for a direction not to rule and save the objections of the injured party, but to report the questions of law which any party may request.

"It seems to indicate that the primary purpose of the reference is to have the facts brought before the court by the Master's report in such a way that the court might deal with the questions of law, if there prove to be any involved, and so that the case, if possible, might go to final disposition on the facts which the Master lays before the court, possibly without the need of the introduction of any evidence or going outside the four corners of the report. Certainly the rule indicates that no ruling of law should be entrained in any way in the narrative of the facts as the Master finds them to be.

No Rulings Occasioned

"There has been no occasion for the Master to make any rulings of law except as might be involved in the receipt or rejection of evidence, and even in respect to the receipt and rejection of evidence, it was agreed at the outset, with the approval of the Master, that the materiality question—and I do not attempt to phrase this question as it was phrased in the beginning—would be saved to the end, to be dealt with once for all.

"We have assumed that there would be a draft report before any final report, and that there would be an opportunity before the Master to deal with the questions which might be presented on seeing the draft report. If we are right in that assumption there would seem to be at this stage of the case no particular occasion to deal with any of the questions of law, because, if evidence has been received, for instance, that we should contend was immaterial or incompetent, and the Master in his report does not find anything based on that evidence, we shall, of course, be no longer interested in the question of whether it was admitted or not, or is properly admissible."

Hendrick interrupted, "We can dispose of that at once because it was my plan to submit that report."

"The first thing of principal importance in this case," McClennen continued, "is that there can in no one of these suits in which the distributors are defendants be any recovery at all without the establishment of the conspiracy alleged. The reason for saying this is that with all their elaboration of the allegations shown

All Ye Who Enter Here—

Boston—In the course of his summation of defense arguments in the M&R suit, Edward F. Clennen, attorney for the distributor defendants, reminded the Master that "each plaintiff entered on the industry as it then existed (reference being to 1930, date of the oldest plaintiff's entry into the business) and each plaintiff had a grasp of the state of the industry. A man who enters the field, if he loses by his entry, loses by his own actions and not by the actions of others if those actions antedate his beginning and are known to him when he begins," said McClennen.

Independent Exhibitors Oppose Consent Decree Truce Plan

BOSTON—Frank Perry, operator of the Orpheum in Foxboro and secretary of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., this week informed Attorney-General Robert H. Jackson, in a letter, that "the representatives of more than 230 unaffiliated theatres registered their complete disapproval of the proposed settlement of the suits against the motion picture industry."

Perry, who dispatched a telegram to Jackson, informing the attorney-general of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., unanimous stand against acceptance of a consent decree following a special meeting of independent theatremen, this week forwarded to Washington a copy of a resolution in that regard.

The resolution follows:

"1. The first paragraph of the prayer in Bill of Equity No. 87-273 contemplates the immediate cessation of further theatre acquisition by the defendants. The suggested outline for a consent decree does not provide that the producers shall cease to acquire theatres.

"2. The divorcement of currently owner of controlled theatres is essential in abolishing the monopoly and is sought in paragraph five of the prayer. There is no provision whatever in the plan offered for the producers' divestiture of their theatres.

"3. The removal of the restraints on the production of meritorious feature motion pictures is requested in paragraphs six and seven of the prayer. The dissolution of the monopoly in picture production is entirely unprovided for in the proposals submitted.

Fear Arbitration Delay

"4. The abolition of compulsory block booking, a keystone of motion picture producers monopoly, is required by paragraph eight of the prayer. Compulsory block booking will not be eliminated under the terms of the plan. Reducing the number of pictures in the blocks to five and eight pictures will actually legalize the practice of distributors and compel exhibitors to take several pictures in order to get the one desired picture in a group. Trade paper reports already indicate producers opposition to this feature because they cannot make even one picture in eight sufficiently 'worthwhile' to carry the block.

"5. The dissolution of unreasonable protection schedules in favor of owned or affiliated theatres is also sought in paragraph eight. The proposal offers arbitration of unreasonable clearance and stipulation that awards changing the clearance between theatres be reviewed by an appeal board. If completely fair and unbiased arbitration can be assured this remedy will be effective, but a review of all cases by a single review board will render positive relief too tardy in many desperate cases.

"6. Paragraph eight of the prayer would enjoin the defendants from enforcing preferred playing time. The plan offered legalizes and perpetuates preferred playing time by stipulating that preferred play dates shall be specified in the contract.

"7. Paragraph eight of the prayer would require that the producers cease extending unusual advantages and benefits to their affiliated theatres under a mutual back scratching arrangement. There is no provision calling for the extension of similar advantages to independent unaffiliated theatres.

"The above-enumerated reasons show that the major weapons of the current motion picture monopoly are left virtually intact by the proposed outline for a consent decree and justify in our opinion its complete rejection.

"Assuming from its wording and content that the proposal has originated in some more or less devious manner with the defendants, it may be pointed out that similar settlements, proposals for arbitration, and cooperative plans have always emanated from the defendants at a time when their pending existence could be used in the legislative halls in Washington to delay and destroy pending remedial legislation. We note that this proposal for a consent decree would be of great assistance to the defendants in seeking to postpone passage of the Neely bill S-280 now pending in the house of representatives.

"Whereas, monopolistic conditions imposed upon the independent exhibitors in the motion picture industry by those corporations commonly referred to as the "Big Eight" have been and are now so onerous that the department of justice has seen fit to institute a suit in equity (No. 87-273) under the Sherman anti-trust act to destroy the monopoly in restraint of trade.

"And whereas, there has been brought to the attention of the Independent Exhibitors of New England a suggested outline under which a consent decree might possibly be formulated.

"And whereas, the history of consent decrees involving the defendants in the current equity suit, particularly in the California 'Fox West Coast' case and in the Chicago 'Balaban & Katz' case has indicated their continued unwillingness to conform with the decrees and their propensity to attempt evasion of the decisions wherever possible.

"Now therefore, be it resolved, that the board of directors of the Independent Exhibitors of New England in meeting assembled at the Statler Hotel in Boston, Mass., on the 2nd day of April in the year 1940 do hereby unanimously oppose any proposed consent decree based on the submitted plan, and do pray the attorney general of the United States to proceed with the vigorous prosecution of the aforementioned suit to relieve the monopolistic conditions extant in the industry."

HOULTON, ME.—RCA sound has been ordered for the new 850-seater going up here for the Mullin & Pinanski circuit.

Gets "Money and Woman"

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Presnell has been assigned to script Warner's "Money and the Woman."

Department of Justice Names More Witnesses

Boston—Supplemental witnesses in the government equity suit against the majors, filed last week by the department of justice, included: George Ramsdell, operator of the Strand, Granada, Mystic, and Orpheum in Malden; Nathan Yamins, Fall River exhibitor, and chairman of the executive board of Independent Exhibitors, Inc.; Walter Littlefield, Independent Exhibitors associate whose houses were taken over some time ago by the M&P Theatres Corp.; Abraham Goodside, operator of the Strand in Portland, and W. B. Harwood, operator of the Strand in Gardner, Me.

With the exception of Ramsdell, whose testimony is to be directed against Loew's, Inc., all prospective witnesses are to go on the stand against Paramount interests, according to the department of justice.

Concluding Defense Denies a Monopoly

in each case except 6697, with which I do not deal at all, that there is but a single cause of action. Everything alleged is detail claimed to have a bearing on that cause of the action.

"That cause of action is that the distributor defendants from time to time have entered into an unlawful combination and conspiracy among themselves, and in some instances with exhibitor defendants, to restrain and monopolize interstate commerce in motion picture films, and that thereby they had obtained a virtual monopoly thereof, and that the action of the distributor defendants was pursuant to that conspiracy and in concert, and that because of the concert and conspiracy in that action the distributor defendants refused films to the plaintiff and that this combination and conspiracy, and the concerted action thereunder, damaged the plaintiff.

"It follows that if there were no combination, conspiracy and concert among the distributors, the plaintiff has no cause of action whatever, irrespective of whether or not any particular action against the right of the plaintiff was a legal wrong.

"Another reason why we shall submit that the plaintiff in each case must fail," McClennen said later, "is that there is nothing to indicate that even if the plaintiff sustained any damages by any wrong done by any of the distributors (and we say there was no such wrong done) that damage has in no way been related to the combination, conspiracy or concert.

"To put it by a crude mathematical comparison, it makes no difference that the damages sustained by the plaintiff from a particular wrong by a particular defendant, when added to the damages sustained by the plaintiff from the particular wrong of each other particular defendant, would add up to even to the identical sum of money which would have measured the damages sustained from those separate wrongs, had those eight separate wrongs been committed pursuant to a conspiracy. The plaintiff remains disentitled to any part of that money."

Flexible Interpretation Need

Bringing up the law relative to meeting unfair methods of competition, McClennen stated, that for approximately the past 30 years "the importance of reasonableness" in this department of litigation has repeatedly been emphasized.

"Starting with the proposition that every contract that is made restrains the contracting parties from doing what they could do before, and so is a restraint of trade, we go on to the recognition of the fact that a restriction upon trade is not a restraint of trade in a statutory sense unless it is unreasonable under the circumstances, and so constantly we have this phrase,—unreasonable restraint of trade, which means exactly the same thing restraint of trade means as used in the act.

"Many circumstances may determine what is a reasonable course to pursue in trade and, therefore, may determine whether the course pursued is a restraint in trade in a statutory sense, or is a reasonable extent. One of the circumstances to be taken into consideration is what the particular defendant, if we call him defendant, is obliged to deal with. Is his conduct the normal of a man acting in self protection, or is it an unwarranted invasion of the rights of other people?

"From what generalization comes the recognition that things done aggressively and not to be tolerated by the law may be entirely reasonable if they are defensive and the kind of conduct that right-minded people, familiar with the circumstances, recognize as the proper things to do."

Speaking of George S. Ryan, attorney for the plaintiffs, Mr. McClennen said, "My adversary, with the most admirable persistency, and almost unconscionable and useless repetition, has sought from time to time to launch a poison gas attack upon the defendants generally. In the course of this he has referred to such matters as monopolization of moving picture production, monopolization of moving picture distribution, monopolization of moving picture exhibition, uniform contracting, block booking, blind buying, reservation of product, protection, and destruction of competition, spelled with all capital letters, all this in generalization.

"Block booking, if you say it a sufficient number of times, has a very evil sound to it, particularly as it conveys no impression as to what you are really talking about. And when you add it to blind buying, it sort of impels you to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff right away without going any farther."

Enter Field Knowingly

McClennen brought up another point when, ascertaining that the oldest entry in the motion picture business of any of the plaintiffs was in the spring of 1930, he said: "Each plaintiff entered on the industry as it then existed. Each plaintiff by its human tentacles had a grasp of the state of the industry; they were men who had had experience with the industry running back for years before that time. They voluntarily chose to go into the condition which then existed with full knowledge of what that condition was.

"In anti-trust cases just as much as in other cases the motto volenti non fit injuria applies. A man who enters the field, if he loses by his entry, loses by his own actions and not by the actions of others if those actions antedate his beginning and are known to him when he begins.

"The matter was picturesquely put in language which I cannot quote by Mr. Justice Holmes in Buckeye Powder Co. vs. E. I. duPont de Nemours Co., 248 U. S. 55. The substance of the language was that the law does not look with favor upon allowing a recovery for these prenatal combinations which merely show that it did not pay to be born.

"The intimations in the opening and some of the interlocutory arguments, and in some of the questions put, if not in the answers given, go back years before 1930. If there was any monopolization it occurred long before 1930 and was well known to those who knew what existed in the industry. That would be enough to dispose of the matter of monopolization so far as the cases before Your Honor are concerned, without going to the further fact that there was no monopolization.

"It has been asserted in three different particulars—monopolization of production, monopolization of distribution, and monopolization of exhibition.

"The evidence shows no monopolization of production. It shows no monopolization of distribution. It shows no monopolization of exhibition touching interstate commerce."

Speaking of so-called blind selling, the defense lawyer said that the subject has nothing to it but its title.

"If the time ever comes when producers are prohibited from making contracts for pictures that are not already in existence and have been seen by the licensee, the great sufferers are going to be the exhibitors, who have no relation to the producers in any way. And the whole method of conducting the industry will have to be changed in a way that nobody really wants except for forensic displays."

NEW HAVEN

BEFORE April ends the New Haven territory will have two more neighborhoods, the Bailey 900-seat Whitney Theatre in Hamden and the Van Doren 600-seat Tower in Waterbury. Both opening dates are still indefinite. The Whitney will have a 400-car parking lot, with approaches on both Whitney Ave. and Putnam St. Manager will be Franklin E. Ferguson, formerly at the Whalley.

New Project of the month will be the Warner 800-seat Bristol, to replace the house which burned down several months ago. Completed plans and breaking of ground are scheduled for this week, according to B. E. Hoffman, just back from his Florida vacation.

Managers' moves: Tim O'Toole attended the Columbia district meeting at the Hotel Gotham, New York, last week . . . Barney Pitkin up to Boston for an RKO meet, at which Herb MacIntyre, drive captain, presided . . . Sidney Lax of Columbia is recuperating at New Haven Hospital from a recent nasal operation . . . Hymie Levine of Imperial Pictures is now resting at home after an operation.

Report is creditors may run the Milford Drive-In this summer, pending an appeal from the unfavorable decision in the public nuisance case of residents.

Drop in Unemployment Compensation Demand

HARTFORD—Unemployment compensation benefits paid to Connecticut workers in 1939 totaled approximately $4,770,971, more than seven million less than in 1938, state labor commissioner Cornelius J. Danaher announced last week to this publication. The total paid out in the two years amounted to about $16,670,059, of which $11,899,088 was paid out in 1938.

WPA Rolls Must Drop 1,400 in Connecticut

HARTFORD—The Connecticut Administration of the WPA last Monday began cutting its rolls by 1,400. Sixty-seven men were laid off in Hartford last week.

To keep within the 1939-1940 appropriation, WPA nationally must dismiss 700,000 relief workers during the next three months.

WPA rolls in this state, it has been learned, must be reduced from 20,000 in March to some 18,600 this month.

New Haven Studios Ready 16mm Educational Reels

NEW HAVEN—The first of a series of nine 16mm single reel educational shorts, "Geometry Brought to Life," is in production for early fall release at the new Bald Eagle Film Productions studios in New Haven. The production is a result of a national hookup with Prentiss-Hall, publishers of "Today's Geometry," a text written by David Reichgott and Lee R. Spiller, of the teaching staff of New Haven High School. Educational supervision for the series will be in charge of Donald A. Eldridge, director of Audio-Visual Education of the New Haven schools.

Also in production are short versions of Robert Frost's "Mending Wall," and Edwin Markham's "Man With the Hoe." Wallace Rosenthal is director; Harry Alpert, cameraman; and Joe Einhorn in charge of distribution.

Hartford's Manufacturing Reviving, Reports Show

HARTFORD—Two department of commerce reports analyzing manufacturing activity in Hartford county from 1929 to 1937, indicate a general revival in this branch of industry and an accompanying rise in employment.

In 1929, according to the reports, Hartford county ranked 38th nationally in the number of plants in operation with 674. In 1937, it stood 35th with 666 plants in operation, or 17.7 per cent more than 1933 and 1.2 per cent less than 1929.

In 1937, the county, employing 70,079 in manufacturing plants, ranked 21st in the nation. This, the reports state, represents a 61.6 per cent increase over 1933 and a 7 per cent jump over 1929.

Crowd Salesmen's Dance

BOSTON—The Boston Motion Picture Salesmen's Club crowded the Cocoanut Grove Sunday when the organization held its fourth annual dinner-dance in behalf of charity.

"Pinocchio" Becomes Part of Providence

PROVIDENCE—Judy O'Grady and the Governor's Lady—not forgetting Gov. William H. Vanderbilt himself—couldn't help becoming interested in "Pinocchio," as result of the campaign put on by RKO-Albee Manager George French and Press Agent Bill Morton for the film's run here.

Some 40 newspapers gave the film statewide coverage, plugs were run in by studio bands of WJAR, WEAN and WPRO as well as hotel orchestras, and the city's largest department stores used "Pinocchio" figures in decorations, including displays in 15 windows four days before opening of the film.

Probably the biggest attention-getter of all was the children's party when Governor Vanderbilt, with Mrs. Vanderbilt and their three daughters, visited the theatre as hosts to 150 youngsters from the R. I. State Home and School.

Local No. 74, IATSE, Maps Plans for Benefit Ball

NEW HAVEN—Local No. 74 of IATSE met Tuesday with John S. O'Connell presiding to make further plans for the annual Sick Benefit Ball and vaudeville show to be held at the Hotel Taft April 27. The wage scale committee of the union will report in May.

Operators' union No. 273 will hold its regular meeting Sunday, April 21, at Trades' Council Hall. A. Nelson Frazier will preside.

Has Contest Franchise

NEW HAVEN—Joe Einhorn, formerly with the Lincoln, has purchased the Connecticut franchise of "Miss America" beauty contests. Einhorn announces Miss New Haven will be chosen at the New Haven Arena on May 26 and Miss Connecticut on August 25. Finals will be held in Atlantic City early in September.

: Audience Holds Over :

BOSTON—George Kraska, operator of the Fine Arts, decided to hold "Human Beast" to a six-day week because of drastic Massachusetts Sunday cuts. He booked in "Sabu, the Elephant Boy" for the Sabbath showing. The Boston Herald accidently ran the Saturday ad in one Friday edition, and this flashed into the mind of Leonard Kraska, house manager, when he saw a woman and two small children come into the Fine Arts last Saturday.

"Did you come to see 'Elephant Boy'?" Kraska asked.

The woman answered in the affirmative, and Kraska explained about the newspaper's error.

"I brought my children all the way down from Vermont to see the picture," the woman answered. "They're going to see it, too, even if . . . Why, of course!"

So they took a room in a hotel, and were on hand for the Sunday performance.

For the Orphans—

Gov. William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island meets "Pinocchio," portrayed by Mrs. Ward L. Jukes, at the RKO Albee in Providence where they were hosts at a matinee performance of the film for 150 orphans from the Rhode Island State Home and School.

SPR'GFIELD

"Too Many Husbands" was held over for a second week at Manager Al Anders' Bijou . . . Ditto Manager George E. Landers' E. M. Loew's, Hartford . . . In Hartford last Friday was Manager Lou Cohen of the Loew's-Poli.

Mayor Halts Beano Games in Somerville

BOSTON—Beano was banned from Somerville last week by Mayor John M. Lynch, who announced he would give no more permits after Friday as he was "convinced that it is for the best interests of Somerville and all its citizens to bring about a permanent discontinuance of such activity."

The mayor said he had taken the action after a study of the detailed report of an investigation of Somerville Beano made at his request by Chief Thomas F. Damery of the Somerville police and District-Attorney Robert F. Bradford. The report was not made public.

Until Mayor Lynch ordered prizes reduced to $100 about four months ago, Somerville probably had the largest Beano games in the state. As many as 5,000 persons had participated in single games and prizes had included new automobiles and as much as $2,000 in cash.

Shaw Ups William Elder To Harrisburg Post

NEW HAVEN—Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, has promoted William Elder, manager of the Bijou here, to the managership of the first-run Loew's, Harrisburg, Pa., succeeding Sam Gillman.

Elder has been manager of the Bijou for eight years, working his way up from usher to assistant manager. Mrs. Elder, who has been on the secretarial staff of the Poli division office for eight years, will join her husband in Harrisburg in a few weeks.

Stanley Barlup of Washington, D. C., has been appointed to the managership of the Loew-Poli-Bijou in New Haven, succeeding Elder. Barlup was on the staff of the Palace, Washington, for the past seven years, advancing to the post of assistant manager.

N. E. Trade Adopts Books for Giveaways

NEW HAVEN — Encyclopedia giveaways continue to enroll exhibitors in the territory. Dick Cohen has signed up the Rialto, Bridgeport; Hamilton, Waterbury; and Edmond Town Hall, Newtown, for his series. This is the first giveaway for Newtown. Five Warner houses have contracted for an encyclopedia and dictionary set—the Rialto, South Norwalk; State, South Manchester; Premier, Newburyport; Strand, Waverly; and Strand, Woburn. Additional indes who are giving this book deal a try are the Strand, Thompsonville; Lido, Waterbury; and Windsor, Windsor.

Redistricting Issue May Reconvene Legislature

BOSTON—The constitutionality of the senatorial redistricting act passed during the last session of the Massachusetts legislature, has been challenged in state supreme court by Attorney-General Paul A. Dever. The film interest in the matter lies in the fact that if Dever is successful, the state legislature may be called into special session.

Attempts to convene the body, inactive this year because of the initial action of the new annual session law, have heretofore been unsuccessful. A quantity of legislation directed at the motion picture industry is due to break.

A Story to Rowland

HOLLYWOOD—Richard Rowland has purchased "End of the Rainbow," story of the Donner Party by Edward James. He will produce for United Artists release.

BRIDGEPORT

MANAGER MATT L. SAUNDERS of the Loew-Poli has been named a director of the Bridgeport Community Forum at the United Congregational Church for the 1940-41 season . . . Oscar A. The Pleasures Of Travel

New Haven—Never a dull trip for Ben Simon, who now is visiting with his folks in San Jose. The first time he went west, he traveled by car and a blizzard added a mere 800 miles to his itinerary. Then he tried the boat, which, lurching in a storm, netted Simon two broken ribs when he was thrown against a railing. On his first plane ride the pilot made a forced landing at Hartford, and on his recent air trip west the plane ran into rare atmospheric conditions which sent some of the passengers to the hospital. It's a charm—Ben is still O. K.

Baileys Break Ground For New Haven House

NEW HAVEN—Maurice Bailey has announced that ground was broken this week for a new 750-seat theatre at 898 Whalley Avenue, a site held for several years by the Westville Theatre Corp., which will operate the house. Jack Halpern is the general contractor, and plans were drawn by Jack Weinstein and Ben Schlanger.

Maurice Bailey and Sam Bailey of the Whalley and Whitney theatres are principals in the corporation. It is planned to open by fall, Bailey states.

31 Pass Censors

BOSTON — Thirty-one motion pictures were approved without a cut last week by Eugene M. McSweeney, Commissioner of Public Safety in Massachusetts. Among the white ribbon winners were RKO's "Bill of Divorcement," Monogram's "Son of the Navy," and 20th-Fox's "Star Dust." Vaudeville got it in the neck, however, with eight acts getting drastic Sunday cuts and two others being refused Sunday licenses.

PORTLAND

AFTER but two weeks of operation, since its revival by Guy Palmerton, New York producer, the Maine Civic Theatre with its resident stock company operating under a popular price policy, is running local film houses a merry race for patronage.

Friends of Bill Benjamin, congenial NS salesman, regret that he is to be restricted to the Western Massachusetts and New Hampshire territory henceforth. Fred Stolloff, who will cover Maine for First National from now on, made his initial visit to Filmrow this week.

Other visitors included John Feloney, 20th-Fox; Earnie Warren, Universal, and John Mason Brown, dramatic critic and New York newspaper columnist, who presented his fourth and final lecture of the Portland College Club series in the Portland High School, April 2.

The motion picture, "Golgotha," is being screened in both South Portland and Portland churches this week.

A birthday party, April 2, with the proverbial "ice cream and cake," celebrated the advent into this world of two young filmites. Ronna Elaine Press, at whose home the party was held, had four candles on her cake; Lennye Botwick had three. Lennye is the daughter of Harry Botwick, State Theatre manager; Ronna Elaine is the pride and joy of Nathan A. Press, assistant manager at the State.

Dick Fitzsimmons, Maine Theatre usher, has reason to believe that "trouble comes double." Dick was taken to the Maine General Hospital recently for an appendectomy. Scarcely had that been accomplished when he contracted pneumonia. His condition still is serious.

With the proximity of spring comes increased talk among light harness fans. Twelve weeks of racing, July 29 through October 12, is now being advertised by the Maine Pine Tree Circuit. Pari mutuels will prevail.

A mean spring cold put a damper on the fifth wedding anniversary celebration of the Harry Botwicks, April 7. The day also marked the tenth for the Oscar Magees.

Book Review Matinee Is Tried by John Markle

BOSTON—John J. Markle, manager of the Coolidge Corner in Brookline, went prospecting for new pay dirt Wednesday when he inaugurated something brand new, a "Book Review Matinee."

Markle contacted Charles Lee, literary editor of the Boston Herald, who reviewed a modern novel from the stage. The manager for Joseph and Max Levenson plans to continue the innovation, without increases in admission prices, if the venture proves profitable.

Buys "Who's Crazy Now?"

HOLLYWOOD—"Who's Crazy Now?" (Hal Hudson and Otis Garrett) has been purchased by Universal. Ken Goldsmith will produce.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

JOHN EAMES, prominent North Country exhibitor, served as one of the judges when Pauline Mercure of Jaffrey was chosen as "Snow Queen" at the Berlin winter carnival.

A projector has been purchased for the Rockingham county farm in Brentwood with funds left to the institution by an elderly Massachusetts couple. Funds are also available to purchase films.

Vernon Coxen, known professionally as Baron West, whose cowboy musical group had appeared in New England and Pennsylvania, is dead in Manchester.

Peter D. Latchis, Keene theatre owner, was one of the speakers at a celebration in his home city marking the 119th anniversary of Greek independence. Latchis is president of the board of trustees of St. George's Greek Orthodox Church.

Hutchinson Is Host to 50 Newsboys in Burlington

BURLINGTON, VT.—Guesting groups is a rare occasion in this town, but E. H. Hutchinson, manager of the local theatre, is breaking down the barriers. He recently hosted 50 news carriers from the Free Press.

Hutchinson is one of the city's pioneer motion picture theatre operators, his first house being the Bijou, now out of existence.

Griffith Buys Out Kaycee Partner

KANSAS CITY—Twenty-one of the 23 units of Griffith-Dickinson Theatres, Inc., were taken over late last week by H. J. Griffith and Partnership Theatres, Inc., when the latter two companies purchased the remaining 50 per cent interest in the circuit from Glen W. Dickinson. Griffith and Partnership acquired a half interest in the circuit April 1, 1939. The corporation is to be renamed, along with three units that still carry the Dickinson name.

The purchase was consummated as the result of a voluntary arrangement between Griffith and Dickinson. Dickinson, who entered exhibition 18 years ago at Manhattan, Kas., later expanding into Lawrence and other Kansas and Missouri towns, will continue to be an exhibitor. He retains the Macon at Macon, Mo., and the Dickinson at Olathe, Kas. He has also the Mission Hill Acres in Johnson county, near Kansas City, a house that did not figure in the original Griffith-Dickinson deal last year.

Coincident with the Griffith acquisition of complete ownership of the circuit, Ray E. Higdon, formerly with National Screen Service at Dallas and later theatre broker in this territory, becomes assistant film buyer for all Griffith houses, including the group here. Higdon has been with Griffith-Dickinson the past nine months. He will headquarters here. With Higdon assisting R. E. Griffith, H. J. Griffith expects to spend more time on the theatre management end.

The theatres that figured in the Griffith purchase are: Dickinson, Beloit, Kas. (Bill Gabel); Grand and Ritz, Chillicothe, Mo. (Glen W. Dickinson jr.); Fayette, Fayette, Mo. (Irwin W. Tucker); Chief, Hiawatha, Kas. (Francis Wright); Booth, Beldorf and Mainstreet, Independence, Kas. (William H. Wagner); Junction and Cozy (closed), Junction City, Kas. (Temple DeVilbiss); Carlton and Dickinson (Barnes Perdue), and Wareham (Harry Wareham), Manhattan, Kas.; Uptown and Chief (closed), Marceline, Mo. (Louis Higdon); Osage, Osage City, Kas. (Stanley Gartside); Osawa and Kansan (closed), Osawatomie, Kas. (R. W. Ferguson); Dickinson, Paola, Kas. (Turner Morrisett); Kansan, Uptown and Ritz, Parsons, Kas. (David Dallas); People's, Pleasant Hill, Mo. (Mark Cadle); Kiva, Slater, Mo. (Harold Sachse). Closed houses are not included in the 21 figure above.

Dickinson expressed himself as "very happy about the matter." He has developed several ventures in the Mission Hill Acres section other than his theatre there. Glen W. Dickinson jr., who has been managing a circuit house in Chillicothe, Mo., will join his father.

Shifts in H. J. Griffith Circuit Are Announced

KANSAS CITY—H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., has shifted Barnes Perdue, who has been assisting Harry Wareham at Manhattan, Kas., with the Wareham, Dickinson and Carlton, to Chillicothe, Mo., to manage the Ritz and Grand. Perdue succeeds Glen W. Dickinson jr.

Roscoe Hopkins has been transferred from the Booth and Paramount at Nebraska City, Neb., to Denver City, Tex., by Griffith interests, and Stanley McSwain, formerly at Auburn, Neb., succeeds him. At Auburn (Auburn and Booth) now is Glen Leonard, formerly of Post, Tex., as partner-manager.

M. S. White Gets Started Right

Dallas—A few issues back, BOXOFFICE reported a promise from M. S. White that the first $2 taken in at the boxoffice of the new White Theatre in Fort Worth, would go for a subscription to this publication.

Well, the theatre opened and the next day M. S. came over and handed us an envelope marked on the outside—White Theatre, 3033 Hemphill St., Fort Worth, Tex.—and inside were two $1 bills.

A Sunday Show Tax Plan in Mississippi

JACKSON, MISS.—Sunday shows would be legalized in Mississippi, but a special tax imposed on them, under a bill offered the House by Representative Grover Doggette of Laurel.

Representative Doggette plans to let picture shows operate on Sunday any place in the state, so long as they pay a special scale of privilege taxes, and an extra penny on each dime collected for the amusement tax. Under the present law, one cent tax is collected on each ten cents of amusement charge; Mr. Doggette's bill would raise this rate to two cents tax on each dime admission.

Oak Lawn in Dallas Will Soon Operate Full Time

DALLAS—The Oak Lawn, Interstate neighborhood house here, will soon go to full time after face-lifting and installation of some new equipment. Two double bills a week and a straight 15-cent policy will be maintained. The management is under Paul Scott, who now supervises six of the circuit's suburban theatres.

"Tips" by R&R

DALLAS—The R&R home office is now sending out a neat little weekly sheet, mimeographed, to its managers. It is called "Tips" and it passes along clicking ideas. It includes other ideas and data, of course, originating on the Row. Booker Worth Leuthstrom pushes the pencil and pounds the typewriter for the contents.

To Fleischer's Next Big One

HOLLYWOOD—"Down to Earth," next feature-length cartoon to be produced by Max Fleischer, is being scripted by Ted Pierce and Dan Gordon.

Distributors Granted Particulars Motion

OKLAHOMA CITY—Judge Vaught, in district court, has granted the motion of distributor defendants in the department of justice anti-trust action against Griffith Amusement Co. for a bill of particulars on all items in which the government charges conspiracy. In a lengthy opinion, the court stated it is the duty of the government to state with particularity each and every alleged act on which the government charges conspiracy against the distributor defendants.

Griffith Motion for Bill Of Particulars Granted

OKLAHOMA CITY—Federal District Judge Edgar S. Vaught has granted a motion for a bill of particulars to Griffith Amusement in the government's anti-trust suit against the Southwestern circuit.

Griffith asked for particulars on 50 different points. Judge Vaught overruled those parts requesting particulars on government allegations about exact locations, names and dates, and granted 15 points directly concerned with conspiracy charges.

Judge Vaught gave the government 60 days to file an amended bill of complaint, and the amusement company 30 days thereafter to plead further.

Interstate Golf Tourney Pulls Austin Showmen

AUSTIN—The San Antonio Interstate Theatres' invitation golf tournament drew the following local theatre managers-golfers: Bill Hellums, Capitol; Jesse Melinger, Varsity; Mose (The Mullet) Macow, State; Dick Waite, Paramount; and Charlie Root, Queen.

Louis Novy, Austin city manager for Interstate, made the trip down to the Alamo City, too. "Not to play golf," he explained, "but just in case any of the boys want to borrow some money."

Paul Short Back to Coast To Round Up Film Stars

DALLAS—Returned only a few days from Hollywood with R. J. O'Donnell where they flew to get some stars for the Variety convention, Paul Short was commuting back on Sunday to load the celebrities in a chartered plane and personally escort them to Dallas.

Arranges NTS Booth

DALLAS—J. I. Roberts, manager of National Theatre Supply Co., was busy this week arranging a four-booth display on the first floor at the Adolphus for the Variety convention.

Ford RKO Publicist

MEMPHIS—Fred Ford, manager of the Malco Palace here for the past five years, has joined RKO as director of publicity for the Memphis and New Orleans territories. Ford will make his headquarters here.

Texas A&M Students Combat Clearance

DALLAS—News reached here early in the week over a news broadcast that the student body of Texas A&M College at College Station had instituted a virtual boycott of three theatres in Bryan, Tex., five miles away, demanding there be no protection of films in Bryan over College Station.

The boycott, or "coincidence" as it is called at Aggieland came to its present status after several years of development. Students had previously complained of admission prices at these theatres and a variance in the scale. Later, it was pointed out, the Bryan theatres standardized on 25-cent admissions to cooperate with the cadets.

But the picture continued to change. The student body grew to 6,000 or more and residents around the college increased to about 3,000. The result was that the Campus Theatre was built by Lee Threet, V. A. Walker, and others, which will open in about 15 days. The Bryan theatres are owned by Mrs. Morris Schulman in affiliation with Jefferson Amusement Co.

The Campus management negotiated for films and were told by distributors that playtime would have to be behind Bryan. Films previously shown in the college assembly hall have been behind Bryan.

In Dallas distribution circles it was pointed out that it has long been the policy to serve biggest accounts first. On the other hand, the student body claims College Station to be equally as good a theatre situation as is Bryan. The students, it is declared, will press their claim for all that it is worth and will take it to Washington, if necessary.

Crockett Theatre Burns; Adjustments Under Way

DALLAS—R&R's Auditorium Theatre at Crockett was pronounced practically a total loss from a general alarm fire over the weekend. It was the "A" theatre and seated about 800. Insurance adjustments were under way immediately. Rebuilding is considered a certainty.

C. V. Jones and Don C. Douglas, executives of the home office, went to Crockett to look the damage over and to confer with Earl Schultz, manager of that house and also of the Texas.

The Auditorium was formerly operated by the late E. J. Callahan. It is now owned, with the Texas, by Mrs. Callahan and the Robb & Rowley-United circuit.

Several weeks ago the circuit lost by fire its Pal Theatre in Palestine and announced plans to rebuild. They also operate the Texas and Ritz there.

A Texas Ranger Goes to Hollywood as Advisor

AUSTIN—Pete Crawford, Texas Ranger, has been given a leave of absence to act as technical advisor on a picture to be filmed by Paramount depicting the life of a modern ranger.

"Wind" Infringement Suit Dismissed in Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The suit charging authors of the book and motion picture, "Gone With the Wind," with copyright infringement was dismissed by Federal Judge T. A. Murphree April 5 after a hearing in chambers.

The proceedings, seeking damages and asking that all copies of the photoplay be impounded, were filed against the Ritz several weeks ago by Ann R. Davis as administratrix of the estate of Susan Lawrence Davis, author of the book, "Authentic History of the Ku Klux Klan—1865-1877."

Supplemental bills accompanied by copies of the Davis book and script of the photoplay were filed in the case. It was after a review of these that Judge Murphree found no evidence of infringement.

The defendant was allowed cost of litigation amount to $1,000.

Cullins and Evans Will Build One in Memphis

MEMPHIS—A new theatre will be constructed here at Madison Ave. near McLean by Chalmers Cullins and Nate Evans, former operators of the Orpheum. It will cost an estimated $24,000 without furnishings or equipment, and will be known as the Idlewild.

Work is to begin May 1 with the opening scheduled for late summer.

Cullins and Evans operated the Orpheum here for three years prior to its acquisition by M. A. Lightman. They now own and operate the Savoy, a colored house.

Stars Add Glitter to Premiere in Albany

ALBANY, GA.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brennan, Joe E. Brown, Evelyn Keyes and John Howard were among the film celebrities who attended the world premiere here of Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater" at the Albany Theatre on Thursday. The group came in from Hollywood to join Billy Lee, Jean Cagney, William Henry, Producer Jack Moss, Director Stuart Heisler and Y. Frank Freeman jr., who arrived earlier for the opening festivities.

Joe E. officially opened the baseball season in the Southern League by delivering the first ball at the game which took place as part of the premiere ceremonies between the Albany team and the Americus nine.

National Coverage Accorded "Biscuit Eater" Premiere

ALBANY, GA. — Full national syndicate and trade paper coverage was assured the world premiere of "The Biscuit Eater" by the following reporters and photographers:

Westerns May Win Place In an Arty Stronghold

AUSTIN—A one-day-a-week policy of showing a western will be tried out by Manager Jesse Melinger's Varsity, located across the street from the University of Texas campus. Tee-off picture was "South of the Border."

Observers of the local theatre scene are viewing the experiment with interest inasmuch as this situation has always catered to audiences that are "hep"—the University faculty, students and professional people. Foreign-language films and the so-called "artistic successes" have always gone over big at this de luxe neighborhood house. It may be the management figured one-day westerns good for a gag, as melodramatics and gunplay is never taken very seriously by the collegiate element.

Whatever the cause or the result of the policy, Manager Melinger is really giving the experiment both barrels. He spotted publicity in the papers, put up a sign in the lobby of the Varsity calling attention to the change in policy, dressed his cashier in western vest and hat, and handed the patrons preference cards.

NATIONAL THEATRE SUPPLY COMPANY

Dallas, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, Charlotte and Oklahoma City

DALLAS

METRO representatives spent part of the week in huddles at the Dallas branch discussing new product possibilities with Leroy Bickel, who was just back from Atlanta where he sat in on a southern division branch meeting with sales executives from the home office. A visit from M. L. Simons, editor of The Distributor, M-G-M house organ, was expected. Leo's Texas salesmen are Clyde Houston, Charley Lyne, Louis Weber and Roland Taylor.

Willard Barnes, of Alvarado, was here Monday for the first time since opening his new Alvarado April 1. He bore signs of satisfaction about the whole thing.

H. S. Leon and his right hand man, Glenn Fannin, of Haskell, were about the Row booking for the Leon string of several northwest Texas houses.

Theo Routt, now general manager for the J. G. Long circuit, Bay City, but formerly office manager in the First National exchange before the Warner merger, was here booking for the lesser houses in the Long group. He said the boss may be in Dallas next week.

Henry T. Long, manager of the Melrose for Interstate, has been elected president of the Oak Lawn Merchants' Ass'n. Besides his civic activities, Long has a few exploitation matters to his credit, one of which was the breaking of all records at the Melrose by a well-publicized all-short subjects program.

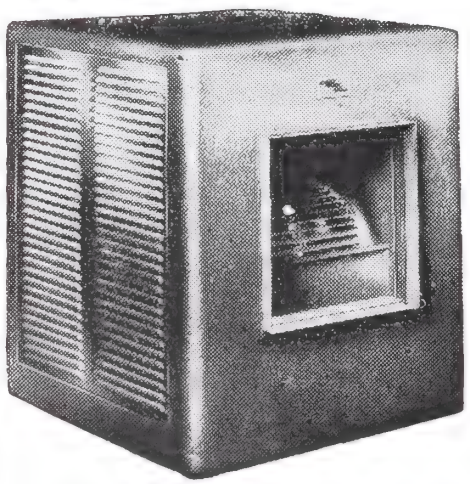
David Smason, former orchestra leader at the Oriental, State-Lake, and Palace theatres, Chicago, reports that he is the owner of the Karnes at Karnes City. This theatre has been operated by Rubin Frels, of Victoria.

Sam Parish of the Huntsville theatres was on the Row for several days and put in the time renewing old acquaintances. He said he misses the film salesmen since his affiliation with R&R and rather objects that film men do not drop by while passing through. He brought Mrs. Parish to Dallas for treatment by an eye specialist.

Carl John, Arcadia at Floresville, is one of those few exhibitors who reach Dallas once or twice a year. He did that the other day and got around for chats with almost everybody. He has an oil and gasoline franchise in Floresville and says it takes that and a show to make a living these days.

The J. B. Underwoods, he is manager of Columbia, and their two young boys, drove into east Texas recently to see the sights in connection with the Dogwood Trail. They are fanciers of rural and rustic scenery. The youngest son, Duke, age 4, told his friends he had been down on the dog trail.

A. C. Moore, Alamo at Bartlett, and one of the state's veteran exhibitors of the silent days, spent Monday on the Row.



A. Jules Benedic, well known to the Texas trade, is now beating the bushes and hitting the high spots for BOXOFFICE in the circulation department. He complains, however, that this state is no place for a BOXOFFICE circulation man, because practically all theatres take it, and are in advance on their subscriptions.

Louis Charninsky, Elm Street manager, made another trip to Oklahoma for a final roundup of Indians and other properties to be used at the big Variety convention here next week.

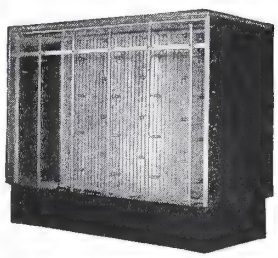
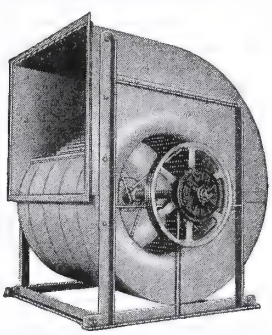
WE'VE LIVED IN THE SOUTH FOR A LONG TIME— ★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★ AND WE EXPECT TO LIVE WITH OUR COOLING JOBS



LOOK AT IT THIS WAY—

Because we "supply everything to the Southern Exhibitor except film," we never use the word "terrific" or "colossal" in describing our merchandise.



If you buy an epic and it turns out to be a turkey, you have a headache for a few days, then you quickly forget it.

But when you buy equipment, you put a chunk of money in it. And you expect profit from that equipment every day you own it.

Saunders, who will close her 1939-40 season with Marian Anderson's concert in the City Auditorium, has opened a membership drive for the 1940-41 season of community concerts and lectures.

The latest success story is that of John Boyd, who in three and a half years completed his apprenticeship to become one of the youngest executives in the Interstate circuit. At present he is manager of the River Oaks. His promotion is in keeping with the policy of Interstate to train its executives from the rank and file of employes.

Ray Haye of the North Main, Joe McDonald of the Tower, and Eddie Bremer were to represent Houston at the San Antonio theatrical golf tourney . . . The new Key in Galveston was scheduled for opening Thursday after being remodeled as a result of a fire several months ago.

Howard Skelton, chief of service at the Majestic and student at the University of Houston, is writing a weekly column on current films for the university's publication.

A little bit of Hollywood came to Houston when Mayor Oscar Holcombe was presented with one of the models used by Walt Disney in producing "Pinocchio." Bill Bell, Interstate publicity man, made the presentation on behalf of Disney.

Word from the Metropolitan Opera box-office in Dallas places the reservations for Houston at 145 with many more expected. This is the only appearance of the Metropolitan west of the Mississippi.

Manager Ray Jones of the Majestic has been confined by illness for the past few days.

NEW YORK — R. J. O'Donnell, general manager of Interstate, is now a member of Picture Pioneers, organization of men in the industry 25 years or more.

Congressman Flails Neely in Atlanta

ATLANTA—The Neely bill would severely restrict creative Hollywood and curb the abilities of one of America's "greatest sources of education," thinks Congressman Luther Patrick of Birmingham, Ala., who was here this week discussing the measure with various members of the trade.

In the opinion of Patrick, the bill would prove disadvantageous to both the public and exhibitors in the way of increased admission prices which, he claims, would necessarily follow increased prices for product. He added small towns operators especially stand to lose if the bill is successful.

San Antonio theatre men are following an example of Fort Worth showmen in staging a golf tournament this week for the benefit of Variety. Several Dallas golfers planned to tee off in the Alamo City.

Dixie Doin's

By "AL" HENDERSON

Your correspondent spent last week rambling around Mississippi and Louisiana and garnered a few notes among the trade as follows:

At Jackson, Miss., visited Ralph Oldknow, formerly a projectionist for many years at Atlanta, who constructed a drive-in theatre at Jackson, Miss., last fall and operated for a short time before closing for the winter. He reopened March 25 with accommodations for 68 cars, is operating full time and calls his business the "Silver Slipper."

When I stopped by to see Laurence Lampo of the Avalon at Jeanerette, La., was greeted by a wide smile and was informed that Laurence had become the father of a baby girl, born March 28, and named Linda. Congratulations.

I must look like a sinner, for when I called around to say hello to Sam Pasqua, Pasqua Theatre at Gonzales, La., he presented me with a brand new Bible. My sincere thanks, Sam, the gift was much appreciated.

M. L. Ferrara, city manager for Dixie Theatres at Abbeville, La., tells me that L. R. LeBlanc jr. has replaced Ed Boyle as manager of the new Rex there.

Met that hard working RKO peddler, Roy Pfeiffer, on the territory and he told me that Dave Lyons, operating the Opera House at Crowley, La., is seriously ill and not expected to recover. Lyons is one of the oldest exhibitors in the southern states. We hope he comes through O. K.

Walter Woodward will replace Thornton Cox, RKO salesman who has been transferred to Charlotte. Woodward comes to RKO from Western Electric.

Saw Don Stafford, city manager at Hammond, La., for his stepfather, Slim Higganbotham, and took a peek at the rebuilt Rex which opened March 23, with Norman Samaha as manager. The Rex is a thoroughly modern house seating 325 down and 100 in the balcony. Don is redecorating the front of the Columbia which is the A house.

The new Pic just completed by Ernest Drake at Ponchatoula, La., opened March 6. This theatre seats 574 on the main floor and 174 in the balcony, and is thoroughly modern. Ernest is getting his boat and tackle ready for the summer fishing. Hope you get the big ones, Ernest.

A. L. Royal, who formerly operated theatres at Hattiesburg, Purvis and Lumberton, Miss., is constructing a new theatre at Gulfport, Miss., in competition to Saenger. He expects to open May 15 and will have a seating capacity of 534. It will be known as the Royal.

Morris Melz of the Arcadia at Ferriday, La., is installing new equipment and enlarging the theatre to add more seats.

Charlie Phillips who has the Palace at Jonesville, La., is the publisher of the town's newspaper, the Jonesville Booster. Charlie has only been in the business about three years but likes it, so he says.

Milton Guidry who has theatres at Abbeville, Erath and Delcambria, La., has joined with C. C. Meyer and his brother in the erection of a new theatre at Biloxi, Miss., to be known as the Meyer. The house will be open about June 1 and will seat 400 downstairs and 150 in the balcony. "Snake" Richardson, New Orleans exchange manager for Universal, and myself were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Guidry at a frog leg supper at their home in Erath and believe me, folks, I enjoyed a rare treat and I believe that I can speak for "Snake" also. My sincere thanks for the hospitality.

Max Connant of Newton, Miss., when seen in New Orleans recently, tells me that he has opened his new theatre at Bay Springs, Miss., which will be managed by E. G. Bingham. The house will be named the Lyric. Good luck, Max.

Bill Jenkins of the Realart at DeRidder, La., has acquired the theatre at Kuntz, Tex.

The Louve-Bodin Amusement Co., Ed H. Peterman, president, opened their new Teche March 23 at Franklin, La. The house is very beautiful and will seat 196 in the balcony and 604 on the main floor. Thos. B. Shannon is the manager.

Seen around the territory were: "Snake" Richardson of Universal; M. E. Ferrara, Dixie, at Abbeville, La.; Vinton Thibeaux, who has the colored Fun at Lafayette, La.; Max Connant on New Orleans Row booking; S. C. Whithead, Strand, Jena, La.; Tom Maine, city manager for Southern Amusement Co. at Lafayette; J. P. Turregaro, managing Saenger's Paramount at Alexandria, and his assistant, Glen Mason; Ira Olroyd of the Dixie at Morgan City; Vic Maurin of the Fox at Houma; Julius Scharff, Essanee at New Iberia.

The Strand at Walhalla, S. C., has recently installed new sound and projection equipment by the National Theatre Supply Co. The installation was supervised by the Sound Engineering Service Co. of Charlotte. The Strand is owned and operated by A. C. Phillips.

Sparks Will Build New House in Tallahassee

JACKSONVILLE—Plans are announced for the construction of a new Sparks Theatre in Tallahassee, Fla. Property was purchased some time ago for $35,000 as the site of the new theatre.

Plans for the house were drawn up by Roy A. Benjamin, local architect, and work will start at once. The theatre will seat 1,200 and will be air conditioned.

Sparks' Florida group of houses number approximately 110.

Karl Hoblitzelle Visits In Rio Grande Area

DALLAS — Karl Hoblitzelle, Interstate president, spent a week in the Rio Grande section, looking over circuit properties and making personal visits with a number of exhibitors. He was officially unaccompanied and made the trip by auto with Lonnie Perkins, of the Mirror Theatre.

Name M. A. Lightman Jr. Manager of New Malco

He has been actively associated with his father's company for four years, working in the office here and in Jackson, Tenn., and Helena, Ark. Eric Landeau will be his assistant.

Juvenile Admission Chances Brighten

MONTREAL—Satisfaction is expressed in motion picture circles in Montreal over the proposed letting down of the bars in so far as juveniles are concerned. The present Quebec legislature, which reconvened on April 2, after a lengthy Easter recess, is to consider bringing down legislation to enable minors, up to 16 years of age, to attend motion pictures that have been approved by a censorship board. It is understood the personnel of this board has not yet been named, but it is predicted that when chosen, all classes of public opinion will be found represented thereon.

It is understood provincial theatrical industries of all kinds are solidly back of the proposed legislation.

Dominion Election Clip Is Deleted From Newsreel

TORONTO—In accordance with the permanent policy of the Ontario board of moving picture censors to keep politics from the theatre screens of the Province, an important deletion was made in current newsreels in the cutting of a clip dealing with the recent victory of the Liberal Party in the Dominion elections. Incidentally, Premier M. F. Hepburn of Ontario is at odds with Prime Minister Mackenzie King of the Canadian government although both are staunch Liberals and the censor board policy, adopted months ago prior to the Provincial elections in which Hepburn himself was directly involved, is apparently being carefully enforced.

During the height of the recent federal election campaign, a sensation was caused when Premier Hepburn, as chairman of the Provincial Film Appeal Board, withheld the license for the March of Time "Canada at War" on the ground that it was political propaganda. With the election over, this film has been released in Ontario but the newsreel clip referring to the Mackenzie King success has been cut.

Marrs Estate Leases House At Moose Jaw to F-P

MOOSE JAW, SASK.—Famous Players Canadian Corp. has leased the Orpheum here for a three-year period from the Marrs Estate and will proceed immediately with extensive renovations to the front and interior of the building under direction of V. Armand, in charge of construction for the company.

Harry Marrs, owner of the Orpheum and operator for many years, died recently. The house was given over to vaudeville at one time and in its day was the city's leading showhouse.

The Orpheum will be managed by Les Pugsley, currently house manager at the Lyceum in Port Arthur, which post he held for six years.

Famous Players also operate the Capitol in Moose Jaw.

Just a Community Benefactor

Toronto — The height of something or other developed the other day when a store proprietor in Toronto, offering silverware premiums, asked a neighborhood theatre, also featuring silverware giveaways, to run a trailer announcing the store's gift offer.

Prospect of Added Taxes Facing F-P

TORONTO—Additional taxation is expected this year by Famous Players Canadian Corp., according to President N. L. Nathanson who, at the annual meeting of the company in Toronto, pointed out that increased expenditure under this heading in 1939 amounted to $40,000 for federal and provincial levies. About $38,000 of this amount was represented by increase in corporation tax. The 20th annual financial statement and other reports for the past year were adopted by the shareholders.

Regarding prospects for the current year Nathanson declared that the situation was encouraging. Complete figures for the first quarter of 1940 were not yet available but they were favorable.

The following were re-elected: N. L. Nathanson, president; J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president; directors, Barney Balaban, Paramount president; Hon. F. B. McCurdy, A. E. Dyment, Major A. P. Holt, Hon. W. D. Ross, Thomas J. Bragg, R. W. Bolstad and Y. Frank Freeman. Hon. W. D. Ross is a former lieutenant-governor of Ontario.

T. J. Bragg is secretary-treasurer of the corporation and Bolstad is comptroller, other officers including N. G. Barrow and F. J. Justin, assistant secretaries. As previously announced, the company showed a net profit of $904,324 during the past year.

Early Closing Bylaw Still A Toronto Experiment

TORONTO—The Toronto city council continues to juggle with the early closing bylaw affecting various types of retail shops, the latest move being the adoption of a new measure changing the closing hour from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m., the new law becoming effective April 9. The previous bylaw went into effect March 1 but was the subject of continued debate until the latest revision was made.

Early closing had the effect of stimulating theatre business because of the opportunity provided for shopkeepers and sales clerks to attend evening performances which was out of the question when stores kept open until 11 p. m. or later. Theatre managers were afraid that the whole bylaw would be pigeonholed because of the city hall arguments but the new act still gives time for theatre patronage and everybody is happy—or are they?

Recommends Lottery Laws Be Amended

TORONTO—The amendment of the criminal statutes covering the operation of lotteries has been recommended by Hon. Gordon D. Conant, attorney-general for Ontario, who has jurisdiction over law enforcement.

The present code breeds hypocrisy, according to Conant, and does not meet modern conditions. He declared: "I dislike very much having laws on our statute books which are not enforced. At the same time the enforcement of laws creating what might be called statutory offenses is most difficult and brings down the censure of a large proportion of our people."

Conant declared that the law could be amended with safety although abuses must be prevented so that rackets may not thrive on any modification of the law. He cited the giving away of articles as an example of a violation of the lottery law but such schemes were conducted fairly by estimable citizens.

The declaration has led to the belief that games of chance will be permissible under the revised statutes and this would enable theatres to put on stunts which are now contrary to the letter of the law. The much-delayed Foto-Nite test case is still before the court but is not likely to come up for hearing until some time in May. Any law revision cannot be put into effect until after the next session of the Dominion Parliament which does not open until next month.

Holiday Observances Not Subject to Rationing

TORONTO—War or no war, Canadians are assured of their legal holidays which occur at the normal rate of approximately one per month throughout the year.

The Toronto city council has adopted a motion providing for the general observance of Monday, August 5, as Civic Holiday in accordance with custom for years. The local decision is the cue for practically all other municipalities to follow suit. May 24 will be observed as a holiday to commemorate Queen Victoria's Birthday; July 1 is the Dominion's National Holiday commemorating the Confederation of the Provinces; Labor Day falls on September 9 while Thanksgiving Day will be observed October 7 and Monday, November 11, will be observed as Armistice Day which some hopefuls wanted to regard as the Anniversary of Perpetual Peace.

Product Announcement

TORONTO—With the removal of Sovereign Film Distributors, Ltd., to a suite of new offices in the film exchange building, announcement is made that the company now has 109 program units, consisting of features and shorts with a minimum running time of 90 minutes, for release throughout Canada to 16mm circuits playing theatreless towns as well as military camps, hospitals, schools and other institutions.

TORONTO

THE WIDOW of the late C. T. Ross, proprietor of the Royal, Bowmanville, Ont., will "carry on" with the operation of the theatre although she has three children. Mrs. Ross called at several film offices in Toronto the other day when she made known her plan. Incidentally, the funeral of Tom Ross, which was held under Masonic auspices, was one of the largest ever held for a theatreman in Canada. He was one of the organizers of the Allied Exhibitors of Ontario.

Immediately following the annual meeting of Famous Players Canadian Corp., J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president; Mrs. Fitzgibbons and daughter, Helen, left Toronto by automobile for a four weeks vacation at Hot Springs, Ark. . . . Now on a delayed winter vacation is Ben Geldsaeler, director of bookings for Famous Players theatres across Canada. Whereabouts unknown until he returns.

Back from winter vacations—Henry L. Nathanson, general manager, Regal Films, Ltd.; H. Freedman, proprietor of the Circle, Toronto, and the Center, St. Catharines; George Lester, owner of the King, Toronto; Harry Firestone, Toronto and Brantford theatre owner; Sam Ulster of the Toronto Embassy, all of whom spent some weeks in Florida. Returned from California are N. A. Taylor, general manager, 20th Century Theatres, and Mrs. Taylor, and Harry Alexander of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario and proprietor of the Lansdowne. Simon Meretsky, owner of a group of Windsor, Ont. theatres, has also returned from Hot Springs, Ark.

Casualty list of the Toronto film corps—Clarence Robson, eastern division supervisor of Famous Players' chain, ill at his Toronto home after a business trip to the Maritime Provinces; Al Sanderson, treasurer of Associated Theatres, recovering from an operation for appendicitis which was performed in St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto; R. S. Roddick, district manager of Famous Players, under continued doctor's care at Halifax with L. M. Graburn from head office remaining at the Atlantic seaport to look after his duties; Frank Fisher, Toronto branch manager of Empire-Universal Films, on the ailing list and away from his office for a week.

Callers at Toronto Filmrow following the clearing of snow-jammed highways: L. H. Vicary, owner of the Opera House and Princess, Orillia; Harland Rankin, stunt-creating proprietor of the Plaza, Tilbury; Abe Rappaport of the Hollywood, Campbellford, who wondered why everybody should be worrying about snowdrifts; Howard Hager, presiding over the Regal at Hagersville; G. Garrette, aggressive manager of the Geneva, Orillia; S. Merlin, owner of the Uptown, Orangeville, and Mrs. Ross, who has succeeded her late husband as proprietor of the Royal, Bowmanville. Merlin was enthusiastic about the appearance of his remodeled theatre at Orangeville which has a new floor, new seats and many other improvements.

A prominent visitor in Toronto was George Rotsky, general supervisor of Famous Players and Consolidated Theatres in Montreal. Rotsky, a veteran showman, was previously manager of the Palace, Montreal, for many years and made his start with the Allens when their chain expanded to that city. His last visit was at the time of the Famous Players managers' conference last July.

George Law, veteran Toronto film man and previously in the theatre business at Winnipeg, has been appointed manager of the new Biltmore which was opened at Oshawa on April 11 by Henry Falk and associates. For several years Law has been chief booker of Associated Theatres in Ontario. He is a brother of Harry Law of the Warner exchange.

The Royal Canadian Navy now has a press agent, no less. It has been divulged from official sources that John Farrow, former RKO director in Hollywood and husband of Maureen O'Sullivan, who was recently appointed sub-lieutenant in the R. C. N., will be in charge of publicity for the Naval Service following a tour of duty in coastal patrol work.

Manager George Stroud of the Palace, Hamilton, and dean of theatremen in that city, has been enduring a lively session with workmen scrambling all over the structure for the remodeling of the front and lobby and general improvements. Manager Dan Krendal has also supervised a face-lifting at the Capitol, Hamilton . . . Lloyd M. Mills of the Elgin, Ottawa, was the host of 750 orphans and other children at a special performance under the auspices of the Lions Club, this being the first treat of this kind by the club, of which Mills is a member. Candy was distributed. Mills has also held over "Rebecca" for a second week.

Al Sedgwick, manager of the Belsize here, reported that the installation of an air-conditioning system has been completed and smoking is now permitted in the balcony for an additional admission charge. Sedgwick has also started a silverware giveaway for the first time . . . D'Arcy Marsh, with the Canadian Broadcasting Cop. for the past two and a half years, has resigned to accept an appointment to the scenario department of Associated Screen News, Ltd., and will work on Canadian Cameo short subjects which are distributed by Empire-Universal Films.

David S. Rubin, manager of the Westdale, Hamilton, pulled a good one on Sam Collis of the Andre Theatre, Caledonia, who is shortly to be married. The boys arranged a stag party which was held April 10 at the Royal Connaught and Rubin got out a quarter-sheet poster in the form of a proclamation to advertise the gathering, the announcement being pasted up in conspicuous places so that the general public would know all. Even the Toronto film exchanges received copies of the printed poster.

H. M. Masters, general manager of United Artists Corp., made an air trip to Vancouver, B. C., for a tour of the western branches of the company . . . Bud Thompson has been promoted to district sales manager of Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd., following the removal of the sales and service headquarters to the attractive two-story building at 287 Victoria Street, which was originally occupied by 20th Century-Fox Films, Ltd. H. Goldin has been announced as district service manager.

General Victor D. Odlum, associated with President N. L. Nathanson of Famous Players Canadian Corp., on the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., has been appointed commander of the Second Division of the Canadian Active Force for duty in England and France. Odlum, 60 years of age, is a former newspaperman and is a veteran of the South African and First Great Wars.

Spencer Tracy has sent two personally autographed photographs to Col. R. C. Merrick of Toronto as a gift to the officers' mess of the Queen's York Rangers which was originally the First American Regiment commanded by Major Rogers whose role Tracy portrayed in "Northwest Passage." The latter recently played Loew's when the unit paraded for a screening.

The bowling league of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., wound up its season amid much festivity and the presentation of various prizes. The reward for the season's high single went to Charles Faith with a score of 332 but there were other marks which were not so high.

"Edison" Canadian Bow Made Stratford Event

STRATFORD, ONT.—This city went "Hollywood" for the Canadian premiere of "Young Tom Edison" at the Majestic, a 1,200-seat house of the Allen chain, when a special old-time train was run from Sarnia to Stratford and a plaque in honor of the inventor was unveiled in the local station of the Canadian National Railways. Other features included a civic reception and dinner attended by relatives and friends of Edison, film executives and railway officials, the selection of Stratford being due to the fact that the inventor spent two years of his life there as a telegraph operator of the old Buffalo & Lake Huron Railway. Incidentally, Samuel Edison, father of Thomas, lived in nearby Vienna, Ont., before he moved to Ohio where Tom, the youngest of a family of four, was born, according to local records.

Among the guests of honor at the premiere were 90-year-old John Lauder of Corunna, Ont., who was associated with Edison when he lived in Stratford; Mrs. LeFroy Schreiber of Sarnia, a half-sister of Thomas Edison, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beattie of Cleveland. Mrs. Beattie was a sister-in-law of Edison. Incidentally, Lauder attended the Edison celebration at Port Huron, Mich., when the picture had its world premiere several weeks ago. Following the dinner, a parade was held to the theatre for the first performance.

HOLLYWOOD — Merle Oberon and George Brent will be co-starred in Warner's "The Constant Nymph," which Casey Robinson and Robert Blees are adapting from Margaret Kennedy's original.

MONTREAL

SUNNY DAYS are here again and the boys on Filmrow are shining up their golf clubs, but the roads still are far from tempting to motorists, and visitors are scarce. Amongst familiar figures whom bad roads could not discourage were W. O'Regan of the Laurier, Hull, and Ambrose Nolan of the Pix, Aylmer.

Something of a festival air prevailed around Filmrow following the first round of the Filmrow Bowling League playoffs, as a result of Mickey Isman, manager of Empire-Universal, achieving a local record by bowling 266 in one string. The boys felt that was worth celebrating.

The first round of the playoffs resulted: Regal beat Empire-Universal; United Amusements beat Columbia; Suburbans beat United Artists; Warner beat Consolidated. In the second round United Amusements meet Regal, and Suburbans bowl Warners.

Archie Cohen, Columbia salesman, is on a business trip to Gaspe . . . Alterations costing $35,000 will be made to Ottawa's old Family Theatre on Queen Street to permit of new stores and offices.

"Pinocchio" secured many department store tieups for its opening at Loew's. A special performance for children was given Saturday morning. The added attraction suited to the mentality of Catholic children was "The Vatican of Pius XII," a March of Time production.

French films depicting the Allies' war aims will be distributed in the Province of Quebec through cooperation between the French and British ministries of information . . . Associated Screen News has production units at work on sound pictures on the Pacific coast, in Ontario and in Quebec. Roy Tash, ASN cameraman, filmed air force and military activities at Camp Borden.

Larry Stevens, manager of the Snowdon, had an inspiration when he brought "A Girl Must Live," British comedy, to that house. It filled the theatre for a week . . . "Atlantic Patrol" was first of the monthly series of Canadian-produced war films released by the war supply board. Others will be "Privates' Lives," showing the soldiers in their recreation hours overseas, and "Women at Work," picturing the war effort of Canadian women.

That the "movies" are forging ahead of the legitimate drama is the view of Walter O'Hearn, Montreal Herald commentator, who remarks: "The emergence of 'Rebecca' and 'Northwest Passage' serve to remind us that some remarkable films are being made. The 'Movies' are emerging from a welter of commercial drivel as the liveliest and most vigorous of the theatrical arts. Of stage plays of the past season, I can think of few which compare in vigor or quality with 'Grapes of Wrath,' 'Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet,' the films above mentioned, or 'Pinocchio'."

Antonio Capandridis, who operates the Cameo, missed $10 cash and motion picture apparatus valued at $125, following a visit paid by burglars who sawed a hole in the back door of the theatre.

Assures Production In France Secure

MONTREAL—J. M. de Roussy, commercial director of France Films, Montreal, announces France Films has received information from its Paris office that eight new films have been started, and that the French government has appointed an official to see that the motion picture industry be kept going on a satisfactory production basis during the time of the war.

Mr. de Roussy added that France Films has in its vaults in Montreal sufficient films for exhibition until the spring of 1942.

From the Paris office of the company comes the news that plans are being laid for the early production of the new film, entitled: "Chantant Quand Meme." This picture will be a collaboration of the two countries, France and Britain, and will deal with the life of the present day Allied soldier on leave.

Speaking of distribution of France Films, de Roussy mentioned that western distribution will be under the management of H. J. Allen of Toronto. Allen, formerly with Grand National Films, will distribute throughout the west a certain number of French films which, although in French dialogue, will have superimposed English titles.

While France Films is having a certain demand for its films from the United States, only the 16mm reels are being released, it is learned from the office here. Canadian business is reported by France Films to be very satisfactory, with the outlook promising for an active summer season in French pictures.

Hepburn Defers Release Of "Primrose Path"

TORONTO—"Primrose Path" was privately viewed by Premier M. F. Hepburn and members of the Ontario Cabinet after it had been examined by the Ontario censor board and the result was, according to Hepburn, that "the film may be released in Ontario later," the license being temporarily withheld on the instructions of the Premier.

At the Ontario office of RKO Distributing Corp., it was stated that no bookings were being entered for the feature, awaiting the final decision of the government. This picture, as well as "Strange Cargo," had been banned by the police department in Detroit.

In the meantime, "Strange Cargo" has been approved by the Ontario board and an official of Regal Films, Ltd., declared that this picture was "being booked all over the Province."

Canadian War Effort Will Be Picturized Monthly

REGINA, SASK.—Information has been received here from Ottawa that a series of Canadian-produced monthly films depicting the Dominion at war will be started April 11 under the title of "Canada in Action." These will be in addition to the films produced by The March of Time.

WINNIPEG

PLEASANT news to the industry was the promotion of Don Gauld, manager of the Metropolitan here, to supervisor of suburban theatres in Toronto. Gauld's many friends here attended a farewell gathering in the form of a luncheon, one of the largest of its kind ever held here, at which they expressed their pleasure at his good fortune and extended their best wishes for his future progress. F. H. Kershaw was chairman of the gathering, which presented Gauld with a fitted traveling bag. The Metropolitan staff added their own token of affection and goodwill in the form of Gladstone bag. Gauld's long experience in film circles makes him eminently fitted for the position which he is now assuming, and Toronto's gain is Winnipeg's loss.

An intensive campaign in connection with the Canadian premiere here of "My Son, My Son" was carried through by Harold Bishop at the Capitol. Twenty-four sheets were posted one week in advance of the showing of the film and also during its run. The film was screened for critics of the dailies, representatives of literary societies, and theatrical organizations. Bishop arranged for reviews to break one day in advance of his opener in the Free Press and the day following the opener in the Tribune.

"His Girl Friday" is being held a second week at the Garrick by Sim Rost . . . At the Tivoli, the British film, "A Girl Must Live" is in its third successful week . . . Helmer Jernberg, formerly of the Rio, is now managing the Orpheum. Leno Toraldo, who formerly managed the Orpheum, is now at the Roxy . . . R. W. Bolstad, comptroller of Famous Players, and Haskell Masters, general manager of United Artists, both flew into the city during the week.

Ottawa Film Society Ends Winter Screening Series

OTTAWA—The National Film Society of Ottawa has completed its series of performances for the winter season with the holding of a screening in the auditorium of the Canadian Government Museum, Ottawa, the feature of which was the British picture "The Edge of the World." The two shorts were "Transfer of Power," depicting the advance of industrial machinery, and "Cloth of Kings," a Universal release dealing with the flax industry. This was the sixth meeting of the society for the 1939-40 season.

The organization will shortly hold its annual meeting when plans for the next 12 months will be considered in the light of the war and announcements will be made regarding the winners in the film production contest among members for the past year.

"The Edge of the World" had previously been presented at a local theatre for a regular engagement while "Cloth of Kings" had also had theatrical release. This fact indicated a difficulty in securing pictures from foreign sources because of the European War.

CALGARY

WALT DISNEY'S "Pinocchio" closed this week after a good nine-day run at the Capitol. Played capacity business for seven days with strong opposition from hockey playoffs and four-day visit of the ex-Dumbells.

Vernon Skorey, branch manager of 20th-Fox and his salesman, Frank Scott, left to attend the sales convention at the Drake in Chicago.

With the finish of the hockey season, boxoffices have returned to normal and are holding up well this week despite a heavy snowfall. Snow is a spring fall without low temperatures or high winds.

Bronzed and looking fit after his sojourn in Florida, Glen Peacock, who operates the Isis and Gary here, returned from a two months trip.

F-P Niagara House Will Embody Indian Design

TORONTO—The first theatre of period architecture to be constructed by Famous Players Canadian Corp. is the new Seneca which is under way at Niagara Falls, Ont., with an opening date scheduled for July. The theatre will embody Indian tribal characteristics throughout, not only in the building design but in the furnishings, such as carpets and drapes, and wall decorations. Considerable research work was done in securing details of the proper atmosphere before the plans were drawn and it is expected that the house, which will seat 1,000, will be a work of art in keeping with the beauty of the Niagara scenery.

The Seneca has been designed, it is pointed out, as a showplace for the gateway to the Dominion from New York state and consideration is already being given to an appropriate dedication.

Price-Cutting Enters The Giveaway Field

TORONTO—"The Battle of the Books" is the added feature of the theatre business in Toronto and the current spice of life is causing the tongues to waggle. The issue in the Book Night situation has developed into a price war and there is apparently more competition over the cost and quality of the encyclopedias, ranging from five to 15 volumes, than over the matter of what is being presented in the form of entertainment.

The Associated circuit came out first with the book offer at 49 cents per volume with every adult admission. Then the B&F group brought out a bigger and better book at 39 cents, to be followed by the Exhibitors Booking Association, representing the independents, with a less costly offer. Premier Theatres, operated by the Allens, joined the free-for-all by giving volumes at "Only 25 cents—Why pay more?" One result has been that the theatre sections of the evening newspapers look like book pages.

The 14 theatres of the B&F circuit are affiliated with the Famous Players' chain.

MARITIMES

A J. MASON of the Capitol, Springhill, N. S., spent a few days in Saint John to act on the arbitration board of the Maritime film board of trade.

Ronald T. Hogan, manager of the Capitol, St. John's, Newfoundland, died in a hospital recently following an operation. A brother, Patrick J. Hogan, branch manager for Paramount at Saint John, N. B., was with him during his illness.

Joseph Fitzpatrick, shipper at Maritime Film Co. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick are being congratulated on the birth of their second son on April 5 at St. Joseph's Hospital, Saint John.

Percy R. Fielding, manager of the Capitol, Bridgewater, N. S., was in Saint John for a short time, conferring with his head office, the F. G. Spencer Co., Ltd.

E. A. Whelpley, branch manager of RKO Distributing Corp., has returned from Montreal where he attended the Ned Depinet Drive meeting at the exchange.

Lloyd Dunbar, head usher at the Empire, Saint John, and Mrs. Dunbar, who were married recently, have returned from their honeymoon.

The Film Girls' Patriotic Club sponsored a variety concert at the Seamen's Institute, Saint John, on April 1 for over 100 seamen who were in port at the time. At the close of the entertainment, refreshments were served by members of the club.

C. C. Curran of Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd., Halifax, N. S., visited Saint John recently . . . Theatremen seen on Filmrow included Earl D. Nesbitt of the Star, Edmundston, N. B.; Carl Nelson of the Community, Parrsboro, N. S. and Bill Danson of the Strand, Sussex, N. B.

WINDSOR

J J. FITZGIBBONS made a fleeting visit to the five F-P houses here on his stopover en route to Hot Springs, Ark., where Simon Meretsky's chauffeur is driving him.

The new 750-seat Park Theatre under way here will be a little late with its opening. The present date is May 15.

The Tivoli lost both jack pots in one week. $195.00 went out on Bank Roll Night and $45.00 on Quiz Night.

Ontario Educators Spur Motion Picture Use

TORONTO — The Ontario Educational Ass'n, made up of teachers and school trustees throughout the province, have made a definite move for the adoption of pictures for visual instructional purposes with the suggested cooperation of the Canadian government motion picture bureau in the organization of a central moving picture exchange for the distribution of appropriate pictures.

A leader in the move is Dr. MacGregor Easson, chief inspector of Ottawa public schools, who, in introducing the subject before the association, declared that the moving picture was a desirable piece of elementary school equipment which would be good propaganda for those who would be the citizens of tomorrow. A difficulty, he pointed out, was that there was an insufficient number of films dealing with life in Canada.

Films Playing Important Educative Role in War

OTTAWA—This is a motion picture war, believe it or not. It has been brought out, with the approval of the censors, that films are playing a highly important role in the training of Canadian troops and the Canadian government motion picture bureau is just as important a military unit as a field battery or a tank battalion. The Department of National Defense has prepared a film library of 75 subjects, ranging from one to 12 reels, prints of which are available in each of the training centers across the Dominion. Some of these pictures have been produced by the bureau but the majority are from master negatives supplied by the British War Office and the bureau has reduced these to 16mm width.

Fire Destroys Lyceum At Imperial, Sask.

IMPERIAL, SASK.—Fire, which threatened to wipe out the entire business section of this town, destroyed the Lyceum Theatre, a landmark since 1917, and caused a loss estimated at more than $11,000.

The Lyceum was built in 1917 and was owned by W. Montgomery. It is said no insurance was carried on the building.

A boy's love for his dog has inspired countless stories, songs and films. It is doubtful, however, that the popular theme has ever been treated more understandingly and entertainingly than in this feature about a thoroughbred canine and an equally thoroughbred youngster, the latter part being entrusted to the capable young hands of Young Billy Lee. Jack Moss' initial production effort, the picture is heavily laden with revenue potentialities. True, in its first showings, it will require considerable merchandising to overcome the obvious lack of established names in the cast, and, perhaps, to offer some explanation of its title. Once launched, however, the word-of-mouth praise, certain to be engendered by its refreshingly natural backgrounds and its wide human appeal, should stimulate patronage. Stuart Heisler's direction adds much to the photoplay's excellence.

Reminiscent of "The Lost World," this picture deals with the cliff dwellers, who are divided into the rock and shell clans, and their fight for existence. There are a number of interesting shots of pre-historic animals. In addition, there is a volcanic eruption which is well handled. Conrad Nagel relates the story to a group of visitors who come upon his cave. It is the supposed history of the two clans, separated by a forest infested with the pre-historic creatures. One tribe lives in continued dissension, while the other goes about its daily existence serenely. Victor Mature becomes an outcast, is taken into the other group where he falls in love with Carole Landis, who brings the factions together. This is a tough one to figure. Produced and directed by Hal Roach. D. W. Griffith assisted on production.

In the absence of Pa Jones, conveniently scripted out of the picture and into a sanitarium—an expediency resorted to because of Jed Prouty's contractual difficulties with the studio—the remainder of this veteran screen family manages to deliver the same brand of wholesome, all-purpose entertainment as of yore. The story incorporates a substantial quota of comedy, drama and human interest and the production can safely be marked down as a reliable entry in the series. The family discovers that, through the failure of a building-and-loan concern, it has been wiped out financially, while Pa's health has been broken. Liquidating everything, Ma and the kids trek to California, where, through a combination of luck, grit and hard work, they start afresh. Otto Brower directed.

Compellingly human drama, albeit a trifle long in the telling, this is marked by an air of utter reality seldom seen in screen entertainment. Film is a neat and convincing re-make of an early talker which, in turn, was based upon a Pulitzer Prize play by Maxwell Anderson, a distinguished parentage that accounts in large measure for its qualities of excellence. Audiences of every type should be intrigued by it and young married couples especially should receive a substantial measure of enjoyment in viewing it. The cast, headed by John Garfield, Anne Shirley and Claude Rains, is first-rate, as is Vincent Sherman's direction. It is a simple enough story. Garfield, who wants to go to the Philippines, is tricked into marrying Miss Shirley. Lack of money separates them, but finally they are reunited.

Lightweight backstage farce, this carries a substantial enough load of laughs to warrant consideration for most situations, despite a thin story line and a number of weaknesses in motivation. Alan Mowbray runs away with the comedy honors, topping a generally acceptable cast which also finds Donald MacBride carding plenty of chuckles. The picture marks Howard Benedict's debut into production ranks and also is a first for Director Frank Woodruff, imported from the radio field. Barbara Read, fledgling playwright, submits a manuscript to Mowbray and MacBride, stage producers, who regard it as so atrocious that they buy it—in order to frighten their only star, Helen Vinson, into signing a new five-year contract. To their amazement, however, she raves over it—and it turns out to be a hit.

The activities of the girls who live at Sherrington House range from romance to involvement in murder. They are all worldly wise, or seem to be. Not for one moment will the audience be led to believe that such an institution exists for other purposes than to make a low voltage film. Poorly acted and haphazardly directed, but, nevertheless sumptuously mounted, the film concerns itself with a blonde, man-crazy girl who finds herself involved with a gangster. He knocks off a road-house proprietor, getting himself mortally wounded in the process. The blonde bulldozes a doctor acquaintance into treating him. He dies. She involves the rest of the cast in the death. Eventually this works out plausibly. Joan Davis helps with a few moments of bright comedy.

Pointing strongly toward capturing the interest of feminine audiences, the boxoffice strength of this re-make of "One Way Passage" depends on how well it succeeds in its objective. It ought to. As it stands, without having seen the original, it is a dramatic vehicle of a love predestined by events to an unhappy ending. The tragedy of doom hanging over the romance of Merle Oberon and George Brent carries with it considerable emotional appeal. The action takes place on a boat returning to San Francisco from China. Brent is an escaped prisoner on his way to San Quentin and death, in the custody of Pat O'Brien, a police officer; Miss Oberon has an incurable heart ailment. Both learn, without disclosing it, the other's fate. The theme is somewhat similar to Edmund Goulding's great directorial effort, "Dark Victory."

For sheer rip-snortin' action, spectacle, excitement and suspense this super-western with a historical background can stand up for comparison, and with every assurance of a favorable verdict, with any of the several others of its class which have proven so popular and profitable during recent seasons. Further, it displays so high a level of production, story, cast and direction excellence that it easily earns the designation of being the biggest and best ever made by Republic. That it will be a solid audience hit and a top grosser seems beyond doubt. With sweeping strokes and at a breath-taking clip it deals with the looting of Kansas during the early days of the Civil War by guerilla organizations while through this panoramic theme is woven a romantic story of three persons caught in its mad maelstrom. To that gallery of westerns that give entertainment, action and a plausible story "Bullet Code" must be added. Here, as in other first rate productions, there is narrative coherence, skillful production, a clever plot, humor and the reliable gunplay. Here also are fisticuffs of the first order, supplied by George O'Brien. The performers handle their lines and act their parts expertly. Thinking he has accidentally killed a cowboy, O'Brien sets out to tell his purported victim's family. Arriving, he finds that a land grabber is dogging their footsteps with murder as his weapon. SELLING ANGLES: "On Their Own"

The Jones Family's plunge into real estate offers numerous exploitation possibilities. Tie in with a realtor on "before-and-after" stills of the bungalow court which the Joneses renovate. Urge civic authorities to stage a "better homes" week in which your theatre and local merchants offer prizes for the best renovating jobs. Offer special inducements to bring about entire families for the show. Offer prizes for the largest families attending the showing, as well as a special prize for the largest family of Joneses.

CATCHLINES:

The Joneses Are Broke . . . But Full of Fun . . . So Watch Them Put Old Man Gloom on the Run.

Flat Broke . . . But Full of Fun . . . America's Favorite Family Is in a Jam Again. L

SELLING ANGLES: "Free, Blonde and 21"

First-day business should be the goal in the exploitation of this one. The cast is fairly well known and a few members are capable players, regrettably connected here with something that their talents rise above. Miss Davis is the only one who will give value for money exchanged. Work up a contest in your locality for the most beautiful blonde. Offer prizes for the best 100-word essay on "Do Gentlemen Prefer Them Free, Blonde and 21?" Have blondes and brunettes picket the theatre with copy supplied in the pressbook.

CATCHLINES:

They Share Stockings, Lipstick and Frocks . . . But Not Their Men.

A Good Little Sport or a Good Little Girl? . . . That's the Drama at This Hotel for Women.

SELLING ANGLES: "Bullet Code"

Where the exhibitor has a sure-fire line of exploitation for a western, he should use it without stinting. This one rates the effort. O'Brien is the type of cowboy that kids dream about. Give away his photograph. Tie in with sporting goods stores along physique-building lines. Plaster the lobby with still enlargements. Display saddles, chaps and other cowboy accoutrements. Get the newsstands that handle the western pulp fiction to plant handbills in the magazines.

CATCHLINES:

Riding, Fighting and Shooting . . . Your Favorite Western Player Is Coming Again.

Cheating Cheaters . . . Making Fools of Hard Hombres . . . He Saved the Ranch by Fair and Funny Methods.

SELLING ANGLES: "One Million B. C."

Decorating the marquee with replicas of pre-historic animals used in the picture should make an interesting exhibit. Contact organizations interested in pre-historic work for whatever data you may be able to display in the theatre and lobby. History teachers should be invited to attend, and window cards should be posted in all schools. Essays should not be overlooked. Newspapers should cooperate with stories and pictures, particularly if you can get a local authority on the subject to comment or be interviewed by newspapers after he has viewed the film. Ballyhoo trucks with animal replicas are among other tieup naturals.

CATCHLINES:

The Story of the Rock and Shell Clan of Pre-Historic Days.

Pre-Historic Animals in a Fight to Live.

Thrills and Action Among the Cliff Dwellers.

SELLING ANGLES: "Curtain Call"

In the absence of powerful star names, exploitation and advertising must be concentrated on Barbara Read, Alan Mowbray and the "every-minute-a-laugh" angle. If there is an amateur little theatre group in the neighborhood, invite its members to the first-night showing. As an added attraction, one of the little theatre's productions might be presented on the stage in conjunction with the picture. Stills showing Alan Mowbray with a shotgun can be planted with sporting goods supply stores.

CATCHLINES:

She Wrote a Harrowing Tragedy in Three Acts . . . Which Turned Out to Be Broadway's Greatest Laugh Hit.

They Thought Her Play Would Be a Sure-Fire Failure . . . But It Disappointed Them—By Making Money.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Dark Command"

The Claire Trevor-John Wayne team, seen previously in "Stagecoach" and "Allegheny Uprising," should dominate the marquee and advertising credits. List Walter Pidgeon and Roy Rogers in support. The Civil War background and re-enactment of the pillaging of Lawrence, Kas., suggests contests for students of local history classes, as well as a lobby display of Civil War relics, the search for which can be built into a first-class exploitation stunt.

CATCHLINES:

A Flaming Chapter in Our Country's Growth . . . When Brother Fought Brother . . . And Souls Were Seared With Hate.

The Story of Cantrell . . . Most Notorious Figure of His Time . . . And of the Woman Who Loved Him.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Biscuit Eater"

A story about dogs suggests almost innumerable exploitation stunts. Stage a "mongrel pet show" for your juvenile patrons, awarding blue ribbons to unpedigreed dogs only. Have the kids stage a street parade, before the show, with their pets. If there is a trained hunting dog around town, persuade his master to allow him to go through his paces in a demonstration on the theatre stage. Blow up the cover of the "Saturday Evening Post," in which the story appeared, for a lobby centerpiece.

CATCHLINES:

A No-Good Dog and a Couple of Kids . . . In a Story That Will Make You Glad You're Alive.

A Story of Kids and Dogs in the Deep South . . . That's the Surprise Hit of the Season.

SELLING ANGLES: "Saturday's Children"

John Garfield, Anne Shirley and Claude Rains are the names for the marquee. Invite all those who can establish that they were born on Saturday to see the picture as your guests. Set up a special two-for-one admission rate for young married couples and secure the reactions of a few of them for use in advertising copy. It might be advisable to cite the fact that the original story, a Pulitzer Prize winning play, was written by Maxwell Anderson. Stills showing Garfield and Miss Shirley bowling can be planted with local bowling alleys.

CATCHLINES:

They Might Be You . . . This Young Couple . . . Who Lost Happiness and Found It Again.

She Tricked Him Into Marriage . . . Destroyed His Ambitions . . . Then Re-Built Them Again.

SELLING ANGLES: "'Til We Meet Again"

Star values here are strong and should be widely utilized. Large cutouts of the leading players should adorn the lobby well in advance of picture. Arrangements should be made with the more reputable bars to feature "Paradise" cocktails which figure so prominently in the story. Tieups can be made with travel agencies featuring trips to Honolulu. The romantic angles should be heavily underlined in all publicity.

CATCHLINES:

A Love as Eternal as Time Itself.

Their Love, Doomed by the Fates, Defied the Future.

Short Subject Reviews

Aristocrats of Fashion

Al Bondy-New York 10 Mins.

This is a commercial short available free to first run, key city theatres. It was sponsored by a rayon manufacturer—The American Bemberg Co.—and in Technicolor, displays John Powers models who act out a sketch in which are shown the various and colorful costumes made from this material. The comment is good, the advertising plugs many and the appeal to feminine audiences unlimited. It endeavors to be informal and girlish, but advertising is a trifle too much in evidence.

The Singing Dude

Vitaphone 18 Mins.

The shortest musical horse opera in Technicolor on record. Dennis Morgan, running away from the sheriff, sings himself into the good graces of the B Bar X ranch. The local sheriff is suspicious. Morgan rides for the salvation of the ranch and the whole affair winds up with a song. The color is good. The action is regulation girl-boy-horse. Fuzzy Knight plays stooge, Lucile Fairbanks the romantic interest. Fair to middlin'.

International Revels

Universal 17½ Mins.

The usual international brand of variety entertainment is offered here without any particular distinction or deviation from the night club setting and type of presentation. Representatives from Hawaii, Russia, Italy, Spain, France and the American Indian do their third-rate stuff, singing dancing, etc.

Cross Country Detours

Vitaphone (Merrie Melody) 7 Mins.

Along about the middle of this cartoon a sign is shown in which the management excuses itself for the responsibility of the gags that are pulled. Such stuff is needless. This Technicolor item has plenty of fresh humor and should easily have the audience roaring. It is a comic tour of the national parks and works in "unnatural" history as it describes various places. It should hit audiences like a shot in the arm.

Flycasting

RKO Pathe (Sportscope) 9 Mins.

This is a particularly good sporting reel to attract all the Waltonians interested in seeing how it is done on the grand scale. The accompanying narrative makes it comprehensible to all. Big fish are caught by experts using first rate equipment in the places that most fishermen dream about. As a final sporting gesture a big trout is released after putting up a game fight. Definitely worth while.

No Parking

Vitaphone (Variety) 10 Mins.

The Grouch Club, in session, takes up the case of a dumb bunny who fell for the line of chatter given him by a friend when he was about to get a ticket for parking in a restricted area. It costs him more than paying the fine ever would have. And the police make him out to be a dangerous criminal. It's told with humorous relief that relies heavily on standard situations.

Excursions in Science No. 6

Al Bondy-G. E. 10 Mins.

Laboratory experiments which later are applied to practical use are interesting as they are detailed here. Among the problems attempted and executed are the preparation of delicate springs from fused quartz and the steps in the manufacture of sodium lamps for highway illumination. The last mentioned is particularly interesting. It is worth while and may be had free upon application to the distributor in New York.

Men Wanted

This subject could easily run twice the length in which it is presented here and still be engrossing. It deals with the cities, industries, people and the like of Alaska. The emphasis in the narration is on how little man has penetrated the country. It is handsomely and interestingly filmed in color.

Information Please No. 8

RKO Pathe 10 Mins.

Ruth Gordon is the featured guest in this number. Kieran, Levant and Adams are also on hand as Fadiman pops the questions. Everyone concerned has a high old time which the audience will equally share. The queries range from wine-tasting to identifying an actor in the pose of a famous painting.

Tom Thumb Jr.

Universal 7½ Mins.

A first rate cartoon in every respect, this should give full satisfaction to children and adults. Its theme is the familiar Tom Thumb story and it concerns his escapades from such pursuers as a cat, a mousetrap, a family of geese and canned sardines. Well done and entertaining.

Pilgrim Porky

Vitaphone (Looney Tune) 7 Mins.

A parody on the crossing of the Mayflower, "Pilgrim Porky" has plenty of humor although there is evidence of a strain on the imagination for cartoon gags. The ship crosses with all sorts of ludicrous happenings. Good fun.

Romance in Rhythm

Vitaphone (Melody Master) 10 Mins.

Here is modern music played expertly and pleasantly by Carl Hoff and his orchestra. The vocals and novelty numbers are put over in good style by The Kidoodlers, the Three Randalls and Barry McKinley.

Columbia

Beware, Spooks!
Pleased on a double bill. While Joe E. Brown is not considered boxoffice any more, the younger set and kids like his dumb antics and will turn out to see him. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Golden Boy
Very nice but felt Barbara Stanwyck was miscast. Before you got through, you couldn't make up your mind either! Admission: 25-10. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington
Played late, but still fair boxoffice. When Frank Capra makes a picture it means something. Audience reaction very favorable Attendance a little over Saturday-Sunday average Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 165.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

First National

Smashing the Money Ring
Good picture of its type. Too many like this one and people won't get out. Business way off in spite of special price of 15 cents. Thursday. Weather: Cold. Rural patronage. Population: 1,300. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

We Are Not Alone
Good acting but it isn't entertainment. Sun., Mon. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Another Thin Man
This did not draw as well as I expected, although it was a nice program picture. Bill Powell and Myrna Loy combination always pleases 100 per cent though. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

At the Circus
More circus acts and less Marx Brothers would have been more interesting. I thought the trailer was misleading. Sun., Mon. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Babes in Arms
A swell picture. It ended too soon. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Babes in Arms
Good picture; however, too many spots in it where interest is not maintained for patrons. Mickey and Judy have quite a few admirers around here. Drew average. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,300. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Congo Maisie
Fair program picture. 'Nuf said. Attendance fair. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Cool. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 165.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

Dancing Co-Ed
Played on a double bill with "Henry Goes Arizona." Both fine. Everyone who had seen Lana (Turner) before, came back for more—and Artie Shaw's band is well liked here. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Lady of the Tropics
Consider this one a weak sister. Not much interest shown. Business poor. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 35-15. Small town and rural patronage. Population: 2,500. Capacity: 500.—Beatty & Johnston, Capitol, Red Deer, Alberta, Canada.

Ninotchka
Most people were skeptical of this one, but they needn't have been, for it was a good picture. Goes to prove that Garbo is very attractive when she smiles. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Secret of Dr. Kildare
The best one of the present series which were all good. Business above average for mid-week showing, audience seemed to enjoy it a lot. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Snow and wet. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Paramount

Cat and the Canary, The
This is a perennial favorite and this team (Bob Hope-Paulette Goddard) got over good. Bob Hope helped this old story a lot. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Cat and the Canary, The
Very spooky and went over fair with my audience. Will not break any boxoffice records, but then they do not allocate it that way. I was more than satisfied with it during Holy week. Weather: Cold. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Disputed Passage
Those who read the story were well pleased. Many thought title misleading. Had an idea it would be like "Northwest Passage." Admission: 25-10. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Law of the Pampas
Used on a Friday one day along with a Style show with live models. Business good with no complaints and no comments. I think that it is no better or no worse than previous Hopalong Cassidys and just above the average western. Weather: Cold. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

RKO Radio

Bachelor Mother
A honey of a show. An outstanding boxoffice attraction. It's a real comedy that brought the laughs from start until the fadeout. Play this one by all means. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 15-10. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelsteen Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

That's Right, You're Wrong
This picture drew very well and the music especially pleased. Kay Kyser not any more of a star than Rudy Vallee and like him belongs on the radio. OK in single doses. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

That's Right, You're Wrong
A picture that will satisfy the Kyser fans, but apart from them it is just another picture and will not stand up to the publicity given it by its producers. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 35-15. General patronage. Population: 750. Capacity: 320.—John E. Moore, Star, Coronation, Alta.

Republic

Jeepers Creepers
This is an ideal small town picture. They really ate it up. I wish they would make more like this one. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 184.—R. C. Vantrease, Rex, Watertown, Tenn.

Mountain Rhythm
Another good western. Gene Autry usually brings them in for small towns. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 184.—R. C. Vantrease, Rex, Watertown, Tenn.

Rovin' Tumbleweeds
Autry means rolling dollars in the till. We run Autry about once a month and he never fails to draw whatever the opposition. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

South of the Border
One of the biggest boxoffice naturals for the past three years. We opened a Saturday midnight show and we had a good turnout. Held it over for an extra day and played to three days outstanding business. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Good. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelsteen Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

20th Century-Fox

Charlie Chan in City of Darkness
About average Chan picture. Don't believe it quite as good as previous ones. However, still worth running, especially if population likes detective stories—and who doesn't? Tues., Wed. Weather: Cold. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,300. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Chicken Wagon Family
Why doesn't Fox give Jane some support by giving her better pictures for a change? That's all she needs, as she is a better boxoffice attraction than Shirley Temple here. Sat., Sun. Weather: Cold. Admission: 35-10. Rural patronage. Capacity: 250.—H. M. Weydahl, Killdeer, Killdeer, N. D.

Drums Along the Mohawk
A mighty fine picture. Drew above average crowd in spite of ground covered with three feet of snow. Nothing but praise from patrons. Color swell; we need more like this. Sun., Mon. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,300. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

United Artists

Four Feathers
Real good business on this. Opinions we found on it very different. We found the story rather difficult to follow as English pictures have poor sound. It's hard to get their dialogue. Mon., Tues. Weather: Mild. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

King of the Turf
Good show but no boxoffice draw. These horse race pictures do not seem to draw here. No boxoffice stars. Thursday. Weather: Cold. Admission: 15-10. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelsteen Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

Universal

Charlie McCarthy, Detective
Everyone likes "C. Mc," especially the kids. Did a fair business during "spring fever" weather when it takes plenty to draw them inside. Sun., Mon., Tues. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Destry Rides Again
Ran this picture five days and did over average business. This is really a good western. James Stewart has good style all of his own. Sorta reminds you of Will Rogers. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

First Love
Deanna Durbin has never been popular with us. But we did real well with this one. We had our annual spring fashion show and did SRO business. Sat., Sun. Weather: Rain. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Warner Bros.

Brother Rat and a Baby
"Brother Rat and a Baby" is a pleasing picture and assures an entertaining evening for your patrons. The child, Peter B. Good, is particularly appealing. Attendance a little above mid-week average. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 165.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

Brother Rat and a Baby
A nice follow-up picture, although did not have the zip the first one had. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

And BOXOFFICE Seconds This Exhibitor's Idea

In his latest correspondence to BOXOFFICE in which he reports on a number of pictures for the Exhibitor Has His Say department, Walter J. Buchholtz, who operates the New Haven, New Haven, Mo., includes a message for exhibitors.

"Why don't more exhibitors take the time to report how pictures did for them to this column? If the exhibitors will read picture reviews carefully and leave the 'duds' alone, the industry will be helped wonderfully. The customers don't like rotten shows."

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Artists to Pick Queen of American Colleges

New York—Five prominent artists and illustrators will judge Paramount's All-American College Queen contest, now under way in colleges throughout the nation.

From the 48 girls (one from each state) chosen by McClelland Barclay, Russell Patterson, Jaro Fabry, Dean Cornwell and Armando, 12 will be selected by readers of "Movie" and "Radio Guide" to attend the world premiere of "Those Were the Days" at Galesburg, Ill., on May 21. Knox College will be the host.

Ear-Eye Catching Stunt For "On Dress Parade"

DETROIT—Ear and eye-catching was the exploitation stunt used by Gil Green, manager of the Annex, for "On Dress Parade."

At the end of the regular feature, the operator silenced the equipment as the first frames of the trailer for the forthcoming "On Dress Parade" were started. Two girls, appearing on the stage, went into a tap routine audible throughout the house. Their tapping led directly into the trailer.

Novelty of the stunt was enough to arouse interest in itself, but it had even a better psychological effect. Those about to leave the house at this point sat down again and saw the trailer through. They apparently expected some sort of stage show when they saw the dancers.

Many-Sided Campaign for "Pinocchio" in Philly

PHILADELPHIA—A mechanical man dressed as "Pinocchio," who rode around town on a donkey, started off a many-sided campaign for the Disney film arranged by Al Reh, Stanley, and the Warner publicity office. Stunts included:

Forty thousand leaflets distributed through Parkway Baking Co.; 50,000 photographs distributed through music stores and schools; banners on 60 United News trucks; picture books in United Cigar stores; children's coloring contest sponsored by the Daily News; 100,000 leaflets placed at subway stores, in a cooperative limerick contest; radio contest on WIP and plugs on other stations; study guides distributed at schools; displays at every Free Library branch building, and tieups with Gillette Razor Co., General Foods, Kate Smith's program and Duco paint stores.

And, a special screening for critics, to which they were asked to bring their kids —to get the youngsters' reaction.

Spin for "Date"

NEW HAVEN—John Hesse held up traffic in the Roger Sherman lobby here with this attention-getter: A six-foot wheel, bearing the days of the month, was mounted, and patrons were invited to spin for April 10, opening day of "It's a Date." Guest tickets were the prizes. The wheel had to be stopped for parts of the day to get the crowds moving.

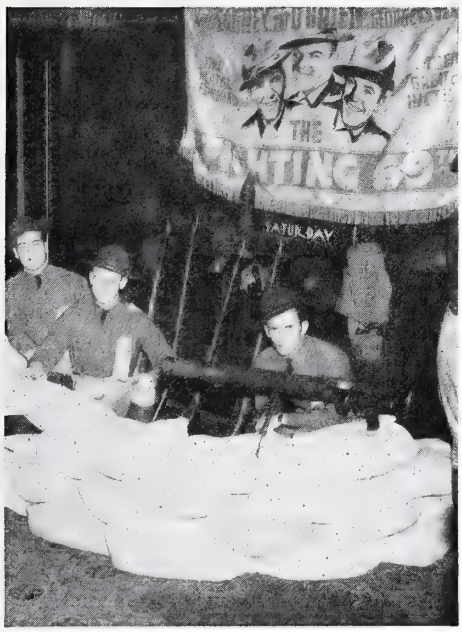
Novelty in Poster—

How the Roxy in New York posterized "My Little Chickadee." The display is three-dimensional and made entirely of paper from dime-store materials.

Educational, Moral Value Of "Blue Bird" Stressed

HARRISONBURG, VA.—A direct mail campaign to leading ministers and educators emphasizing the educational and moral value of "The Blue Bird" proved an effective part of the exploitation used by Manager Jack W. Fretwell of the State.

In the letters to the principals, an essay contest was outlined with tickets provided for the winning essays. Three thousand heralds were used and paid for by ads sold to local merchants, carrying theatre and playdate credits.



A special 40x60 lobby display emphasized the New York premiere and popular prices. Show cards and heralds were distributed throughout the county. A special six-sheet was posted on the side of the theatre a month in advance.

Martin Caracofe assisted Manager Fretwell.

Two Saddled Saw Horses In Window for "Destry"

SLATER, MO.—For "Destry Rides Again," Harold Sachse of the Kiva employed an empty window near the theatre in which he placed two saddled saw horses. A three-sheet cutout in the background carried the title, cast and playdate. A card between the saddles read, "Saddle up your troubles by seeing James Stewart and Marlene Dietrich clean up Bottle Neck in 'Destry Rides Again'."

Sachse had the local newspaper print up 500 cards, given at each break, that carried a safety pin at the top: "Just in case you cast aside all restraint and laugh off all your buttons, take this pin with you when you see, etc."

For the Fighters—

How Jack Truitt of the Electric Theatre, Kansas City, Kas., tied up with the Boy Scouts for an effective lobby display on "The Fighting 69th" which, incidentally, established a new Sunday record for the house.

By Dignifying His Show, He Offsets Competition

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Facing strong opposition, Manager Gene Curtis of the Paramount strengthened his show, consisting of "Sidewalks of London" and "Women Without Names," by calling the bill Academy Award Week" and adding two award-winning shorts, "The Ugly Duckling" and "Sons of Liberty."

Throughout the week the campaign emphasized Vivien Leigh's work in "Gone With the Wind" and the fact she received the Academy award. For two weeks in advance, a large display of cutout letters sold this as a four-unit award show. Large gold-painted "Oscars" were used with the display. A special trailer on the same theme also was used.

Window displays were secured in a pet shop with baby ducks, the London Tie Shop and London Luggage Shop. Special reader interest in the newspapers was percolated "for the first time in history."

It Gets the Idea Across, Anyway

Chester, Pa.—Charles Crowley of the State put this in the papers under "Personals":

"The gent who laughed his pants off at Garbo in 'Ninotchka' last night may have same by calling at the State Theatre."

Another stunt was planting capsules in all drug stores with note inserted stating that "for a good laugh see . . ." and so on. His newspaper ads were teasers; entire copy was "Garbo laughs," and the ads increased in size from day to day until opening night.

Para't Making Sectional Awards for "Cyclops"

CHICAGO—Paramount plans a new-type national exploitation contest for its "Dr. Cyclops," whereby there will be sectional winners in every territory.

The winners in the various exchange areas, according to Allen Usher, district manager, and Jim Donohue, branch manager, will be awarded round-trip all-expense tours to the Paramount lot. Details will be announced later, with Carl Krueger, studio publicist, here for the next few weeks to work with circuit and independent exhibitor heads on their participation in the contest.

An Effect of Bigness in Display for "Cyclops"

DETROIT—Patrons of the Palms-State are confronted by an array of gigantic pencils, rulers, pens and books (each over six feet high) in the lobby as advance plugs for "Dr. Cyclops."

Display card points out: "This is the way normal articles of everyday use would appear if they were the Doctor's victims." A six-foot telephone and a three-foot inkwell help to carry out the general effect. Surmounting the display is a massive cutout of the "Doctor" with lighted green eyes. Manager Don Kuhn is responsible for it all.

Furnishes Towels to Dry Their Tears of Laughter

MANHATTAN, KAS.—For "My Little Chickadee," Barnes Perdue of the Carlton had a bunch of paper towels cut in half, and the remainders were mimeographed: "Save This Towel, you'll need it to wipe away the tears of laughter when you see West-Fields in 'My Little Chickadee'." These were distributed house-to-house the Saturday before opening.

NUGGETS

HERE is what Charles H. Ryan, who edits the Warner exploitation bulletin for Chicago, has to say about advertising:

"In advertising, you will find by experience that nothing but the truth will pay you. Try to make your offerings sound and attractive by sticking to what you honestly believe to be the truth about them. If you are truthful in your statements, you will gain your patrons' confidence, and they will believe what they read in your advertising."

●

Charles Pincus, manager of the Centre, Salt Lake City, Utah, discovered an old prairie schooner which was used in the 1850's on the trails between Salt Lake City and Omaha and used it as part of his campaign for "Virginia City." The wagon was bannered and driven through the street, calling attention to the show.

●

Paramount has made a tieup with Jefferson Machamer and the McNaught syndicate whereby Machamer's daily cartoon strip and Sunday feature will carry a three weeks' continuity revolving around Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard who appear in "The Ghost Breakers."

●

Six hundred young art students participated in the coloring contest on "Northwest Passage" conducted by the Stamford, Stamford, Conn., in cooperation with the local press and the board of education.

●

Trick newspaper copy was used by Fox's Strand in Milwaukee to advertise "The Farmer's Daughter" and "Tillie's Punctured Romance," an oldie. Half of the copy appeared upside down with the explanatory box, "Any way you look at it, this is the greatest comedy show of the year!"

TIME'S A WASTIN'!

. . . Pack them thar shootin' irons, pardner, an git agoin'!

ON THE MERIT OF TENACITY

THAT old sage, the man who takes his hair down, was on the telephone. "Got anything special to do?" he was asking.

No, we had nothing on tap beyond the usual routine which long since had become a time-consuming monster anyway.

"Let's meet somewhere. I'd like to talk things over," was the prelude to what developed later. And so we did, in a quiet corner of the bar comfortably set behind a Scotch and soda and away he went.

"That stuff of yours. You know, about the fifth stab at self-sufficiency in the domestic market. I'm glad you're hammering away at it and I hope the lack of visible response won't make you give up," was his opener.

We hurried in with, "Not a chance. The situation, if anything, has become more pressing what with Norway and Denmark in the Nazi orbit and Sweden, a thriving market, the next in line of danger."

"That's swell. Tenacity has merit. Sometimes it can even be a virtue, but it doesn't matter how it's catalogued in this case so long as you hang on. I wanted to make certain you weren't wavering and, if you were, to try do something about it. But that's not all. I think you will be interested to learn that in one direction at least there is reason to believe your suggestion is taking root. Now, mind you, this hasn't come about because executive vision has opened up suddenly. My slant is it's traceable to deliberation born of desperation, or something close to it.

"That cuts no ice. I agree with you one of the difficult things to understand about this business is why nothing much happens to it, or about it, until it finds itself facing some sort of an economic firing squad. Then everyone gets busy, works on trade practice codes and promises to behave. Some fellows even fall all over themselves in their anxiety to sign consent decrees. Wonderful industry this, and a little tough to understand from time to time.

"However. The point is the self-sufficiency note, sound and necessary, seems to be seeping through some of the brains which should have figured it for themselves, and acted. You know, too, that if one company makes the readjustment, or moves in the direction of readjustment, the others are quite apt to follow. The carbon system in this business never fails.

"Frankly, I don't understand what some of the master minds can be thinking of. Discounting the hooey which has already crept into shot-in-the-arm publicity on Hollywood budgets for next season, it's a cinch costs for '40-41 will duplicate this year's, if they don't zoom higher. I don't know how the money is to be returned and I would venture to predict no one else does for that matter. The future, once more, seems to be rigged up on a beautiful program of wishful thinking and the kind of luck horseshoes are supposed to bring. It's all right, I suppose, but I'd hardly call it a proper formula to operate a $1,000,000,000 or more business.

"They insist it cannot be done, but they don't even try it. They look at 'Gone With the Wind' and its once-in-a-lifetime performance and imagine fondly it can be repeated every month. Boy, what a rude awakening is on the way! They think advanced admissions are now a trade practice because one extraordinary show got them. You'll be able to hear the teeth gnashing from the rock-bound coast of Maine, etc., if some of the geniuses persist in trying. It isn't in the cards.

"I note Spyros Skouras told the Fox convention it ought to be a case of higher admissions and longer playing time. Joe Schenck suggested that when the war broke out, but you ought to remember how the theatremen around the country threw it back in Joe's lap when they asked for better product to make longer runs possible. You ought to remember it. You reported it.

"They've got the answer right in their own hands, but they'll have to put the right and the left on closer speaking terms before either one recognizes it's attached to the same body.

"You said this was a time to play it conservatively. By that, I gather you mean as conservatively as this sort of an uncertain business can be. For my money, you happen to be right on this approach, even though I have disagreed with you on some others.

"They have a market here that can stand developing, but someone has to take the time out to do the job. It won't automatically deposit itself on anyone's doorstep. Hollywood will have to make up its own mind, or be told, the total picture doesn't glitter as alluringly as it used to and that a revision downward is inevitable. It's a timeless place; no one need worry about its survival."

We listened.

We nodded our head.

In fact, we yessed almost to death the man who took his hair down once more.

He said a whole editorial full.

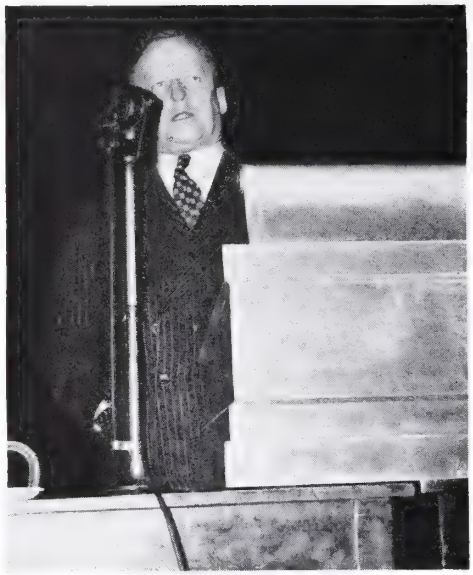
ALLIED FOR DECREE, PLUS DIVORCEMENT AND SANS COMPULSORY BLOCK BUYS, MYERS STATES

Also Reiterates Stand on Trade Practice Code To Halt "Abuses"

WASHINGTON—Allied would go for a consent decree, provided distributors agreed to divest themselves of theatres, compulsory block booking is removed and a code of fair trade practices covering general complaints and those "abuses" set forth in the government's suit were adopted.

In view of the Neely theatre divorcement bill and Allied's long-standing platform providing for exactly such a proposal, considerable speculation has been rampant over exactly what the organization's attitude toward current approaches on a possible settlement of the all-industry suit might be.



BOXOFFICE, therefore, asked Abram F. Myers this question:

"In your Boston speech late in January of last year, you urged inclusion of a trade practice code in a consent decree. Do you still favor the consent decree as a settlement method?"

To this, Myers replies:

"The statement read to Boston exhibitors was an outline of the ideal program for 1939. I presumed to say what I would do if I were in authority. I not only outlined a consent decree covering trade practices and block booking, but also divorcement. Inasmuch as you have mentioned only the former, I wish you would print all three points, as follows:

"First—I would, in cooperation with the department of justice, devise a plan whereby the producer-distributors could dispose of their theatre holdings gradually over a period of years so as to lessen the shock of the operation and enable the companies to realize a fair price for their properties.

"I then outlined a method for accomplishing this and proceeded as follows:

" 'Next, I would take immediate and substantial action to meet the objections of the public to compulsory block booking and blind selling.'

"Finally 'I would work out with the independent exhibitors a code of fair trade practices which would cover not only the customary complaints, but which would also provide against the other abuses set forth in the government's suit . . . This code I would endeavor to have included in a consent decree in the government's suit so that, in the future, the producer-distributors would be protected against the demands of the so-called independent chains for preferential treatment.'

"The three points, taken together, are as sound today as when uttered."

What Myers Also Said Before Boston Group

BOSTON—Abram F. Myers' address to which he refers in the Washington dispatch was printed and circulated among members attending the annual convention of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., Allied's New England affiliate, early in 1939.

In discussing a plan for theatre divorcement, he also remarked:

"This sort of thing has been accomplished many times under dissolution decrees, the commonest procedure being to issue to stockholders of the parent company negotiable certificates of beneficial interest in the stock of the subsidiary, convertible for actual shares by any holder who files an affidavit that he is not interested directly or indirectly in the parent company, such stock being trusteed during the process of conversion."

On a method of eliminating, or curtailing, compulsory block booking his observations were:

" . . . I would give serious consideration to the Allied proposal to the distributors' negotiating committee [a reference to trade practice deliberations] that they identify as many pictures as possible and then grant a larger cancellation privilege for undesignated pictures, so that the economic urge will be against, not for, blind selling. And I would fire the first lawyer or industry politician who tried to clutter up the commitment with trick clauses designed to defeat the operation."

On arbitration to which Myers made recent reference in a statement to BOXOFFICE, he stated a year ago January:

"I would join in setting up a fair and effective arbitration machinery for interpreting and applying the provisions of the code in the first instance. If the procedure is fair and is honestly administered, I would have confidence that few, if any, cases would be carried beyond this stage and that litigation would be reduced to a minimum."

May Ask Joseph Schenck Dismissal From Suit

NEW YORK—Unless there is a last-minute switch in plans, a motion will be presented to Judge Henry Goddard on April 27 seeking dismissal of Joseph M. Schenck as a defendant in the key government suit on the ground there "has been absolutely no evidence of any sort of wrong doing" on the part of the 20th Century-Fox board chairman as it bears on alleged conspiracy.

The motion will be submitted by John Caskey of Dwight, Harris, Koegel and Caskey, and will point out no specific acts of alleged conspiracy are contained either in the government's original petition, in its bill of particulars and subsequent supplemental bills that would link Schenck to the acts charged against 20th Century-Fox.

The April 27 action might also be designed to vitiate the subpoena duces tecum that is understood to have been served upon Schenck in Hollywood.

All's Not Lost, But It May Be

NEW YORK—It's not out of the running yet. Not by a long shot, but original proponents of a consent decree to close out the all-industry suit continue to experience much trouble among themselves in arriving at an accord.

The turn in the course of events last week made the eastern, and final, edition of BOXOFFICE, which reported:

"If weekend reports from the inside are to be credited, the negotiations for the consent decree that would settle the all-industry suit, either are on the rocks or approaching them. The difficulty reputedly traces to the inability of the interested parties to get together on language into which the principles must be reduced before a final draft becomes possible for consideration of the decree proponents as well as the commerce and justice departments. It is probably inadvisable to draw the conclusion that negotiations have collapsed, or even face collapse, but the best informed opinion inclines to view either as a possibility that cannot be discounted."

This approach, it was learned during the week, continues to prevail. But it takes on further credence through an off-the-record statement made by an individual who, by all the signs, is, or ought to be, in full possession of the facts. He says:

"The principals concerned with settlement talks are so far apart on what they are willing to concede, plus the fact that the department of justice has its own ideas, that it doesn't look as if they'll be able to consolidate their views.

"I look for a trial."

KUYKENDALL AGAINST INTERFERENCE BY GOV'T; SAYS SELF-REGULATION IS THE ROAD TO PEACE

Discounts Consent Decree Efficacy; Sees No Neely Letup Trailing Accord

BOXOFFICE telegraphed E. L. Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, for his reactions to the negotiations looking toward a consent decree. His point of view, based on news stories which have already appeared in this publication, follows:

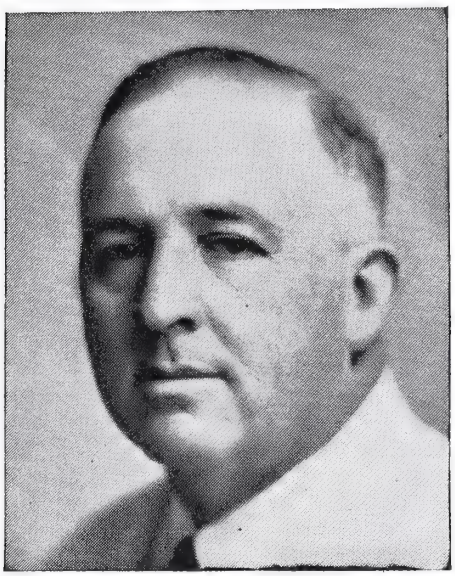
By E. L. KUYKENDALL

COLUMBUS, MISS.—I preface any of my statements with a reiteration of my belief that we, as an industry, should and could iron out our differences if there were a sincerity of purpose on the part of all concerned.

There should be no governmental regulation.

There would not be any governmental regulation if we made a realistic approach to the problems involved. MPTOA has consistently, over a period of years, pleaded for fair trade practices so that the independent, or smaller, theatre owner might have a reasonable feeling of security in this rapidly expanding industry.



MPTOA has a complete appreciation of how that exhibitor, who has been unfairly treated by powerful, over aggressive theatre operators, feels. We know he has reached the stage of favoring any regulation, or law, whether he would benefit by it or not since he has little to lose anyway. But, in many instances, he has allowed a temporary cloud to blind his vision and he will eventually learn he will suffer most if such legislation as the Neely bill is enacted.

Sees No Neely Letup

Firstly, I do not believe that the working out of a consent decree will remove pressure on the part of the Neely bill sponsors. They are bitterly determined for legislation that will tend to regulate this industry.

The meetings between distributor and governmental agencies still have not gone much beyond the formulative stage as to the consent decree proposals of the department of commerce. But, if there must be policing by the government, it is my opinion the department of commerce is the proper agency. There are complicated mechanics involved because this is a muchly complicated industry. A national blanket that will cover all situations and localities is almost an impossibility. Therefore, I doubt seriously whether a consent decree that would be acceptable to all factions can be worked out.

On the other hand, I do know a trade agreement satisfactory to a vast majority can, and will, eventually be worked out. But there must be a sincerity of purpose on the part of all who enter into it and in this we have been sadly lacking. However, the consent decree is probably the first serious effort to cure some of the ills of our industry and cannot but be of material assistance in bringing about something constructive, whether those constructive measures work out in their entirety or not.

I note that divorcement has become a more or less secondary issue in the discussions. This kind of legislation has always struck me as the wrong approach. No good could come of it, for the independent theatre owner would still be there and common sense tells us he would continue to operate.

The main issue seems to be an effort to restrain chain expansion of the over aggressive type so as to prevent such chains from taking unfair and destructive advantages. This, naturally, becomes highly controversial, for, when it comes to defining what is unfair, many entangling issues crop up. These issues, of course, vary in different localities. Yet, it can be worked out and the approach as outlined in BOXOFFICE seems reasonable.

No "Wide Open" Field

In my opinion there can never be complete free and open competition in this business as defined by the general acceptance of this term. The mechanics of our industry naturally prohibit it. It would bring about a very definite cheapening of production and exhibition and take us back many years, if we survived at all. Of course, the consent decree, or any other legislation, cannot make a success out of a poor business man and he cannot be taken care of by legislation. His only hope is in keeping step with our rapidly growing business.

A consent decree, a Neely bill or any other regulation or legislation will fall far short of bringing peace unless it fairly and sincerely treats with the following problems which are the fundamentals but do not cover them all.

1.—The right of the exhibitor to reject unsuitable pictures, for whatever reason. In other words, cancellation.

2.—Conciliation — arbitration. Local boards, fairly set up with authority to settle disputes. The boards to be evenly balanced as to representation. One national board will not suffice.

3.—Restriction on the powerful buyer that would prohibit unfair advantages over the independent, or smaller, exhibitor.

4.—Reasonable restrictions as to ruthless expansion of circuits or any individuals that unfairly destroy the investment of the so-called small exhibitor. I do not mean by this the curbing of fair and reasonable development of business, based on ability and initiative.

5.—Clearance. Definitely important and a sore spot of the industry. Clearance has been badly abused in many places and is the cause of many lawsuits.

Of course and in addition to these, there are many vital and complicated angles, involving the buying and selling of pictures, such as the forcing of shorts, newsreels, reissues and others as covered in our MPTOA ten-point program and fairly well covered in the defunct code, but covered well in the right of the exhibitor to reject unsuitable pictures for any cause.

In my personal opinion, one so-called national exhibitor group will never accept any kind of consent decree, regardless of its nature. But it is my hope that there will eventually come out of all this turmoil and hatreds something definitely right and constructive so that we may be saved from the present situation which is destroying us.

And, finally, the exhibitor must have a fairer break. He is not permitted to retain sufficient of his boxoffice receipts, but, of course, this cannot be cured by a consent decree. Rather must it come out of a fairer selling attitude.

Lists Five Fundamentals Says Any Form of Rule Imposed Must Include

Kuykendall Warns of Special Tax Legislation

NEW YORK—The menace of special tax burdens, despite the fact that most state legislatures do not meet this year in regular sessions and congress is deferring the tax question until next year, is "becoming very ominous," Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, states in a bulletin. He urges a well-organized front against discriminatory levies on theatres.

Observing pending developments in legislation and litigation may become "top-heavy" to exhibitors who are not prepared "to weather the storm if and when it breaks," Kuykendall suggests operators analyze their position to determine "exactly where it is strong and where it is weak, what you can afford to pay for attractions, and what its possibilities are in the way of admission prices and additional patronage."

Notes to You from Red Kann

PETE HARRISON, a Radio City neighbor, enters upon a fine-line discussion of "would" and "might" in seeking to break down our argument, pretty well-defined by this time, that the Neely bill is dangerous because it suggests the possibility of censorship rising in unknown directions from unknown sources. The synopsis provision, of course, is the key to this approach.

Pete thinks that argument hollow. He also maintains Abram Myers, recently invited to make answer, which he did, shattered this front beyond all repair. This being our own space in which the typewriter wanders at random, but never dodges the responsibility for what comes out, Harrison won't mind if we stand once more where we stood twice, or more, before.

For, no conclusive argument has hit this desk to persuade it to alter its conviction.

It might be asserted, in fact it has, this conviction is whacky. Anyway, it belongs to us and a number of others appear to share it. They are not, by the way, necessarily distributors or opponents of the bill.

Pete rests his case on his own assumption that he knows, blow by blow, what "would happen" under Neely enactment and he appears to believe any reflection over what "might happen" is unimportant. Assuming his premise to be correct, nevertheless he overlooks unseen and unexpected—and even unplanned—upsurges which very frequently accompany new and untried legislation. This is where the "might happen" comes in. This is why now is the time to endeavor to figure out the future, dispassionately and without partisanship. Before enactment, not after.

Letter Box

Jack O'Connell, Toledo exhibitor, recently took a poke at Harry Goldberg, publicity impresario for the Warner circuit, on the latter's observations anent independent production and the Neely bill. Now, in what may be the last word, up comes Goldberg with:

> "He [O'Connell] is firing in the wrong direction. He has no fight with me, but with the people in favor of the Neely bill. They invented the argument that the passage of the bill will improve independent production. Mr. O'Connell agrees with me that the Neely bill will have no effect on independent production.
> "Refuting the claim that the bill would improve independent pictures, I cited the evidence that, since the advent of sound, none of the pioneering and improvement in quality has been done by the independents.
>
> "Clarifying his other point—I didn't say that independents couldn't make better pictures, or couldn't pioneer. I merely said they hadn't and didn't. And how would the Neely bill change their policies?
>
> "The statement that the bill will improve the quality of independent production was invented to persuade law makers, women's clubs and various other public associations interested in better movies to favor the bill. I am glad to know that Mr. O'Connell agrees with me that the Neely bill would have no such effect on independent production."

Get Off Where?

According to calculations reached around the Hays office, and so reported which was a couple of weeks ago, the average boxoffice dollar cuts up into these hunks:

Film rentals, 35 per cent; payroll, 25; real estate, taxes and insurance, 19; advertising, eight; light, heat, maintenance and repairs, five, and miscellaneous, including extra attractions, eight.

A fine array of figures and they've been attracting attention, too. There is William A. London of Associated Theatres, Detroit, who wants to know:

"Assuming that you did not print this article merely to fill your space and assuming further that it was meant for business people to read, I am quite puzzled with the following question. Your breakdown accounts for full 100 per cent of the receipts. Now, my question is, where is the exhibitor's profit?"

There is, also, Eddie Grainger, general manager of the Mort Shea circuit which grosses a tidy $4,000,000 a year. He's after an answer to the same query, of interest to him, to London and countless other theatremen, as well might be imagined.

Answers the source of the breakdown:

"The profit item is included under 'Miscellaneous.'"

Rebuts Grainger:

"That's damned nice of them. It also conveys a pretty good idea of how much of a net the distributor thinks the exhibitor rates."

20th-Fox's Selling To Stay Flexible

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox's sales formula for the new season retains the flexibility which has characterized the company's policy during previous years, according to Herman Wobber, general sales manager.

"We are following the same flexible policy," Wobber stated on his return from the Chicago convention. He added selling of the 1940-41 lineup already is under way.

Last year, it is understood, top percentage sought was 40 per cent. Six to eight pictures are included in this bracket, depending on the territory. Present plans call for no special productions to be made that will necessitate separate contracts.

While the top bracket group will be flexible, the other groups will more or less follow this year's setup of ten, 16 and 16, designated in each section; but still with percentage figures based upon the possibilities of each situation.

With the budget increased by $2,000,000 over the current one, the company will seek higher rentals to make up for the added negative costs, it is reported.

Stating the industry is beset with more problems than ever before in its history, Wobber says it is time for the exhibitor to realize his responsibilities. Is he getting the most out of a picture and is he using enough showmanship? he asks.

"The problem of admission prices around the country should be analyzed more carefully," Wobber believes. "I understand there are only approximately 100 theatres which charge over 40 cents admission as compared to the approximate 2,000 which did so before the admission tax went into effect in 1932. Maybe that is the answer to what ails the industry," he added.

"Exhibs Must Help"—Schenck; "Higher Prices Need"—Skouras

CHICAGO—Joseph M. Schenck again emphasized the need for exhibitors to help the producers pay the freight during these changing times in his talk before the 20th Century-Fox conventioneers.

"With the foreign situation as it is today," he said, "the producers are faced with getting practically all of their revenue return on their pictures in this country now. Exhibitors must be sympathetic to the producers' problems by giving the proper terms and playing time on the top pictures; and it, of course, behooves the producers to turn out such big pictures that will deserve extra playing time and extra revenue return."

Spyros Skouras told the conventioneers it is necessary for exhibitors to strive toward a goal of higher admission prices and longer runs.

At the same time, he added definitely it is necessary for producers to supply the quality that will warrant such added playing time and greater admission prices.

Plan Big Ad Campaign

CHICAGO—Charles E. McCarthy, director of 20th Century-Fox advertising and publicity, told the convention the company will spend about $2,700,000 on advertising in 1940-41. Most of this will be in newspapers.

The biggest single picture campaign lined up to date will be that for "Lillian Russell," which will include newspapers, fan and general magazines, and radio.

New 20th-Fox Pacts Will Cover One Sheet

Chicago — Twentieth Century-Fox's 1940-41 contract forms will be printed all on one sheet, although each group of pictures will be a separate and distinct contract as before, Felix Jenkins, general counsel, said while here.

"This is being done to facilitate matters," said Jenkins, "and there will be no forcing of shorts or news whatever. The four contracts to be printed on the one sheet will be the feature contract, reissues contract (if any), newsreel, and short subjects."

Washington Asking Who'll Trail Neely

WASHINGTON—With Senator Matthew M. Neely in the race for the governorship of West Virginia, independent exhibitors next year will have to get a new advocate in Congress.

While the Senator's term in Washington does not expire for another two years, and, therefore, he will still be a member of the Senate if defeated in the gubernatorial race—the odds are heavy that he will not be defeated.

Since there is little likelihood of either the block-booking or divorce bill being enacted by Congress this year, those measures will be left hanging in mid-air if the Senator quits Washington. Since this is the final session of the 76th Congress, barring a special meeting called by President Roosevelt, the film bills and all other pending measures die upon adjournment.

There is considerable doubt as to the identity of Senator Neely's successor as Congressional defender of the independent exhibitors. The only candidate who can be considered active is Congressman Lyle H. Boren of Oklahoma, now serving his second term in the House, who has talked considerably of what he thought should be done with the industry and a year ago drafted a bill for its regulation, but has never introduced and fought for motion picture legislation.

In the Senate there appears to be no one who aspires to take up the fight where the West Virginia Senator will leave off. In both the 75th and 76th Congresses, Neely has been the only member of that body to introduce film control legislation.

Several members of the House have introduced block booking measures, but in the past year or two have made no active fight for their enactment. Representative Andrew Edmiston of West Virginia sponsored the Neely bill in the lower body, and similar measures were introduced last year by Representatives Francis D. Culkin and Emanuel Celler of New York.

On the basis of past performance, therefore, there is no active heavyweight contender for the crown.

Little New in U. S. Answer to Majors

NEW YORK—A further answer to interrogatories filed by the government in its key suit totals 195 pages, covers the same ground outlined in its first answer which ran 310 pages and varies from it in that it now cites the alleged facts attributed to each individual earlier named as a possessor of those facts.

A breakdown reveals 219 names of individuals in 36 key cities presumably having information of first run monopoly, a list of 28 independent producers who claim they could not get outlets for their product, a list of 289 persons allegedly familiar with first run monopoly, another of 132 instances claiming enforced block booking and 28 examples of defendants claimed to have entered contracts between themselves without binding obligation. Included as well is a list of alleged pools, refusals to modify contracts and information purporting to demonstrate a decline in production.

The answer is verified by Paul Williams, government prosecutor, and the facts are declared to have been drawn largely from sub-committee hearings on interstate commerce in the United States senate.

Six Additional Executives Undergo Pre-Examination

NEW YORK—Sidney R. Kent, Joseph Bernhard, George J. Schaefer, William Sussman, William J. Kupper and William C. Gehring, the latter three eastern, western and central division managers, respectively, for 20th Century-Fox, this week completed pre-trial examinations before John Wright in the government's key suit.

This leaves Nate Blumberg, Jules Levy, Harry and Jack Warner, Darryl F. Zanuck, Herman Wobber, Nicholas M. Schenck, Louis B. Mayer and C. C. Moskowitz yet to appear. Although this group was to have completed examinations before May 1, the original date for the trial, it is known no concern is felt at the department of justice if the examinations carry over to next month.

More Trade Figures Named As Material Witnesses

NEW YORK—Indicating the government intends pursuing its preparations for trial, Judge Henry W. Goddard has signed an order for issuance of subpoenas ad testificandum for Charles Chaplin, Samuel Goldwyn, Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck, Louis B. Mayer and E. V. Richards. They are to be instructed to appear as material witnesses.

Television Station for Dumont Is Planned

NEW YORK—Dumont, television company in which Paramount has a half interest, expects to open a television station capable of transmitting pictures from 200 to 800-line definition by September 1, according to Paul Raibourn, who is treasurer of Allen G. Dumont Laboratories and a Paramount executive. The FCC granted the license April 13.

Monogram Plans 50, Hikes Its Budgets, Increases Quotas

DALLAS—Dividing its 1940-41 schedule almost evenly between features and westerns, Monogram will release 50 films next season. The former group will include 26 and the outdoor series, 24.

According to W. Ray Johnston, president of the company who is serving as chairman of the franchise holders' convention at the Baker Sunday and Monday, budgets for 14 features in the top bracket are to be increased 50 per cent while the cost of the remaining 12 of the top 26 will be hiked 30 per cent.

Peak budgets for this company are slated to go to "The Pioneers," an early American story based on the novel by James Fenimore Cooper; "The Ape," a Broadway play to star Boris Karloff and written by Adam Hull Shirk; "Land of the Sky Blue Water" which will include a song of that title as well as "At Dawning" by Charles Wakefield Cadman and "The King and the Cowboy," described as a "Graustarkian romance of a boy king."

Other properties include:

"Under Northern Skies" and "Land of the Long Shadows" by Jack London.

"Dollar Chasers," Saturday Evening Post story by Earl Derr Biggers.

"Her Father's Daughter" by Gene Stratton Porter.

"Freckles Comes Home," designed as a sequel to "Freckles" by Gene Stratton Porter.

"The Old Swimmin' Hole," suggested by the James Whitcomb Riley poem. Co-starred will be Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran. They also will appear in "Sweet Sixteen" and "Day Dreams."

"College Sweetheart," Woman's Home Companion story by Leona Dalrymple.

"I Cover the Town," "You're Out of Luck," "The Sky's the Limit" and "My Home Town" with Frankie Darro.

"Boys of the City" and "That Gang of Mine" with the East Side Kids.

"While Frisco Sleeps," "Million Dollar Mystery," "Phantom of Chinatown" and "Alias Jimmy Hogan," all writted by Wiley. They appeared in Collier's with James Lee as the central character.

"One Glorious Adventure" by Dorothy Reid and Betty Burbridge.

"Orphans of the North," a Norman Dawn production.

Tex Ritter will star in a series of eight musical westerns, Fred Scott in a second series of eight and a new team made up of John King and Ray Corrigan in a third. They will be billed as "The Two Pals." This is the series George W. Weeks will make.

Johnston states the new sales quota has been fixed at $9,225,000, or an increase of $375,000. He declares the new objective represents more than a $3,000,000 lift since 1937 when the reorganized Monogram held its first convention.

Conventioneers will include W. Ray Johnston, president; Scott R. Dunlap, vice-president in charge of production; Edward Finney, associate producer; Ralph Bettinson, foreign representative; Charles Bigelow, assistant production head; Ernest Hickson, technical director; Howard Stubbins, president, Monogram of California; Mel Hulling, west coast district manager, and William Peirce, studio publicity director. Chiefly from the west, they will be augmented by Tex Ritter, Fred Scott, Martin Spellman, Ray Corrigan and Marjorie Reynolds.

Included in those who journeyed from New York are Edward A. Golden, general sales manager; Steve Broidy and Ben Welansky, Boston; Harry Berkson, Albany; George West and Harry Thomas, New York; Louis S. Lifton, director of advertising and publicity; Lloyd Lind, John Harrington, manager of accessories and prints; Norton V. Richey, foreign manager, and Edward G. Schieber, assistant treasurer.

M-G-M May Forego Nat'l Convention

CHICAGO—There is a possibility that M-G-M may not have a national sales convention this year at which all salesmen will attend, but that instead a group of district confabs may be held to discuss the 1940-41 product with home office and studio executives, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, said here this week.

The sales chief added that M-G-M to date has sold more theatres than all last season, or any one season thus far.

Rodgers said that with two-day dates now being taken for "Gone With the Wind," the general 70 per cent rental deal will still hold for those contracts. He added that in some situations where exhibitors and M-G-M cannot get together on house expenses to be figured on the 70-30 split, the guarantee of profits is not being written in. However, wherever exhibitors ask for the guarantee and produce "expense figures" satisfactory to M-G-M, they will be granted the guarantee for two-day runs the same as was done for the longer runs, he said.

Portrait of the late Gabriel L. Hess, autographed by him for Jack Levin of the Copyright Protection Bureau.

No Replacement for Hess Seen; Staff Will Assume His Duties

NEW YORK—The expectancy is that the post of general attorney of the Hays association, made vacant by the sudden death of Gabriel L. Hess, will remain unfilled for the time being at least, while the duties of that office are absorbed by other members of the staff.

Hess, for years in his late post, died early Sunday morning at his home at 33 East 70th St. following two years of indifferent health. The immediate cause was coronary thrombosis. Hess, that evening, had listened to the Toscanini broadcast, was preparing to retire when the attack came. He died with his wife, the former Linda Watkins, at his side and before a doctor could reach him. Services were held privately from his home Tuesday and the remains cremated.

Hess was 59 years old. Born in New York City, he was a graduate of City College. He served as secretary to a state supreme court justice and later became interested in theatrical law. In 1916, he became general counsel of Paramount Distributing Corp., three years later assuming a similar post with the original Goldwyn Pictures Corp. In 1924, approximately with formation of the MPPDA, he joined the organization as its general attorney.

Additionally, Hess was the general attorney of the Copyright Protection Bureau, in association with Edward A. Sargoy and Joseph L. Stein. This fact-finding bureau, financed by major distributors, has Jack H. Levin as its general manager.

In comment, Will H. Hays issued the following statement: "Gabriel Hess was a gentle man. He had courage and understanding; he had faith and had charity. Brilliant in intellect, rockbound in integrity, splendid in his loyalties, he was one who dwelt in the inner places of the hearts of those who knew him. For 16 years general attorney of this association, Gabriel Hess always was far more than a member of our official family here. He was my counsellor and my deeply loved friend."

Aside from Mrs. Hess, survivors are two sons, Thomas B., an undergraduate at Yale, and Adam, who is seven; and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Hess Wolff.

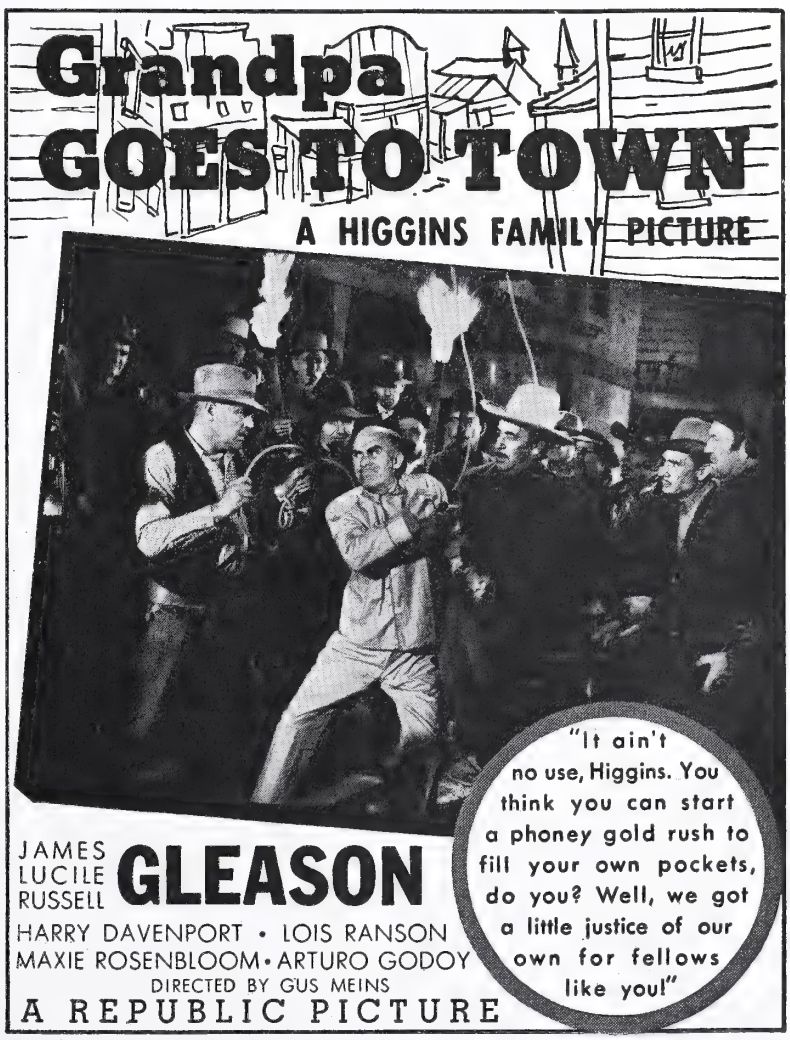
Air Giveaway Opinion Exhibitor Setback

WASHINGTON—The "Pot O' Gold" program and other radio features of similar character do not violate the lottery provisions of the communications act, in the opinion of the department of justice.

This bad news for exhibitors, who had hoped to secure the banning of radio prize programs which they complained were costing them $1,000,000 a week in admissions, was conveyed to the federal communications commission in a letter from Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge.

Six weeks of study of the problem laid before it by the FCC on February 19, resulted in a decision April 10 that the "Pot O' Gold," "Mead's Bakery" and other programs of like nature were not in violation of the law.

"After a thorough examination of the material submitted and a careful consideration of the facts presented, the department has concluded that prospective action under Section 316 of the communications act of 1934 in these two matters should not be instituted," Rogge said.



Complaints against the Tums program began to reach the communications commission at the turn of the year. During January, also, members of congress received letters from exhibitor constituents, asking their aid, and demand was made in the House that the FCC take the matter up at once. The commission studied the complaints and decided they were a subject for the department of justice.

No Convention Rush

NEW YORK—Paramount has no immediate plans for a sales convention, Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager, informs BOXOFFICE. He is back on the job after a vacation in Mexico with his wife. Asked whether the sales conclave would be held later than usual, Agnew was of the opinion there was "no rush."

Big Premiere Is Major Triumph For a Small Film Company

Success of Showing of "The Dark Command" at Lawrence Justifies Expenditure of Tremendous Effort by Republic Pictures, The Star's Film Editor Finds —High Caliber in All Its Phases.

By John C Moffitt
(The Star's Motion Picture Editor.)

LAWRENCE, KAS., April 4.—The eyes of Hollywood were turned on Lawrence tonight to see the climax of a gallant story of infant motion picture company fighting its way up from "poverty row" to claim recognition in a high pressure and ruthlessly competitive industry. The name of the company was Republic Pictures and the production basket in which it had placed most of its assets was "The Dark Command." One could not say the executives of Republic had placed all of their eggs in one basket for "egg" is a term of derision in the show business and no eggs are laid in this picture.

It and the company came through with colors flying.

Though here on the Missouri-Kansas border where history has its many partisan interpreters there may be some difference of opinion concerning the historic accuracy of the film, there can be little debate over its caliber as a money maker and as a piece of entertainment. Full of action, smartly paced, with many deftly drawn characterizations, the film lacked only technicolor to be the equal of "Dodge City." Its story is better constructed and freer from hokum than that of "Virginia City," touted as the year's most sumptuous western. Theater men from Missouri and Kansas were unanimous in pronouncing it a "showman's picture" which is simply a trade name of a popular success.

Director Not Present.

Unfortunately the man who was responsible for the triumph was not here. This was the director, Raoul Walsh, who in this tale of violence and hard-riding repeats the success of the "Roaring Twenties" which was one of the big hits of last year. The casting of a new James Cagney film kept him from being in Lawrence.

Probably the most important commercial element in the new film is the emergence of John Wayne as an actor of sureness and character. Mr Wayne, like Gary Cooper before him, has been known through many films as a good-looking leading man who could ride horseback. As such, he satisfied in "Stage Coach," "The Big Trail" and many other outdoor films. But not until last night at Lawrence had anyone suspected that John Wayne could make his mark as an actor. He portrays a rangy Texan who ambles into pre-Civil war Lawrence amicably ignorant and honestly shrewd. Soon he is running for town marshal, flouting the brilliant schoolteacher Quantrill (or Cantrell, as the picture calls him), and walking up to the belle of the town with the bland announcement that he is going to marry her.

This calls for smooth work as a light comedian. The feminine chuckles that greeted his courtship scenes last night were spontaneous and continuous. They meant that John Wayne has become more than an action star for little boy audiences on Saturday afternoons. The scene of his proposal to Claire Trevor before the Lawrence bank is as good as the celebrated front porch scene between Jim Cagney and Priscilla Lane in "Roaring Twenties" which inspired so much fan mail last summer.

Shows New Quality.

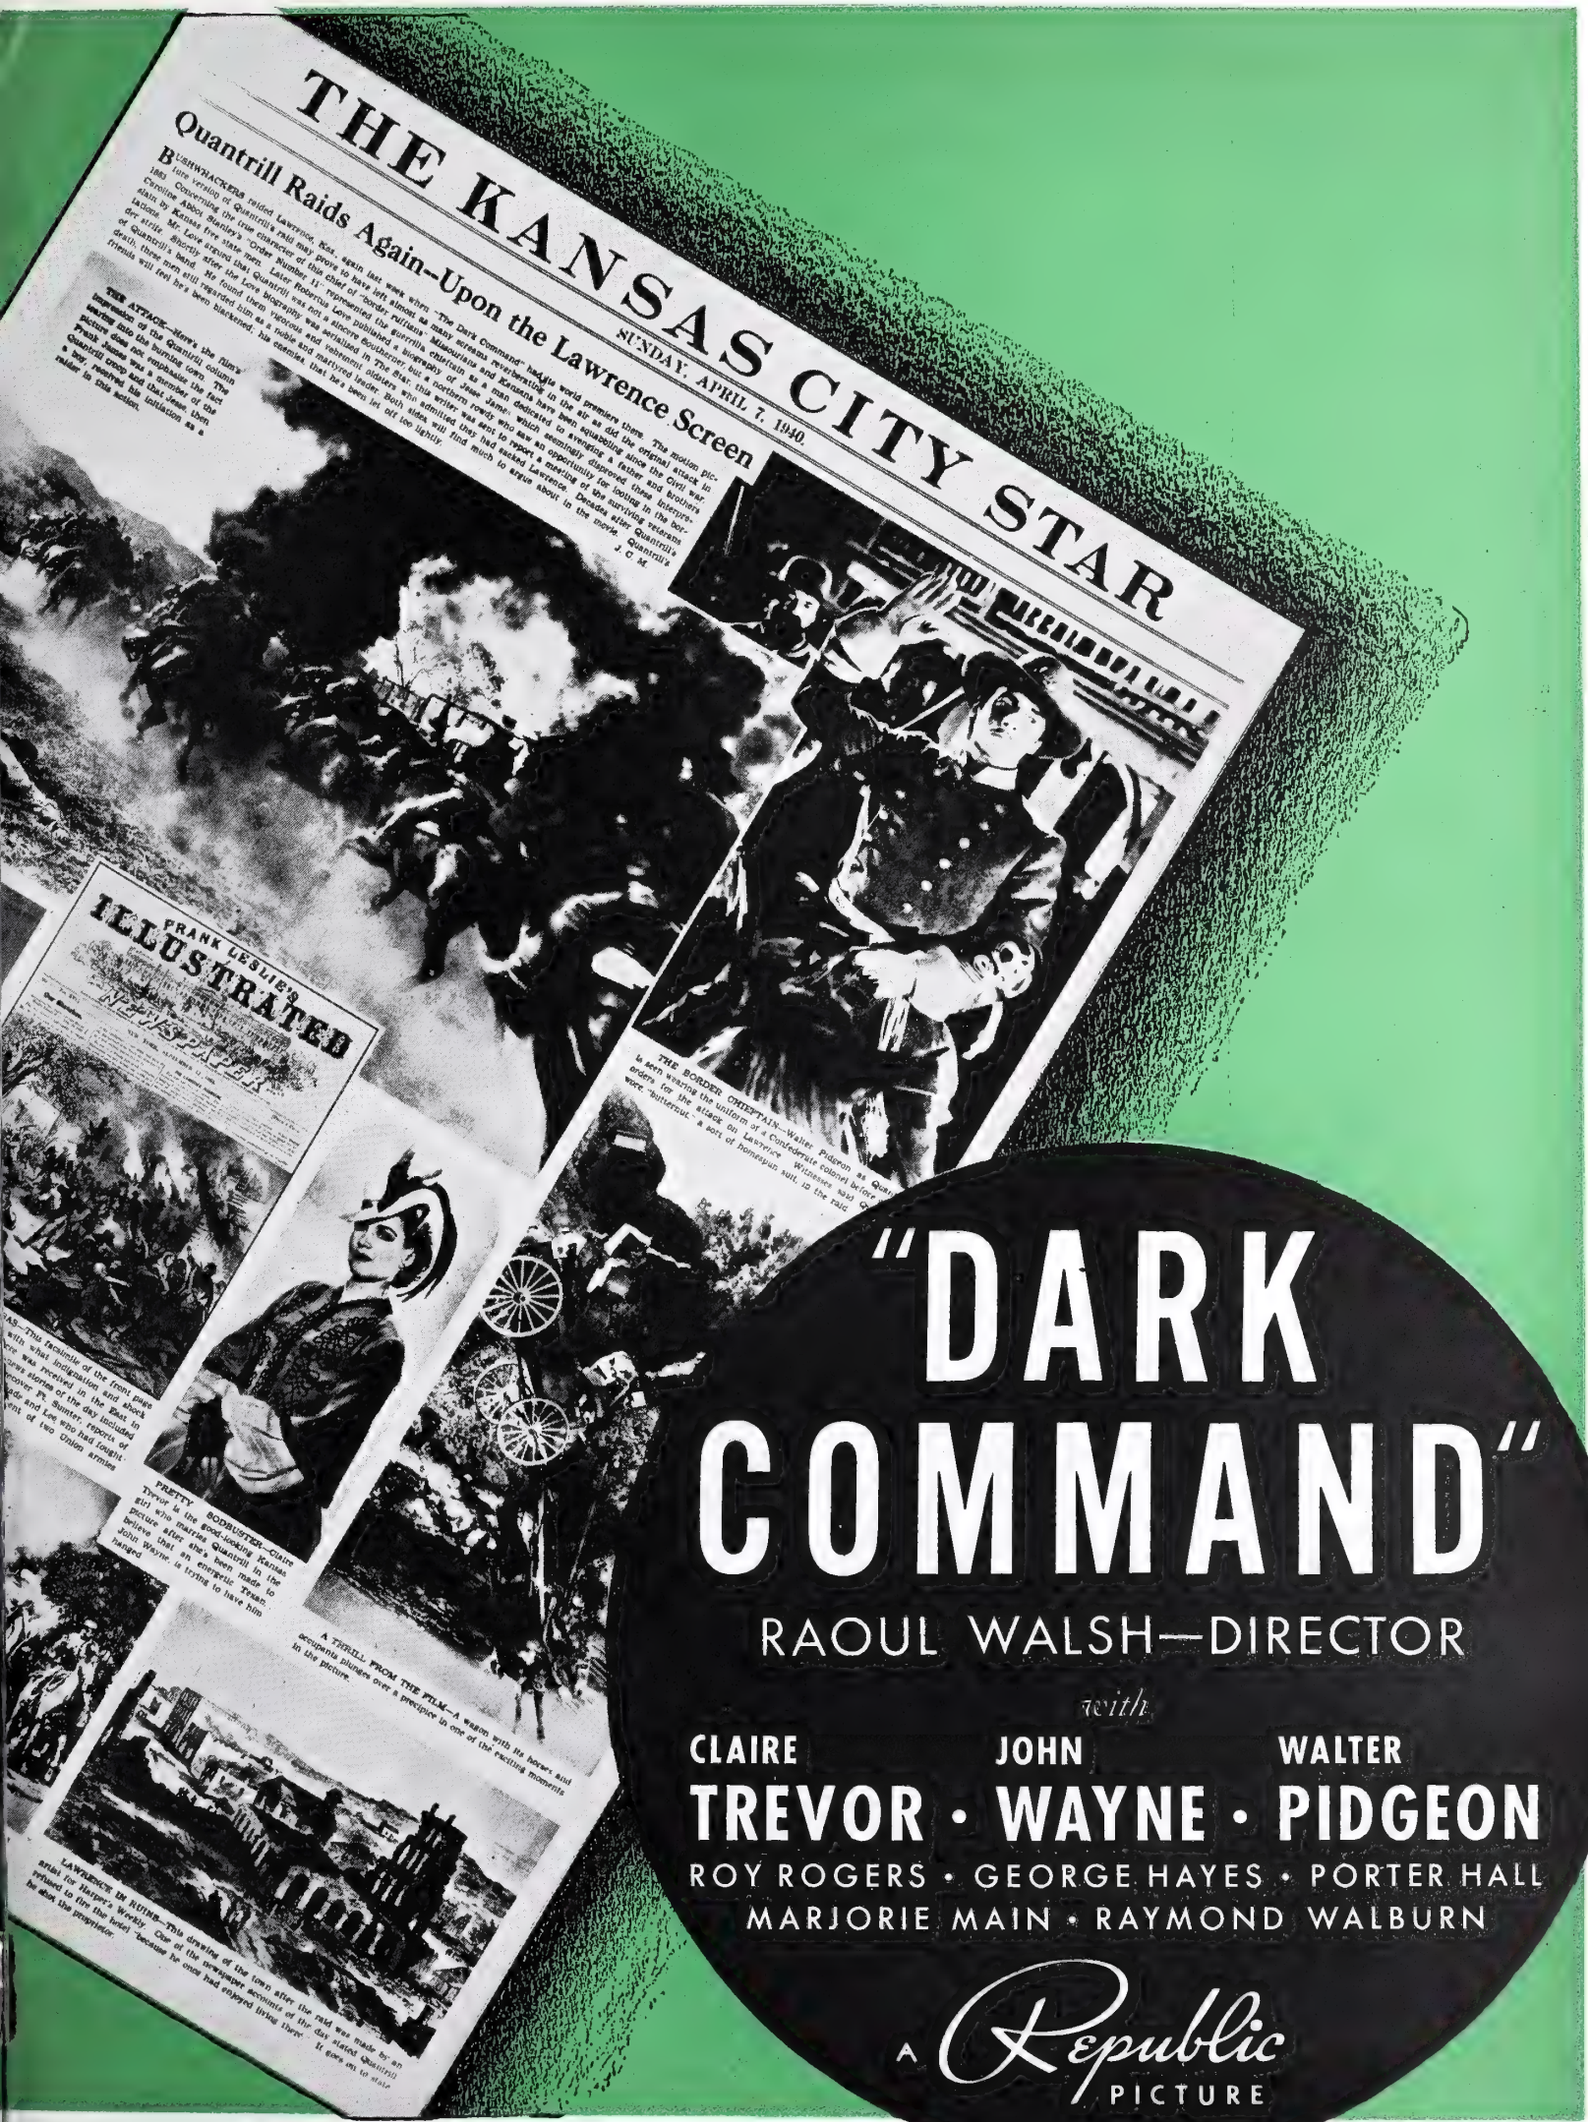
In his handling of the love scenes, Mr Walsh again shows that he has developed a new quality in his direction that was lacking in his most brilliant successes in the past. "The Cockeyed World" and "The Big Parade." The tone of his work is still lusty in its humor and swift in its melodrama but he has learned how to temper all this to please the women in his audiences.

Claire Trevor does some laudable trouping as the southern girl who loves the wandering Texan but who is persuaded by Quantrill to become his wife. Her vivacity is particularly commendable when one knows that she suffered an almost fatal illness during the shooting of the film. Porter Hall, an actor Kansas City has been fond of since the days when he used to play the Shubert with Robert Mantell's Shakespearean company is salty as her father, a Scottish banker with Confederate sympathies.

But the part on which all eyes were focused last night was Walter Pidgeon's characterization of Quantrill. M. G. M., the studio to whom Mr Pidgeon is under contract took a big gamble when it lent him to little Republic for a picture. Its courage will be rewarded by having their property increased in value as the part moves the actor another long step toward the first rank of stardom. The Quantrill he portrays is a brilliant man with a restless driving ambition that must be satisfied. The criminal strain in his blood is at first very lightly hinted at as he tries to make his way on the frontier by means of education and peaceful arguments. But when the Texan, who can neither read nor write, defeats him in the race for town marshal, he throws learning to the flames and becomes a blood drunk egotist. It is an interpretation that might easily have gone "hammy" but the actor keeps his character on the border line between sanity and brilliance so skilfully that he always is plausible and even wryly sympathetic.

The sweeping night shots of him leading his guerrilla band down on Lawrence are thrillingly photographed as is the battle that precedes the burning of the town. Departing from history the movie lets the Texan rally the townsmen to their own defense, which may pain the historical societies but which will produce much more whistling in the gallery. The fire is spectacular, particularly the shots of the guerrilla's driving a flaming wagon pell-mell into the barricades of the defenders.

Scene Brings Gasps.



Another shot that brings gasps from the audience is one in which Quantrill's victims in their flight to escape him drive a wagon and a team of horses off a high cliff into the river. The cliff is higher than any around here but it makes for thrills. Mr Walsh, remembering the criticism launched against "Jesse James," is careful to place his cameras in a way that proves the horses were uninjured. Trick diving horses from a circus were used in making the shot.

George "Gabby" Hayes, the bewhiskered old-timer who proved his popularity every time he stepped in front of a Lawrence crowd yesterday has a diverting comedy part as Wayne's pal, a backwoods dentist and barber who seems in need of all his own services. He was a great favorite with the customers at all three of the theaters where the picture showed. Roy Rogers, the singing cowboy appears as Miss Trevor's brother and does a smooth job, though his fans among the high school girls wished he'd been given a chance to warble a few notes. The only bad performance is Raymond Walburn's portrayal of a pompous town politician. This with its henning and hawing is exactly like every other part Mr Walburn has played on the screen.

The battle scenes are crowded and the settings are first class. There's nothing cheap about the film. The biggest studios in Hollywood would be proud to have it on their production list.

Before concluding the review, it might not be amiss to say a word about the city of Lawrence. This reviewer has attended a number of movie premieres, including the one staked for "Man About Town," at Waukegan, Ill., last summer and the celebrated "Gone With the Wind" opening at Atlanta.

Not one of them has been handled as smoothly, as efficiently, or as entertainingly as the one that Lawrence staged today. It was an elaborate affair embracing a parade, a ball, and a pageant in which buildings were burned and horses charged through smoke and flame. Yet there was no confusion and no hard feelings. The stars were examined by thronging thousands but there was no sign of bad taste or the snatching of buttons and jewelry by souvenir hunters. The stars were much impressed. They came to Lawrence to advertise Hollywood. But they'll go back to Hollywood advertising Lawrence—for a good time and a job well done.

It Will Long Be Remembered, Will That Roundup in Dallas

By V. W. CRISP

DALLAS—The world premiere and the one and only showing of the sixth annual three-day convention of Variety Clubs of America got under way here in the "City of the Hour" played the big half of the week here.

Easterners, and even those from the west coast, were knocked off their equilibrium by the rousing welcome of real cowboys from show business in Texas. The old Deadwood Stagecoach of Buffalo Bill days and forty-fives on hips in saddles furnished part of the color.

All delegates and guests were met at their respective trains, airports and caravans, and brought through waiting traffic to Variety headquarters in the Adolphus Hotel, whence they went to reservations at the Baker and other hostelries. At every corner laymen craned their necks for glimpses of the Hollywood delegation.

After brief warming-up exercises in hotel lobbies and Variety clubrooms where east met west, club moguls retired for a short business session.

Having only a few hours before performing their duties as official greeters, J. B. Underwood for distribution executives; Bill O'Donnell for producers and directors; Jake Lutzer for the stars; Lloyd Rust for circuit executives; John Franconi for state and federal officials; Ray Beall, Charlie Meeker, Jack Chalman for trade journals and press, began rounding up the gang for a sightseeing tour of Greater Dallas. Meyer Rachofsky was personally in charge of this tour.

Variety's national officers led this parade in private cars. Chartered busses transported the other members. Freeman Memorial Clinic, pride of Tent No. 17, and the estate of C. Andrade, III, were the highlights.

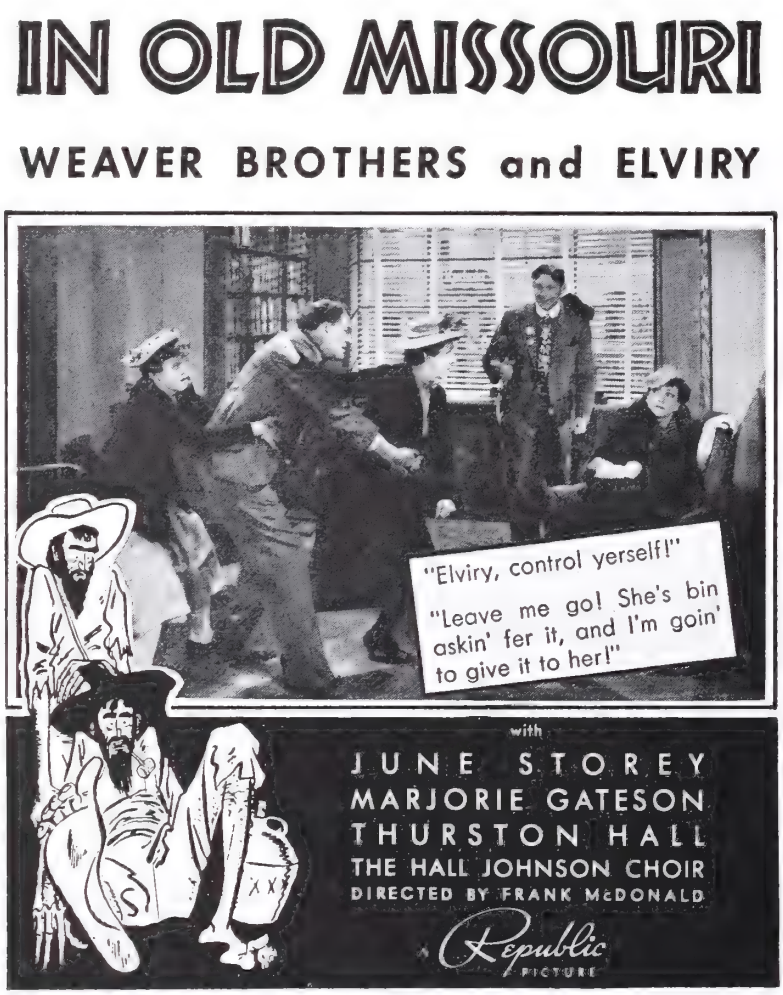
A trifle weary from this slower mode of travel, the barkers were guests of Universal at a cocktail party in the enlarged Variety clubrooms. Thus, the first day was finished off in further fraternizing.

Friday was featured with a triple show in the form of the Twilight Jamboree, Frontier Frolic and Mexican Fiesta, all in front and within the portals of Dallas Athletic Club.

Grub in the style of the pioneering wide open spaces was served from the same kind of chuck wagons, and cowhands schooled in this kind of catering dished it out. John Guthrie's Wild West Show and Indian Congress furnished the atmosphere as pedestrians looked on beyond the roped off areas at either end of the block.

The Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band furnished the music and let 'em have it with cowboy drills of the type they dispensed at Madison Square Garden and abroad. The all-famous bull fiddle act on horseback was the band's headliner. Radio artists from Oklahoma City, San Antonio and local stations rounded out the program.

The Frolic was pulled off after 6:30 on the entire second floor of the club. Here barkers found a typical frontier dance hall and saloon. The food, high spot of the entire epicurean offering, consisted of barbecued venison, broiled cabrito chops, mountain oysters, tamales, and chili con carne.



Up on the third floor, guests found themselves in old Mexico for the Fiesta at 7 p. m. Here senoras and senoritas indulged in music and dancing shared with them by the barkers and their friends. More food was provided in this event, typically Mexican. And so it went, on and on throughout the night.

Saturday, the final day, got under way with a golf tournament at Brook Hollow Golf Club. At 1 p. m., an extended parade passed through the downtown area, but the chief noise, of course, was the formal dinner at night in the Crystal Ballroom of the Baker Hotel. Its highlight was the presentation of the National Humanitarian Award for 1939 to Martha Berry of Mt. Berry, Ga., by John A. Harris, national chief barker. A film depicting activities of various Variety tents around the country also was shown.

While Variety visitors went from event to event, it was interesting to note that some of them found time to drop by exhibits on the first floor of the Adolphus. Here they saw the booths of National Theatre Supply and a number of companies which cooperated with National in putting on the display, including Advance Manufacturing Co., J. E. McCauley Mfg. Co., Goldberg Bros., E. J. Vallen, Inc., Hertner Electric Co. and Walker American Screen Co.

Other displays were by RCA, American Desk Mfg. Co., Royal Metal Mfg. Co., International Projector Corp., Universal Building Products Co., Texlite, Inc., American Seating Co., Alexander Smith Carpet Co., King Scenic Co., International Seating Co. and Burch Popcorn Machine Co. J. I. Roberts was chairman of the committee in charge of all displays.

On police duty throughout the entire convention were five stalwarts from Tent No. 17 designated by Sheriff (Smoot) Schmidt to "preserve order." The deputies, 45's and all, were Franconi, Underwood, Lutzer, O'Donnell and Rust, who were made full-fledged deputies of Dallas county for the event.

Atlas Asks 100,000 Shares Of RKO Common as Fee

NEW YORK—The Atlas Corp., proponents of RKO's plan of reorganization, have requested 100,000 shares of RKO common as its compensation for putting through the plan.

In addition, Atlas wants $875,037 as disbursements for actual out-of-pocket expenses. Since RKO common is listed at approximately $3 a share, Atlas seeks $1,175,037 as full payment. A hearing on this request, as well as all the others, is expected within a fortnight.

SMPE in Four-Day Meeting at Shore

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—With its expert eyes turned toward an appraisal of new developments in motion picture technology and an awareness of recent strides in television and frequency modulation broadcasting, the spring convention of the SMPE is under way at the Haddon Hall.

Forty-six pages and lectures, many of them accompanied by demonstrations, are scheduled for presentation during the nine planned sessions for which about 250 delegates from all sections of the country are on hand. E. A. Williford, SMPE president, will preside at the forty-sixth semi-annual banquet and dance, slated for the Rutland Room Wednesday evening. W. C. Kunzmann, convention vice-president, is back in his old role as generalissimo of the program. There will be no election of officers and no Progress Medal award, both of these ceremonies going over to the fall session in accordance with custom.

The convention is in charge of these committees:

Reception and Local Arrangements—Harry Blumberg, chairman; M. C. Batsel, A. B. Freeman, C. A. Seubert, C. W. Treen, E. O. Wilschke, W. J. Charles, M. Lewis, W. Conner, E. W. Kellogg, H. Walters, F. B. Evans and L. Ratener.

Registration and Information—W. C. Kunzmann, chairman; E. R. Geib, J. Frank jr., F. Hohmeister.

Hotel and Transportation—E. O. Wilschke, chairman; S. Abrams, C. Cohen, F. J. Bettelli, C. A. Seubert, B. Blumberg, C. Presgrave, J. Defrenes, H. J. Maire and G. L. Dimmick.

Publicity—Julius Haber, chairman; Sylvan Harris, James J. Finn, P. A. McGuire and F. H. Richardson.

Papers—J. I. Crabtree, editorial vice-president; Sylvan Harris, chairman, papers committee; L. A. Aicholtz, chairman, west coast papers committee; P. Arnold, C. N. Batsel, L. N. Busch, O. O. Allied's Keynoter Again Legislation

CHICAGO—Four major topics have been set up for discussion during the national Allied convention at the Morrison Hotel here June 19 to 21. They are the two Neely bills—block-booking and theatre divorcement; the government case in New York and its ramifications, and a general legislative discussion.

Col. H. A. Cole, national president, and Jack Kirsch, president of the Illinois unit and convention chairman, conferred on the program plans during Cole's recent stopover visit en route to Texas. Kirsch expects Abram F. Myers, general counsel, here shortly to discuss further detailed plans for topics to be aired.

Equipment dealers have been invited to display their merchandise in a large exhibit hall that will be open for the visiting exhibitors and their friends, adjoining the convention hall proper.

Allied Transportation Committee Named

CHICAGO—Allied's committee to handle convention transportation is composed of the following: Seth D. Perkins and James C. Quinn, California, Arizona and Nevada; Al Schuman and Lawrence C. Caplan, Connecticut; Van Nomikos, Richard Salkin, E. E. Alger, Charles House and Edward Grossman, Illinois; Roy Harrold and Don R. Rossiter, Indiana; Leo F. A One-Fifth Interest Is Universal's in Exchange

NEW YORK—Universal's investment in the Big U exchange in this city is $30,000. This is a 20 per cent interest for which it holds 50 shares.

Investments in capital stocks of subsidiaries in foreign countries (not consolidated at cost) amount to $991,002. The company also owns 75 shares in Capital Theatre, Zurich, Switzerland, now in liquidation. The shares cost $1,672. In Filmag, another Switzerland unit in liquidation, the company's investment is 40 shares and $31,672.

Pathe Stockholders Will Elect

NEW YORK—Election of directors will be the main business before Pathe stockholders at their annual meeting April 30.

Television, His Talk—

Thomas F. Joyce, vice-president and advertising director of RCA Manufacturing Co., who will discuss "The General Outlook for Television" at the opening day's session of the SMPE convention.

Erpi May Re-Enter The Selling Field

NEW YORK—The exploitation and sale of Bell Telephone Laboratories' newly developed stereophonic recording will continue to be handled by Erpi until the industry's demands for the equipment reach a point where Erpi's two licensees would take over. In other words, although Motiograph and General Theatres Equipment have been licensed to sell Erpi patented sound equipment, and Altec has taken over its theatre servicing contracts, "our company has in no way restricted itself from re-entering the selling field," an Erpi spokesman declares.

Erpi's deal with Motiograph and GTE gives them the selling rights to any Western Electric equipment, and the two companies are expected to enter the picture when the demand justifies such a move, it is said. Meanwhile, Erpi has set a price of about $30,000 on stereophonic recording equipment, and is selling, billing and exploiting it unaided.

Name Band Cost Causes Early Circuit Stage Fade

CHICAGO—Due to the high cost of name bands and special stage attractions, vaudeville units in the Mort Singer circuit that normally drop the flesh policy for the summer in June will do it in May this year, Singer states. Houses that use stage shows, either on a permanent basis or occasionally, are the Cedar Rapids, Cedar Rapids; Orpheum, Davenport; Orpheum, Sioux City; Orpheum, Waterloo, all in Iowa, and the Orpheum, Minneapolis. Singer operates in partnership with RKO in the midwest.

Robert Schless Expected Here the Last of April

NEW YORK—Robert Schless, United Kingdom and continental manager of Warner, is expected here for home office talks at the end of April. The visit is the first Schless will have made since he was placed in charge of Great Britain and Europe last summer. At that time the First National and Warner sales staffs in England were merged under Schless with Max Milder becoming general sales manager.

Zanuck on 1940-41: 'It's Sink or Swim'

CHICAGO—"It's sink or swim for the coming season and we on the 20th Century-Fox lot definitely believe in a rosy future for the industry," is Darryl F. Zanuck's comment concerning his 1940-41 plans. He was here for the concluding session of the 20th Century-Fox convention and was the principal speaker along with chairman of the board, Joseph M. Schenck.

"In spite of everything that is going on in this world about us," Zanuck said in an interview with BOXOFFICE, "we are going the limit. We are spending $2,000,000 more next year, with the result that our 1940-41 budget will approximate $28,000,000, or slightly better. Not only that, but we are planning four more pretentious productions in the million-dollar class than last year."

First Is "Brigham Young"

Zanuck, who flew here by special TWA plane and returned the same way to the coast, along with Schenck, William Goetz, his executive assistant, and Harry Brand, studio publicity chief, said that for the first time in the history of the company, 20 pictures of the 26 he will undertake himself will be in the million dollar class. "By that I mean," he said, "that the average cost of the 20 will be in the neighborhood of a million dollars each."

The first of these is "Brigham Young," which went on location Monday. "We are going to shoot the works on this one," he said, "and when we are finished exhibitors will have a new marquee name in Dean Jagger, Broadway star, who is playing the title role."

The production chieftain told the convention a new property just planned, and also for the million dollar class, will be "Brooklyn Bridge," with an imposing cast to include Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell and Edward Arnold.

Zanuck is counting on big things for "Lillian Russell," the current Faye-Ameche-Fonda vehicle, which has a definite running time of two hours and 20 minutes. This is the longest picture produced by Zanuck to date.

Zanuck Remembers Headline Values

Chicago—Darryl F. Zanuck may be a producer, but he hasn't forgotten the value of publicity.

Informed during the 20th Century-Fox convention that a large 40x60 color blowup of Tyrone Power had disappeared from the convention floor after a girls' group meeting, he quickly called Harry Brand, studio publicity head, and told him:

"Swell story here. It should make all the papers. Imagine a bunch of girls coming in and swiping such a large blowup of Power as we had in the convention hall."

Zanuck Direct Hand on Eighteen "Dreadnaughts"

NEW YORK—The 18 "dreadnaughts" to be handled directly by Darryl F. Zanuck for 20th-Fox next season are these:

"Brigham Young," "The Great Commandment," "Brooklyn Bridge," "Down to the Sea in Ships," "Western Union," "The Californian," "One Man Army," "Down Argentine Way," "The Return of Frank James," "How Green Was My Valley," "Song of the Islands," "Down on the Wabash," "Khyber Pass," "Fifth Avenue," "Brothers," "The Great Profile," "I Married a Nazi" and "Red Cross Nurse."

The four British-made releases will be selected from "Gestapo" with Margaret Lockwood, "The Girl Is News" with Miss Lockwood and Barry K. Barnes, "Rob Roy" with her, Michael Redgrave and Will Fyffe, "Tramp Steamer" with Fyffe, "Libre Belgique," "Mademoiselle from Picadilly," a musical; "Hangman's House" and an Inspector Hornleigh story.

Terry Recalls Cartoon Start 25 Years Ago

CHICAGO—During Paul Terry's talk on Terry-Toons at the 20th Century-Fox convention here, he recounted some of his experiences during his 25 years of producing cartoon films. He mentioned his first was "Little Herman" and, when all the conventioneers chuckled thinking he was alluding to Sales Manager Herman Wobber, he hastily corrected them and said that the reference was to Herman the Great, the magician.

He did recount that it was the same Herman Wobber, who 25 years ago suggested that Terry take his cartoon idea to New York. When he arrived in Gotham, he tried to sell it to Lewis J. Selznick, father of David O. and Myron. Selznick took one look and offered Terry $1.00 a foot.

"Why that's no more than the raw stock cost me," lamented Terry to Selznick.

And Terry laughingly recalled Selznick's crack: "Yes, I know, but the film isn't worth as much now as when it was raw stock."

From that one-man organization, the Terry-Toon company has grown to where it now employes over 100 people, Terry told the convention. He said Technicolor will be used more and more in the shorts field this year and that, while he has set 13 of his 26 for color, more may be used.

Sees Fox War Coverage Aided by Pooling Knell

CHICAGO—Movietone News expects to present the best European war coverage now that a new plan of individual use of stories made has been arranged, Truman H. Talley, Movietone News producer, told the 20th Century-Fox convention.

He explained the former plan of compulsory pooling of all news shots has been done away with, and that, henceforth, all newsreels will be permitted to use their own shots exclusively, after passed by censors.

Releases to Nov. 1 Now Set by 20th-Fox

Chicago — Marked as tentative, 20th-Fox, as early as this, has designated release dates on 13 of the new lineup. The program is designed to start with "Great Profile," August 2; "Street of Memories," August 9; "Brigham Young," August 16; "The Brat," August 23, and "I Married a Nazi," August 30.

September releases: "Pier 13," the 3rd; "The Return of Frank James," 13th; "Cisco Kid," 20th and "Public Deb No. 1," 27th.

October releases: "Charlie Chan in the Wax Museum," 4th; "Down Argentine Way," 11th; a Wurtzel production, 18th and "The Great Commandment," 25th.

448 Employes Split $21,000 in Prizes

CHICAGO—Four hundred and forty-eight 20th Century-Fox employes in 16 exchanges split $21,000 in prizes growing out of the Kent drive for 1939-40. Harry G. Ballance was given a special award for outstanding work among district managers.

In the national division, Lester Sturm, Detroit, was first, and received three weeks salary for all employes; Sam Wheeler, Washington, second, two weeks salary for all employes, and Paul Wilson, Atlanta; J. M. Ballentine, San Francisco; B. B. Reingold, St. Louis, and John Dillon, Los Angeles.

In the international division: E. V. Laindaiche, New Orleans, first, three weeks salary for all employes; C. L. Walker, Salt Lake City, second, two weeks salary for all employes, and H. J. Bailey, Toronto; B. A. Simon, New Haven; C. W. Clark, Oklahoma City, and M. A. Grassgreen, Albany.

Short subjects and newsreel awards went to Ira Cohn, Pittsburgh; Charles Powers, Portland, Ore.; Phil Longdon, Charlotte, and Sam Gross, Philadelphia.

Wobber Sees Record 20th-Fox Account List

CHICAGO—Twentieth Century-Fox will have the biggest account list in its history by the end of this season, with some 12,000 exhibitors playing its product, Herman Wobber, general sales manager, told BOXOFFICE, as the company's convention came to a close here.

"Right now," he said, "we have in the neighborhood of 11,500 accounts. But, by the time the men close up the season, we should hit 12,000, which will probably be as big as any company has ever done."

20th-Fox Will Not Renew Deal With Cosmopolitan

CHICAGO—Before boarding a plane for California, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, said his company would not renew a deal with Cosmopolitan Pictures, Hearst film organization. It is understood Cosmopolitan may suspend production.

Cheery on Foreign, Despite War Clouds

CHICAGO—Despite continued darkening war clouds, Walter J. Hutchinson, director of overseas distribution, struck an optimistic note in his talk before the 20th Century-Fox convention. This weekend he was to convey the same message of hope in the future to the South and Central American sales force in a convention at Havana.

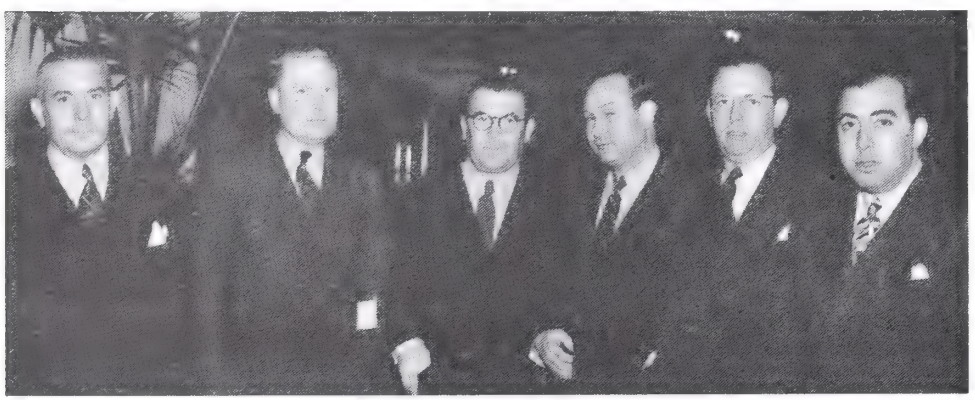
Hutchinson's optimism stems from his feeling that "this war has pretty well established the fact that American motion pictures are no longer a luxury. They are a commodity the whole world, whether at war or peace, wants, a commodity for which the whole world will pay some price."

He explained that in currencies of the various foreign countries, 20th Century-Fox is doing better than ever before, but because of the vast drop in exchange, totals in American dollars are about comparable to 1934-35. Where 10 top films in 1936-37 would have yielded about $900,000 in American dollars, the same foreign grosses at today's rates of exchanges could only be converted into about $600,000. It is estimated the foreign department is still producing about $450,000 worth of business weekly.

Hutchinson related a number of interesting sidelights on the company's foreign business. Among them, these:

"The Rains Came" was the company's biggest foreign grosser since "Cavalcade" and is now in its fifth big week in Paris. "The Grapes of Wrath," just entering foreign distribution, is playing the British Odeon circuit on 50 per cent rental. Other top pictures foreign-wise were "Stanley and Livingstone," "Drums Along the Mohawk," "Hollywood Cavalcade," "Hotel for Women," the Sherlock Holmes pictures, and the British-produced, "Shipyard Sally."

The war has caused foreign managers to use their wits in getting pictures to theatres. In London, a $10,000 bomb-proof underground shelter was constructed to house film vaults and a refuge for the workers. A boat was hired in Stockholm and film stored there so that in case hostilities broke out the boat could go out to sea and protect the film.



Out of about 500,000 feet of film shipped weekly since the outbreak of the war only about 18,000 to 20,000 feet has been lost by sinkings.

In China, business is 100 per cent over last year, in Chinese dollars, while Hutchinson reported Japanese business so great, he termed it "fantastic."

In revenue returns, the English market, despite the war, is still the greatest; the Central American market next, and the South American countries third. The expansion in business in South America that was anticipated did not materialize, he added, because South America's best customers did not have the money to buy and because these potential customers did not have the means of transporting the goods.

Hutchinson will go to Paris and London the middle of May, not so much to hold conventions as to study wartime distribution plans for Europe.

Hutchinson Relying On 'Need' for Films

Planes to Central America For 20th-Fox Meeting

NEW YORK—Walter J. Hutchinson, director of foreign distribution, planes down to Havana Wednesday to attend the 20th Century-Fox Caribbean and Central American sales parley which will be held over the weekend. Hutchinson will outline production plans for the new season.

A trip to Europe is next on Hutchinson's itinerary. He plans to embark around May 15 on either the Manhattan or the Rex. While abroad, the 20th-Fox executive will make a first-hand survey of conditions and attend various sales meetings in key European centers and London.

Several changes in the Latin-American setup are disclosed. S. Chiesa, formerly manager of Peru, is now in charge of Colombia. Chiesa replaces J. Day who will receive a new assignment at the sales convention. E. D. Cohen, manager of Ecuador, goes to Venezuela, and his place will be taken by K. B. Knust, who has been serving as assistant to W. W. Sullivan of Panama.

A number of foreign managers, according to Hutchinson, are slated to arrive here for combination vacation furloughs and home office conferences during the year. D. B. Lederman of the Philippines, S. S. Horen of Argentina, W. B. Morgan of France, R. A. Kreier, assistant European manager, and Otto Bolle of South Africa, are those expected.

Col. Cole Has No Comment On Divorcement Bill

CHICAGO—During a stopover, Col. H. A. Cole, president of national Allied, had "no comment" to make on the Neely theatre divorcement bill. Cole said he was here primarily to check over plans for the Allied convention set for June 19-21 at the Morrison. Specifically on the bill, he remarked laughingly:

"Well, you know, I'll first have to read the bill myself before I can comment on it. I just learned of its introduction into the senate by Neely by wire myself."

Para't Shorts Department Duties May Go to Two

NEW YORK—Duties of the late Louis Diamond, head of Paramount short subjects department, may be split between two men in the future, although this has not been finally determined, it is learned. Meanwhile, Dick Murray, former assistant to Diamond, is supervising most activities, while Russell Holman continues to handle eastern production.

Delays Trial; Rules Must Start June 3

NEW YORK—The all-industry suit goes to trial June 3, Senior Judge Knox ruled in federal court Friday, saying, "There will be no further adjournment under any circumstances. You must all be prepared to start trial by that time."

Thurman Arnold and Paul Williams, for the government, argued against adjournment. The majors' counsel sought and won the delay on the ground of insufficient time to prepare, asserting the last information supplied by the government was made available April 16, but that the defendants were entitled to 60 days beyond.

The government's supplemental answer to distributors' interrogatories discloses a "serious weakness" in allegations bearing on production, in the opinion of major counsel. The claim, of course, is that the defendants enjoy a monopoly in production and in distribution to a degree which prevents the successful marketing of independent production.

To Producers in Making Point

To demonstrate this contention, the supplemental answer lists 28 independent producers, who presumably have information to prove the government's assertions. They are:

I. E. Chadwick, Louis Weiss, Harry S. Webb, A. W. Hackel, Arthur Alexander, Clifford Sanforth, Henry (or Harry) Spitz, John N. Hicks, R. N. Like, Leslie Simmons, Emanuel Cohen, Fred Futter, Nat Levine, Maury Cohen, Carl Leserman (as of the time he was vice-president and general manager of Grand National), Samuel Katzman, Boris Petroff, Harold Lewis, Russell Mack, Phil Goldstone, E. B. Derr, Edward J. Peskay (as of the time he was vice-president in charge of Grand National distribution), Leo J. McCarthy, Sol Lesser, Toby Anguish, Richard A. Rowland, Spencer Bennet, and B. Reeves Eason.

The answer also includes names of other persons not hitherto mentioned. In the list of 219 individuals in 36 key cities who allegedly have information on first run monopoly appears Robert H. Hexter, Point Breeze Theatre, Philadelphia. He may testify on clearances asked, or given, Warner over non-affiliates.

New names claimed to possess information of monopoly in first runs include Ed H. Cerf, Rivoli, Columbia, Ga., who alleges attempts were made to take his theatre from him; C. C. Dunsmoor, Capitol, Marshalltown, Ia., who is said to have sold his house to RKO because of deprivation of product; Ely F. Seff, allegedly compelled to sell his Rapid and Loop theatres in Rapid City, S. D. to Paramount for the same reason; J. Tom Arthur, Cecil, Mason City, Ia., allegedly forced out by Paramount; W. B. McDonald, Olympia, Wash., where he now operates the Avalon but who is said to have closed the Viking because of lack of product and Harry Friedman, Lansdowne, Pa., who appears to have a story on clearances extended affiliated houses over his Lansdowne theatre.

Says Gov't Rejects Decree Bid

New York—The department of justice has rejected a consent decree settlement of the all-industry suit proposed in conferences between major representatives and the department of commerce because it regards the proposal to end block booking and blind selling as insufficient and because the plan discussed makes no provision for theatre divorcement, according to a Washington dispatch to the "Wall Street Journal."

After a hearing in Federal Judge Knox's chambers, Thurman Arnold stated he was slated to appear before a Senate committee in Washington Monday to explain why the action had not gone to trial until now. Asked what the chances for an out-of-court settlement were, he declared he was not prepared to make a statement on what the terms would be if submitted to him, but expressed as a personal belief the opinion the suit will not be settled. He said the commerce department talks with the majors are continuing, but described them as "talk, talk, talk and a lot of procrastination."

Renew With Zanuck After a Challenge

NEW YORK—The proposition to grant Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production, an option to purchase 100,000 shares of common was approved at the annual meeting of the 20th Century-Fox stockholders. Included in the authorization is a five-year extension of Zanuck's contract from August 22, 1942 to March 31, 1947.

Present officers and directors were unanimously re-elected at the meeting which witnessed a verbal clash between S. R. Kent, president, and Milton R. Weinberger, a stockholder, who attacked the option and criticized the large salaries paid by the company.

In defense, Kent said Zanuck was "the most valuable asset the company had." Furthermore, he stated, in the four-and-a-half years Zanuck has been with the company, "we made $26,037,000 in profits, excluding National Theatres. During this period we made $3,906,000 from National Theatres. We payed out $18,855,000 in dividends. We payed $5,100,000 off the funded debt and increased our fixed assets by $7,000,000."

Emphasizing his point, Kent continued, "In the four-and-a-half years previous to the time Zanuck joined the company, we lost $6,511,000."

Kent declared Zanuck can go out and make three dollars to the one he is making now through 20th-Fox. He said he knew other people had approached Zanuck and offered him more money. Zanuck makes better pictures cheaper than anyone else, Kent affirmed. He also added he did not know anyone who worked harder.

Weinberger, who is an attorney for the Shuberts, had claimed the $833,000 paid executive officers "too much."

Refuting the charge, Kent compared 20th Century-Fox with other companies which pay as much as $8,000,000 in salaries to its executive officers. He disclosed he had turned back $52,000 of his salary several weeks ago.

In a brief appraisal of the foreign situation, Kent estimated the company did 35 per cent of its business abroad. England, he said, returned 65 per cent of the foreign dollar. The company had done $1,000,000 in Italy and also in Spain at one time. He ventured the opinion that Spain might return to its former peak in five years. The company continues to operate in Germany, but is getting no money from there. Czechoslovakia, Poland and a part of Finland are considered gone. The company is intensifying its efforts in other markets to recoup its losses, Kent added.

There were represented at the meeting 811,393 shares of preferred and 1,058,699 of common, out of a total of 925,020 shares of preferred and 1,741,922 shares of common. Total vote for the option for Zanuck was 1,718,649 for it and 32,174 against.

Returned to their posts were these directors: H. Donald Campbell, Chase National Bank; John R. Dillon, Hayden, Stone and Co.; Wilfred J. Eadie, 20th Century-

Numbers Don't Fix The Buy-Bernhard

NEW YORK—If the Warner circuit owned all theatres in and around Philadelphia, there is no certainty it could buy film more effectively than at present. This is the opinion of Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the chain. During his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's key suit his answer to the theoretical question above drew the answer: "It is purely guesswork."

The six-hour examination was not without incident of a serio-comic nature. Bernhard had answered most of Wright's questions pertaining to the circuit's operations in Philadelphia when, out of the blue, there appeared Harry Shapiro, Philadelphia attorney, and his client, Eugene Mori, operator of the Landis, Vineland, N. J.

The two out-of-towners said that they had consulted Wright previously and understood the hearing would be open to the public. Since Mori has a suit pending against the Warner circuit, which goes to trial May 6, Shapiro thought he "might find something to help my case." Robert W. Perkins, head Warner counsel, objected rather strenuously to their presence and was joined by legal representatives of Loew's and 20th Century-Fox.

Wright joined by saying he did not have the power to exclude the two men. Perkins observed Shapiro has brought three suits against Warner, while Shapiro countered with "no, only two." There was a verbal shuffle regarding who stood on proper legal grounds while the examination stood still. Suddenly, Bernhard, who had been looking on not without amusement, bellowed: "Say, I'm the witness." This broke the deadlock, with Shapiro seeking and presenting law reference book that showed he had a right to be present.

Wright dwelt at length with pooling arrangements entered into by the Warner circuit, as well as acquisitions. He wanted to know particularly what factors entered into the circuit's decision to build and acquire theatres, especially in the Philadelphia area. Bernhard said these factors usually were the growth of neighborhoods and the desirability of providing seats for new residents.

He declared the purpose in acquiring the Fox was for a "second, or continued run;" also that the house "was offered to us at very good terms, on a percentage basis, and we thought we'd make money." The deal also made possible the elimination of a stage show in the city, since Warner's Earle also had a combination film-flesh policy. Prior to the Fox deal the Warner houses did not exhibit 20th Century-Fox product, but after the deal that company's films were shown at Warner units, Bernhard stated.

Wright wanted to know if the witness "ever discussed the possibility" of buying films for a limited number of houses instead of the entire circuit. The witness said he recalled one instance where the circuit did not buy Fox product for all units. "Why?" Wright asked. "Because we just didn't get together on terms," was the reply. "Did Vitagraph get together with Fox theatres that season?" Wright wanted to know. "I think so," was Bernhard's answer.

The witness denied there was "any special reason" for 18 Warner neighborhood units in Philadelphia getting a blanket deal on film rentals. "It is only a matter of bargaining," he asserted.

Wright went into Warner circuit pools in Newark, Orange, East Orange, Belleville, Bloomfield, Hackensack, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Montclair, Brooklyn, Albany, Jamestown and other local situations. He wanted to know what prompted Warner to enter into these deals. Bernhard's reply in each instance was, in effect, that there were advantages in reduced expenses and more flexible booking. In a reverse sense, Bernhard testified that certain pools were never renewed because they proved to be unprofitable. "I make a lot of mistakes," he declared.

Ross Federal Now One Decade Old

New York—Ross Federal Service is currently observing its tenth anniversary. The checking service was formed in Chicago on April 15, 1930 as the Federal Theatre Accounting Company. Two years later, headquarters were transferred to New York, the present base of operations.

Decrease in Print Supply Advised by Sidney Kent

NEW YORK—Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox president, has advised Herman Wobber, in charge of distribution, and the company's three division managers that prints will have to be "materially reduced" in number. The cut will be among that classification of product which "is returning the least profit."

This was revealed during Kent's pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's key suit. He said the action was motivated by economic reasons, such as the European war and the cost of prints, which he said has been constantly increasing in the past few years.

"The tendency of constantly putting out more prints must go the other way," he asserted. "We have been increasing the number of prints steadily. It is getting to the point where it may break our backs. The economic load is getting too heavy if we are to accommodate all the people who want prints at the same time."

No Pre-Set Policy On Theatres-Kent

NEW YORK—The affiliated circuits did not sit down with a map and cut it up by collusion to determine among themselves how the country should be divided up, Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox and National Theatres president, stated during his pre-trial examination in the all-industry suit. He was being questioned by John L. Wright, assistant attorney general.

The remark came up after Wright asked the witness whether he ever discussed areas in which theatres should be taken during his affiliation with Paramount in 1920. Kent's answer was there was no policy as to what areas in which theatres should be acquired. "Each circuit has an historical background of how it came into being; just the evolution of the business. The wars between competing companies, the growth of the business, money had a lot to do with it—I can take you on a Cook's tour of the country and show you how this happened."

Wright invited Kent to take a theoretical tour to Philadelphia. What led to the building of the Fox there? The theatre was erected as a first run, Kent declared, because the late Jules Mastbaum told William Fox he would not pay his price for film. "I believe Fox made a grave error in building that house with the type of product he had at the time," the witness added.

Wright took Kent over the historical background leading up to the introduction

Headlines that again pointed the way. The possibility that RKO, through Atlas, may arrange to buy control of K-A-O was reported in BOXOFFICE almost two months ahead of the story reproduced in the upper right corner. However, the current move by K-A-O to buy up 3,000 shares of its own preferred at $100 a share is not seen "as having the slightest connection" with the other eventuality, according to those familiar with the situation. K-A-O's plan is described as nothing more than "3,000 fewer shares to play with, should the corporation ultimately want to retire its stock."

BROADWAY

COLONEL EDWARD A. SCHILLER, operating head of the Loew circuit up to his retirement from business a few years ago, found his first visit to New York in three years a thrill. He handclasped, lunched and dined around the town, trying to cover as many of his friends as he could and left for Hollywood late in the week, regretting he hadn't completed that pleasant job. Schiller came on from Florida where he tried the fishing and made the round trip journey with Harry Rapf, M-G-M producer . . . Fraidele Oysher will star in "The Cantor's Daughter," new Yiddish film planned by Ludwig Landy. Production is slated to get going in June.

Emanuel Silverstone, whose one-week trip to the coast lengthened into three, has returned . . . L. Jack Schlaifer, UA's western sales manager, gets back Monday from a Hot Springs vacation . . . Mary Elder, receptionist in the Loew's foreign department, has resigned to greet the visitor important. Virginia Brown replaces her . . . Jack Shea of Feiber & Shea returned to the home office Friday after an Ohio trip. E. C. Grainger is due in Monday from the Buckeye state. Enrique Baez, UA's Brazilian manager, is on his way up for home office conferences . . . J. H. Seidelman, Universal's foreign manager, has his passport ready in case he decides to fly to Europe . . . Betty Goldsmith, secretary to James Mulvey, went down to see the cherry blossoms blossom in Washington . . . A sprained ankle put Major F. L. His Associates at RKO Give John J. O'Connor a Party—

It appears the RKO circuit has just concluded an O'Connor Month, so named in honor of the vice-president who runs it. With this significant foundation, O'Connor's associates built a dinner for him at the Warwick and this photographic file is about it. Upper right finds Senator J. Henry Walters, S. Barret McCormick and Fred Meyers in the middle of something or other. Below, on the stage, is a rare scene. Five district managers are endeavoring to sing a parody on "Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love." They are James A. Brennan, Russell Emde, Sol Schwartz, Lou Goldberg and Charles B. McDonald, as their respective theatre managers will soon recognize.

The page-wide panel reveals Ned E. Depinet, then the guest of honor, then Malcolm Kingsberg, and lastly, George J. Schaefer at various junctures of their speech making.

Deny De Luxe Lab's Plea for a Review

NEW YORK—Most important court news of the week was the denial by Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard of an application by De Luxe Laboratories to review appointment of William Stephen Brown as trustee of Educational Film Corp. of America. Brown was appointed as a disinterested outsider when Referee John E. Joyce denied De Luxe's $2,660 claim the right to vote. De Luxe claimed the referee had no right to do this and asked appointment of Harry G. Fromberg, trustee of Grand National. A similar application by Fromberg to void the appointment of James A. Davidson as trustee of Educational Pictures was postponed.

Paramount is seeking permission of the supreme court to consolidate seven applications from 1933-1940 to reduce tax assessments by the city on property located at 331-337 West 44th St.

A reduction of $340,000 from the assessment of $1,720,000 to $1,380,000 is sought.

Harry A. Wembridge has applied to the supreme court for a writ of attachment on the New York property of Spectrum Pictures Corp. and Charles C. Burr, based on his suit for $3,000 for alleged failure to pay bills due last December.

Columbia Profit Soars Latter Half of 1939

NEW YORK—Columbia's profit for the six months to December 30, 1939 rose to $215,582 from the $34,596 reported in the same period in 1938. The current figure is after deduction of an extraordinary reserve of $100,000 and after deduction of the loss of $104,751 for the September quarter.

The company paid $250,000 on its debentures March 15 in anticipation of the April 30 due date, thereby reducing its total debentures outstanding to $1,000,000. Allocation of negative costs against England has been reduced from 25 to 20 per cent so that the United States now meets 75 per cent, England 20 and other foreign markets, five.

RKO Will Premiere "Irene" In Portland and Seattle

NEW YORK—RKO joins the parade of special out-of-town pre-release premieres with a dual opening of "Irene" at the Paramount, Portland, and Fifth Avenue, Seattle, April 23 and 24, respectively, according to plans laid out by Ned E. Depinet.

The event will be featured by the personal appearance of Anna Neagle, who stars, and Herbert Wilcox, who produced. An elaborate presentation is being planned by S. Barret McCormick, director of advertising and publicity.

Ampa Meeting April 25

NEW YORK—Ampa's first meeting under the regime of Leon J. Bamberger will be held at Jack Dempsey's April 25. New committees will be announced.

Ed Sniderman, Eugene Spencer, Sam Taub, Maj. L. E. Thompson, Robert Ungerfeld, Sen. J. Henry Walters, Emanual Waxberg, Ansel Weinstein, Harry Weiss, Sigurd Wexo, Dave Whyte, Thomas Wright and J. S. Yeransian.

It's a seven-and-a-half-pound son at the Ray Largos of Hollis, L. I., and RKO's still department . . . Arthur Treacher and Bela Lugosi are a pair of contrasts in the Ed Sullivan unit at Loew's State . . . Harry Gold has bought a new Mercury for his daughter, Gloria . . . Neil F. Agnew is back from a vacation in Mexico. Thumbnail description of how he enjoyed it: "Everything's swell, especially the climate, but the grub is lousy" . . . Pat Reis was in Washington with her hubby over last weekend . . . Phil Engel, Warner exploiteer, is back from Buffalo and the campaign on "It All Came True" . . . Sam Schneider of Freres Warner, is back from a two weeks business trip to the coast. Ditto Norman H. Moray, short subjects sales head, from the same destination and a trip to all branches . . . Adolph Zukor, in company with Jack Levin and friends, attracting a major share of attention in the crowded Savoy-Plaza dining room.

Oscar A. Doob is back from his slight foray into the middle west . . . John Murphy of Joe Vogel's office, also at Loew's, has a flying trip to Boston, Syracuse, Rochester and Toronto behind him . . . Regina Crewe is handling a special publicity campaign for Clarence Brown in connection with the impending Broadway opening of his latest, "Edison, the Man." Miss Crewe came recently from Hollywood to her permanent New York headquarters . . . Joan Crawford is in town from the coast. Stays about two weeks. Destined to frequent "21" often . . . Richard de Rochemont, European director of The March of Time, is back in Paris after a trip here . . . Volney L. White is Paul Terry's latest cartoon director. He supplements Mannie Davis, Connie Rasinski and Edwin Donnelly in the New Rochelle studio.

Alvaro Reyes, Paramount's branch manager at Bogota, Colombia—and, please, not Columbia—is here on company and personal business. He expects to enter his son and daughter in an American college before returning . . . Charlie Stern, UA's eastern district manager, has that operation in his memory book now; he's back at his desk . . . Humphrey Bogart may come east for a vacation after he finishes "Brother Orchid" . . . Picture Pioneers have shifted the date of their "spring conference." It is now May 2, but the place continues to be the Waldorf . . . Toni Noviska, Polish ballerina, is aboard the Conte di Savoia, bound for New York and a try at films. There should be no surprise if she gets an early "break" and ends up as the lead in "Flotsam," first for UA from Dave Loew and Al Lewin.

Funeral services for the late Gabriel L. Hess were private and confined to business associates and close friends. Those who attended included Will H. Hays, Carl E. Milliken, J. Robert Rubin, Sidney Braunberg, David Decker, Leopold Friedman, Austin C. Keough, Louis Phillips, Louis and Mrs. Nizer, Howard Levinson, Robert W. Perkins, Richard E. Dwight, Benjamin Pepper, Jack H. Levin, Joseph L. Stein, Dirrelle Chaney, Grace Anderson, Elsa Warncke, J. B. McCullough, Harold Groves, Courtland Smith, Harry Long, Arthur S. Dickinson, Francis S. Harmon, Walter Trumbull, Charles C. Pettijohn, Edward A. Sargoy, Sidney Schreiber, Mrs. T. E. Drazin, David Palfreyman, George Borthwick, Kenneth Clark, John Landers, Arthur H. De Bra, Roy Norr, Eric Stone and F. W. Du Vall.

Phil Reisman took a look on the map and decided these RKO foreign men will attend the forthcoming sales convention in New York May 27-30: Reginald Armour, European general manager, as reported; Gus Schaefer, district manager, Caribbean countries; Max Gomez, manager for Mexico; F. S. Gulbransen, manager for Panama, and Pedro Saenz, manager for Cuba. Ned Seckler, foreign department representative at the studio, also will be present. The home office delegation: Ben Y. Cammack, R. K. Hawkinson, B. D. Lion, Mike Hoffay, Alfred Frank, Harry Ehrreich, Eddie Ugast and Arthur Rossum . . . Bob Wolff and his New York bunch continued to lead in the Depinet Drive at the close of the 11th week. Buffalo and Boston were second and third, respectively.

E. W. Aaron's vacation in Florida was confined mostly to recuperating on the hotel roof from a back dislocation suffered while driving . . . Leonard Picker, Columbia attorney, has bought a piano for his new home in Lawrence, L. I., where he and his family moved from New Jersey the other Thursday . . . Lester J. Sack, manager of Sack Amusement Enterprises' local exchange, went to Dallas for home office conferences and the Variety Club convention. He met Saul Goldman, Chicago manager, en route . . . "Cartoons have come a long way in the last 25 years," says Paul Terry. And he ought to know. Because he is rounding out 25 years as a screen animator.

Renew Zanuck Contract After a Challenge

Fox; Daniel O. Hastings, Wilmington, Del.; Felix A. Jenkins, 20th Century-Fox; Kent; W. C. Michel, 20th Century-Fox; William P. Philips; Hermann G. Place, Chase National Bank; Seton Porter, National Distillers Products Corp.; Joseph M. Schenck, and Sydney Towell, 20th Century-Fox.

The directors met, as per custom, immediately thereafter and re-elected the officers who are Schenck, chairman of the board; Kent, president; Michel, executive vice-president; Zanuck and William Goetz, vice-presidents; Sydney Towell, treasurer; Eadie, comptroller and assistant treasurer; Jenkins, secretary; John P. Edmondson, J. Harold Lang, George F. Watson jr., assistant secretaries, and Read B. Simonson, assistant treasurer.

"In the Hit Class"

Hollywood—"Irene" still has her sweet little Alice Blue gown, but in every other respect she has gone completely modern in RKO's screen version of the perennial favorite. Nor has the vehicle lost anything through the transition. Quite to the contrary, because Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox, starting with a mere nucleus of the successful musical comedy, has built thereon as lavish and scintillating a funfest as has come off the Hollywood assembly lines in many a month. Anna Neagle appears in the title role, and, while many fans may consider her a bit old for the part, the feature has so many unquestionable entertainment assets that, as a whole, it must register in the hit class. Musical backgrounds, gorgeous Technicolor sequences, bright dialogue and a superior supporting cast are but a few of the photoplay's finer points.—SPEAR.

REVIEW FLASHES

CAPTAIN MOONLIGHT (Atlas)—This operetta, dating from Waterloo, is probably the most boresome import package to come from England in some time. John Garrick, Winifred Shotter, John Stuart.

SO THIS IS LONDON (20th-Fox)—This is recommended where past performances of English comedies have had favorable audience reaction. Robert Hare, Alfred Dya Draton, George Sanders.

TEAR GAS SQUAD (WB)—Should register with average audiences as fair exchange for the price of a ticket. A service film pleasantly veered toward Irish participation in law enforcement, done in lighter vein and not neglecting the boy-meets-girl romance. Dennis Morgan, Gloria Dickson. Directed by Terry Morse.

TOMBOY (Mono)—An unpretentious, well performed Monogram product that will fill the bill. Theme is a sort of puppy love romance between Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran.

TWO GIRLS ON BROADWAY (M-G-M)—Mirthful and melodic comedy drama into which Metro injected sufficient production values and cast so that a slightly stereotyped story will be overlooked by those who are shopping for a parcel of light, diverting entertainment, which order the feature is amply qualified to fill. Lana Turner and George Murphy debut as a new dancing team with promising effect, while competent Joan Blondell contributes most of the dramatics. Jack Cummings produced; S. Sylvan Simon directed.

YOUNG BUFFALO BILL (Rep)—A tale of the early west, when the government was looking into Spanish land grants, this, starting off with a song, goes on to combine everything that the audience would want in the way of western entertainment. Roy Rogers, George Hayes, Pauline Moore. Directed by Joe Kane.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Irving Trust Report to Judge Bondy May 14

NEW YORK—Federal Judge William O. Bondy has set May 14 as a date for a hearing on allowances in Irving Trust, RKO trustee's petition for approval of its final report and its discharge.

Amounts applied for total $2,434,698 with $955,392 already paid out during receivership and reorganization. Of this, $693,392 was paid during the reorganization, and $585,000 of that to Irving Trust and William J. Donovan, attorney for Irving Trust. Atlas seeks the largest amount in fees, asking $875,037 in disbursements, and 100,000 shares of RKO common valued at $300,000 for its services in effecting reorganization.

Ten Money-Making Stars Are Heralded by ITOA

NEW YORK—The ITOA is heralding the "promising few stars we have, along with the men who are turning them into gold at the boxoffice," with a list of the 10 best money-drawing players at member theatres. About a year ago the organization published the names of players characterized as "boxoffice poison."

The list of "10 leading star" for 1939, in the order of their purported boxoffice worth to the ITOA, follows: Clark Gable, Bette Davis, Mickey Rooney, Ginger Rogers, Deanna Durbin, Tyrone Power, Spencer Tracy, Myrna Loy, James Stewart and Jean Arthur.

The producers named are Joe Pasternak and David O. Selznick.

Julius Levine Heads New American Pictures Corp.

NEW YORK—Julius W. Levine is president of the newly-formed American Pictures Corp. which, by its own announcement, will produce "topflight, high budget pictures for major release." Offices have been opened in the RKO Building. Their first film will be "The Life of Samuel Gompers."

Louis Davidson Joins Warner Publicists

NEW YORK—Louis Davidson, formerly of 20th Century-Fox, has joined the Warner publicity department where he will handle newspaper contracts under Mitchell Rawson. He replaces John Harkins, granted a leave of absence.

No Pre-Set Policy On Theatres–Kent

of percentage selling. The witness said the practice began in the early 1920's and that he was largely responsible. He said he was the author of an article advocating such a procedure as "the only answer to the problem" of the day and for his effort he was "rudely attacked" by exhibitors. However, he gave as testimony to the efficacy of his theory the increase in his company's business from 5,500 accounts in 1932 to 10,000 in 1936. "Percentage brought us the accounts; it didn't chase them away," he declared.

It was at this point he revealed 75 per cent of 20th Century-Fox's product for 1940-41 will be sold on percentage—"we'd try to sell it all that way, but due to the double bill situation many independent operators can't buy that way."

Washington 20th-Fox-Loew Franchise Ending Soon

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox's 10-year, first-run franchise with Loew's Palace, Capitol and Columbia in Washington expires in two years, William Sussman, the distributor's eastern division manager, stated in his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's all-industry suit.

Wright's interrogation centered mainly on the company's first run accounts in key cities and whether there were negotiations between 20th Century-Fox and opposition first runs for product where the company already had an established account.

In Washington, the company only "occasionally" sold a picture to the Earle, the witness said. In Buffalo, where Shea theatres are first run, a deal was "requested" by Dipson-Basil for the Century. Proctor's in Newark, operated by the Skouras circuit, is the company's first run there. There have never been other negotiations in Baltimore, where the New has been first run for seven years, Sussman said.

He denied there had ever been discussions with an RKO representative relative to the company's setup in Albany, where Si Fabian has a two-thirds split and Warner one-third. The Warner circuit is first run in Philadelphia, he said, and has been for four years. Prior to that time the Fox was first run. RKO's Albee in Brooklyn, first run there since 1933, operates under a franchise, terms of which are negotiated each year, he stated. The Roxy is first run in Manhattan, although individual picture deals are sometimes set at other Broadway houses.

Kent Rewrote His Own Pact With 20th-Fox

NEW YORK—Defending salaries paid to 20th Century-Fox executive officers, S. R. Kent, president, at the annual stockholders meeting disclosed this: He had torn up his contract calling for over $300,000 annually and voluntarily reduced the amount to $178,000 two years after he had joined the company in 1932.

Screen Publicists Guild Elects Its Officers

NEW YORK—Membership of the Screen Publicists and Advertising Guild, eastern organization of home office publicity workers, has elected its executive officers and ratified its constitution. A majority representation is claimed for all companies except one.

Negotiations are now going on with the coast Screen Publicists' Guild. A working agreement is expected to be concluded shortly with each guild retaining its own autonomy.

RKO Foreign Shift

NEW YORK—Changes in the personnel of RKO's Far East division have Richard D. Spierman, formerly manager in Japan, going to India in place of Norman M. Durant, resigned. Charles Julian takes over in Japan.

Rodney Collier, Warner-Stanley, and H. A. Blum, Little, will be glad when their block on Howard Street is repaved. It has been torn up for nearly two weeks now.

PHILADELPHIA

FIVE Variety Clubbers hied themselves off by train to the national convention at Dallas. They were William McAvoy, E. O. Wilchke, William J. Clark, Jack Beresin and Jay Emanuel. Earle Sweigert waited a few days, then left by plane. But it was on account of business, not snobbishness . . . Many industryites attended the dinner for Councilman Thomas Stokley, who has long been friendly to the film trade. Sweigert was on the dais. Lewen Pizor and Sid Samuelson represented the rival exhibitor organizations . . . Willis Kent was in town with "Mad Youth," to arrange for distribution . . . George P. Seats are being recovered, lobby repainted and general sprucing up done . . . Mrs. Inez Ferguson, Copake, Copake, returned from a trip to Florida . . . Mike Kallett is back at the helm in Oneida, bronzed and brisk, after a long vacation in Florida. Sid, youngster of Kallett brothers, had charge of headquarter's operations during Mike's absence. Another brother, Joe, is general manager of Kallett theatres in Rome.

Ankling exchanges were: Frank Williams, Benton circuit booker; Henry Frieder and Henry Grossman, Hudson exhibitors; Ollie Mallory, Starr, Corinth; Jerry La Rocque, Fairyland, Warrensburg; Bill Wilson, associated with his brother, Charley, in Bijou, Troy; Leonard Rosenthal, State, Troy; John Gardner, Gardner circuit, Schenectady; George Thornton, Orpheum, Saugerties; Allen Sirrine, Port Henry and Mineville; Phil Baroudi, Happy Hour, North Creek . . . Mary Hawkins again on job at Republic after three months in Los Angeles with her mother who is ill.

Irma Armm, daughter of Jack, Columbia salesman, and Benjamin Silberg, Albany pharmacist, have chosen May 26 as the day for a life union . . . Jack Walsh, Metro exploiteer, assisted Talent Scout Ben Jacobson in handling more than 600 boys (some with their mothers) who stormed the De Witt Clinton hotel to win a screen test for role of "Jody" in "The Yearling." Two days later, Felix Feist, M-G-M director, visited Albany with Ed Ruby, cameraman; Lou Tomla, assistant, and Edward Fenton, sound technician, to make "takes" of two small town boys and a Schenectady lad chosen by Jacobson as prospects. Feist spent hours rehearsing the boys. Stunt, to which the Times-Union lent hefty space and art publicity, is being promoted nationwide.

A. F. Baldwin, sales promotion man from New York office, visited O. E. Williams, local manager of National Screen Supply Co. Incidentally, exchange salesman report that the Family, Utica, which National Screen did over for Larry Carkey, is a beauty. It is a 700-seater . . . Frank Crowningshield, Empire Theatre Supply Co., is recovered from an attack of influenza. Empire recently installed new booth equipment for Harry Lamont's Vanderbilt, Greenville . . . Alice Smith, Warner-Vitagraph, back and pleasant as ever, after a week's illness.

Phil Baroudi will close his North Creek theatre April 30 and keep it dark six weeks or more while it is being converted from an upstairs to a downstairs house. A general overhauling and modernizing job is to be done . . . New theatre which two New York territory exhibitors are building in Ellenville, Catskill Mountain village, will open May 15. It will be opposition to Jimmy Spadaro's.

Cash customers in droves should climb into their saddles and burn up the trail to the theatre where this delightful concoction of streamlined yippee is showing. Jack Benny and his radio playmates—Rochester, Phil Harris, Andy Devine, Dennis Day and even Carmichael, the polar bear—go western in a subtly satirized hoss opera which packs more laughs than lassos, more swing than six-guns. Producer-Director Mark Sandrich didn't spare the horses in his extremely effective efforts to see that the vehicle which carries his troupe of competent mummers into the great open spaces was lavishly equipped with every device necessary to assure an entertaining and profitable feature. Without question it is Benny's best effort in front of the cameras. The story serves merely to space the laughs and the elaborate production numbers.

In "An Angel From Texas," the country bumpkin comes to town and makes suckers out of the city slickers. Yes, again. But this time he is Eddie Albert and his girl is Rosemary Lane. Their portrayals are supplemented by such other likeable and youthful players as Jane Wyman, Wayne Morris, Ronald Reagan and Ruth Terry. Altogether they make it a merry farce about show business that travels along familiar lines. The accent is on humor, heightened from time to time by the rewriting of a number of standard comedy situations which manage however to get over with a certain freshness. It tells how Albert, inveigled into financing a dubious production, eventually comes out ahead to the tune of $100,000 on an initial investment of $20,000. Ray Enright directed.

Tuneful Tex Ritter goes hunting for a Texas wrongdoer in this one, flanked by a new crony, Frank Mitchell, of the late famous vaude-film team, Mitchell & Durant. Ritter sings three songs, "Rhythm of the Rio Grande" (fair), Mexicali Moon" (okay) and "Pablo, Mexican Bandit" (semi-comedy.) Mitchell gets one chance to shine in the picture, doing his comedy acrobatics in a saloon. Ritter's job is to unravel a mysterious disappearance of a friend, as well as investigate many nefarious activities by outlaws near the Texas border which are being blamed on Mike Rodriguez, who couldn't possibly keep busy enough to do all the things he's charged with. Most frequently remembered characters by the scenarist are Suzan Dale, the girl; Warner Richmond, Martin Garralaga, and Forrest Taylor. As is customery in Ritter pictures, it proceeds very slowly.

Sterling comedy with an alleviating filigree of heart tugs which should go far toward re-establishing Eddie Cantor as a screen favorite, and which introduces "Chum," a grand baby, whose chubby fingers will reach out and take a strangle hold on the affections of picture fans. There is every ingredient to earn the picture rating as a solid hit—a super-abundance of laughs, an occasional tear and a bevy of young pulchritude which will delight the male customers. The vehicle for Eddie Cantor's first great dramatic role was wisely selected. While the story may be adjudged slightly far-fetched in some of its development, its inconsistencies will be overlooked because they are so thoroughly outweighed by the solid entertainment values. Busby Berkeley's direction is of highest order.

Among those who can take their slapstick in broad, obvious doses, this latest chapter in the adventures of the Higgins Family will find its most satisfactory patronage and, booked in those situations, should prove a profitable entry. Producer-Director Gus Meins, whether purposely or not, implanted every corny gag on record into the motivation—along with a few genuinely funny sequences. The Higginses buy a hotel in a western ghost town. Son Sid, not knowing he is witnessing a motion picture production scene, overhears two "miners" make a new "gold strike." The word spreads around and the town booms, but the Higginses soon face the danger of lynching when the crowd finds out the "strike" is a phoney. Then Grandpa steps in and, through an accidental dynamite explosion, uncovers a new and genuinely rich vein.

Most of the material which has been included in "The Lone Ranger" serial finds its way into this feature under the title of "Hi Yo Silver." The introduction of the activities of the ranger is by way of an old man telling the story to a youngster who asks questions as the action progresses. It is good entertainment for the juveniles and the way is left open at the end to pick up on a sequel of the style of "The Three Mesquiteers." The picture deals with the activities of an unscrupulous outlaw and his band who have things pretty much their own way in a small Texas state until the lone ranger puts a halt to the desperado's machinations. There is no love angle. It is all action, and plenty of it. Produced by Sol C. Siegel and directed by William Whitney and John English.

One of Zane Grey's best-known sagas of the land where men are men gives Producer Harry Sherman another opportunity to display his talent for turning out western entertainment with all of the tried and true ingredients for popular acceptance. Some magnificent outdoor photography and Noah Beery jr. are the stars of this one, although the list of credits nominally is headed by Victor Jory and Jo Ann Sayers. An overload of dialogue and a dearth of action bogs down the first few reels, but this state of affairs is soon overcome as the plot unwinds to a whirlwind climax. Jory, hard-drinking ranch foreman, is caught squarely in the middle as gunrunners north of the border frame him, and Mexican officials have a price on his head as a filibuster. His love for Miss Sayers, the Bostonian ranch owner, causes him to clean up on the villains. Lesley Selander directed.

Boris Karloff's latest is a chiller-diller with enough horror angles to stand a substantial exploitation campaign. The villainy of Karloff is soft-pedaled to some extent. He portrays a scientist who is working on a cancer cure involving a freezing treatment. His intensity for his objective sidetracks him and that is where the dirty work begins. A young scientist, Roger Pryor, who is interested in Karloff's experiments, stumbles upon his secret laboratory and finds Karloff and four others who have been frozen for ten years. Following directions, Pryor revives all successfully. When the formula is destroyed, Karloff experiments on the men. The formula is rediscovered, but Karloff is killed by the police. Jo Ann Sayers, a likely looking actress, adds the only feminine touch as the nurse. Naturally, most of it is preposterous but stands up well enough under Nick Grinde's direction.

Grim and realistic, but in every respect sincere, this documentary recounts the recent past of Poland, Danzig, England and France in terms of the horrors of war and its devastation. In the first two, it is invasion; in the others, it is preparation for conflict and the atmosphere and activities of nations at war. Fredric March delivers the narration from a script by James Hilton. The film has fine possibilities, although much of what is shown and spoken is of argumentative caliber. The camera poked into every segment of the events which led to the present armed state. Sometimes it almost seems to be too much for the squeamish. There is no cast; it is the story of people murdered and their property destroyed. It is the old story of nations at war and the delusions of the common man.

Selling, of course, must be loaded on Tex Ritter, whose name and singing have become very familiar to those who attend unreeling of western pictures as regular entertainment fodder. Tex has three pretty good tunes this time around, most of them available at the cheaper record counters as waxed by him, thereby offering a sideline tieup. Might rig up a p. a. system in a truck, kick off a few spins while touring the town, as a street bally. Usual lobby clutter of western regalia will help with proper atmosphere. In some situations, Frank Mitchell, once a celebrated comic character of stage and screen, might be recalled to good effect.

SELLING ANGLES: "Hi Yo Silver"

This one is a natural for tieups, what with the national radio program on "The Lone Ranger" and on hats and toys for which the children go in a big way. Hats, toy pistols, badges and cowboy equipment are available to all exhibitors who want to give the youngsters a little something to remember the ranger by. Contests for the best rider among your neighborhood children, roping contests and essays are among other stunts which are bound to muster the interest of the ranger fans. Comic strips distributed to boys and girls also will create a lot of attention.

SELLING ANGLES: "Lights Out in Europe"

To overcome any reluctance on the part of his patrons who might not wish to see brutality and haphazard killing, the exhibitor might concentrate on selling the names of Fredric March, James Hilton and Werner Janssen. Respectively they handle narration, the script and the music. Enlargements from the more compelling scenes of the picture could be placed advantageously about the theatre front. Tieup with bookstores handling such popular works as "Inside Europe," "Personal History," "Not Peace But a Sword" and numerous other works on the European situation.

CATCHLINES:

Uncompromising . . . Unrelenting . . . This Is the Story of the Last Days of Peaceful Europe . . . And What Followed.

SELLING ANGLES: "An Angel From Texas"

The exhibitor might concentrate a goodly portion of his exploitation on the increasingly popular talents of Miss Wyman, Morris and Albert as a team of gay young people who can deliver what it takes. The story from which the film was made is a play by that old maestro, George S. Kaufman. That should have potency wherever a Broadway column penetrates. This is the sort of film that neighborhood house audiences will find to be to their pleasant satisfaction. Plug the names in any case.

CATCHLINES:

He Came, He Puzzled, He Bought . . . He Had a Merry Time of It . . . You Will, Too.

Bill this as the fastest and funniest in the "Higgins Family" series. The presence of Maxie Rosenbloom and Arturo Godoy in the cast suggests special exploitation among the sporting fraternity—particularly as Rosenbloom and Godoy stage an exhibition match. Prepare throwaways as "stock certificates" in the "Higgins Family Gold Mine," payable in entertainment. Stills showing the dilapidated hotel which the Higginses purchase can be tied in to better-housing campaigns sponsored by local realtors.

The medical theme injected into the script deals with "frozen sleep" as a cure for cancer. The local feature editor should be sold the idea of interviewing a prominent doctor on the subject. A display for the theatre front which should stop traffic is having a dummy frozen in a cake of ice. The copy should read: "Karloff Brings 'Em Back Alive." A collection of teaser heralds on whether Karloff is a benefactor to humanity or a monster should stir up plenty of curiosity.

CATCHLINES:

Is He a Humanity-Saving Hero or Man-Killing Fiend?

Karloff Brings 'Em Back Alive.

SELLING ANGLES: "Buck Benny Rides Again"

Cutout, life-sized portraits of Benny and his gang—Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Rochester, Dennis Day and Carmichael, the polar bear—will make an attractive and eye-catching lobby display. Dress attendants as cowhands and have a masked rider, placarded as "Buck Benny," ride through the streets. Secure exchange cooperation in arranging Jell-O tieups with grocers. Distribute inexpensive "Buck Benny" cowboy hats to juvenile patrons.

Jack Benny . . . The Backstage Buckaroo . . . In a Roaring, Rugged, Ridiculous Saga of the West That Never Was.

SELLING ANGLES: "Forty Little Mothers"

An eye-catching lobby display can be set up by creating a large colored portrait head of Eddie Cantor to which a small motor can be attached in such a way that his eyes roll around. Cantor's name should get the marquee and advertising play. Title can be worked into a number of tieups. Arrange a special "mothers and children" matinee at which the first 40 mothers on hand receive admission free. Work the fathers into it with the reliable "diaper-pinning" contest on the stage.

CATCHLINES:

It's That Favorite Star of Screen, Radio and the Stage . . . Eddie Cantor . . . In His Most Human, Lovable Role.

There's Trouble Ahead . . . When Eddie Cantor Tries to Take Care of a Baby . . . And Teach School at the Same Time.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Light of Western Stars"

Zane Grey's name on the marquee will carry as much weight as any of the players. As a lobby center-piece construct a large compo-board facsimile of a book studded with stills illustrating scenes from the picture. Spell out the title over the marquee in rope letters. Arrange for tieups on this and other Zane Grey novels with bookstores and the public library. Dress theatre attendants as cowpunchers and employ the other exploitation stunts suggested by the western locale.

Terry and the Pirates

(15-Chapter Serial)

Columbia First episode—29 Mins.

The comedy, color, adventure and characterizations are absent in this serial version of the popular cartoon strip. Instead it had been given standard serial treatment that has grown too familiar by now. The story, which has been running in newspapers for years, here is made to concern Terry Lee's quest for his father, a scientist, along with Pat Ryan. The parts are played by William Tracy and Granville Owen. Neither does justice. The scene is a jungle in Asia. Animals, wild and human, run about. Cliche after cliche is paraded in the continuity. Dick Curtis, villain of countless westerns, here is a Chinese counterpart with a phoney accent.

Some travel shorts are just that. Others have a corny title, like this one, but are produced by a man who knows how to do them properly. Andre De La Varre is responsible here and for that audiences should rejoice. He covers the country and its chief city in good style and fine photographic compositions. This particular short has had a feature film for advance publicity. Audiences will easily and satisfactorily connect them both. Worthwhile.

What amateur night looks like with a phoney French flavoring. Leading personality is Vyola Vonn, singer whose main asset is her looks. The other acts include Harry Stafford and the Notables Quartet; Sterner sisters, a dancing team; a pair of Apache dancers, and a chorus of can-can dancers.

The Berth of a Queen

Columbia (Cinescope) 11 Mins.

The construction, launching and sudden appearance in New York of the English liner, Queen Elizabeth is documented here. It was made in England. The editing is dull, the documentary technique entirely absent. It's like a lengthy overlong clip in a newsreel which grows tiresome when viewed too long. A little imagination in the making would have helped no end.

America's Youth—1940

(March of Time, No. 9, Vol. VI)

RKO 19 Mins.

An attempt to bring the story of what is happening to the youth in America is the latest March of Time release. It has none of the alert and hard-hitting qualities of former issues. Athough presenting a cross-section of American youth compiled from the files of the American Youth Commission, the composite picture is spoiled by a muddled and evasive approach. Little concern is expressed over the fact that there are approximately four million young men and women between 18 and 25 out of jobs, but the content is so pointed that it claims American youths are receiving greater opportunities for all the qualities necessary for good citizenship. Maybe so, but the subject encompasses a field with too many debatable aspects to be clearly and successfully condensed into a two-reeler.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE PRODUCTION CENTER
(Hollywood Office—Suite 219 at 6404 Hollywood Blvd.; Ivan Spear, Western Manager)

Philbrick in Charge At Central Casting

First concrete step toward the reorganization of Central Casting Corp., which move was authorized by the producers association with the appointment of a special committee two weeks ago, has been taken with the disclosure that Howard R. Philbrick, former state director of motor vehicles, has been named general manager of the casting office, beginning his new duties immediately.

Philbrick, who replaces Campbell MacCulloch, has not yet indicated along what lines the reorganization is to be plotted. His appointment, attaches of the Hays office declared, met with the full approval of the Screen Actors Guild's executive committee, which will supply Philbrick with data in the form of a comprehensive economic survey of the overcrowded extra field.

Meantime the producers association, in an official statement announcing the appointment, cautioned that Philbrick is not expected to "solve overnight the problem on which the energies of the industry have been concentrated for several years," and urged extras not to anticipate that the reorganization "will mean all the work that is wanted for all those who want it."

"The reorganization and the employment of Mr. Philbrick," this announcement declared, "have not changed the mathematical problem of trying to spread approximately 900 average daily jobs among more than 7,000 persons."

Reorganization of Central Casting was ordered shortly after the SAG has filed a lengthy report with the producers association containing specific information as to favoritism, job-buying and other charges lodged by a number of extras. Almost simultaneously it was disclosed that Southern California authorities had begun an investigation into the alleged infiltration of hoodlums and other "undesirables" into the ranks of film extras.

Production of "Episode" Is Entrusted to Blanke

Production reins on Warner's "Episode," starring Olivia De Havilland and George Brent, have been handed to Henry Blanke. Story preparations were handled under the supervision of William Jacobs, associate in the Bryan Foy unit. Kurt Bernhardt is directing.

Roosevelt-Bronston in Merger; Other Independents Active

In a rapid-fire shuffle of corporate structures that followed a week of negotiations, James Roosevelt, president of Globe Productions, and Samuel Bronston, president of the newly-organized Samuel Bronston Productions, have merged the facilities, personnel and properties of their respective organizations to produce for United Artists release.

The features for UA will be made under the Bronston banner, while Roosevelt's Globe activities will be confined to the manufacture of 16mm shorts for the Mills Novelty Co.'s automatic slot machine projectors. As Roosevelt holds the UA releasing contract, all Bronston-made films will be distributed as James Roosevelt productions. The official personnel setup lists Bronston as president; Roosevelt as chairman of the board; Edward H. Schwab, chairman of the executive committee; Frank Perry, vice-president; William O'Connor, secretary and member of the board; and John J. Bergen, member of the board. J. F. T. O'Connor will handle the company's legal affairs and publicity will be handled by Hal Hall. Henry Henigson, associate producer in Globe Productions, continues in a similar capacity with the new company.

The unit assumes Globe's feature production schedule, with "The Bat" slated to start June 15 and "Pot O' Gold," based on the Horace Heidt radio program, to follow.

Roosevelt pointed out in the announcement that the merger will bring about a considerable financial saving through the establishment of greater capital assets for Globe. Bronston currently is in New York discussing final details with his board of directors.

New Independent Unit

A new independent unit has been incorporated by Jean Arthur, Frank Ross and Norman Krasna for the purpose of producing at least one, and possibly two, features starring the actress in stories written by Krasna. First to go before the cameras, probably in June, will be "The Richest Man in the World," with Ross—Miss Arthur's husband and at one time an associate producer for Hal Roach—in charge of production. The enterprise is designed on a profit-sharing basis and will not conflict with Miss Arthur's Columbia contract, which permits her to make outside pictures. Ross is now in the east lining up a major release.

Alexander Korda has signed Russell Birdwell to function as publicity-advertising-exploitation director for his United Artists production unit, Birdwell to begin functioning immediately on Korda's "The Thief of Bagdad," cleanup sequences on which are to be filmed here. Majority of the film was shot in England. Birdwell's company last year handled a special campaign on Korda's "Four Feathers."

A major release is expected to be secured within a few days by Boris Morros' new National Pictures, Inc., for its first production, "Second Chorus," which will star Paul Whiteman. Sig Herzig and Frank Cavett are collaborating on the script.

Producers Releasing Corp. has opened three new exchanges—one each in Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis—to raise its total to 20 branches throughout the country. PRC will release the output of Sigmund Neufeld Productions.

Earnings of "Extras" in March Hit Year's High

Tying into the substantial increase in production activity noted during the past several weeks, the earnings and placements for extra players in March hit a new high for the year, registering gains for the third successive month, according to figures compiled by Central Casting and released by the Screen Actors Guild.

Earnings for March totaled approximately $218,675, as compared to $173,735 for February, or a gain of nearly $45,000. Placements for the month came to 18,783, while work calls in February amounted to 15,438—a daily March average of 723, while the average daily placement in February was 594. Likewise the average daily wage in March showed a gain over the February figure, standing at $11.64 as compared to $11.25 for the preceding month.

Frederic Ullman, former general manager of Pathe Newsreel, has reported to RKO Radio to begin his new duties as an associate producer in the Lee Marcus unit.

A change in the status of Bernard Vorhaus has been made at Republic. Formerly listed as a director, Vorhaus has been given a producer-director contract, with "False Witness" designated as his first assignment.

Boom Crowding 3-Year Mark; Spurt May Last All Summer

The boom is on—and in earnest.

Already within a notch of shattering a three-year record, with 48 films now in production as compared to a period in 1937 when 49 were before the cameras, Hollywood's major plants seem certain to uncork another spurt that will keep the wheels of industry turning at full speed for the balance of the summer—with no time out for food or water.

That such will be the case became even more apparent through the announcement by President George Schaefer, in New York, that a $10,000,000 budget had been set aside for the making of 13 RKO Radio films before the end of September—exclusive of any outside deals and exclusive also of the product to be turned out in the program division by Lee Marcus. The top-bracketers will include "They Knew What They Wanted," "Photo Finish," "Too Many Girls," "Passport to Life," "Kitty Foyle," "Sister Carrie" and "Two on an Island." The plant currently is busier than it has been for the past year and a half.

Also in the forefront with wide-open schedules are 20th Century-Fox, Warner and Paramount. On the Westwood studio's early calendar are "I Married a Nazi," "The Great Commandment," "The Return of Frank James," "Down Argentine Way" and "The Great Profile." Warner lists ten to send into work before June 1, including "City for Conquest," "Honeymoon for Three," "This Man Reuter," "No Time for Comedy" and "The Letter." Paramount will launch four by the middle of May, including such vehicles as "Victory," "Ghost Music" and "Dancing on a Dime."

To a lesser degree other lots are also contributing their share toward keeping the boom times rolling. Metro will start "The Yearling" May 1. Monogram's next will be the big-budgeted "Rip Van Winkle." Universal will make its bid with "Spring Parade," starring Deanna Durbin, and rolling May 10. For United Artists, Hal Roach will gun "Captain Caution;" Walter Wanger lists "So Gallantly Gleaming" and "Dynasty of Death;" and Edward Small has "The Son of Monte Cristo" shaped up for an early start.

Setting a mark not equalled for nearly three years, the sensational production climb begun two weeks ago has culminated in a new high mark of 48 features in work—with almost every company showing a gain in activity over the pace established during recent weeks. Listed as new starts were a record total of 23 pictures.

Columbia is filming six—three of them newcomers to the cameras, including "Five Little Peppers Abroad," "Singapore" and "Keep 'Em Alive," the latter a Larry Darmour production. Five are on M-G-M's sound stages, three of them making their debuts. These are "Old Lady 31," "To Own the World" and "I Love You Again." The score was balanced by the completion of three others—"Susan and God," "The Mortal Storm" and "Pride and Prejudice." Monogram gunned an untitled Frankie Darro starrer, and completed "Rider From Nowhere," to emerge with one in production.

Three hit the starting marker at Paramount—the long-delayed "A Night at Earl Carroll's," "Rangers of Fortune" and "Texas Rangers Ride Again." The studio is filming a total of five. RKO Radio is shooting six, among them such new starters as "Millionaires in Prison," "Have It Your Own Way" and "Cross-Country Romance." Simultaneously, camera work on "Tom Brown's School Days" was completed. Republic started rolling "Wagons Westward" and "Rocky Mountain Rangers," and completed "Gaucho Serenade" to wind up with three in work.

Seven features are crowding 20th Century-Fox's stages. Getting under way were "Brigham Young," "Pier 13" and "Street of Memories." For United Artists, through Walter Wanger Productions, the Argosy Corp. launched "The Long Voyage Home," raising UA's total to three. Universal gunned "Arizona Cyclone" and "Hot Steel" and completed "The Bad Man From Butte" to hit a seasonal high of seven in work. "Episode" and "They Drive by Night" rolled at the Warner plant.

Fine Arts Getting Strung Out; Two Ready to Shoot

Perfection of its production and distribution setups is being completed by Franklyn Warner's Fine Arts Pictures, with two features set to go before the cameras immediately and three others in preparatory stages.

Meantime the FA directorate has approved and signed contracts for the establishment of 31 sales offices, with exchanges located in Albany, Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Dallas, Denver, Des Moines, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Memphis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Oklahoma City, Omaha, New Haven, New Orleans, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Portland, San Francisco, Seattle, Salt Lake City, St. Louis and Washington, D. C.

Slated to hit the sound stages are "Red Gardenias," which Otis Garrett will direct, and "Flying Heels," to be piloted by Nate Watt.

Added to the FA staff are Maurice Conn, in charge of the western division, and F. Paul Sylos, engaged as art director. Warner has also signed contracts for the exclusive use of Western Electric recording on his product, and is negotiating with Frederick Feher for the production by the latter of a series of 12 musical shorts in color.

Produces "Dance in Havana"

Joseph Sanford will produce "They Dance in Havana" for Universal from a script by Stanley Roberts.

John Cromwell Instructs Students at U. S. C.

Here is Director John Cromwell (at the right) rehearsing two cinematography students of the University of Southern California preparatory to re-filming a scene from his RKO Radio picture, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." As a result of the demonstration, in which students handled all equipment, including cameras and lights, Cromwell has accepted an invitation to deliver a series of lectures at the university.

During the initial session Cromwell declared that the film industry is slipshod in its method of recruiting and training talent, pointing out that other major industries train honor college graduates and train them for key positions and asserting that motion picture executives must follow this practice if films are to progress.

Shown here with Cromwell are Leslie Shaw, as Abe Lincoln, and Nancy Thompson as Mary Todd. U. S. C. is the only college in the nation which offers a degree in cinematography.

Directory by 20th-Fox on 1,200 Story Properties

Although every studio has some sort of index to the story properties it has on hand, 20th Century-Fox is believed to be the first to compile a single-volume directory of its literary purchases, a tome now in preparation which will devote one page to each of more than 1,200 stories reposing on the studio's shelves.

Attaches explain the directory, when completed, can be used as a handy reference whenever the question of plagiarism arises; will provide a quickly available means of selecting and identifying stories of every type; and will give the studio a concise knowledge of its literary properties for use in possible sales and trades to other companies.

The work of compiling the reference book is in the hands of Lawrence Arnold, who formerly functioned as 20th Century-Fox's European story scout, with Alice Kenyon as his assistant.

"Swimmin' Hole" to Monogram

Added to Monogram's 1940-41 lineup as a special is "The Old Swimmin' Hole," based upon a poem by James Whitcomb Riley, in which Jackie Moran and Marcia Mae Jones will be co-starred.

THE GOSSIP columns inform that Liz Whitney is in Reno securing a divorce. LOP I-told-you-so's and insists that Liz is the recipient of a settlement including three million dollars and a farm in Virginia. Previous reports stated that the social registerite was eager to appear in pictures; sufficiently eager, in fact, to finance her own camera debut.

If she is still of such a mind when she returns from the Nevada divorce capital—and assuming the three million potatoes are still intact—she'll probably have no trouble in finding plenty of takers. Then, when the smoke clears away, Liz should still have the farm in Virginia.

Food for Thought Dept.:

In what studio attaches called a disagreement over salary, Producer Harlan Thompson and Paramount were unable to come to terms on a new deal for Thompson, who, consequently, left the studio.

Currently the company's biggest boxoffice smash is "The Road to Singapore," hailed by critics and public alike. It was produced by Harlan Thompson.

Sob-sister-columnist sheds an inky, crocodile tear over the prospect of Greta Garbo and Sonja Henie losing the bulk of their respective fortunes through the involving of the Scandinavian nations in the European war; amplifying her perturbance by reporting that la Garbo has always sent most of her money to her native Sweden for investment in Swedish real estate and bonds, while a goodly share of the plump Sonja's savings found their way to Oslo.

It is to be very much feared that such sympathies will not be shared by most Americans—both within and without the industry—who believe that American institutions offer a splendid place for the investment of American-earned dollars with the ultimate economic benefits being enjoyed by the Americans who make it possible for screen stars to have surplus funds to invest.

Which calculates to one co-ed every 5.1 seconds, a new high in speed—or publicity exaggeration—even for Hollywood.

→

And, incidentally, it is no longer "The Tree of Liberty" but "The Howards of Virginia," which title change does little to solve the perennial mystery of why producers will pay important money for the motion picture rights to a best-seller, much of the value of which is in the title, and then deliberately throw away that ready-made reader interest by filming it under another name.

Because William (Hopalong Cassidy) Boyd was suffering from a serious case of poison oak it was necessary to postpone the production of "Three Men From Texas."

Following "Young Tom Edison" and "Edison, the Man," Metro will further pursue its current urge for making biographical stories by filming "The Life of Henry Ford."

So, at long last, a breathless public may learn something about early-day Fords besides funny stories.

Cons, Cowhands, Cantor, Chorines

The marked improvement in product which has been a heralded feature of spring film-making activities strongly manifested itself in the week's preview agendum, with four out of seven pictures deserving unqualified recognition as top flight entertainment with roseate prospects as regards their boxoffice futures.

Of the quartette, 20th Century-Fox's "Johnny Apollo" wins this vote as the best. An engrossing and suspense-laden melodrama with an underworld and prison theme, it compares favorably with anything of its kind ever filmed. An extremely effective cast, in which Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour and Edward Arnold are standouts, finds in a masterfully wrought screenplay by Philip Dunne and Rowland Brown, based upon an original by Samuel G. Engel and Hal Long, a medium ideally suited to its bountiful collective talents. Henry Hathaway's steady-handed direction makes the most of every scene, marking the film with an air of intense reality, while Producer Harry Joe Brown rates superlatives for the manner in which he marshaled his forces and supervised the picture's making.

A worthy challenger is Paramount's "Buck Benny Rides Again"—a showman's picture from title to fadeout. Subtle satire of the western formula, it rounds up a carload of laughs, songs and downright hilarity. The streamlined screenplay was constructed by William Morrow and Edmund Beloin—Benny's radio writers—from a story by Arthur Stringer, which was adapted by Zion Myers. Under Mark Sandrich's astute production and direction, Benny makes what is easily his most engaging and satisfactory appearance before Hollywood's cameras to date, aided and abetted by his well-known radio playmates, Rochester, Phil Harris, Andy Devine, Dennis Day and Carmichael—the polar bear. Nothing was overlooked in its making that would assure its acceptance as an entertaining and profitable feature.

Metro had two entries in the top brackets. The first, "Forty Little Mothers," is an adroit blend of sterling comedy and heart-tugging pathos, distinguished on at least two counts—first, it should go far toward re-establishing Eddie Cantor as a screen favorite; second, it introduces a picture-stealing infant, by name Baby Quintanilla, who will almost certainly ease his way into the hearts of the picture-going public. Further, the feature boasts an array of young pulchritude which is going to exert plenty of appeal for the male customers. The screenplay by Dorothy Yost and Ernest Pagano, while slightly farfetched in certain of its developments, neglects none of the ingredients which combine to earn the picture rating as a solid hit. Busby Berkeley's direction adds considerably to the general entertainment value. Production was in the capable hands of Harry Rapf.

The other contribution from Leo's lair, "Two Girls on Broadway," is amply qualified to satisfy theatre patrons who are seeking light, diverting entertainment. A promising new dancing team, George Murphy and Lana Turner, makes its debut herein, while the production values injected by Jack Cummings more than compensate for the slightly care-worn plot whipped up by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov from an original story by Edmund Goulding. It can be considered ideal summer-weather fare and should be exploited accordingly. S. Sylvan Simon keyed his direction to a spirited pace.

Among the programmers, and by an unusual coincidence, the business of going to town assumed an important position. There was Republic's "Grandpa Goes to Town" and "Mr. Washington Goes to Town," initial offering from Producer-Director Jed Buell's newly formed Dixie National Pictures, Inc., (without puns anent the "Inc.")

Billed as the first all-Negro comedy feature ever made, Buell's vehicle contains every tried and true gag situation since the days when Mack Sennett's buffoons were tossing pies at each other. Made principally for consumption in houses catering to the Negro trade, it will be a laugh smash in those situations if the uproarious reception it received at a preview in one of those spots can be used as an accurate yardstick. At the same time there is no logical reason why white audiences in all but the de luxe houses should not find it amusing fare. The competent colored cast cavorts with enthusiasm through the script turned out by Walter Weems and Lex Neal, from an original by Weems, considerable of which is downright funny. Buell both produced and directed.

Whether he did so purposely or not cannot be determined, but Producer-Director Gus Meins implanted every corny gag on the books in "Grandpa Goes to Town," newest in the Higgins Family series. It is slapstick in broad, obvious doses, and will find its most satisfactory reception among audiences who can best take their humor in this fashion. Nevertheless, Jack Townley's original screenplay contains some genuinely amusing sequences. An added attraction for the sport-minded element is the appearance of Auturo Godoy, South American heavyweight, who disports himself in front of the cameras with surprising poise and assurance.

* * *

While Jack Benny was satirizing his sagebrush contribution to the Paramount lineup, Harry Sherman, following his usual production bent, elected to play it straight and added the week's only unadulterated spurs and saddles offering, "The Light of Western Stars." One of the best-known of Zane Grey's outdoor novels, it musters all of the elements which Sherman well knows must go into the making of western entertainment—magnificent photography, the usual hard-riding and hard-fighting heroics and a whirlwind climax. The screenplay by Norman Houston is burdened, during the first few reels, with an overload of dialogue and a resultant dearth of action, but soon overcomes that handicap. Lesley Selander, who directed, excelled in his outdoor sequences.

Presidential Primaries Talks on HLDA Slate

Sidetracking, for the moment, international developments, the Hollywood League for Democratic Action has scheduled an open forum meeting for April 21 at which the ramifications of the coming presidential primaries are to be discussed and analyzed.

Representatives of four Democratic and one Republican slate will be on hand, having accepted the HLDA's invitation to appear and present their views on the dual questions of civil liberties and peace. Speaking for the slate headed by Lieut.-Gov. Ellis Patterson will be Sam Houston Allan, member of the state legislature.

The forum follows a meeting of members of the Patterson slate in Fresno at which two HLDA representatives—Mrs. J. Edward Bromberg and Mrs. Charles Page—attended to aid in formulating that portion of the platform concerning the peace and civil liberties questions. HLDA spokesmen pointed out, however, that neither Mrs. Bromberg nor Mrs. Page attended as political emissaries.

Johnston Leads Men Of Mono. to Dallas

Following the arrival from New York of President W. Ray Johnston, a contingent of Monogram's coast executives pulled out for Dallas, Tex., to attend the annual convention of the company's franchise holders there April 21 and 22. Included in the party, which was headed by Johnston, were Scott R. Dunlap, production head; Ed Finney, associate producer; Bill Peirce, studio publicity director; Ralph Bettinson, foreign representative; Charles Bigelow, Dunlap's assistant, and Ernest Hickson, technical director.

Upon checking in from the east, Johnston declared he would return here from Dallas next week to work with Dunlap in lining up the 1940-41 program of 50 pictures—to be broken down into 24 westerns and 26 action and dramatic features. During a month's stay he will attend a regional sales convention in San Francisco.

Although they had originally intended continuing on to New York for homeoffice conferences, Darryl Zanuck, Joseph M. Schenck and William Goetz altered their plans and have returned to 20th Century-Fox after attending the company's national sales convention in Chicago. Zanuck delivered the keynote speech at the conclave.

Both Walt and Roy Disney have checked in from New York, where they conferred with President George Schaefer of RKO Radio and huddled with their financial representatives concerning the new Disney stock issue.

Also back in town are Producer-Director Frank Lloyd and his "Howards of Virginia" troupe, which has been filming key shots on location at Williamsburg, Va.

William Orr, Metro homeoffice executive, arrived at the Culver City studio to confer with executives there on plans for summer and fall production. Accompanied by Mrs. Orr, he will spend another week here.

Universal has borrowed Rosalind Russell from M-G-M for the top role in "Hired Wife," which William A. Seiter will produce and direct. Also signed for the cast are Brian Aherne and Virginia Bruce.

"Porky" Hobnobs With Leon Schlesinger

For the first time in animated cartoon history, its creators claim, a pen-and-ink character, through trick photography and processing, is made to appear as though he is shaking hands and otherwise hobnobbing with genuine, flesh-and-blood people on the screen.

The character is "Porky, the Pig," who cavorts with Producer Leon Schlesinger—appearing in the film via a motion-picture clip — in Schlesinger's latest Looney-Tune, "You Ought to Be in Pictures." The reel will be shipped to the Warner distribution offices next week.

Exploitation Batteries Behind New Product

The big guns of exploitation, with which studio publicists have been firing salvos against the boxoffice blues with almost no letdown during the season, are currently being manned by Paramount in behalf of "Buck Benny Rides Again," which is to be given its elaborate world premiere April 24 at the Paramount in New York. Meantime, moving up to the firing line are Metro and RKO Radio—the former to unleash a barrage in support of "Edison, the Man," the latter to lay the ground work for the debut of "Irene" and "My Favorite Wife."

Jack Benny planed east, accompanied by Dennis Day, Bill Morrow and Ed Beloin, and was tendered a reception in Chicago en route to New York by a delegation from the radio-screen comic's home town, Waukegan, Ill. Following Benny to Gotham were Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Mary Livingstone, Phil Harris, Mary Boland and other members of the picture and radio troupe. All of them will be on hand when the picture makes its bow.

"Irene" made its debut at a press preview at the Pantages here. For the occasion, attended by Star Anna Neagle, Producer Herbert Wilcox, Executive Producer Harry Edington and scores of other Hollywood notables, studio publicists arranged for 30 name orchestras to play the eight song numbers featured in the picture over their respective radio programs, while Miss Neagle, prior to the preview, appeared as guest star on Bing Crosby's radio show. A dual premiere of the picture is being planned—one for Portland April 23, the other for Seattle April 24—with Wilcox and Miss Neagle attending both performances.

The "Irene" stunt will be followed shortly thereafter by the introduction of "My Favorite Wife," starring Irene Dunne, in four day-date premieres in as many key cities, east, west, north and south.

M-G-M is pondering a mid-May premiere of "Edison, the Man," in West Orange, N. J., following receipt of a petition signed by 35,000 citizens of that community asking that the screening be held there.

Unusual Quiet Marks Studio Labor Scene

Perhaps because the current production boom is keeping them too occupied to delve into their inter-jurisdictional troubles and difficulties with the producers, Hollywood's labor organizations at present are remaining unusually quiet.

Various IATSE locals are engaged in selecting delegates to the forthcoming IA convention in Louisville, June 3-8, at which a new international president will be selected. Representatives, numbering a total of about 40, are being chosen by the laborers, laboratory workers, electricians, projectionists, costumers, photographers and other IA units.

The painters have submitted demands to the producers requesting that the latter either submit proof of revenue losses or begin negotiations on new working conditions for the craft within ten days. Herbert Sorrell, painters' business manager, pointed out that the group has already offered to trade back its recently-acquired ten per cent wage increase in exchange for more satisfactory working conditions, but that the producers have not yet made a reply to the offer.

Upon the refusal of the Scenic Artists Association to agree to a consent election, the National Labor Relations Board here petitioned its Washington headquarters to order a hearing on the request of the motion picture painters for such an election. Painters and the SAA both contend they represent a majority of the craft. The NLRB also received a petition from the Screen Office Employes Guild, which seeks certification as bargaining agent for white-collar workers at ten studios. The SOEG contends that producers have refused to open negotiations, although the unit claims its 1,700 membership is a clear-cut majority. Named in the petition were Columbia, Samuel Goldwyn, Metro, RKO Radio, Republic, Hal Roach, Selznick International, 20th Century-Fox, Universal and Walter Wanger. The office workers want a five-day, 40-hour week and other concessions.

The Screen Writers Guild's executive board met to discuss plans for reopening negotiations with the producers, four studios having already agreed to resume parleys relative to a Guild shop for writers. A questionnaire is being mailed SWG members asking for suggestions as to revisions in the demands originally filed more than two years ago. A general membership meeting will be called when the questionnaires have been returned and their contents tabulated.

Action on the proposed autonomy plan for extras will be taken by the Screen Actors Guild directorate at a meeting called for April 22. If the plan, calling for the "B" players to be given their independence and a separate charter, is approved, it will be submitted to the "B" council and then to the "B" membership for a general vote.

Other labor developments:

Assistant cutters have asked the Society of Motion Picture Film Editors to request producers to give them a fixed weekly salary and a 40-hour week guarantee. The assistants' present contract with producers expires May 1. The group also desires that a clause be inserted in their agreement making it compulsory for an assistant to be assigned to every picture budgeted at more than $10,000.

The Screen Cartoonists Guild is now clarifying clauses of the contract it is now negotiating with M-G-M, the studio having finally agreed to recognize the craft. It seeks a five-day, 40-hour week and improved working conditions.

Universal Signs Seiter to Produce "Hired Wife"

Universal has signed William A. Seiter to a one-picture deal under which he will produce "Hired Wife" as a top-budgeted entry on the company's 1940-41 program. Screenplay is being written by Gladys Lehman and Richard Connell.

Directs "Arizona Cyclone"

Ray Taylor will direct "Arizona Cyclone," next Johnny Mack Brown western for Universal.

Doesn't Know of UA Interest in FWC

NEW YORK—If the UA Theatre Circuit has an interest in certain Fox West Coast units, it is news to William Kupper, western division manager for 20th Century-Fox. He so testified in the pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's all-industry suit.

Pressed on the point by Wright, he said he had "no such knowledge." He also declared at no time has he had any discussions with Joseph M. Schenck in respect to distribution. Neither had he discussed any deals he consummated in Los Angeles with William Phillips, head of the UA circuit.

"Would it come as a surprise to you if I told you that Joseph Schenck has an interest in United Artists theatres?" Wright asked. "Very much so," replied Kupper.

Wright wanted to know if Kupper had ever been asked to negotiate a first run deal in Salt Lake City other than with Harry David, who has had 20th Century-Fox product for the past ten years. Harry Arthur wanted to buy one picture five years ago, Kupper declared, but nothing came of it.

The witness added he never sold a Fox unit in Salt Lake City and "never discussed the situation in that city with a Paramount representative."

Neither has he discussed the first run situation in San Francisco with Loew or Paramount, he said in reply to a question. His company's first run outlet there is FWC and there has never been negotiations for a deal with another first run account, he said.

Twentieth Century-Fox's first run account in Seattle for the past seven years has been Evergreen State Amusement Corp., and the same circuit in Portland, Kupper stated. Spyros Skouras and J. J. Sullivan negotiated the deals for the circuit with Kupper and Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox sales manager, the witness added.

Wright wanted particularly to know why Skouras negotiated the first run deal for Fox-Greater Theatres in Denver. Kupper said this was not so; in fact, that discussions with Skouras were only of a general character and that the final deal is negotiated for the theatre individually.

Paralysis Fund Shows Increase Over 1939

LOS ANGELES—Representing a substantial increase over the amount collected in 1939, a total of $108,012 has been turned over to Joseph M. Schenck, general chairman of the 1940 infantile paralysis drive, by independent and circuit operators who participated in the campaign last February.

Collections were presented to Schenck by Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast, and R. H. Poole, secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California and Arizona, with both Skouras and Poole paying tribute to Schenck for the manner in which he conducted the drive.

Of the total, FWC's Southern California and Arizona division contributed $38,-561.93; FWC's northern California and Montana unit, $18,401; northern independent houses, $18,634.97, and southern California-Arizona independents, $32,414. Additional contributions were made by the Warner circuit and the theatre chain operated by Sherrill Cohen.

Finalize West Coast PCCITO Meet Plans

LOS ANGELES—With the name of Darryl F. Zanuck, studio head for 20th Century-Fox, added to the list of speakers as the principal representative of the industry's production phase, the arrangements committee for the forthcoming Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners' annual convention, to be held here May 8-9-10, has virtually completed its plans for the gathering.

Zanuck joins a retinue of speakers including Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, and such sales executives as Abe Montague, Columbia; W. F. Rodgers, Metro; Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox; Neil Agnew, Paramount; Ned Depinet, RKO Radio; J. R. Grainger, Republic; Gradwell Sears, Warner; William Scully, Universal, and L. J. Schlaifer, United Artists. The pressure of other business forced another invited speaker, H. A. Cole, president of Allied States, to decline the invitation extended by R. H. Poole, PCCITO executive secretary.

Zanuck will address the conventioneers at the Ambassador Hotel on production techniques and problems and the value of coordinating the industry's three principal branches—production, distribution and exhibition. He and the other speakers will be supplemented by such PCCITO executives as Poole, Hugh Bruen, A. West Johnson, Bob White, Jack Y. Berman and Rotus Harvey.

Topics to be discussed will range from "The Government in Our Business" to "Double Bills," "Legislation" and "Zoning and Clearance." Individual problems and questions will be threshed out in a series of open forums.

Several Metroites Roll Up Service Records

LOS ANGELES—Jack Cooper, booker at the M-G-M exchange here, will celebrate his ninth year with the company on April 27. With his three colleagues, the aggregate service to Leo has passed the 37 mark. It's like this: Parker J. Valpey, 14½ years; Gordon Wilson, 11½, and Howard Perretz, 2½.

It's 16 for One and 15 for Another in Portland

PORTLAND—There seems to be a service marathon between M-G-M bookers Andrew S. McCarl jr. and Ralph A. Amacher. McCarl has more than 16 years with the company, while Amacher rounds out his 15th year October 5.

Hoss in Vanguard

LOS ANGELES—No small portion of the effort that has placed the local Universal exchange out in front in the current Al O'Keefe sales drive, which ends May 4, belongs to Salesman Lon Hoss. Hoss has earned a 100 per cent rating for the city, having been assigned 110 theatres, all of which he sold.

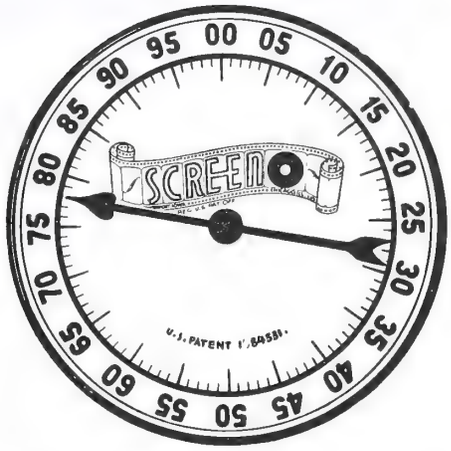
Exhibitor Free As Court Voids Guilt of Lottery

First Conviction in Local Area Is Defeated

Special Sessions Court in Brooklyn yesterday voided the conviction of James May, former manager of the Atlantic Theatre, Brooklyn, on charges of operating a lottery at the theatre, and acquitted him.



May was fined $500 and sentenced to 30 days in jail last July after a hearing in Special Sessions in which Judge Bayes found that the manner in which Screeno was conducted was a lottery. The conviction was appealed to the Supreme Court Appellate Division and remanded for a new trial.

This was the first conviction of its

On April 19, 1939, J. S. Markstein, General Manager of SCREENO AMUSEMENT CO., filed an Opposition Complaint (No. 19360) in the United States Patent Office, Washington, D. C., through his patent attorney.

Said Opposition was published October 17, 1939, and was set for hearing January 6th, 1940.

The Complaint requested a decision sustaining that the Opposition was not entitled to the registration of the name KEEN-O for which it had made application.

The Final Decree was rendered by the United States Patent Office through its Examiner of Interferences on February 24th, 1940, denying to the KEEN-O Corporation the right of registration. This hearing concluded the prosecution in favor of SCREENO AMUSEMENT COMPANY of Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO

BUSINESS in both first run and suburban houses was away off this week and the concensus was that several factors contributed to the drop at the boxoffice. First and foremost, however, was the date the local citizens had with the state income tax collector on April 15. As one exhibitor put it, the patron has to lay cash on the line for his taxes—there are no charge accounts at the City Hall! The warm spring weather sent thousands to the beaches and kept the people in the open and out of the theatres.

Joe Mealy, to let the populace in Lodi and vicinity know about the run of "Grapes of Wrath" at his theatre in Lodi, decked out a dilapidated Dodge with an assortment of furniture that even the Joads wouldn't claim and had two of the boys working at his theatre drive into Lodi and seek relief at the local SRA office. The boys were about to receive aid when they were recognized. The resultant publicity in the newspapers drew capacity crowds to the theatre.

Max Ratner, RKO booker, is on the sick list . . . Rene Portier is opening a new house in Brisbane in the very near future . . . Universal held the first sales meeting of the year this week with the boys and Barney Rose getting together for discussion on various issues . . . Clifford C. Fischer returned to town to begin work on this year's version of the "Folies Bergere" which was the second biggest money maker at the 1939 Fair. The cast of the '40 Folies will be here next week for rehearsals . . . Vesta Murphy, Warner inspectress, was struck by an automobile and obliged to spend a few days at home.

A pre-convention tea and get-together will be held at the Empire Hotel on Wednesday, April 24, for all independent exhibitors and their wives. The affair, sponsored by the PCCITO, is for the purpose of acquainting the exhibitors of northern California and Nevada with each other so that when they go to Los Angeles for the big convention on May 8, 9 and 10 the ice will already have been broken. Mrs. Rotus Harvey and Mrs. Ben Levin are co-chairmen of the affair and all exhibitors and their wives are invited to attend.

The Municipal Auditorium was crammed with femininity last Monday when tryouts were held for Billy Rose's Aquacade. This was only one of the tryout spots as the entire Pacific Coast is being scanned to find the guys and gals to fill the bill. Forty-eight girl dancers, 48 girl swimmers, 24 showgirls, 24 boy swimmers, and 24 boy singers are needed to produce the show. Final selections will be made next week.

Tiger Thompson, Orpheum publicity chief, headed a party of local newspaper people to Tucson to view the "Arizona" shooting. The bill was footed by Columbia.

There were quite a number of Hollywood's finest in town last week to catch the premiere showing of "Romeo & Juliet" with Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier. The play was supposed to go eastward but both stars had to return to Hollywood for retakes on their latest respective pictures . . . Clyde Church, former owner of the Portero, was back in town for a few days before continuing his vacation in the north. He is expected back soon.

Marty Weiser, assistant exploitation manager at Warner, was a visitor this week and found our fair city a great place in which to practice his hobby of candid camera work.

Organize Fight on Daylight Saving

LOS ANGELES—To map plans for combatting the proposed daylight savings legislation, which will be submitted to a vote in California's general elections next September, independent and circuit operators hereabouts have been invited to a preliminary campaign meeting by Charles P. Skouras, Fox West Coast president, April 22.

Spokesmen for Skouras, as well as other theatre operators throughout the area, contend that the daylight savings plan would wreak untold havoc on the theatre-going habits of the general public—principally because potential customers prefer waiting until dark before going into the theatres. The extra hour of daylight, therefore, in their opinion would tend to discourage attendance in favor of outdoor recreation such as motoring, swimming and sporting events.

A similar battle against daylight savings was waged by exhibitors in 1930, when the measure was defeated. The plan has lain dormant since that time until recently.

Booking visitors included Frank Ullman, who operates the Aztec in Calexico and the Broadway in El Centro; and Ben Aranda, Brawley Theatre, Eureka . . . Don Thompson, of the United Detroit Theatres Corp., Detroit, was a guest on the Warner lot.

Deny "Keen-O" Listing

WASHINGTON—The examiner of interferences of the U. S. patent office has denied the Keen-O Corporation, Inc., of California, right to registration of the name "Keen-O." The decision was rendered after opposition to the name was filed by the Screeno Amusement Co. of Chicago, which claimed the other name was a violation of its trademark rights.

Seth Perkins Adding More Drive-In Units

LOS ANGELES—With the filing of incorporation papers at Sacramento, plans to construct drive-in theatres in Bakersfield, Fresno and possibly other cities in the San Joaquin Valley area have been disclosed by Seth Perkins, a pioneer in the drive-in theatre movement hereabouts.

Associated with Perkins in the new company are N. H. (Jack) Brower, for 20 years a branch and district manager for Warner, whose association with that company was terminated recently; Chester A. Black, Robert E. Power, G. E. Arbogast, Milan Medigovich and A. G. Fickensen.

Perkins currently operates the San-Val Drive-In in Burbank and the Pico Drive-In in West Los Angeles. Black is in active management of the latter house.

20th-Fox L. A. Delegates Back From Chicago Meet

LOS ANGELES—Back at the old stand and ready to begin plugging the 52-picture lineup which was announced at 20th Century-Fox's Chicago sales convention April 12-14, is the delegation which attended from the local office. The party included Jack N. Dillon, exchange manager; B. F. Robison and W. T. Wall, salesmen, and Morris Sudmin, head booker. They checked in from the Windy City, April 16.

Darryl F. Zanuck, Joseph M. Schenck and William Goetz, who comprised the studio's representation at the conclave, continued on to New York for home office conferences.

SEATTLE—Frank L. Newman, president of Evergreen Theatres, caught a scene in "Star Dust" showing Sid Grauman planting the footprints of lovely Linda Darnell in the soft concrete of the theatre forecourt. Knowing Grauman very well, Newman sat down and sent a telegram reading: "Have just seen your stellar performance in 'Star Dust' stop your future in pictures is assured stop would you consider personal appearance in Seattle stop can give you good booking." Mr. Newman smiled to himself as he visioned Grauman's crimson visage upon noting the contents of the message. Boom! A wire came back, not from Grauman, but Myron Selznick, reading: "Sid Grauman turned your wire over to me stop okay one week in Seattle. Salary L-K-E stop can furnish clean photos for lobby. Grauman carries stand-in if you give extra shows we do not consider 'Gone With the Wind' competition if playing your town stop hard to handle and very independent. Suggest you close quickly. signed Myron Selznick." The wire did not worry Frank for he is used to surprises, but he doesn't know whether to accept or reject for the L-K-E salary code has him stopped. He does not know what he would be paying.

SEATTLE

THE next few days will see the opening of the baseball season in this burg. With Seattle having a championship team last season, the games being played at night, and this being one of the strongest ball towns in the west, the theatre owner is going to find some 14,000 of his customers draping the ball park every evening. Seats reserved for the opening game have been sold out for days.

More than 350 friends of the John Danzes were their guests at the reception honoring their son Fred and his bride. The couple, married March 15, had left Seattle immediately after the surprise ceremony for Phoenix, Ariz. The bride is the former Selma Gold. Her parents in Phoenix entertained with a similar reception for the couple whose honeymoon was spent in California and Arizona. Fred is supervisor of theatres for his dad, who is president of Sterling Theatres.

Smiley Burnette, singing comedian of the Gene Autry pictures, is in this neck of the woods making personal appearances and getting acquainted with his public . . . Murray Peck has gone to Spokane to join the forces of Fox-Evergreen theatres. Joe Rosenfield, city manager, announces that Murray will work on special ideas and emcee various stage attractions.

The laugh of the week was the birthday of Roy Peacock, Seattle branch manager for B. F. Shearer. A western union messenger arrived at the office and asked for Roy. When ushered into his presence, the boy ascertained if it was Roy and upon being told it was, the youngster said "Okay, you asked for it," then he unfolded the message and between blushes and with a husky voice he sang a beautiful birthday greeting from Mrs. Peacock. The youngster barely got the last note out then was off like a shot, leaving Roy howling with laughter.

Edgar Mercy will be stationed in Ellensburg for a spell. He will take over the operation of the theatre there, one in the Mercy chain, while Joe Kendall, the local manager, goes to the hospital for an operation . . . Ford Bratcher, former exhibitor in Lewiston, Ida., is in town en route from New York to Los Angeles. Ford and Burton Jones have the world rights to a picture and are doing sensational business with it.

Pete Constanti announces that he will open his new Roxy in Aberdeen within the next ten days . . . A proposed rodeo, scheduled for the civic stadium, met rebuff when Mayor Arthur B. Langlie vetoed an ordinance authorizing the show. Certain clubs in town laid claim that the rodeo was cruel to animals . . . A lone robber held up Marvin Iles, cashier at the Repertory Playhouse and escaped with an undetermined amount.

Roy Johnson, no relation to the other Johnsons in the theatre business around here, has opened the Gem in Hoquiam . . . Lightning, the seven-year-old white cat at the Liberty, was gifted with a Mousie House this week and is having the time of her nine lives with it.

Second Newsreel House in Hollywood Opening May 1

HOLLYWOOD—The News-View Newsreel Theatre, second such house to be located on Hollywood Blvd., will begin operation May 1, according to officials of Tele-View Theatres, Inc., its owners and operators. Its policy will comprise a one-hour show of newsreels, rushed here via air express, supplemented by major first-run short subjects.

Theatre was constructed at a cost of $100,000, and incorporates such features as "black light" illumination, steel-pressed push-back seats, new 1940 RCA projection equipment and the latest air-cooling and unit-heating equipment. Projection booth has been so constructed as to provide for television instruments if and when that medium becomes sufficiently advanced for theatre projection.

The Tele-View Newsreel Theatre, owned by the same company and also located on Hollywood Blvd., has been in operation for nearly two years.

REVIEW FLASHES

TEAR GAS SQUAD (WB)—Should register with average audiences as fair exchange for the price of a ticket. A service film pleasantly veered toward Irish participation in law enforcement, done in lighter vein and not neglecting the boy-meets-girl romance. Dennis Morgan, Gloria Dickson. Directed by Terry Morse.

TWO GIRLS ON BROADWAY (M-G-M)—Mirthful and melodic comedy drama into which Metro injected sufficient production values and cast so that a slightly stereotyped story will be overlooked by those who are shopping for a parcel of light, diverting entertainment, which order the feature is amply qualified to fill. Lana Turner and George Murphy debut as a new dancing team with promising effect, while competent Joan Blondell contributes most of the dramatics. Jack Cummings produced; S. Sylvan Simon directed.

YOUNG BUFFALO BILL (Rep)—A tale of the early west, when the government was looking into Spanish land grants, this, starting off with a song, goes on to combine everything that the audience would want in the way of western entertainment. Roy Rogers, George Hayes, Pauline Moore. Directed by Joe Kane.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Little Improvement Noted by Theatres

LOS ANGELES—While independent exhibitors are characteristically reticent about divulging the actual figures on attendance and profits during the first three months of 1940 as compared to the previous year, what limited disclosures could be obtained indicate that theatre patronage in Southern California for the year's first quarter showed little tendency toward an upswing.

This despite the fact that the Fox West Coast circuit, according to a report compiled by George Topper of the financial department, showed an increase in gross revenue of 6.84 per cent over the first 13 weeks of 1939. While Topper refused to disclose the actual dollars-and-cents figures, he pointed out that only FWC, of all the operating divisions of National Theatres, showed a gross gain, while the decrease over the entire chain was 5.64 per cent. During the first five weeks of 1940, Topper said, FWC's gross was 4.38 per cent under the similar 1939 period, the jump coming during the next eight weeks.

Most independent showmen who will comment at all paint a gloomy picture of their present business conditions, insisting that neither patronage nor profits have increased over 1939. One exhibitor, who requested that his name be withheld, explained the FWC increase as being traceable directly to the fact that the circuit booked Metro's "Gone With the Wind" early in the year at advanced prices and chalked up new attendance records in every showing. This showman contended the circuit skimmed the cream in the "GWTW" bookings and opined that when the film slips down into the independent brackets the bulk of its profit potentialities will be gone.

Harry Stern Representing Cosmetic Giveaway Agent

LOS ANGELES—Harry Stern, local distributing agent for Film Alliance, has been named representative in this territory for George Alderman, theatre contact man for the Constance Bennett cosmetics line, used in theatre giveaways. Alderman has just returned from a trip through the Denver and San Francisco territories, during which he sold more than 50 accounts, including the Golden West, Blumenfield, Yeager, Block-Hills and J. H. Cooper independent chains; the Fox West Coast houses around San Francisco, and FWC's Arizona circuit.

Opinion Foreshadows Ruling for "Nation"

CHICAGO—A motion picture remains essentially the same over a span of years, whether sound on film or sound on record is added to the original negative, in the opinion of Judge Donald McKinlay, presiding judge of superior court of Cook county. The judge gave his opinion verbally in the current court proceedings over D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation."

The current court session is over whether the original injunction granted distributors of the film in 1917 in Chicago restraining the police department from interfering with its exhibition, should be negated and the film consequently banned again. Judge McKinlay will rule on this point April 23.

The city has contended that with the addition of a sound track and effects, including shouting besides the original music score, the film becomes one that holds the Negroes up to "derision, contempt, ridicule and obloquy," and that the chief of the censor bureau, Lieut. Harry Costello, was within his rights in halting the showing of the sound-on-film version.

Distributors of the film contend this is a violation of their injunction and, therefore, Lieutenant Costello is in contempt of court.

Meanwhile, the National Association for Advancement of the Colored People has asked dismissal of the original injunction, because a state statute was placed on the Illinois legislative books a few months after the issuance of the injunction in 1917 that does not permit showing any picture that "holds up for derision, contempt, ridicule or obloquy, any race, or religion."

Judge McKinlay, meanwhile, permitted the use of the sound-on-film print of "Birth of a Nation" pending his decision next Tuesday. The film finished a seven-week run this week at the Sonotone.

Plans Poster Exchanges In Midwestern Area

CHICAGO—Frank Fisher, operator of the independent Wisconsin Poster Service in Milwaukee, says he will open several independent poster exchanges in the middle west, in competition to Advertising Accessories, Inc. Fisher did not sell out his Milwaukee exchange during the recent acquisition of practically all independent poster companies by AA.

Fisher opens the first of his new exchanges here in Chicago this week. In about three to four-week intervals regularly thereafter, he plans to launch exchanges in Detroit, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Indianapolis, successively.

Associated with Fisher in the venture is Leonard Katz of Chicago.

Sell Allied Convention At Variety Gathering

Chicago—Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois, and Dick Sachsel became press agents this week.

Both, while attending the national Variety convention in Dallas, did some ambassadoring for the national Allied gathering to be held here June 19 to 21.

Neely Divorce Bill Is "News" to Cole

CHICAGO—Col. H. A. Cole, president of National Allied, had "no comment" to make on the introduction of a divorcement bill by Senator Neely, during a stopover here.

Cole said he was here primarily to go over plans for the national convention, set for June 19-21 at the Morrison Hotel. When asked what he, as head of Allied, thought about the bill, he laughingly replied:

"Well, you know, I'll first have to read the bill myself before I can comment on it. I just learned of its introduction into the senate by Neely by wire myself."

Wives of Allied Men Make Convention Arrangements

CHICAGO—Wives of Allied members are taking an active interest in the forthcoming national Allied convention, June 19 to 21, and are arranging special features for wives of all visiting members. The women met this week at the Covenant Club in the first of a series of luncheon get-togethers, at which Mrs. Jack Kirsch, general chairman, announced the following committees:

Entertainment—Mrs. Jack Kirsch, chairman; Mrs. Harry Goldson and Mrs. Nate Wolf.

Luncheon—Mrs. Elmer Benesch, chairman; Mrs. Joe Weiss, Mrs. Herb Ettelson, Mrs. Nate Joseph and Mrs. M. Kaplan.

Reception—Mrs. Abe Feder, chairman; Mrs. Beatrice Saperstein, Mrs. John Semadalis, Mrs. Ben Lasker, Mrs. Sam Trinz, Mrs. M. B. Lang, Mrs. Harry Solomon, Mrs. I. Sevin, Mrs. Morris Zimmerman and Mrs. Ludwig Sussman.

Sightseeing—Mrs. Jack Rose, chairman; Mrs. Lou Harrison, Mrs. Jack Rubin and Mrs. Al Goldson.

Bob Hope Is Booked for P. A. in Windy City

CHICAGO—Bob Hope is due for a week's run at the Chicago, May 10. Following him in person will be the Marx Bros.' new unit, which is out on the road testing gags for their new M-G-M picture.

B&K is planning to use several big names during the late spring and early summer months at both the Chicago and State-Lake, their loop vaude houses. Booked at present is Glenn Miller's orchestra for early in June.

Demand Enforcement Of Ban on Bingo

MILWAUKEE—With local law enforcement officials sidestepping the Bingo issue, despite the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zrimsek, operators of the Bahn Frei Hall here, have decided to withdraw their appeal from a circuit court decision to the United States supreme court, exhibitor leaders have demanded of Police Chief Joseph T. Kluchesky that the law, holding the game a lottery, be enforced and that playing of Bingo be banned.

Exhibitor leaders have pointed out to the police chief that the state supreme court has ruled the game to be a lottery and that law enforcement officials in Manitowoc, Madison and several other Wisconsin municipalities have issued orders that the game be discontinued. They have requested similar enforcement in Milwaukee and to that end B. J. Miller, film attorney, brought action April 13 against Zrimsek, who has continued to play the game despite the high court's ruling.

Charles W. Trampe, head of Film Service, Inc., and local exhibitor, first secured a circuit court injunction against the Zrimseks. They, in turn, appealed the decision to the state supreme court, which sustained the lower court. Counsel for the Zrimseks then announced an appeal would be carried to the United States supreme court, but this was finally dropped because of the cost involved.

Harry Perlewitz, business manager of the ITPA of Wisconsin, has declared that the exhibitors will extend their efforts to the utmost to secure enforcement of the law.

Indianapolis Apollo Will Revert to Lease Owners

INDIANAPOLIS—The Apollo closed Thursday night, the lease on the theatre held by the Greater Indianapolis Amusement Co. expiring May 28, when the house will revert to Charles M. Olson and associates.

Kenneth Collins, manager of the Apollo and Indiana, said the theatre was leased from Olson in 1928 by the Fourth Avenue Amusement Co. of Louisville, and later was subleased to Greater Indianapolis Amusement Co., which also operates the Indiana and Circle.

William A. Brennan, who is associated with Olson and Gene Marks in the ownership of the Apollo, said that the owners "have definite plans in mind which will be announced later."

The Apollo was one of the first houses in the country to be fully equipped for talking pictures and did a landoffice business in the early days of Vitaphone. It also was home to the pictures of Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell and other outstanding stars of the early sound era.

With the Apollo closed, the Indiana, which usually closes during the summer months, is expected to remain open throughout the season.

Rosy Outlook for the Future Marks 20th-Fox Convention

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—"It's sink or swim for the coming season and we on the 20th Century-Fox lot definitely believe in a rosy future for the industry," is Darryl F. Zanuck's comment concerning his 1940-41 plans. He was here for the concluding session of the 20th Century-Fox convention and was the principal speaker along with chairman of the board, Joseph M. Schenck.

"In spite of everything that is going on in this world about us," Zanuck said in an interview with BOXOFFICE, "we are going the limit. We are spending $2,000,000 more next year, with the result that our 1940-41 budget will approximate $28,000,000, or slightly better. Not only that, but we are planning four more pretentious productions in the million-dollar class than last year."

Zanuck, who flew here by special TWA plane and returned the same way to the coast, along with Schenck, William Goetz, his executive assistant, and Harry Brand, studio publicity chief, said that for the first time in the history of the company, 20 pictures of the 26 he will undertake himself will be in the million dollar class. "By that I mean," he said, "that the average cost of the 20 will be in the neighborhood of a million dollars each."

The first of these is "Brigham Young," which went on location Monday. "We are going to shoot the works on this one," he said, "and when we are finished exhibitors will have a new marquee name in Dean Jagger, Broadway star, who is playing the title role."

The production chieftain told the convention a new property just planned, and also for the million dollar class, will be "Brooklyn Bridge," with an imposing cast to include Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell and Edward Arnold.

Zanuck is counting on big things for "Lillian Russell," the current Faye-Ameche-Fonda vehicle, which has a definite running time of two hours and 20 minutes. This is the longest picture produced by Zanuck to date.

Besides Jagger, Zanuck promised salesmen that new personalities he is grooming are John Payne, playing the lead opposite Brenda Joyce in "Maryland," and two young feminine players, Ann Baxter and Jean Turner, neither of whom has yet had any prominent roles.

Wobber Sees Record 20th-Fox Account List

CHICAGO—Twentieth Century-Fox will have the biggest account list in its history by the end of this season, with some 12,000 exhibitors playing its product, Herman Wobber, general sales manager, told BOXOFFICE, as the company's convention came to a close here.

"Right now," he said, "we have in the neighborhood of 11,500 accounts. But, by the time the men close up the season, we should hit 12,000, which will probably be as big as any company has ever done."

At Fox Convention—

Kent Drive Enriches Foxites by $21,000

CHICAGO—Four hundred and forty-eight 20th Century-Fox employes in 16 exchanges split $21,000 in prizes growing out of the Kent drive for 1939-40. Harry G. Ballance was given a special award for outstanding work among district managers.

In the national division, Lester Sturm, Detroit, was first, and received three weeks salary for all employes; Sam Wheeler, Washington, second, two weeks salary for all employes, and Paul Wilson, Atlanta; J. M. Ballentine, San Francisco; B. B. Reingold, St. Louis, and John Dillon, Los Angeles.

In the international division: E. V. Laindaiche, New Orleans, first, three weeks salary for all employes; C. L. Walker, Salt Lake City, second, two weeks salary for all employes, and H. J. Bailey, Toronto; B. A. Simon, New Haven; C. W. Clark, Oklahoma City, and M. A. Grassgreen, Albany.

Short subjects and newsreel awards went to Ira Cohn, Pittsburgh; Charles Powers, Portland, Ore.; Phil Longdon, Charlotte, and Sam Gross, Philadelphia.

Sees "Best" News Coverage

CHICAGO—Movietone News expects to present the best European war coverage now that a new plan of individual use of stories made has been arranged, Truman H. Talley, Movietone News producer, told the 20th Century-Fox convention.

He explained the former plan of compulsory pooling of all news shots has been done away with, and that, henceforth, all newsreels will be permitted to use their own shots exclusively, after passed by censors.

Four Major Topics For Allied Meet

CHICAGO—Four major topics have been set up for discussion during the national Allied convention at the Morrison Hotel here June 19 to 21. They are the two Neely bills—block-booking and theatre divorcement; the government case in New York and its ramifications, and a general legislative discussion.

Col. H. A. Cole, national president, and Jack Kirsch, president of the Illinois unit and convention chairman, conferred on the program plans during Cole's recent stopover visit en route to Texas. Kirsch expects Abram F. Myers, general counsel, here shortly to discuss further detailed plans for topics to be aired.

Equipment dealers have been invited to display their merchandise in a large exhibit hall that will be open for the visiting exhibitors and their friends, adjoining the convention hall proper.

Allied Transportation Committee Named

CHICAGO—Allied's committee to handle convention transportation is composed of the following: Seth D. Perkins and James C. Quinn, California, Arizona and Nevada; Al Schuman and Lawrence C. Caplan, Connecticut; Van Nomikos, Richard Salkin, E. E. Alger, Charles House and Edward Grossman, Illinois; Roy Harrold and Don R. Rossiter, Indiana; Leo F. Wolcott and Charles Peterson, Iowa; Frank Hornig and Mrs. Helen Diering, Maryland; Frank Lydon and Arthur K. Howard, Massachusetts; Ray Branch and Miss Pearl M. Sprott, Michigan; W. A. Steffes and Ben Ashe, Minnesota; Lee W. Newberry and Harry Lowenstein, New Jersey; Martin G. Smith and P. J. Wood, Ohio; Orville Von Gulker and George Sumner, Oklahoma; M. A. Rosenberg and Fred J. Herrington, western Pennsylvania; S. E. Samuelson and E. B. Gregory, eastern Pennsylvania; Dean Nash and Charles Lee Hyde, South Dakota; Col. H. A. Cole and A. W. Lilly, Texas; Charles H. Olive and W. J. Gingell, Washington, D. C.; Richard D. Marks jr. and Garland West, West Virginia, and W. L. Ainsworth and Harry Perlewitz, Wisconsin.

: On the Lighter Side :

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—All of the 20th Century-Fox conventioneers had the evenings to themselves, with no itinerary set. So some of the boys explored the Windy City, others lolled about the Drake Hotel lobby reminiscing and swapping yarns, while there were the inevitable friendly games nightly among the boys that get together convention after convention.

Roger Ferri, editor of Dynamo, was so busy getting out that special edition, that at one time he was actually accused of using both typewriters in his room at once.

The publicity crew kept things humming, with plenty of cooperation extended the trade press, under the direction of Chief C. E. McCarthy . . . Rodney Bush, exploitation head, celebrated his birthday on Sunday during the convention . . . Eddie Solomon, new aide to Bush, just recruited from the B&K publicity department in Chicago, celebrated his first convention.

Speaking about conventions, Jerry Murphy, Washington salesman, was attending his 25th successive Fox convention.

B&K Theatres furnished the conventioneers with the customary passes to all their loop houses, and also ran an ad on the amusement pages of the Chicago dailies welcoming the convention, in which many of Darryl Zanuck's outstanding productions of the current year were mentioned.

Lou Shanfield, head of the art section of the advertising and publicity department, did a grand job of decorating the convention room, aided by Ed Hollander, who arrived ahead of the conventioneers, to get things ready. Missed, was Jerry Novat, poster art director, who handled the job last year. He couldn't make it due to a serious operation which kept him in New York.

Eddie Bergman, Cleveland salesman, had Martin Moskowitz, assistant to Herman Wobber, worried one night. Moskowitz entered the Drake lobby to find Bergman "staggering" all over the place, with clusters of salesman "worrying" over the Clevelander's "condition." After a couple minutes during which Moskowitz couldn't just decide what to do, Bergman stepped out of character and back to his normal, sober self.

Art Knapp and Eddie Wescott, Detroit salesmen, won most of the shekels in the games played by the Motor City crowd as they came over on the Michigan Central Mercury for the confab.

Felix Jenkins, general counsel, spoke to the boys on the new contracts, explaining every detail. He ended up by explaining he couldn't show them actual copies because they hadn't come from the printers when the New York group left for the convention.

Glen Norris, Washington salesman, made us feel swell when we overheard him telling his co-salesman, Freddie Klein, that he used to take a lot of trade papers, but now he takes only BOXOFFICE, "because that covers the field so well."

Incidentally, Klein extended himself trying to get into the "Rats' Club," by buying all the boys a drink. But he was blackballed. Reason: He has one unsold possibility . . . The members of the club all Hundred Per-Centers, are: Glen Norris and Sam Diamond, Washington; W. G. Humphries and Howard Smith, Philadelphia, and Clarence Kellenberg, Pittsburgh sales manager. Smith celebrated his birthday during the convention.

Clyde Eckhardt, Chicago branch manager, and one of the company's veterans, was up to his usual "doodling," at the various sessions. He's getting so expert someone suggested he offer them to the Chicago Museum of Art. Incidentally, this was Eckhardt's 26th convention with the company.

Joe Cohan, Washington office manager, struck a serious note for a moment, reflecting on the European war situation. Joe was reminiscing for many of the boys about his experiences as a member of the "Fighting 69th" (not a Warner plug). He is secretary of the Washington, D. C., chapter of the Rainbow Division.

Lew Lehr, Movietone News humor editor, had the boys worried when he got up to talk. He walked up to the platform with a huge volume supposedly bulging with reference page markers, letting them think they were in for at least a two-or-three-hour session.

A special screening was held Saturday morning at the H. & E. Balaban Esquire. There the conventioneers saw the test shots of Dean Jagger, recently signed Broadway star, who will play the title role in "Brigham Young," first 1940-41 release; some scenes from the picture itself; a reel of "Maryland," with Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Hattie McDaniel, and Walter Brennan.

Individual pow-wows between salesmen and branch managers, together with district managers, were held Sunday morning, prior to the big session of the week, when Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck spoke.

Zanuck Remembers Headline Values

Chicago—Darryl F. Zanuck may be a producer, but he hasn't forgotten the value of publicity.

Informed during the 20th Century-Fox convention that a large 40x60 color blowup of Tyrone Power had disappeared from the convention floor after a girls' group meeting, he quickly called Harry Brand, studio publicity head, and told him:

"Swell story here. It should make all the papers. Imagine a bunch of girls coming in and swiping such a large blowup of Power as we had in the convention hall."

Spyros Skouras was renewing old acquaintances here. One day he had lunch with Leo Spitz, former RKO president; then had dinner the next night with Jimmy Coston, zone manager for Warner Theatres. Skouras, untiring, was even among those who met Darryl Zanuck when he arrived at 8 a. m. Sunday from the west coast at the Chicago airport.

Among those who met the Zanuck-Schenck special plane were Charles E. McCarthy, advertising and publicity director; Rodney Bush, exploitation head, and the TWA press crew of William Westlake and Millie Anderson, both armed with photographers to record the event.

Most of the conventioneers were gone by Sunday night. Those remaining over were Zanuck, Schenck, Kent and Harry Brand for Monday conferences.

Lew Lehr got a laugh with this "Broadway Confucius Say:" "When Stalin and Hitler meet, two heels click."

Herndon Edmond, Seattle manager, went east for a visit with friends in Maryland, before returning home.

"Buck" Meets the Boys in Chicago—

Indianapolis Barkers Aid Medical Center

INDIANAPOLIS—Marc J. Wolf, head of the Indiana Tent No. 10 Variety Club, announced this week the establishment of a convalescent serum center and probably an experimental blood bank for Indiana and purchase of equipment to help train underprivileged school children. The club will buy the equipment for the school children and will give the money for the serum center to the Indiana University medical center.

The club is planning a charity show to be given in May for raising funds. Wolf, in a statement issued at a meeting of members of the Variety Club, representatives of the board of school commissioners, and the Indiana University medical center, said, "All money raised in this effort will be used to help two very worthy causes. We intend to buy equipment to help train underprivileged school children better. This equipment will be located mainly in a central unit at the Indianapolis school board's Meridian and Ohio streets building. Other equipment will be placed in various schools throughout the city as our means permit.

"We also intend to use part of the money, at the request of some of our leading physicians, representing the Indiana University medical center at Indianapolis, to establish a convalescent serum center and probably an experimental blood bank for the state of Indiana. A blood bank keeps all types of blood on hand, available to all Indiana doctors for use when transfusions are needed."

Date of the Variety Club show will be announced later, but it was said an elaborate stage show is being planned, providing at least two hours of topnotch entertainment. It will be given at midnight on the stage of the Lyric. The theatre and staff services are being donated for the big show by Charles M. Olson.

Terre Haute Theatres Aid In Americanism Program

TERRE HAUTE—Members of the Terre Haute Theatres Ass'n are cooperating in another Americanism Program to be held April 22 and 23 in the Idaho and Swan theatres, operated by William Reinking.

The program is being sponsored by the local chapter of B'nai B'rith, and students from Woodrow Wilson Laboratory and eight Junior High Schools will be entertained.

When the first show of this kind was held in February, they were only able to take care of the seniors of the schools, but with the cooperation of the various principals and the local school board, more students will participate in this program. There will be five-minute speakers on the Bill of Rights at all performances.

Frank Reimer Will Manage Quimby Ft. Wayne Houses

INDIANAPOLIS—Frank Reimer, salesman for Warner Bros. here, has resigned to take over the management of the Quimby Theatres, in Fort Wayne, operators of the Emboyd, Jefferson, Palace, Paramount and Riley, which are headed by Mrs. Helen Quimby of Fort Wayne.

Reimer has been connected with Warner 11 years, two years in the Chicago office as cashier and nine years with the Indianapolis branch. He took over his new post Monday.

Deems Theatre a First Aid to More Business

INDIANAPOLIS—Albert Haring, professor of marketing of the Indiana University school of business, in his nine-point program to restore and maintain healthy business conditions, believes that stimulation of business in the smaller towns and county seats will in no way detract from volume of trade in the larger centers. Among the first factors in his program for the small town if it wants to step ahead as a trading center are: It must maintain a good theatre; at least one good eating place; parking facilities; displays of seasonable goods in show windows; maintenance of a good newspaper with emphasis on local news; good lights for streets and stores; cleanliness (including liberal use of paint and colors); maintenance of a reasonable stock of merchandise in a price and quality range suitable to the community, and, above all, for merchants to keep any promise made to a customer.

Haring's theory is that all aggressive business activities tend to increase the desire for consumption and, as a result, the total volume of business in the state is increased.

"Lion Has Wings" Picketed By a "Neutrality" Group

ST. LOUIS—Members of the St. Louis Chapter of Draftable Men, ostensibly organized to maintain the neutrality of the United States, have been picketing five theatres here and in St. Louis county which have been showing the British-made "The Lion Has Wings," depicting English strength in the air.

The theatres picketed include the Ritz, Uptown and Norside, in St. Louis, and the Esquire, Richmond Heights and Varsity, University City.

The pickets, charging the film is "British propaganda," distribute handbills in the form of invitations to "see the film to which the signatures of Neville Chamberlain and Winston Churchill were forged." At the Ritz, one of the pickets wore a top hat and carried an umbrella, impersonating Chamberlain.

The League plans to picket other theatres in the vicinity that show the film.

Indianapolis Luncheon Meet Sells "Edison"

INDIANAPOLIS—As part of the exploitation for "Young Tom Edison," currently at Loew's here, a luncheon meeting with a group of citizens was arranged by Wade W. Willman, manager of the M-G-M office; Harold Marshall, publicity director, and Ward Farrar, manager of Loew's.

A. G. Dudley, superintendent of the Western Union, addressed the group, describing Edison's experiences during his stay in Indianapolis. Other speakers included Wallace O. Lee, Russell Campbell, who represented Mayor Reginald Sullivan; W. T. Thayer of the General Electric Co.; Lt. Gov. Henry F. Schricker and O. K. Van Ausdall of the Ediphone Co. Mrs. David Ross, president of the Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays, and Mrs. Charles D. Vawter of the Indianapolis Council of Women also were present.

Lee Goldberg to Observe 25th Anniversary Soon

INDIANAPOLIS—Lee L. Goldberg, president of Big Feature Rights Corp., controlling independent exchanges at Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Cleveland, will celebrate his 25th year in the motion picture and theatre business this coming June. Goldberg started in Louisville as resident manager with the B. F. Keith theatre circuit, later opening a small exchange in Louisville. A few years later, he blossomed forth with a big time exchange, when, with Col. Fred Levy, he acquired the franchise for First National Pictures and Educational Comedies for the territories of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Columbia Pictures at that time were being franchised and Goldberg secured the distributing rights for Indiana, opening an exchange here. There was continued business expansion, and a large number of theatres were acquired throughout Kentucky and Indiana. Later these houses became part of the Warner Theatre circuit, with Goldberg appointed southern division manager. Through the many years and changes Goldberg never divorced himself from his film exchanges, and after Columbia had set up its own exchange system, First National had been absorbed by Warner, and Educational Comedies had gone to Fox distribution, he resigned from his executive capacity with Warner to devote all his time to the operation of his three film exchanges.

His exchanges for the new season of 1940-41 will distribute the product of Producers Distributing Corp. and Franklyn Warner's Fine Arts Productions. Sam H. Abrams is sales manager and Joseph W. Bohn is office manager of the Indianapolis exchange.

B&K's 1939 Net $60,000 Above Profit of 1938

CHICAGO—B&K net profit for 1939 was almost $60,000 over that of the previous year, netting $4.69 per share of common, Barney Balaban, president, reported at the annual stockholders' meeting here, April 16. The total 1939 net was $1,329,964.15. For 1938, it was $1,270,400.89. This net is for all B&K, Great States and subsidiary houses in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

All five directors were re-elected, including Barney Balaban, John Balaban, Y. Frank Freeman, Austin C. Keough and Elmer C. Upton. The annual directors' meeting, at which officers are elected, will be held some time in May.

Theatre Partial Victor in Damage Suit by Two

MILWAUKEE—The Avalon was a partial victor in a $10,500 damage suit brought by Charlotte and Eric Goike, when a circuit court jury brought in a finding of no negligence on the part of the theatre management.

Mrs. Goike charged she had suffered a spine injury in a fall at the theatre Dec. 13, 1937, when her heel caught in a hole in the carpet. She sued for $10,000 and her husband sued for $500 for medical expenses.

INDIANAPOLIS

GEORGE LANDIS, manager of the local 20th Century-Fox office, was in Chicago at the Drake Hotel attending his company's sales convention. He was accompanied by J. R. Neger, sales manager; H. L. Hancock, G. J. Black and T. O. McCleaster, salesmen, and K. L. Dotterer, booker.

W. H. Trunick, RCA salesman, announces installation of new equipment in the Kent at Kentland, Ind., operated by Dallas Cannon; in the Indiana, South Bend, operated by Lou Cochovety, and in the Lake, Valparaiso, operated by Justin O. Shauer.

The Indiana board of agriculture this week announced that Paul Whiteman and his band have been engaged to provide music for the horse show at the state fair.

Leonard Sowar and wife left Saturday for a ten-day vacation through the south and expect to end up at the Variety Club convention in Dallas April 18. Sowar is city manager for the Theatrical Managers, Inc., houses at Muncie.

Mrs. Knute Rockne of South Bend, widow of the football coach, is in Hollywood to see the start of the film, "The Life of Knute Rockne." She never had been on a film set before and was pleasantly surprised to find sets erected exactly as various parts of Notre Dame University. She remarked that Pat O'Brien, who portrays Rockne in the film, was amazingly like Rockne in his makeup.

Long-Termer to Heisler

HOLLYWOOD—Stuart Heisler, whose first directorial effort for Paramount was "The Biscuit Eater," has been handed a long-term pact by that studio.

Republic and NSS Are Co-Champions

CHICAGO—More than 60 members and friends of the Chicago Motion Picture Bowling League attended the annual banquet at Harry's New York Bar, during which officers for the next year were named. They are: Henry Porter, president; Howard DeTamble, secretary; and Christ Otto, renamed treasurer. Porter succeeds Frank Nardi, while DeTamble succeeds Chinn, who has been transferred by National Screen from Chicago to Milwaukee.

Co-champion cups were presented to Irving Mandel, Republic sponsor, and Morton Van Pragg, National Screen sponsor. The winning team members were: National Screen, Percy Barr, captain; Wilbur Boehm, Chris and Jim Chinn, Louis Mathieu, Clare Keim and George Libera; Republic, Frank Nardi, captain; Max Dreifuss, Jim Booth, Ben Eisenberg, Ben Schedel and Jack Kirsch, who lead the individual bowlers.

While the league recognized the co-champions, Republic accepted the National Screen challenge to roll off the tie, which was to have been held this week. The losers will fete the winners at a special dinner, time and place to be set by the winners.

Christ (Shorty) Otto was presented with a sportsmanship plaque for his "untiring efforts in settling all league disputes amicably." Jack Kirsch was presented with a trophy for the individual scoring lead.

The final standings:

Three Moves Are Open to Save Bioff From Jail

CHICAGO—Three moves were open to attorneys for Willie Bioff, Hollywood labor leader, in their attempt to win his freedom from Bridewell prison where on Monday he began serving an 18-year-old sentence for pandering.

Two of these were petitions for pardons, one to Gov. Henry Horner and the other to the state pardon board, on the grounds that Bioff has become rehabilitated since sentence was passed in 1922. The third was a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to the Illinois supreme court, which has twice refused to permit Bioff to remain at liberty on $5,000 bail pending their review of the case. However, the supreme court is not expected to rule on the case until October, by which time Bioff will have served the ancient six-month term.

With Bioff in jail and expected to be given routine clerical duties, it is understood his union associates on the west coast have threatened to compel studio executives to confer with the labor chief by telephone in his jail cell on future labor arbitration.

Bioff has contended that the studios, Communists and CIO are responsible for resurrection of the sentence against him.

Grand in St. Louis Will Stay Open This Summer

ST. LOUIS—The Grand on Market St. near Sixth will remain open all summer and switch from straight burlesque to a film-flesh policy. Arthur Clamage of Wolverine Amusement Co., Detroit, which has a lease on the theatre, was here last week ironing out details for the installation of an air conditioning system. Sam Reider will manage the Grand.

The Hirst circuit's Garrick, a block north and a burlesque rival of the Grand, was to close over the weekend for the summer. Jack Beck, manager, will be shifted to Atlantic City to take over the Globe, also a Hirst house.

Defendant Hearings On in Suit Over Attorney Fees

ST. LOUIS—Defendant hearings started April 15 in the suit brought by Fanchon & Marco for the return of $42,200 in fees paid to John S. Leahy, Lambert E. Waltner and Harold F. Hecker, St. Louis attorneys.

Harry C. Arthur jr. was the star of six plaintiff witnesses heard by Circuit Judge Ward. He was on the witness stand on 16 different court days. Final witness for the plaintiff was Marco Wolff, who represents the Marco end of the theatrical firm.

A Repeat Robbery

INDIANAPOLIS—The Vogue Theatre here was the victim of a holdup perpetrated by a youthful bandit, who, the cashier was certain, was the same one who robbed the theatre last October. The bandit, flourishing a gun, seized one handful of bills and fled. Loss was not determined.

No Release Set Yet for Kline-Steinbeck Film

CHICAGO—The documentary film on Mexican peon life, to be produced jointly by Novelist John Steinbeck and Producer-Director Herbert Kline, has no release set as yet, Kline said during a stopover here. He was here in connection with his latest picture, "Lights Out in Europe," being handled by Look-Ampix Productions.

Kline said he and Steinbeck plan to make the film first and then arrange for distribution. This may be either through a major company or through Look-Ampix. There also is a possibility of it being road-shown in key cities.

The Mexican film will get under way about May 1, with completion set for around September 1. Kline said that while he has not discussed the story as yet with Steinbeck, it is his understanding that it will deal with the Mexican peons in the same manner that Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" dealt with migratory workers in California.

Working with Steinbeck and Kline on the production will be Rosa Kline, the producer's wife, and Alexander Hackenschmid, cameraman, who also photographed "Lights Out in Europe."

Four Chicago Bookers With Metro Total of 43 Years

CHICAGO—Service, and lots of it, seems to be the keynote of the four M-G-M bookers here to their employer. In other words, the quartette has rounded out an aggregate of 43 years, to-wit: Edna Frank, 19; Arthur O'Toole, 11; Walter Bennin, 10, and Harry A. Hopkins, three.

Ten Years on July 1

INDIANAPOLIS—On July 1, William Schwartz, booker at the M-G-M exchange, will have rounded out ten years with the company. His partner, Donald S. MacLeod, whose dad recently rounded out a quarter of a century at the home office, is well into his 12th year here.

Many Film Folk Attend Rites for Max Slott

CHICAGO—An unusually large number of Filmrowites attended the funeral here for Max Slott, well-known exhibitor, who died from complications resulting after an operation. Slott formerly was with Warner in Milwaukee.

Pallbearers were Henri Elman, Johnny Mednikow, Jimmy Coston, Jack Shumow, George Weinberg and Jack Rose.

Filmrow was shocked to hear that three days after the funeral, the father of Max, Morris Slott, 72 years old, died from grief over his son's death. He was buried Tuesday. Reported seriously ill from the shock of the two deaths in the family this week, was the elder Mrs. Slott.

A Business Career for Lester Retchin's Son

CHICAGO—Lester Retchin of the Howard, whose son Sheldon is doing well as a salesman for Warner in the San Francisco territory, has received word that his youngster son, Norman, is embarking on a business executive career. Norman has been chosen one of two young men from the forthcoming June graduating class of the University of Pennsylvania to join the executive offices of the Abramson & Strauss Co., New York.

Sheldon, the Warner salesman who was picked by Grad Sears for the post, is also a Pennsylvania graduate.

Ben Hecht Planning Film Similar to "Scoundrel"

CHICAGO—Ben Hecht is planning to produce another picture on the order of Noel Coward's "The Scoundrel," he told reporters at Chicago city airport during a stopover en route to Hollywood. His backer is Dr. William Szcheley, and the film will be titled "Before I Die."

Thomas Mitchell is the only cast member chosen thus far.

"Mystradrama" Is Getting Wisconsin Playing Time

MILWAUKEE—"Mystradrama," a combination of the "The House of Seven Gables" and "Black Friday," has been getting a play in many Wisconsin theatres including the Lyric at Stevens Point, the Parkway, Madison; Rex, Beloit, and Gateway, Kenosha. In former towns it was advertised as "A great double world premiere," and the public was urged to "see these two hit pictures before even Hollywood sees them!"

Says Too Many Shows Are Detrimental to Children

SHEBOYGAN, WIS. — Indiscriminate and too frequent visits to movies often is detrimental to children, Adelbert Peck, principal of the Siefert School, Milwaukee, declared in an address here before the Better Films Council on "Motion Pictures —A Contributing Factor in Education and Culture Today."

Two more pictures received their first runs in St. Louis at houses that usually are in the second-run classifications. They were "Sidewalks of London," which opened at Ritz, Norside, Esquire, Varsity and Uptown, and "Zenobia," which was the second feature at all but the Esquire, which substituted shorts instead . . . Fanchon & Marco effected a tieup with KWK under which the 13 neighborhood theatres in the St. Louis Amusement fleet which show the "Green Hornet" serial, have been carrying a trailer about the Green Hornet air programs on KWK and, in turn, the radio station twice weekly has been carrying spot announcements about the film shows.

Roy Rogers Chicago Visitor

CHICAGO—Roy Rogers, Republic's barnstorming cowboy, who is touring the company's exchanges, was a local visitor.

"Rebecca" Leads Parade In the Chicago Loop

CHICAGO—"Rebecca" was still leading the parade in the loop this week. In its second week at the United Artists, the picture was experiencing holdouts in rainy and fair weather.

Warner's "Virginia City" was doing okay at the Chicago, with the other houses doing average. Universal's "It's a Date," at the Palace, had one of the best openings the theatre has experienced since it dropped vaudeville, and was due for a second week.

In the neighborhoods, M-G-M's "Northwest Passage," coupled with "Congo Maisie," hit the B&K big three—Tivoli, Uptown and Marbro—and did capacity business, while in the first-week houses, Warner's "Fighting 69th" was doing well.

Outstate Trade Showings Started by Tom Gilliam

CHICAGO—Feeling that exhibitors in small outstate towns of the territory are the "forgotten men" when it comes to screening product, Tom Gilliam, Warner branch manager, has devised a plan of showing the company's bigger features regularly in various sections of the state.

The first such screening was held recently at the Princess, Leroy, Ill., operated by John Freiburg, with out-state Warner salesmen Harry Goldman and R. C. Herman in charge. In addition to Freiburg, among those there were J. Kratz, Lyric, Monticello; J. Fenstermaker, Bement, Bement; Ralph French, Colonial, Colfax; Russell Meyers, Delavan, Delavan; John Kendall, Kendall, Farmer City, and Arthur Nelson, Clintonia, Clinton, representing the McCollum circuit. All of the exhibitors were accompanied by their wives.

"It All Came True," starring Ann Sheridan, and the Warner patriotic short, "Teddy Roosevelt and the Rough Riders," were screened in the forenoon. Following luncheon, "Virginia City" was shown.

Anderson Plans Morris House

MORRIS, ILL.—F. W. Anderson of the Anderson circuit, has announced plans for a 500-seat house to be ready for opening here about September 1.

New Sound at Galena

GALENA, ILL.—The New Stanley has installed RCA sound equipment.

: Facts for "Nation" :

CHICAGO—It made a good story, and Fritz Blocki, publicist for Jones, Linick & Schaefer, saw to it all the papers had it.

The story dealt with the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" at the La Salle in the loop. Blocki dug up the following sidelights from Aaron Jones sr.:

That J-L-S played the film originally at their Illinois for a 19-week run, following it with 37 weeks more at the J-L-S Colonial, about 25 years ago.

That J-L-S is also showing "Gone With the Wind," which the critics continue to compare with "The Birth of a Nation," at their Oriental, which, incidentally, is on the site of the former Colonial.

Selznick to Films as "Sterling to Silver"

Chicago—The "Tribune's" Mae Tinee, in reviewing "Rebecca," paid high tribute to David O. Selznick, the producer.

"The name of David Selznick is becoming to movies what 'sterling' is to silver," she wrote. Still further she added: "'Rebecca' is, in its way, as remarkable a film as 'Gone With the Wind,' and Fontaine (Joan Fontaine, who plays the feminine lead) as great as Leigh!"

Other local critics similarly praised the film. It is currently at the United Artists.

Gehring Testifies Balaban Aloof From Product Deal

NEW YORK—Barney Balaban, B&K president, never took part in negotiations for first-run deals between 20th Century-Fox and the Chicago circuit, William C. Gehring, the distributor's central division manager, testified in his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's key suit. Asked whether there had ever been other first-run negotiations while B&K's deal was in effect, the witness said: "We had requests about once a year from John Jones but we never made a deal with him; we stayed with our customer."

Gehring's testimony was largely concerned with his company's first run accounts in key cities in his territory. There is a split of product between the Harry Katz-Fred Dolle group of three units and Charles Olson's Lyric in Indianapolis, he said. The "top group" goes to the Indiana, Circle and Apollo, with "second choice" to the Lyric, a combination vaudeville-film operation.

Detroit's setup has the National Theatres' Fox and the Balaban Brothers' Adams in a split, he stated. In answer to a direct question by Wright, Gehring declared Spyros Skouras does not participate in deals with the Fox, which the distributor has had as a first run for about four years.

The first run account in Milwaukee is Wisconsin Operating Co.'s Strand, operated by Harold Fitzgerald, and is part of the distributor's Fox West Coast deal, the witness stated.

Minneapolis Variety Ball Assures Milk Fund Sum

MINNEAPOLIS—A substantial amount was realized from the Twin City Variety Club grand ball at the Hotel Nicollet for the Minneapolis milk fund which the organization is underwriting. More than 350 people attended the affair which was one of the largest and most elaborate of its kind ever given by the organization.

An orchestra comprising 30 musicians, many of them members of the Minneapolis Symphony, provided the dance music. Dancing continued until an early hour of the morning and a sumptuous repast was served at midnight.

The Milk Fund furnishes milk for poor and underprivileged families. The Twin City Variety club selected it from among numerous applicants for its permanent charitable undertaking.

Leon Dizon Is Covering No. Dakota for Warner

MINNEAPOLIS—Leon Dizon has arrived from Omaha to join the Warner sales staff and is starting out in the North Dakota territory.

The territory has been covered by Myron Adcock who moves to South Dakota to handle the section formerly Tommy Charack's, now Los Angeles city salesman.

Dizon was a member of the Warner sales staff in Omaha for a number of years.

Davenport Catholic Clergy Boycotts "Strange Cargo"

DAVENPORT, IA.—Following the lead of the Legion of Decency, Davenport's Catholic clergy last week called on parishoners to boycott "Strange Cargo."

They said the Clark Gable-Joan Crawford film was blacklisted because of the "ugly sex angle" and the subject of religious controversy.

Protestant ministers questioned denied planning any action on the film.

Harry Dryer Sells Loop House to Art Stevens

MINNEAPOLIS—Harry Dryer has sold his Savoy, loop sure-seater, to Art Stevens, St. Paul, who never has been engaged in the show business before. A previous deal with Bennie Berger fell through.

Dryer will remodel the house, installing a new canopy and front for his tenant.

Going Still Icy

MINNEAPOLIS—Film salesmen still have been encountering snow and icy roads in northern Minnesota and in North Dakota up to this week. As a result, going for the boys has been extremely tough.

Esquire Got 20th-Fox Just Before Opening

NEW YORK—There were "no arrangements" discussed for 20th Century-Fox product before the Esquire was built in Kansas City, but a deal was made just before the house opened, William J. Kupper, western division manager, testified during his examination before trial in the government's key suit. He was interrogated by John L. Wright, assistant attorney general.

The distributor's original first run deal with E. C. Rhoden's Fox Midwest Circuit ten years ago was first discussed with Spyros Skouras, Kupper said. During the intervening period there have been no other negotiations for a first-run deal with another exhibitor there, he added.

F&M in St. Louis has a first-run contract covering the Fox, Ambassador and St. Louis, Kupper testified. This has obtained for the past seven or eight years. In the interim, Kupper never negotiated with another first run account, he stated.

No Singer Participation in Minn. Amuse.-20th-Fox Deal

NEW YORK—Mort Singer, RKO's partner in the midwest, never participated in 20th Century-Fox's negotiations five years ago that led to a first run deal with John Friedl's Minnesota Amusement Co. in Minneapolis, William C. Gehring, the distributor's central division manager, declared in his pre-trial examination in the government suit.

The same circuit holds a first-run deal for the Rialto and Paramount in St. Paul, the witness said, adding he believes these two units are pooled with RKO's Palace and Orpheum in that city.

A. H. Blank's Tri-States circuit has a first run deal for the distributor's product in Des Moines and Omaha. Both pacts have been in effect for about six years, the witness stated.

Currently Adapting "Poe"

HOLLYWOOD—Tom Reed is currently preparing the script of Warner's "Edgar Allen Poe."

Seeks U. S. Support In Fight on Ascap

LINCOLN—Consigned to the grave of unconstitutionality by Judges A. K. Gardiner, J. A. Donohoe and T. C. Munger in a three-judge federal court hearing last fall, the anti-Ascap struggle may walk again if Attorney General Walter Johnson's plans to take it to the U. S. supreme court materialize.

Johnson just returned here ahead of the primary election, after spending some time in Washington presenting the merits of the case to the department of justice and others, in the hope of raising enough finances to bankroll the high court struggle. That he got some promise of assistance was evidenced in his insistence of possibility that the case would be reopened, because it is reported that his own office hasn't enough currency to bank the scrap.

The appeal, if made to the supreme court, must be filed prior to July 1, in order to be within the 90-day allowance period which is given after rehearing is denied. William Hotz, Johnson's assignee as special defender for the state, appealed for a new trial on the grounds that the court had taken the wrong slant on the Nebraska law, but he was turned down without memorandum from the judges.

Johnson is in an unusual light in this litigation, because, as a legislator in 1937, he refused to vote for the measure, believing at that time it was too inclusive and couldn't make the grade if tested in court. The next year he was elected to the post of attorney general, litigation was started by Ascap to test the measure, and Johnson was cast in the role of protector.

Although he voted neither way in the legislature, he never denied the measure's intentions had merit, and his desire to see the law go up to the U. S. supreme court for test is said to be not so much because he believes it will be held constitutional by the big bench, but that in the opinion the way will probably be indicated for future legislation and how far it can go.

Clinton Grows Noisy In Bid for Premiere

CLINTON, IA.—While mum is still the official word on the site of the "Lillian Russell" premiere as this is written, Clinton is becoming increasingly noisy in its bid for the first showing of the picture.

The town's latest message to Darryl F. Zanuck was a board 9x4 feet with the message burned into it. The message, signed by Richard N. Howes, mayor of Clinton, reads:

"It is the burning desire of our citizens that you hold the premiere of 'Lillian Russell' in the birthplace of our memorable actress."

In Des Moines, Gov. George Wilson did his bit by posing for five newsreel shots with three Clinton girls presenting him a petition asking his aid. Specifically, the petition asked the governor's aid in getting Iowa "to set the nation at large and Hollywood in particular an example by abandoning the skinny malnourished feminine model."

The petition by the Clinton Business and Professional Women's Club suggests that America's women should follow the example of the healthy, curved Lillian Russell "so that farmers can begin selling their foodstuffs again and the maladjusted economic machine will take on new life."

The Clinton girls, two of whom were in gay nineties costume, were Jeanette Hansen, Jean Mortensen and Winifred Owens.

The Clinton premiere barrage hit the R&T only to discover a syndicated color page on "Lillian Russell" already slated May 5.

In Iowa City, Artist Grant Wood helped keep the ball rolling by coming out with a flat statement in favor of the buxom belles of the nineties as better models than the "streamlined-sirens of the underfed forties." Delta Upsilon fraternity members joined the fun and backed up Grant Wood. They picked Jean Ludwig, Ottawa, Ill., Tri-Delt as their curvesome ideal and netted plenty of publicity for the stunt and the film when their house was picketed by streamlined gals in streamlined shorts.

Latest word from the Iowa City front has Clinton students on the campus forming a "Lillian Russell" club to combat Grant Wood's slight on today's belles, and sponsoring a "Belle of the Forties" contest to prove their point. The university collegians are now voting for the "Belle of the Forties." The three girls getting the most votes will be judged by Alice Faye, Don Ameche and Henry Fonda to get a winner. Miss Faye, Ameche and Fonda are in the "Lillian Russell" film, of course.

Meanwhile, the film trade press was being bombarded with letters opposing any change in the title of the picture.

"To change the name 'Lillian Russell' to 'Glamour Girl of the Nineties' or some such meaningless label is as absurd as calling a picture about George Washington's life 'The Little Hatchet'," said one such letter. "Lillian Russell in real life never had a failure. Don't let Hollywood add one to her grand history at this late date."

This letter was signed by Andrew Hall, Gyro Club president; V. J. Maxheim, Kiwanis' president; Ralph P. Baker, Lyons' president; Frank G. Hann, junior chamber of commerce president; W. C. Wagner, chamber of commerce president, and C. S. Allen, Rotary president.

Minneapolis Barkers Strive for Record

MINNEAPOLIS—Headed by Ben Blotcky, chief barker, 26 members of the industry in the Northwest, Twin City Variety club members, headed for the clubs' national convention at Dallas this week. The belief here is that it will be the largest single party attending the gathering from so far a distance and, as such, will be very much in the running for a prize to be awarded for that distinction.

In addition to Blotcky, the Minneapolis members of the party were Bill Elson, Eddie Ruben, Abe A. Kaplan, Lowell Kaplan, Sidney and Bill Volk, Irving Gillman, Charlie Rubenstein, Frank Woskie, W. L. Hamilton, Bennie Berger, George Granstrom, Max Torodor, Harry Dickerman and Paul Albrecht, all Twin City exhibitors, excepting Blotcky, who is Paramount manager; J. L. Stern, Bill Cameron, George Turner, Maitland Frosch and Charlie Weiner, representing the distributing branch, and Don Buckley, Irwin Wagner and Lowell Smoots, out-of-town exhibitors. Also among those present were L. W. Cohn of affiliated industries and Mike Manus, Variety club steward. Ill health prevented W. A. Steffes from making the trip.

The Twin City delegation had two private cars attached to the Rock Island train leaving Minneapolis at 10:40 p. m. Tuesday. They spent four hours in Kansas City Wednesday and were entertained at the Variety Club there before departing for Dallas where they arrived Thursday morning. On Thursday night the boys had their own big blowout—a gala birthday party for Abe Kaplan, with the latter going 50-50 on the not inconsiderable cost with the rest of the gang. The party was due back in Minneapolis early Monday evening.

OMAHA

R. L. ANDRESS, exhibitor-farmer at Ponca, Neb., broke his ankle but we haven't been able to get the details. He's improving, which is the main thing . . . Dick Devries, exhibitor at Correctionville, Ia., is the proud poppa of a seven-pound son . . . Gordon Halloran, 20th-Fox salesman, has a wedding anniversary soon.

Will the anonymous contributor to this column please make himself or herself known so that the proper recognition may be given? Thanks for the items . . . Arva Burris, exhibitor at Crete, Neb., has a birthday this week . . . The same for Leon Dizon, peddler at the Warner layout.

Lynn Farnol, United Artists exploitation hotshot, was in town to see Don McLucas . . . Carl Reese is plugging "In Old Missouri" . . . B. A. Tomte's mother died recently in Minneapolis . . . Berger was in an auto crash recently and suffered a cut head and wrenched shoulder.

Eddie Shafton, Filmrow attorney, sent his $10 convention fee to the National Variety Club conclave in Dallas by express, a package of 1,000 pennies. Our scouts tell us the Texas boys reported three of the pennies were slugs . . . Elmer Huhnke is going top-notch at the Minne Lusa in North Omaha, which he took over recently. At the opening, the lobby looked like a floral shop, proving Elmer is plenty popular.

Representing the Omaha area at the premiere in Lawrence, Kas., were Milt Overman of the Goldberg circuit, Omaha; Howard Federer, Lincoln, and Carl Reese and Harry Lefholtz of the Republic exchange . . . Joe Scott's mother has been very ill in Baltimore . . . Robert Lee, Lee Roy Theatre, Wallace, Neb., will be 18 years old this week.

D. L. Kisor is the new exhibitor at Alta, Ia. The theatre is the Roxy, which received a complete overhaul job by Bob Ballantyne of Scott-Ballantyne Co. . . . Roy Bott, exhibitor-mayor of Hooper, Neb., was on Filmrow but didn't have his golf clubs . . . Also Frank Good, Iowana, Red Oak, Ia.

Henry Peterson, Grand, Genoa, Neb., will be 55 years old this week . . . Harold Hall, exhibitor at Elkader, Ia., will soon have a wedding anniversary. It will be his 21st . . . Woodrow B. Simek, exhibitor at Ashland, Neb., a visitor to Davenport street . . . Also Francis Pace, Malvern, Ia.

The following went to Dallas for the convention: Morris Cohn, chief barker; Sam Epstein, Sol Francis, Walt Green, Eddie Shafton, Hymie Novitsky, Meyer Stern, Jack Riggs of Central City, Neb., and Mons Thompson of St. Paul, Neb. . . . Green sent a series of banners to the convention which said: "Please meet our little boys!"

Lloyd Scobell has opened his new Elbs Theatre at Wagner, S. D. The name comes from the first letter of his wife's name, his own name, his son's name, and their last name. The new house seats 675 patrons and was built by Western Theatre Supply, headed by Frank Almeron Van Husan . . . Also present at the Elbs opening besides Van were Sherm Fitch and Al Hill, both former Omaha boys now in Sioux Falls, S. D.

Carl Ernst is reported to have sold the theatre at Avoca, Ia., but we couldn't get the details before press time . . . Dick Kehrberg has installed new projection equipment in his Iowa and Star theatres at Sheldon, Ia.

The Omaha delegation at the Fox sales meeting in Chicago included (nicknames and all): Joe "Daddy" Scott, Harold "Ditto" Ironfield, Harry "Old Man" Levy, Gordon "Kewpie" Halloran and Rube "Roll 'Em" Wagle. The nicknames were not supplied by BOXOFFICE! . . . Sam Stern of Capitol Pictures always takes his son, Skippy, for an auto ride every morning.

KAYCEE

WHY WORRY about money? wonders Tom Edwards of Eldon, Mo. "If a man gets it, he's a grafter. If he keeps it, he's a capitalist; if he spends it, he's a playboy. If he doesn't get it, he's a failure. If he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition. If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite or a termite. If he works hard for it, he's a sucker. If he winds up with it, all his friends help him spent it, and he has to start all over. What's the use!"

On the Row: Jess DeLong, Mankato, Mankato, Kas.; Al Brown, New Franklin, New Franklin, Mo.; Mrs. Kate Blair, Blair, Belleville, Kas.; Bill Blair, Blair, Osborne, Kas.; Lee Sproule, Rex, Newton, Kas.; F. L. "Doc" Lowe and Mrs. Lowe, in from Sterling and other western Kansas spots (Mrs. Lowe's mother is seriously ill at Trinity Hospital); Warren Weber, Stafford, Ellinwood, St. John, Burlington, and Howard, Kas.; G. W. Owen, Seymour, Seymour, Mo.; Hugh Gardner, Orpheum and Fotoshow, Neosho, Mo.; Paul Oetting, Lyric, Concordia, Mo.; Tom Edwards, Ozark, Eldon, Mo.; Joe Lenski, Cozy, Pittsburg, Kas.

Glen W. Dickinson jr. and Paul Kelly, who manages the Mission Acres Theatre, will handle the booking for the Dickinson, Olathe, Kas.; Macon, Macon, Mo., and the Mission house for Glen W. Dickinson. Dickinson recently sold the balance of his circuit to H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc.

Carl Shalit, district manager for Columbia, was in from Detroit this week . . . W. W. "Woody" Walker, booker at Metro, is the proud papa of a fine young lady named Nancy Lee. The event occurred April 15 at St. Joseph's Hospital, and everyone is doing fine, including Dad. It is the Walker's first.

Don Woods of Warner was really in his element Wednesday when the boys came in from Minneapolis on their way to Dallas. Don used to work in Minneapolis and it was "old home week" for him at Variety Club.

"He Who Laughs . . . Lasts," quips Tom Edwards of the Ozark, Eldon, Mo., in promoting "Road to Singapore," and it's a good quip, borrowed or original . . . Incidentally, Tom capitalized on the census by holding a contest on the exact population of Eldon—giving passes from six months down to one show, for prizes.

William Levy, formerly connected with the film business here, and brother of the late Joe Levy, died April 13. The funeral was held April 17.

Add Bob Withers and Homer Blackwell to that list of local boys that went to Dallas and the Variety Club convention. Practically all of those who were only tentatively planning to go—went. The last minute attraction was strong . . . The Palace, D. Donnici's house, is being remodeled, and is closed for the process.

The big news of the week is the announcement of the engagement of John Scott, head booker at Republic Midwest, and Helen Elsie Green. John has been on Filmrow 10 years, five with Republic.

From William R. Moore of J. T. Ghosen's Uptown, Sedalia, Mo., Ben Marcus last week received a letter, one of the sort a branch manager doesn't mind getting, which said, among other things, that "we ran 'Blondie on a Budget' on a Sunday-Monday and Tuesday date. On Sunday, we did capacity business with full houses on both matinee and night shows. Monday, normally just average, was very good, and Tuesday was better than usual. If the 'Blondie' series continues to improve, we predict it will become the best drawing series on the screen."

Universal does not plan to replace Salesman Bill Warner, who resigned last week, for some time . . . Ben Adams, salesman for Warner Bros., who resigned last week, will not be replaced.

H. E. Porta of the Community Theatre, Humansville, Mo., has our apologies, herewith. It seems we have been calling him H. A. Porta for a long time.

GIBBON, MINN.—George R. Lyman, who formerly was located at Waverly, Minn., is building a new theatre here.

Harmonica Players Draw Many Kaycee Barkers

KANSAS CITY—One of the largest luncheon crowds in the history of Variety Club attended Monday, April 15, to be entertained by Art Perry's harmonica players. Guests at the luncheon included Joe T. Ghosen, Sedalia, Mo.; Charles Thomas, his brother, Sweet Springs.; Dick Wright, Springfield, Mo.; Jay Wooten, Hutchinson, Kas.; Don Widlund, Detroit, of the Jam Handy Corp.; Howard Kinser, 20th-Fox salesman.

The next luncheon, April 29, will see the finals of the barber shop quartet contest, and there will be several groups appear in a burst of effort for the old milk bucket. Jay Means, chief barker, deponed.

Another Saturday night party will be held May 18. Jerry Zigmond of the Newman is in charge.

Variety furnished a free buffet luncheon to members and to the Minneapolis contingent to Dallas that arrived here Wednesday noon to catch the Dallas special Wednesday evening.

To Remodel Granada

INDEPENDENCE, MO.—The Granada, Associated Theatres unit, is to be remodeled and re-equipped at a cost of approximately $50,000, beginning May 1, according to J. A. Becker, manager of the group. The house will get a new front and will be widened 50 feet, which will add 400 seats.

DES MOINES

PLEASE excuse us a minute . . . we wanta preen our feathers . . . we're used to scooping the other trade publications, but this is different . . . we scooped everybody but the parents when we announced the birth of the Charles Leach infant several issues back. Robert, Chuck's brother over at RKO, said he read in BOXOFFICE, with amazement, that he was an uncle, and that he carried the news home to the astounded grandparents of the newest little Leach.

This reminds us of something . . . here's an open letter to Robert Leach's pretty girl friend, Clover Winslow: Do you know that Robert is secretly chagrined by your prowess as a ping-pong player? We know you thought it just nice clean fun when you continued to beat him at the game even after he'd bought a special paddle and you'd started playing with your left hand . . . but you know how men are . . . they've been told that they're superior creatures so long that they believe it . . . with Cupid's best interests at heart, we recommend letting Bob win a few points next time you play.

Joe Rogatnick of Universal will be most surprised when he reads this mild item after what Tim Evans claimed over the phone we were going to write . . . Tim is probably about the mildest mannered booker on the Row . . . Jack de Waal has been here from the NY RKO office for about two weeks. Jack has recently completed three years in France for the company.

By the time you're reading this, Lou Levy will be the big duke over at Universal and Jere Spandau will be IT in Albany, N. Y. . . . Don West ought to make a little more noise about the fact that last year he saw 459 features. You oughta hear Barney Oldfield of Lincoln brag about his 500 and some, Don . . . We saw the McKechneay family unload out of that big blue job of theirs in front of the Greenwood Pharmacy Sunday. Nice-looking car and a better looking family, McKechneay!

Most of the exploitation angles seem to be getting hauled out of the sack around here. Warner's Monroe Rubinger, writing to say he plans a New York junket, signs his plunge into the literati of epistolary "'Til We Meet Again," while anyone making an appointment with Joe Rogatnick up at Universal gets the standing reply: "It's a Date" . . . Speed Lambert was in town telling everybody he'd been working like "Twenty-Mule Team" . . . Emil Franke sold McNerney Drug, next to the Orpheum, an idea, too. They've been handing out gingersnaps with all drinks there. The cookies are wrapped in a container, telling the customer, "If you think this cookie is snappy, see Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea in 'Primrose Path'."

A rapid check on Jeanette MacDonald's visit here reveals that Tony Galento, in town at the same time, gave far more autographs than Jeanette, chiefly because he was available and eager to give 'em, while Jeanette wasn't around much and apparently awed the fans when she was. Wonder why she preferred to borrow an iron and have her maid press her things rather than utilize the hotel service . . . Another topic worthy of curiosity is how come none of the film short subjects outfits has discovered the Bollhoefer family's bird blind at Colfax, Ia. Bollhoefer was down at the R&T last week showing 16mm color films he had taken of the birds which visit his establishment summer and winter. He had some good detail in shots taken with a six-inch lens.

We understand that Lou Elman practices day and night all the year around just so he can win that A. H. Blank annual golf driving contest. If you want to see Lou fume, just mention that ventriloquist who stood beside Lou while he called him out on High Street and offered him 60 per cent for "Snow White" last year . . . Gretchen Kelleher was fooled too. She came rushing back into the RKO offices shouting excitedly for a ladder to rescue the voice from the roof . . . Thelma Washburn was another who answered the fake call to her own embarrassment.

The Burton Jerrels were the only Filmrowers we saw at the Cornelia Otis Skinner one-woman show . . . Bing Miller is holding the fort at Columbia as booker until another one has been located; then Bing goes on the road . . . G. Ralph Branton and Joe Deatch are back from NY . . . Bert Thomas was getting around the other day trying to snag some space on

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By RENE CLAYTON

LEO WOLCOTT, eminent exhibitor of Eldora, is being accused of having more golf tournament dates in his book than play dates for the Grand . . . and Leo doesn't deny it. The Wolcott heir got a raised eyebrow from pappy last time on the Row, because he enthusiastically expressed a desire to see a pic his dad was dickering for at the moment . . . the Wolcotts returned April 11 from a trip to the coast.

S'pose Ye Olde Brewmaster Roy Lepovitz of Madrid will stir up a fine bath of that famous Lepovitz wine one of these days now. You see Mary, one of those five lovely daughters of his, is being married to Richard W. Glenn of DM, April 24 . . . Lew Lepovitz will have to look around for a new cashier for the Iowa in Lee Township.

Jack Bauma of the Rialto in Pocahontas is another addict of the little white pill who had that fairaway look in his eye when he hit the Row last week.

Guess we never mentioned that Lee Henry of the Stuart in Stuart has one of the handsomest youngsters we have ever seen. Takes its good looks from Lee's pretty dark-haired wife.

Max Facter of the Pioneer circuit entertained a group of Filmrowers at a luncheon the other day . . . Jack Frost, former Universal booker, is now operating a circuit for J. D. Peck.

Cliff Niles is kicking his heels together over the "Primrose Path." Grosses at the Niles in Anamosa best in 12 months, Cliff brags.

Alton Smith and Chuck Parrish, who used to operate Murray and Afton duo, now solo with Smith at Murray and Parrish at Afton. Smith was making the rounds here last week.

Wayne Dutton of Manchester, who is known as "The Northerner" because he's always telling the Row down here how they do things "up North," handles the ivories with the expertness that comes only with long practice . . . and we don't mean at the piano.

Bob Malek of Gladbrook and Independence is a former Chicagoan, we understand . . . Bob was on the Row last week . . . Exploiteer Lambert was visiting Bob the same week.

L. E. Palmer made his annual visit to DM from his Iris in Postville last week . . . John Waller of Osceola renewed his contacts here too.

Nate Sandler, popular and fascinating exhibitor at Missouri Valley and Northwood, has been taking notes for persons unknown on the Omaha Republic exchange . . . Nate says he's getting burned up by people stopping him and saying "Unnerstan ya hadda fire . . . "

Arthur Meredith of Sigourney has purchased the Harris-Avoca theatre at Avoca. It formerly was operated by Carl Ernst.

Marquee news: Construction has been started at Sibley, Ia., on a $5,000 cement block building for the Tri-State Neon Co.

When Tim Evans said he'd heard that the Norwegians had nothing but small shot guns with which to shoot at the Nazis, Wes Mansfield of Tama said he didn't know those things were used for anything these days but to ring wedding bells with a bang.

Lionel Wasson conducted a meeting of Central States managers in Fort Dodge, April 11 . . . Central States has been booking "Abe Lincoln" and "Blue Bird" together as a double feature with great success.

Hayden Peterson is still at it. Now he's showing "Children of Loneliness," at the State in DM for the edification of Lee Township.

Maybe Abe Frankle will have more time for his Casino in DM, now that he has dropped his interest in Riverview Park.

MINNEAPOLIS

APPROXIMATELY 25 of the territory's exhibitor, mostly from the Twin Cities, Twin City Variety club members, are in Dallas this week undoubtedly having the time of their lives at the Variety clubs' national convention. The boys had been looking forward to this treat for some time and it's a cinch that all their high hopes have been realized. Much of the credit for the success of the local jaunt must be credited to Bill Elson who handled the arrangements so efficiently. Bill had a reunion with his brother in Dallas and took the wife along. Abe Kaplan celebrated his birthday with a gala party in Dallas Thursday night and, according to reports drifting hither, it was some affair.

Jay Haas, Advertising Accessories' home office representative, a visitor . . . Phil Dunas, Columbia district manager, dropped in . . . W. H. Workman, M-G-M branch manager, went through the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a health check-up. Likewise, Gus Baer of the Baer independent circuit, Brainerd, Minn., who hasn't been feeling so well . . . The Warner exchange here now is first in its district in the Sears drive . . . At the last minute, Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, was forced to call off his planned trip to the Variety club convention at Dallas, press of business necessitating this. Paul Mans, George Granstrom and "Bruzz" Rubel were others who dropped out at the last minute.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Al Inman, Fairfax, Minn.; Clarence Kaake, Duluth; H. A. Stubfors, Washburn, Wis.; "Doc" Holger, Independence, Wis.; Andy Sieverson, Osakis, Minn.; A. E. Ellison, Paynesville, Minn.; Ray Hiller, Marshall, Minn.; P. R. King, Adrian, Minn.; Harvey Thorpe, Crosby, Minn.; A. R. Krueger, Glenwood City, Wis.; Charles Lyon, Aitken, Minn.; George W. Jenkins, Cold Springs, Minn.; Carl Blakslee, Medford, Wis.; J. M. Rostvold, Harmony, Minn.; Tony Paulson, Clear Lake and Harmony, Minn.; Lyle Webster, Rice Lake, Wis.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis., and Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.

Bill Lansburg, Paramount studio publicity department representative, here working on "Dr. Cyclops," underlined for the Gopher . . . Excelsior Amusement Park opens May 17 . . . LeRoy Miller, Universal branch manager, visiting northern Minnesota accounts . . . Lake Minnetonka, 21 miles from Minneapolis, will have quite a "film colony" this summer. As usual, Gene Meredith of Warner and Fred Finnegan of RKO will have cottages. They'll be joined by Bill Evidon of Columbia, just back from a honeymoon in Chicago . . . That was quite a stag the boys threw for Bill before his marriage. Lowell Kaplan of the Welworth circuit arranged it and did a fine job. Billy Elson made a swell master of ceremonies and drew a lot of laughs. Ask Billy about that gift presented to him.

Evaune Palmer of the RKO office staff back on the job following recovery from a finger infection . . . Following the completion of its season the Film Bowling League will have a buffet supper get-together at the Uptown Bowling center on May 10. Various awards will be made and plans for next season discussed . . . Salesmen in northern Minnesota still encountering snow and icy roads . . . Monogram's newest drive is called "The Spirit of Independence" and, as soon as he returns from the Variety clubs' convention and his company's sales gathering in Dallas Charlie Weiner says he'll get into the thick of it.

Universal's sure-fire hit, "It's a Date," the newest Deanna Durbin offering, goes into the St. Paul Paramount April 26 and into the Minneapolis State May 3 . . . Paramount screened "Buck Benny Rides Again" and those who saw it called it "terrific" . . . The former Paradise night club is being turned into a pool parlor . . . Don O'Neill, assistant Minnesota Amusement company booker, is the father of a six-pound girl—his first child.

Mel Evidon, Columbia branch manager at Des Moines, came up for brother Bill's wedding . . . Gordon Greene, general manager for the Benz theatre interests, is back from a business trip to New York and Chicago . . . Ben Spewak took over Irving Gillman's theatre site at Chisholm, Minn., and is talking about building a $100,000 showhouse . . . As a reward for his faithful service, Mike Manus, Twin City Variety club steward, was treated to a trip to the convention at Dallas and accompanied the local delegation.

Lynn Farnol, United Artists home office exploiteer, here in interest of "One Million B. C." . . . Terry Turner, RKO publicity director, dropped in from New York . . . Joe Paster, Chicago independent exhibitor, came up for the Twin City Variety Club ball.

War Concern Hurts Northwest Business

MINNEAPOLIS—Part of the blame for a sudden and severe slump in theatre business over the territory is being blamed on war developments.

A considerable portion of the Northwest public is of Scandinavian origin and, with the Nazi invasion of Denmark and Norway, theatregoing apparently is being being adversely affected, many potential customers being worried about the fate of friends and relatives back home and in no mood for entertainment seeking.

Moreover, exhibitors point out, interest in the development is intense throughout the section and many prefer to remain at home and listen to radio news reports instead of going to the theatre.

Despite the slump, however, there still is at least one holdover here every week.

A New Wrinkle

DES MOINES—E. T. McMurray, Des Moines contractor, is giving away new homes with movies now. He's taking pictures of the construction of his latest house out on Beaver Ave., and says that when it's completed he'll present the film to the buyer.

New Chair Sales

KANSAS CITY — New sales of theatre chairs reported by the Oklahoma Theatre Supply Co. include 650 to C. Gregg for the Liberty at Caney, Kas.; 450 to J. S. Garrett for the new Garrett he is erecting at West Plains, Mo., and 550 to William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo.

LINCOLN

LAST Minute Stuff Before Leaving for Hollywood: Conductor of this stint for the next two weeks will be Glenn Trump, so be nice to him . . . Carl Rose, in York, could drop him a letter, for instance, thereby puncturing the rumor that he's been bound and gagged out there . . . Ray Holtz, the Fairbury fisherman, might give him the dope on how to catch minnow-sized fish and keep one jump ahead of the game warden . . . Orville Rennie, in Hastings, should have told by now, but didn't, how his home town, local talent opry came out early this month . . . Howard Federer and Bob Huffman, if they'll talk, might tell the reason for J. H. Cooper and L. L. Dent being in town the same weekend.

R. E. Falkinburg, Lexington: A hometowner of yours, Ray Mayer, is doing okay in a New York show called "The Weak Link." He insists he is not playing the title role.

Idea for May: Dear Editor—How about conducting a beauty contest among the Nebraska theatre managers—not featuring the managers, but the girls who sell tickets to their theatres and are the first of the front of the house help by which the customer is put in the mood to enjoy himself?

Holy cats! The day Lincoln's BOXOFFICE leaves for Hollywood, with his frau, breaks news under Hollywood dateline that the automobile racing Barney Oldfield was sued for divorce by his wife, whom he married in 1925. So, tain't the BOXOFFICE Barney.

Happiest face in weeks: That on Otto Siegel, of Universal, who, after a long dry spell, had Universal pictures playing at every house in Lincoln, except one, in the same week, and most of them doing very well.

Remember, address all mail for the next week to Glenn Trump, Nebraska State Journal, Lincoln, and he'll see your whims into BOXOFFICE.

Scenarist Is Sought on Check Passing Charge

MINNEAPOLIS—Jerome (Bob) Odlum, author of the novels, "Each Dawn I Die" and "Dust Be My Destiny," from which the successful films of the same name were adapted, and a former member of the Warner scenario staff at Hollywood, is being sought by the police on a municipal court charge of checking on a bank without funds.

Odlum is charged with passing a check at a local drug store. The Hollywood branch of the California National Bank returned it "no account."

It had been reported here that Odlum went to New York to arrange for the publication of a new novel and to join the Paramount scenario department. He served three years in Stillwater, Minn., prison for forgery and made his prison experiences the basis for his two novels.

Tri-States Putting Accent on Ballyhoo

DES MOINES—Evert Cummings, A. G. Stolte and Joe Kinsky, district managers for Tri-States, were personally surveying houses in Kinsky's Mississippi River territory this week as part of the circuit's campaign for more efficient exploitation of all pictures in their theatres.

The district managers meet here Tuesday, spend three days surveying one of their territories, return to their home bailiwicks for the weekend, then meet the following Tuesday to start out on another survey tour. This program, designed to bring all of the circuit's houses into closer contact with exploitation at headquarters, and to spur added individual exploiting, is an outgrowth of G. Ralph Branton's recent trip to Hollywood.

Last week the district chieftains assembled their suggestions in Cummings' Omaha area. Stolte's central district is slated for a complete survey soon.

Branton, general manager of Tri-States, called the firm's managers together on his return from the coast recently, and called for a revival of picture salesmanship. Contending that reliance on big name stars and on studio exploitation to sell a picture was building costs at the production end, Branton visualized continued activity by exhibitors correlating new stars and good stories as a solution that would lead to profits without ready made boxoffice pictures.

In an effort to further such activity, the chain's district managers are preparing a manual containing a score of exploitation stunts. Each town is to carry through six of these (or six original ideas) during the next year.

Having started the selling campaign rolling, Branton plans to keep it in motion by a personal visit to every town in the Tri-States circuit during the next few months.

Weber Invites Trade to Burlington Opening

KANSAS CITY—Here this week, Warren Weber issued an invitation to Filmrow and exhibitors in this territory to attend the formal opening, which will be informal enough, of the new Plaza at Burlington, Kas., April 24. A. J. Simmons, who is Weber's partner in the new theatre, will be on hand with Weber to act as host. Simmons is moving to Burlington to operate the Plaza. With Weber he also has the Plaza at Howard, Kas.

The affair next Wednesday will include a buffet supper and other appropriate refreshment, Weber said, and the two theatremen will be glad to see members of the industry.

The new 400-seat house is modern throughout, air conditioned, etc., and was built at a cost of about $25,000.

Main Attraction!

MINNEAPOLIS—Some of the local neighborhood houses are playing up gifts far above screen attractions in their newspaper ads.

"Dark Command." Bert told us that his seven-year-old Phyllis was just getting over the measles. Note to Bert: Our five-year-old Mitzi busted out with the things the next day.

Art Thiele did a nice clean dirty trick the other day. Art scoured the front of Des Moines Theatre Supply to a fare-ye-well and right over to the middle of Republic's adjoining door . . . then he put a "before" sign on DM Theatre and an "after" sign on Republic . . . they tell me Art's been in fine fettle lately because his High-Low-Jack-and-the-G a m e activities have been so successful . . . Bert Rabb is trading the Fox poster room for Hollywood . . . Stan Mayer, Hershey Bar Harry Gottlieb, Abe Reigelman and Eddie Jacobs were stroking their beards and looking wise at the Fox convention April 11-14 in Chicago.

There's a new and uninvestigated project on the Row . . . the Grant Advertising Display Co. . . . We'll pay 'em a visit one of these days and let you all know what nice people we know they're going to be (note to Ed: Subscription possibility?) . . . Ray Copeland is still without that new car. Must not be any car salesmen like they have on Filmrow . . . On the other hand, Francis Kappler of the Iowa Film Depot has a new blue Nash that looks like quite a bill of goods.

A Republican convention almost foiled the attempt of BOXOFFICE & Co. to have lunch with United Artist's Bernie (Rebecca) Evans . . . but we finally succeeded and got back to work only 20 minutes late. Bernie was next encountered at the midnight showing of "Rebecca" where Harry Holdsberg had a long and impressive-looking line gathered out front. Harry says he'd like to gain some weight (which has nothing to do with "Rebecca" as you can see) but nothing he eats seems to do the trick.

Charles Levy, S. Barret McCormick and Ken Clayton are all invloved in some business concerning elephants, peanuts, official consciences, double functions and we don't know what else . . . sounds like a three-ring circus to us . . . Did we ever tell you Levy, how peeved we were with you because you didn't let us in on your newest blessed event when we were in NY? Now be careful what excuse you give, because you couldn't help but have known it when we were there.

That was Tri-States' own DD (Dorothy Day) you saw scuttling out of Hayden Peterson's State where she'd been sent to look at "Children of Loneliness" . . . With this to the left of them and "Primrose Path" to the right of them, Tri-States felt very pure with their "My Little Chickadee" bill . . . Since the A. H. Blank outfit is the big name in the DM entertainment field, citizens are wont to pour their complaints into the civic-minded ear of G. Ralph Branton, who sees to it that he can listen and reply intelligently. Incidentally, G. Ralph in a blue-green slip-over sweater was looking very youngish and all ready to make the most of his jaunt to Dallas for the Variety convention.

A Hope Disney Remains "Childish and Simple"

FROM MICKEY MOUSE TO WALL STREET

"Mickey Mouse is headed for Wall Street and Donald Duck will be playing around with Standard Oil, U. S. Steel and American Can. Papers of the Walter Disney Productions Corp. have been filed with the SEC for listing on the stock exchange, so as to let the public in on the ground floor with Dopey.

"You may presently hear people discussing Snow White from the standpoint of long and short pull, or asking whether she's up an eighth or down a quarter.

"To think of Disney has been to think of a world of fantasy. It is going to be hard to associate him with the bid and asked quotations, quarterly reports, intangible assets, depreciation, and all that sort of stuff. When you see his characters on the screen henceforth, you may be laughing at a corporate asset.

"Disney has achieved every distinction except a denunciation from Secretary Ickes. To millions of movie fans he was a sort of Zeus. Now he is to be associated with the net and gross.

"Mickey Mouse has had many things happen to him in his eventful years on the screen, but up to this time he has never been in danger of being split four for one. And poor Pinocchio! May Jiminy Cricket be near to warn him of the dangers of becoming 'Pinocchion 3½s of 1977.'

"Disney, Incorporated, is in the big time now. The public can only hope that Disney himself retains his noncorporate interest in simple and childish things. Except for those things, he would not be on the stock exchange board."

Minny Gayety in Character Even When Going Dark

MINNEAPOLIS—After being opened only two weeks, the Gayety closed its spring stock burlesque season on account of poor business.

The theatre has become famed for its numerous closings and reopenings. Taking cognizance of this, its operators, Harry Hirsch and Harry Katz, have put up kidding signs on the front of the house.

"You're right—closed again," the canopy reads. A large sign over the entrance announces "Confucius Says" with a statement in Chinese following. Cedric Adams, Star-Journal columnist, obtained the interpretation for a curious public. It is: "Where were you when we were opened?" The sign has caused much comment and many smiles.

Leisen to Direct Colbert

HOLLYWOOD—Mitchell Leisen will direct "Arise, My Love," Claudette Colbert starrer, for Paramount.

: "Public Demand" Leads :

DES MOINES—The Des Moines Register advised its readers, in an editorial, not to expect too much direct leadership from the film industry in the molding of public opinion. "When meeting the demands of 100,000,000 customers, any uplift must be done quietly and tactfully," observed the newspaper. The editorial:

"The film industry believes its major mission is to provide amusement for the masses, and says so openly; but people are always complaining the motion pictures are not educating the public or are not taking the lead in shaping public opinion.

"The last annual report of the Rockefeller foundation discusses the screen as a cultural force. It finds the problem well summed up by a British expert who says: 'The cinema follows public demand. In doing so, it follows public opinion, and it seems almost too much to expect of the present organization of the cinema and of society that the cinema should lead public opinion.'

"Baseball and tennis and golf are everywhere recognized as socially valuable pursuits. To the extent that a sound body conditions a sound mind, outdoor sports contribute to a sound public opinion. But nobody expects the baseball club owners or the country club managers to teach the American people how to think.

"Obviously, the parallel between Hollywood and the American League is not perfect. The films are compelled to work with mental images, and this cannot help creating ideas. This leads on to a distinction between right ideas and wrong ideas, and to the obligation of the moving pictures to put the 'right' ideas into people's heads.

"A very bold Hollywood magnate might be moved to repudiate that obligation in so many words. In practice, the leaders of public opinion always follow more than they lead. They go along with the public and with the times, while biding their chance to do a little modest steering now and then. They very seldom buck the tide successfully.

"It is a very complicated interplay that gives us the final result called public opinion. The films, in their humble way, may be expected to do something in the way of leadership, provided they are not asked to do too much. When meeting the demands of 100,000,000 customers, any uplift must be done quietly and tactfully."

Documentary by Klines Given Sturdy Praise

DES MOINES—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kline, producers of "Lights Out in Europe," heard sturdy praise for their latest effort in the documentary film field at a screening in the little Fox here.

Representatives of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, Look, Tri-States Theatres and various civic groups admitted that the film depicting Europe's tumble into war gripped their attention, suggested only slight additional cutting in the early part. They failed to agree on what should be trimmed out, however.

Mr. and Mrs. Kline were en route to New York for the film's premiere in the little Carnegie Theatre. The production is being sponsored in this country by Look magazine and American Pictures, Inc.

"Lights Out in Europe," with commentary written by James Hilton and narrated by Fredric March, shows Danzig and Polish areas during the pre-war preparation days and includes a few shots of actual warfare. Pre-war Britain also is pictured. Musical background is by Werner Jansson.

As interesting as the film are Kline's tales of the bombing of Warsaw where his laboratory was within a block of the power plant, but was undamaged.

Kline, a 31-year-old former Davenport, Ia., resident, and his wife produced "Crisis" last year. That documentary film ranked sixth in the national board of review ratings.

In about a month, the Klines plan to go to Mexico with John Steinbeck to "do a sort of 'Grapes of Wrath' thing on the Mexican agrarian problems."

Gardner Cowles jr., R&T, and Look publisher, staged the screening here. G. Ralph Branton, Joe Deatch, and Dorothy Day were on hand from Tri-States. Ken MacDonald, Ken Clayton and Walter Graham represented the newspapers. From Look were Harlan Logan and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Pope.

Show "Old Mexico"

DES MOINES—Joe L. Fisk of Omaha, general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad, and W. W. Trimble, Missouri Pacific general agent at Sioux City, Ia., presented a film titled "Old Mexico" at the regular Conopus-Exchange Club meeting in Younkers tearoom here Monday.

Drive to Dallas

DES MOINES—F. E. and Mrs. Judd are driving through to Dallas for the Variety Club convention and the Monogram sales meeting in Dallas following that event.

Even When They Leave the Industry They Still Want to Keep Touch Through BOXOFFICE, viz-

Brainerd, Minn.

BOXOFFICE:

As you may glean from this letterhead I am not in show business at present, but am having a hectic romance with "Miss Coal and Potatoes" in this beautiful resort town.

However, I must have my BOXOFFICE, so be sure and change my address. I would appreciate it if you would let my old pals on Film Row know where I am located via your Chicago Chatter Column.

Wood Seeks Data on First Three Months

COLUMBUS—P. J. Wood, secretary of Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, via the bulletin route, asks every exhibitor in the state to turn the spotlight on his theatre to find out whether he has operated profitably for the first three months of this year, and if not, why. Wood contends:

Official figures released by the treasurer of the state show an average increase in admissions of 11.6 per cent. For the first three months of 1940, sales tax collections amounted to $10,142,805.07 as compared with $8,916,748.87 for the same period of 1939. This is an increase of 13.6 per cent.

During the same period, collections from the admission tax amounted to $379,829.44 as against $340,043.97 for 1939. This is an increase of 11.6 per cent.

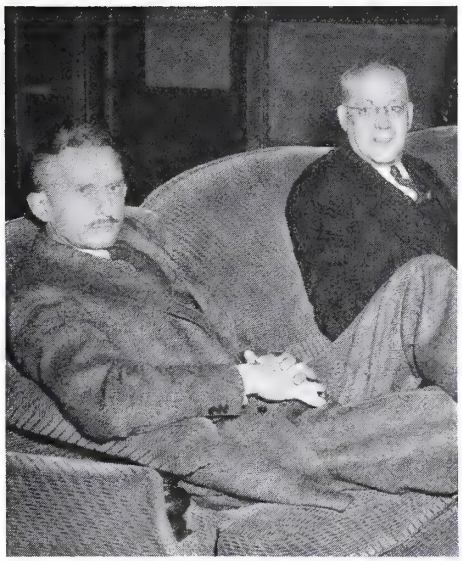
A few of the larger increases listed in the ITO bulletin follows: Automobile dealers, 36.4 per cent; radio and music appliances, 19.8 per cent; jewelry, 16.5 per cent.

As against the statewide increase of 13.6 per cent in sales tax collection, some of the county increases were as follows: Cuyahoga 16 per cent; Franklin, 9.2; Hamilton, 15.8; Lucas, 5.4; Montgomery, 16.8; Summit, 8.5.

All 88 counties of the state show increased sales tax receipts with the exception of Adams, Brown, Fayette, Gallia, Holmes, Noble and Vinton.

Would Gather Data on "GWTW" Business

COLUMBUS—Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio is asking exhibitors in small towns for confidential business statements on "GWTW." The object of this survey "is to prepare a plan for future defense when pictures are offered on similar terms."



Say Zanesville Theatres, Shea, Exchange Options

ZANESVILLE, OHIO—An exchange of options on each others' theatre holdings is reported to have been completed between the Shea circuit and operators of the four houses of the Zanesville Theatres, Inc., operated by the late Caldwell H. Brown. It is understood that if either party wishes to get out of the town, the other will have the right to acquire the properties.

Shea has one theatre here; the Brown interests have four. Reports here indicate that Shea will exercise its option shortly, E. C. Grainger, head executive, is expected here soon to discuss negotiations, it was said.

John T. Woodward Helms Zanesville Quartet

ZANESVILLE, OHIO—John T. Woodward has been named general manager of the Zanesville Theatres, Inc., succeeding the late Caldwell H. Brown. The company operates four of the city's five theatres.

Conventioneers—

How 20th-Fox Splits Pittsburgh Product

NEW YORK — Twentieth Century-Fox splits its first run product in Pittsburgh two-thirds to John Harris' Alvin and one-third to Shea Theatres Fulton, William Sussman, eastern division manager, stated during his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's key suit. The arrangement has been in effect six years, the witness added.

The distributor's first run in Cincinnati is the RKO Midwest group, covering the Albee, Palace, Shubert, Lyric, Keith, and Family, and with the Hippodrome, Allan, Palace and Lake in Cleveland. The former deal has been in effect seven years; the latter five, he stated.

Sizeable Contingent From Cleveland to Dallas

CLEVELAND—Variety Club members who left from here by train and plane to attend the national Variety convention in Dallas, includes Nat Wolf, Frank Drew, Duke Clark, Herbert Ochs, Bert Stearn, Dave Spizel, Nate Schultz, F. H. Hathaway, Dave Siegel, Fred Meier, Nat L. Lefton, chief barker of Cleveland Tent No. 6; Al Gregg, D. Leonard Halper, Leo Jones. Charles Albert, Ed Miller and Lou Milder will attend from California where they have been on vacation. They will join the Variety Special of 15 cars out of St. Louis where members from all parts of the country converge.

Nat Wolf and Bert Stearn are delegates of the Cleveland Tent. Wolf and Frank Drew are national officers.

Three-Way Moveover Will Draw Protest

PITTSBURGH—Formal protest of the first-run moveover situation will be made by the AMPTO of W. Pa., according to determination of the membership at a meeting Monday afternoon in exhibitor headquarters.

Some weeks ago "Virginia City" played Loew's Penn for a week and was moved over to the Warner, a practice in vogue for several years. When the same picture was then removed from the Warner and exhibited at the Ritz, as a continuous run, a number of subsequent-run theatre owners and managers registered disapproval. The subject was discussed at a recent local Allied meeting, but no action was taken due to the lateness of the session. Meanwhile, another film, "Rebecca," has moved over from the Penn to the Warner to the Ritz.

This week's meeting was attended by Nathan M. Katz, exhibitor organization counsel, and was presided over by M. A. Rosenberg and Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO officers.

Most exhibitors agreed that the moveover to the Ritz constituted a third-run and that the films in question were being "milked." A number of members were active in discussing the issue and it was finally decided that no drastic action, such as refusing to play these pictures, be taken but that a letter of protest be forwarded to all local film distributing companies, to their home offices and to Senator Neely and other government agencies.

Double-billing of high percentage pictures was again discussed. Independent exhibitors declared it was impossible for them to present the same films as duals. Newspaper displays, showing announcements of first-run and subsequent-run exhibitions of leading photoplays as double-bills, were shown.

President Rosenberg announced that Ira H. Cohn, 20th-Fox branch manager, having returned from his company's sales convention, stated definitely no pictures on the current program of that company would be reduced from 35mm to 16mm films.

Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary, announced that hearings on the new Neely bill (S. 3735), which would divorce producers-distributors from exhibition, would be called at an early date, possibly starting April 22, and that local witnesses were to be called to Washington.

Pekras Sells Four Elyria Houses to Greenwald

ELYRIA, OHIO—John Pekras, owner and operator of the Capitol, Lincoln, Rialto and Rivoli theatres of this city, has sold the houses, effective May 1. The purchasers are Max Greenwald and associates. Greenwald has spent 18 years in the distribution end of the business as Paramount salesmen in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Cleveland. He resigned this week from the sales force of the Cleveland Paramount office.

Pekras is retiring from active business.

1928 Year of Record Runs in Detroit

DETROIT—Search of the records for the all-time record run of a motion picture in Detroit disclosed that 1928 was about the year of record big runs, on the average. In addition to the two Jolson pictures, "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool," record runs of that time were:

"Tenderloin," at the Madison seven weeks.

"Lights of New York," at the State eight weeks.

"Lilac Time," at the Madison six weeks.

"The Lion and the Mouse," at the State five weeks.

None of these was considered a memorable film, according to the recollections of local exhibitors queried, most of whom barely recollected even the titles and could not recall the films themselves, yet they did what would be considered "super-colossal" business in these times.

Perusal of old press files indicates that grosses were way up too, with houses around the 2,000-seat class doing $30,000 to $40,000 business on the better weeks—partly accounted for by higher admission prices at the time, and more consistent fills a day—this was the period when the lobbies were normally used for lines of people waiting to get into the auditorium up till the last show started.

Costs were of course higher, and it was said that film rentals in some cases exceeded today's first-run average grosses.

Turn to Trade Veterans For Record of Runs

DETROIT—The record-breaking run of "Gone With the Wind" has inspired the search for records of long-lived films of the past, that has aroused the interest of practically every old-timer in the industry locally. In a careful search for authentic information, this correspondent has personally contacted every accessible old-timer known around the city, and a search also has been made through some exchange records and through newspaper files covering the older film runs prior to 1920. The figures presented are, accordingly, believed to be entirely accurate.

An amazing discovery was the almost complete lack of records kept over a period of years in this changing industry. Exchanges in almost no cases had precise records going back even to the earlier days of talking pictures. For this reason, this summary has important local historical value, and includes data, as far as available, on all film runs considered memorable by the old-timers.

Thanks are due to many who contributed valuable data, notably Dave Palfreyman of the Hays Office, Frank Gene, Lloyd Hammond, Harlan Starr, Tom Moule, Mike Schoenherr, Art Knapp, L. H. Gardner, Edgar E. Kirchner, Walter Shafer, Frank J. Downey, Carl Buermele, Moe Dudelson and Max Blumenthal.

"The Passion Play," three-reeler distributed by Pathe, opened, probably on August 11, 1907, as the first attraction at Detroit's first "deluxer," the Royal, operated by John H. Kunsky and Arthur Caille, with Michael Schoenherr, now managing the Strand, as manager, to run 14 weeks for one of the longest of all-time runs, right at the birth of the industry. This was the first local house to play at a dime admission, and after this film it was forced to drop back to a nickel like its competitors. An illustrated song was given between each reel, Schoenherr recalled. A "Professor Sydney Wire of Paris" lectured. The film grossed $24,000 in a 300-seat house, 240,000 paid admissions, when the population of Detroit was about 350,000 (485,000 in 1910). The show, the first multiple-reel attraction, Schoenherr says, ran half an hour on a 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. grind.

"Quo Vadis," distributed by George H. Kleine, ran July 27 to Aug. 24, 1914, four weeks, at the Detroit Opera House, playing two a day, 25 cents to 50 cents. This house formerly played lesser films on a continuous run policy, such as "Pilgrim's Progress."

"Neptune's Daughter" Big

This run of four weeks was called "a new record for photoplays" by the Free Press of Aug. 17, 1914.

"Neptune's Daughter," the Annette Kellerman film handled by the late William Elliott who was manager of the State Theatre when he died last year, proved the all-time record holder up to the present, although not one oldtimer casually recollected this run. It opened at 25 cents to 50 cents, at the Detroit Opera House, May 25, 1914, closing September 6, a run of 15 weeks, and returned July 24, 1915, closing August 21, for four more—a total first run (continued) of 19 weeks. In the first eight weeks, some 100,000 people saw the film (Detroit Free Press, Aug. 19, 1914.) Incidentally, statements made in print at the time refer to the first run as 16 weeks, but a careful check of opening and closing dates shows this should have been 15.

"Damaged Goods," featuring Richard Bennett, opened Sept. 18, 1915, at 25 cents, nine shows a day, at the Grand Circus Theatre, run by Art Breitmeyer. This was the first picture to play over two weeks "at any regular photoplay house" in Detroit (Detroit Free Press, Oct. 31, 1915), as the previous records were at what would today be termed roadshow stands, or in the three-reel stage of the industry. This film ran eight weeks, closing Dec. 11, 1915. It played to 35,000 the first week, 150,000 in five weeks. Incidentally, unique exploitation included the newspaper ad that "At the special request of the general managers of three large automobile companies who want their employes to see this picture," it was held over.

"The Birth of a Nation," top grosser of the industry as a whole, opened at real roadshow prices, 25 cents to $2.00, at the Detroit Opera House, Jan. 3, 1916, but ran only six weeks, closing February 13. "Intolerance" did about equally well.

"Hearts of the World," another Griffith epic, opened June 23, 1918, at the Washington, at 25 cents to $1.50, and moved after two weeks from this 1,700-seater to the Detroit Opera House, to provide greater seating capacity. During the run, the house name was changed to the Campus. The film closed September 21, after a total run of 13 weeks.

"Over the Hill," a Fox release, played eight weeks at the Fox-Washington, grossing $98,000 and playing to 250,000 people.

"The Jazz Singer," Al Jolson's early talking picture, a First National release, ran Dec. 24, 1927, to Feb. 17, 1928, at the Madison—eight weeks—and was revived in July for three weeks.

"The Singing Fool," Jolson's next, set the talking picture record up to the present—15 weeks. It opened at the Adams, Dec. 1, 1928, and closed Mar. 15, 1929.

"Hell's Angels," UA's longest run since "The Birth of a Nation," opened in 1930 for six weeks as a roadshow at the Detroit Opera House (then the Shubert-Detroit), and went right into the United Artists for four more—a total run of 10 weeks.

"Snow White," RKO release, setting the record of recent years, opened day-and-date for the first time in local show history, and ran two weeks at the Madison and six at the United Artists, a total of eight weeks.

Other films that had long runs but not, according to available information, in the 12-week or more class, were "Mickey," "The Big Parade," "The Freshman" and perhaps one other Harold Lloyd film. In some cases these were subsequent runs.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance" set a six-week house record at the Family, as the first all-film bill in this former vaudeville house, incidentally.

"Gone With the Wind," finally, is setting new records. Opening day and date on Jan. 25, 1940, at the Wilson and United

How Long They Ran —And Where

Detroit—Many films had long runs through the years in Detroit theatres. Here are the record makers, with the number of weeks, the year in which the runs occurred and the theatres they played:

Film	Weeks	Year	Theatre
Gone With the Wind	22	1940	Wilson & United Artists
Neptune's Daughter	19	1914-15	Detroit Opera House
The Singing Fool	15	1928-29	Adams
Passion Play (Pathe)	14	1907	Royal
Hearts of the World	13	1918	Washington and Detroit Opera House

Old Hits Still Pack Power, Says Broder

Detroit—Old films are popular enough to do better business than some well-advertised recent releases, according to Jack Broder, operator of three local houses. Broder recently booked two ancient films, "King Kong" and "The Plainsman" on a double bill at the Time, on the east side, and reported business with these two old-timers far ahead of grosses for the following bill of a current hit.

PITTSBURGH

FLOYD BENDER, Millvale exhibitor, was back on the job this week after honeymooning in the south. At Williamsburg, Va., the young couple viewed shooting of several scenes for Columbia's "The Howards of Virginia," formerly known as "The Tree of Liberty." Floyd reported Joe Skirball, former veteran film man of Pittsburgh, was "on the job" there as assistant to Frank Lloyd, director . . . Sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. David Kimelman on the death of Harry Broude, Mrs. Kimelman's brother-in-law . . . Warner circuit managers, announced in the campaign for exploitation and gross as winners of trips to the Variety Club convention, were Dick Brown, Rowland, Wilkinsburg, for the main line; Lou Fordan, Memorial, McKeesport, for the southern territory; Al Singer, Strand, Oakland, for the city area; and Pat Notaro, Columbia, Sharon, for the northern territory. Harris circuit winners of trips to Dallas were Morty Henderson, William Penn, north side, city, and Earle Bailey, manager at Warren, Ohio . . . Several of the local film men were unable to make the Dallas trip, having received instructions from their home offices to remain on the job here.

Martin Terner's American Theatrical Valance Co. has redecorated the McKee, city . . . Les Coleman, Paramount playdate auditor, was working on the local books this week . . . Dave Fineman of the Regent Square is moving into his new home on Marlborough Road, Squirrel Hill . . . The more than half million dollars collected on the chain store and theatre tax, which was ruled unconstitutional last summer, may not be refunded for another year, according to a report of the state revenue department . . . Joe Lissauer, booker for the Skirball circuit, was a visitor from Cleveland, with Mannie Greenwald. Mannie reported that Bela Lugosi stopped in at the Barry the other day to pay his respects . . . Too much exposure is holding up Paramount's "Typhoon" and to date no censor seal has been issued.

First returned conventioneers are the 20th-Fox boys who were all smiles this week—thus does the selling season officially open. Mark Goldman and Ben Welansky are attending the Variety Club convention at Dallas and remaining there for their annual Monogram sales meeting . . . George S. Otte, Wheeling showman, has been fooling the Filmrow crowd with his "Florida" tan. Just artificial health lamp tan, says George, who seriously complains regarding the boxoffice dent suffered in exhibition of other than "A" pictures as classified by the Legion of Decency . . . We previewed Republic's new accessory and shipping quarters this week in the former GN exchange room; Republic's office will remain at the corner of the Blvd. of the Allies and Van Braam St. . . . 1928 Year of Record Runs for Detroit

Artists. Policy was three shows a day (two a day for the first two weeks at the Wilson), at the usual 75 cents to $1.50 scale. It closed March 30 at the United Artists—nine and one-half weeks, and was tentatively slated to close April 13 at the Wilson—10 weeks, or a total of 19½ weeks, breaking the record of "Neptune's Daughter" a quarter century ago by one-half week. It is probable that further bookings will increase the run of "GWTW."

But—motion pictures, talking or silent, have a long way to go to catch up with legitimate stage runs—"Abie's Irish Rose" opened in August, 1925, at the Garrick to stay 28 weeks, and "Broadway" opened in April, 1927, at the same house to stay 22 weeks.

CLEVELAND

GEORGE LEFKO, RKO branch manager is throwing out his chest this week because three of the town's five downtown first-runs are playing RKO pictures. There's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" at the Palace, "Primrose Path" at the Hippodrome and "Pinocchio" at the Allen where it was moved following an initial week at the Hipp. Then, just to make a good story better, the Hipp also showed the latest March of Time release and at the Palace there was a Pathe news.

Jeanne Wolcott, daughter of Victor Wolcott, well-known theatreman, has been added to the Vitagraph secretarial family . . . Back from the south with heavy coats of tan to prove it, are Jack Shulman, Abe Schwartz, Max Lefkowich, Frank Poroszinski, Meyer Fine, Sam Stecker, Frank Gross and M. B. Horwitz . . . Loren Solter has installed new RCA sound equipment in his Falls Theatre at Chagrin Falls.

Fred Holzworth, Billy Banks, Louis Swee and Jimmy Kalafat are a foursome who play handball twice a week just to keep their arteries young . . . Warners have bought the two-reeler, "The Life of Seabiscuit," a Monogram release, for all of its houses in the territory. The picture also is playing the Paramount, Toledo and the State, Youngstown, according to the boys in Nate Schultz' Monogram office.

Budd Rogers, president of Alliance Pictures, stopped off here on his cross country tour to visit with Carl Scheuch and Bernard Rubin of Big Feature Rights Exchanges, Inc. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were on their way to New York after having been on the west coast . . . Harry Reinhart had two busy days last week when Roy Rogers, Republic star, appeared two days at his State Theatre, Canton . . . George Otte of Wheeling, W. Va., was in town booking for the State and American of East Liverpool.

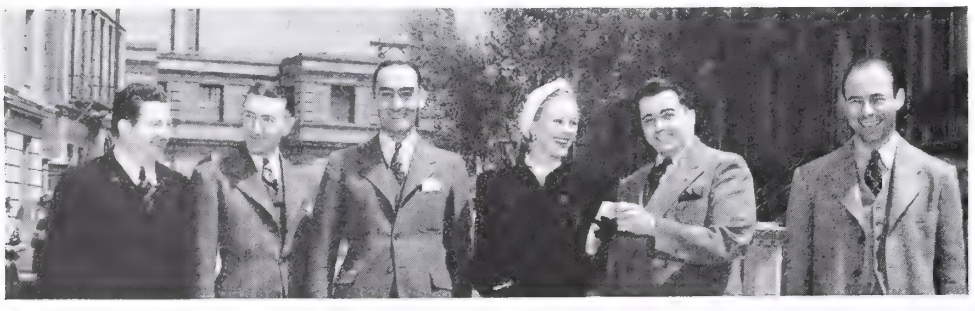
Frank Roberts is pinch hitting as booker of the Alpine circuit for Charles Kosco, reported to be enjoying a vacation in South America. Roberts was in the city booking for the Rex, Steubenville and the Palace, Salineville. Alpine headquarters are at Kingwood, W. Va.

Visitors here and there along Filmrow during the past week included Earl Seitz, Sandusky; B. Raful, Kenmore; the regulars from Akron; Mr. and Mrs. George Ebeck, Mount Gilead . . . Mr. and Mrs. Dave Robbins of Warren have returned from a winter in Florida . . . Harland Fend, on sick leave for a couple of weeks, is back on the job managing the Sherman, Chillicothe.

Jack O'Connell who recently took over the Princess, Sylvania, has re-named the house. It now is called the Town . . . Vic Schram, who has been working in Arizona territory for the past year, is back in town with some new business building plans which he will divulge very shortly.

Miss Virginia Taylor (blonde) succeeds Miss Estelle Schwartz, (brunette) as secretary to Vitagraph branch manager, Ted Mendelssohn . . . Milt Harris of Loew's publicity department asked Mr. and Mrs. Public to state, in 100 words or less, what constitutes a perfect son as just one angle of his campaign on "My Son, My Son" currently playing at Loew's State Theatre. Prizes consisted of $50 in cash and sets of guest tickets.

One of the stormiest days of the year greeted Mrs. Charles Raymond, wife of the newly appointed district manager of Loew's theatres, when she and her two children arrived in town last Thursday. Maybe it reminded them of London where they have been living for the past six years.



Carl Scheuch and Bernard Rubin who operate the local branch of Big Feature Rights Exchanges, Inc., are out to make a real showing in the forthcoming Big Features drive to be held through May and June to celebrate President Lee Goldberg's 25th anniversary as an independent film distributor.

Harry Lande of Independent Film Service has bought "The Golem" for Ohio-Kentucky distribution . . . Meyer Kaplan will play a first run engagement of "Overture to Glory," Jewish picture with English sub-titles, during the Jewish holidays, the week of April 22.

Annual spring dance of the Film Exchange Employes was a great success, with approximately 250 present. J. K. Johnson made a hit as m. c. introducing Bill McGrew, usher at the Lorain Fulton, and his professional partner in an exhibition of jitterbug dancing. Joe Swee, RKO office manager, and Louis Gross of Johnson & Gross, film transit outfit, were the "front office" representatives at the party.

William Tallman has added his Ceramic Theatre, East Liverpool, to the group of houses serviced by Milt Mooney's Cooperative Theatres of Ohio. Mooney has also contracted to serve the Drive-In theatres at Strassburg and Creston, opening April 19 and May 2, respectively.

Charles Winet, who succeeded Jerry Morrison as local representative for Metro Premiums, closed five deals last week, three for Sunburst and two for kitchen enamel.

Clevelanders in Burbank—

Frank McHugh (left) and Maris Wrixon act as escorts to a group of Warner theatre executives from Cleveland who visited the studio during a vacation trip to southern California. The lineup here: McHugh, Eddie Miller, Lou Milder, Miss Wrixon, M. H. Chakeres and Charles Albert.

Akron Company Will Build Open-Airers

AKRON, OHIO—Starlight Pictures, Inc., has been formed here to build and operate outdoor theatres in the greater Akron area.

Identified with the venture are D. E. Davis, C. C. Lipps and Ethel Young. First new outdoor theatre will be built on Arlington St. in the vicinity of the airport, and is expected to be ready by May 1. A site on West Hill is being considered for the second unit and several others will be constructed in and about the city, according to Davis.

Start Construction on Millersburg House

MILLERSBURG, OHIO—Ground has been broken here for a new 500-seat theatre which is being built by the C. J. Vogel Sons Construction Co. of Wellsville for Mr. and Mrs. Hoy L. Russell who have operated the Opera House in Millersburg since 1925.

The new house, to be called "The Russell" is expected to be ready for opening August 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell will retain their Opera House and plan to show action programs there during weekends after the completion of the new house.

Plans for Ebensburg Theatre Are Dropped

EBENSBURG, PA.—Plans for the Strand Theatre Co. of Altoona to remodel a storeroom into a theatre here have been dropped, while progress is reported on the theatre for the Cambria Theatres, Inc., which will replace the Rivoli which was destroyed by fire several months ago.

Associated Circuit Is Renovating Heights

CLEVELAND—Associated circuit, which recently concluded a long term lease from M. B. Horwitz on the Heights Theatre, is spending $25,000 to remodel it. When completed, the house will have new chairs, all new interior decorating, carpets, a new marquee and lobby frames. The ladies' rest room also is being refurnished. The Heights is under the direction of Ray Allison, manager of the Shaker.

CINCINNATI

EARL EVELAND, owner of the Opera House, McConnelsville, was guest speaker at the Malta and McConnelsville Business Men's Ass'n last week, an organization devoted to the betterment of business conditions in the twin cities. Evelang is president of the Rotary Club in McConnelsville, and has the distinction of being a charter member and one of the founders and the only president ever to have served two terms. His address was the highlight of the meeting, and extremely well received.

George Bressler, veteran theatreman, died at his home in Pleasant Ridge, April 9. Bressler was one time manager of Emery Auditorium, where he met Ruth McCabe, actress, whom he married in 1912. He sponsored the Cumminsville Amusement Park for several years and later operated several motion picture houses, including the Queen Anne, Capt. Washington; the American, Bellevue, Ky.; and Liberty, Dayton, Ky., which he retained until his death. Besides his widow, he leaves three sons, one of whom, Woodrow, is associated with M-G-M's local office. Funeral services were held April 12 at SS. Peter & Paul Church, Norwood, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Milt Jacobs, Metro representative, confined at Grant's Hospital, Columbus, is reported in the convalescent stage . . . Paramount Bowling team is leading the league at Filmrow with such a substantial margin they have practically clinched the second half of the league tournament. Ross Spencer is captain. However, their opponents have not given up the ship, and Jimmy Brunetti, captain of Warner's team, and Tom McCann, who pilots 20th-Fox, are both tied for second place and will battle it out in the last nine games, still scheduled to be played.

Republic announces "Dark Command" is set for RKO Shubert, first run house, April 26 . . . Bill Onie and his busy staff are moving. Monogram's new offices will be located on the first floor, instead of the fourth, at Filmrow, and at No. 1635, across the street from the present location.

Filmrow is putting on a spring dress of new green paint, gold embossed dados, and is altogether fresh and lovely. Various exchange offices also are undergoing redecoration . . . Harris Bros. have announced plans for construction of the new theatre to be erected at Roselawn, Cincy's newest thriving suburb. The house is to be leased by Virgil Jackson, with Maurice Chase as representative.

Jim Shanklin, Oxford, Oxford, Ohio, and Dave Brown, Cabin Creek, Ky.; Fred Rowlands and Homer Bloss, Columbus, and Orville Wood, Camden, visited the Row this week . . . Incidentally, Orville Wood who operates the Dover and Majestic, has just purchased $7,500 worth of radio equipment, and is qualified to be listed among the best equipped ham short wave operators.

Dave Miller, Universal district manager, visited with the personnel of the local office.

Frank Savage Cops Prize For Top March Business

CLEVELAND—Frank Savage, manager of Warner's Theatre, Youngstown, won the March 1940 Drive to beat the March 1939 business, held by the theatre managers as a surprise for Zone Manager Nat Wolf while he was on vacation, and staged by District Managers Dick Wright, Frank Harpster and Ray Brown. The prize, a camera, was donated by district managers.

FRANK SAVAGE

Although the designated period included a major portion of Lent, Savage won the contest by putting on special exploitation campaigns for each of the four pictures he played during this time. They were "Grapes of Wrath," "Magic Bullet," "Virginia City" and "Northwest Passage."

Testimonial Is Accorded Frank Hensen in Canton

CANTON—Friends of Frank Hensen honored him with a testimonial dinner at the Belden Hotel last week to celebrate his promotion from manager of Loew's Canton to manager of Loew's in Akron where he succeeds Jack Flex, resigned. Approximately 60 attended the dinner, including a big representation from Cleveland.

Charles Raymond, newly appointed Loew division manager, was also present and announced that Orville Crouch, formerly of Cincinnati, has been named manager of Loew's Canton to succeed Hensen.

Twelve Cleveland Houses Tie on "Rancho Grande"

CLEVELAND—The innovation of showing "Rancho Grande" at 12 Cleveland houses simultaneously on a first-run release last week was an outstanding success, according to the 12 exhibitors who participated. A cooperative newspaper ad suggested that patrons see "Rancho Grande" at their favorite theatre. Al Gregg, head of Republic's publicity department, worked out the plan.

Gregg now is planning an extensive publicity campaign for "Dark Command" privately screened here recently.

Announced 'GWTW' Date Is Denied Confirmation

CLEVELAND—Charles Raymond, Loew district manager, announces that "GWTW" has not been booked to play the Park and Granada theatres, as previously announced. The picture just closed a 10-week run at the Loew's Stillman playing to approximately 300,000 people. Raymond further announces that the film will be run in its entire length whenever and wherever it is shown.

Paramount Extends Dekker

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount has extended the acting contract of Albert Dekker.

COLUMBUS

ATTENTION Variety Clubbers, everywhere: Al Taylor, Dixie Theatre, attended the Dallas convention. He is 85! Can you top this?

Johnny Hardgrove, Ohio assistant manager, has been a bachelor for the past three weeks while the missus is in Florida . . . J. Real Neth is on the sick list again . . . Milt Jacobs is out of danger at Grant Hospital, and is on the mend. However, it will be weeks before he's back on the road.

Urban May jr., from Ambridge, Pa., is the new student assistant at the Broad, his first assignment with Loew's . . . The Palace has Blackstone the Magician coming in Friday for a finale of flesh this season . . . Freddie Oestreicher's illness turned out to be a trifle more serious than realized, but he's working now.

Open house was held at the VC for John Garfield and Harry Carey, in town with legit "Heavenly Express." It was a reunion for Carey and Harry Young (Universal). In 1919 Young brought Carey for a series of personal appearances, local one being at the old Pekras Dreamland.

Virgil Jackson is using a "Pot of Plenty" program once weekly at the Uptown and Olentangy. The giveaway, based on the auction idea, is the first locally. Larry Haggard serves as emcee . . . The Shea circuit has acquired the Caldwell Brown theatres in Zanesville.

Could be the spring weather, but Saturday night found many of the old barkers at the Variety Club for the first party in weeks: F. E. Gooding, Bill Ortman, Myron Gessaman, Bob Nelson, L. C. Goldsol and Roy Reichelderfer. Next scheduled event is a cruise party May 5, chairmanned by Leo Yassenoff.

Several Metro Bookers Near Veteran Status

CINCINNATI—When July 6 rolls around Charles J. Weigel jr., local M-G-M booker, will have seen 11 years continuous service with the company. Between himself and three colleagues there's a total of 38 years of service to Leo. Michael M. Berger is down for 15; Thomas C. Smiley, eight, and Robert Cuming jr., four.

Pittsburgh in the Running

PITTSBURGH—On April 30 Max Shabason, local M-G-M booker, will have seen 12 years uninterrupted service with "The Friendly Company." Altogether, the four bookers have rolled up more than 36 years service, i. e.: John Zomnir, 10½; Irving Jacobs, 11, and John Freinstein, three.

FOR SALE—Country home, three acres; 12 miles from Fountain Square. Strictly modern, built 1½ years ago, four bedrooms, three baths, recreation room and every modern convenience.

UDT Reduces Balcony Admission in Nabe

DETROIT—Neighborhood price adjustment was made by United Detroit Theatres at the Cinderella recently, dropping balcony prices for evening shows from 40 to 30 cents. The 40-cent price continues downstairs.

This is not seen as indicative of any general move toward a price change in the city, despite the importance of the Cinderella as a second run house. The move is viewed as one answer to lower price attractions at the newly built subsequent-run Time, and at the same time marks a slight trend, noted in recent months locally, toward reverting to the old practice of establishing a differential price for balcony seats.

Three Houses Are Added To Mich. Coop's Ranks

DETROIT—Cooperative Theatres of Michigan is adding three new member theatres—the Rowena at Fenton, operated by J. C. Peck; the Dawn, Detroit, just acquired by Barney Kilbride, and the Grant, Detroit, operated by Moe Teitel and Saul Korman.

Peck is the only one actually new to Co-op, as Kilbride has long been a member through his other theatres, and Moe Teitel has been a member through the Warfield, and has just become a partner in the Grant with Korman.

Fox May Follow Michigan Lead and Feature Flesh

DETROIT—United Detroit Theatres will bring stage shows to the Michigan, beginning May 3. It is likely the Fox will follow suit.

Straight double film shows will be presented at the Michigan if suitable stage units are not available, according to Earl Hudson, president of the circuit.

Opening bill will feature the Marx Brothers heading a company of 50.

Basements Flooded

DETROIT—Last Sunday's heavy rainstorm again proved the inadequacy of storm sewers in the northwest section by flooding basements throughout the section. Typical flood was at I. J. London's Beacon, where the basement was flooded for some hours. Other theatres in the district are understood to have suffered.

Modernize Old-Timer

CLEVELAND—Work of transforming the 1912 Knickerbocker into a 1940 model has just been completed. Louis Swee is manager of this Associated circuit house.

Scientific Attitude Is Not Lost

Detroit—A test as to whether people will come out for "just good pictures" will be made by Al Ruttenberg of the Iris here within six weeks, when, what he trusts will be his last giveaway deal, expires.

"Streamlined" Titles Stanley Fisher Urge

DETROIT—Screen titles are still back in the silent film era and need drastic revamping to bring them into the modern talking picture era, according to Stanley Fisher, film salesman, in an exclusive BOXOFFICE interview.

"Screen titles of pictures have about worn themselves out on the screen and are due for streamlining," Fisher said. "Screen credits following them have become to the average showgoer just a string of words, the effect on their senses just about the same as montage. Films should avoid becoming too mechanical, and also steer clear of that off-the-Hollywood-assembly-line pattern.

"The fact that the printed face title with a background of music has been generally accepted in the past as a regular custom, and taken as a matter of course, does not necessarily mean that the movie-going public are allergic to having a title announce itself verbally as it opens on the screen. Anything that progresses outgrows, and inasmuch as spontaneity is the first requirement of a picture, the fact also remains that the title is the foundation of the film.

"Some producers are already looking beyond the obscured title skyline, and are beginning to have title and credits background blend with action and establish the mood of the picture. These visionaries of showmanship are to be congratulated. They believe nothing is impossible, and are proving it by achievement right before our eyes on the screen.

"Names that are hard to pronounce and harder still to remember will benefit by talking titles. Musicals can announce the title by singing the name. Westerns can create the necessary illusion by having the title verbally explode its name. Horror films can employ a trigger-tongued announcer to create the horror. The combinations to fit the various types of films are endless. The slow growth of 'audience mood' may soak into the mind more quickly, and cause the picture-goer to pay off in enthusiasm as to the worth of the film.

"Hollywood deals daily with emotion, and those behind the scenes know that the title is all-important in selling the film to the public. The staggering fact is, not that the picture titles don't talk, but that they have waited so long to do so."

Canton Legit Folds

CANTON, OHIO—The Grand, former legit house which has been playing burlesque and dramatic stock, has closed for the summer.

Detroit's WWJ May Drop Pot O' Gold Air Show

DETROIT—The Pot O' Gold program, objective of attack by exhibitor groups led by Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, may go off the air in this territory about May 2, according to notice sent NBC by Station WWJ here. The station's action was originally based on the theory that the program might be considered a lottery, but a spokesman for WWJ told BOXOFFICE that since the department of justice has advanced an opinion that it was not to be construed as a lottery, this did not seem to apply.

Some changes are to be made in the style of the program, probably the abandonment of the telephone call idea, on April 28, and WWJ's final decision will be reserved until details of the changes are known.

Precedent Set by UDT With Two Dual Bill Holdovers

DETROIT—Two double bill holdovers set some kind of a new record for United Detroit Theatres. "Rebecca" and "Granny Get Your Gun" stayed for a second week at the Michigan. The combo of "Virginia City" and "The Farmer's Daughter," which moved intact from the Michigan to the Palms-State a week ago, stayed for a third week at the latter house. In addition, UDT held "Northwest Passage" for a third week at the UA.

"Gone With the Wind" is completing 22 weeks, equalling the run of "Broadway," second longest run ever played by any theatre attraction in Detroit, a dozen years ago.

Wolf Spots 'Tobacco Road' Into Five Ohio Houses

CLEVELAND—Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, has spot-booked "Tobacco Road" into five houses in the territory. The stage play had such a tremendous advance sale for tickets at the Madison, Mansfield, that an extra matinee was offered. Other towns in which this stage classic is doing one-night stands are the Palace, Lorain; Ohio, Lima; Sixth Street, Coshocton and LaRoy, Portmouth. Top price at each engagement is $1.65.

Four "Adults Only" Films Hit Detroit's Screens

DETROIT—Sophisticated films, "for adults only," crowded the town this week, with four houses putting up the "no children admitted" sign. Theatres and films are: Cinema, "Human Beast;" Fine Arts, "Sensation Hunters;" Columbia, "Reefer Madness," and Avenue, "Are You Fit to Marry?"

Sturm on Will Rogers Drive

DETROIT—The annual Will Rogers Drive will get under way for the week starting Thursday, April 25, under the direction of W. Lester Sturm, 20th-Fox branch manager.

"Ode to Scarlett"

DEFIANCE, OHIO—Windstruck by the Scarlett O'Hara portrayed by Vivien Leigh for "Gone With the Wind," E. E. Bair of the Defiance Amusement Co. contributes the following observation:

Miss Scarlett, gay, vivacious—but bold,
The pride of her daddy and the TARA household,
A psychiatrist's dream, if there ever was one,
Spoiled, petted and pampered like a favorite son.

Ambitious and selfish to gain every whim,
Chips fell where they may—when she came in,
Melanie, Ashley and all the rest,
Were pawns in her quest to get—the best.

Then SIEGE set in to exact its price,
She toppled down from all that was nice;
Sherman's right, when he said "War is Hell"
But it didn't dampen the fire of this belle.

Over the ashes and embers of the Dear Old South,
Her oath was to fight—and feed every mouth,
One cannot discount this feminine trait,
To fight bravely on—to inevitable fate.

A New Horizon then arose
After four long years of restless repose,
A great new dawning—came over this girl,
To lighten her burden from a terrible whirl.

Rhett Butler now seemed to understand
What she meant by each countermand,
He seemed to know what her emotions meant,
That smile on her face, was the smile of content.

"None Better Ever"

PITTSBURGH—The Press column "How Time Flies," reporting the news of 25 years ago, made this startling statement (as taken from the files):

"Ground has been broken for a new motion picture theatre in Penn Ave. between Frankstown Ave. and the Pennsylvania Railroad. The playhouse will be called the Liberty and will seat 2,000 people. None better will ever be built!"

The Liberty is in the news again after a quarter of a century, William D. Davis, former operator, having been subpoenaed as one of the first witnesses in the government's anti-trust suit.

Perry Nathan Pittsburgh Manager of NSS and AA

PITTSBURGH—Announcement is made of the appointment of Perry Nathan as local manager for Nathan Screen Service and Advertising Accessories, Inc. He has been on duty here as a special representative for several months.

Advertising Accessories, which absorbed Independent Display Co., will retain all employes of that company, according to Nathan.

Assisting Nathan in the accessories line, is John Scott, who reported here several months ago when AA absorbed the advertising departments of Paramount and RKO.

Circuit Shows Deference in Charles Essick's Memory

CLEVELAND—The offices of the Scoville, Essick and Reif circuit in the Film Bldg. were closed Thursday afternoon out of respect for Charles Essick, 87, father of Perce E. Essick who died last week after an illness of several months.

Prior to his retirement from business several years ago, the elder Essick was manager of the Madison Theatre, one of the theatres in the circuit in which his son is an owner. In addition to Perce, he is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Essick and Mrs. Daise Fickensher; ten grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

HOLLYWOOD—Warner's "City for Conquest," to star James Cagney, is being adapted by Robert Rossen.

See Editorial Opinion Behind Neely Foes

BOSTON—The major interests are seeking public reinforcement in their battle against the Neely bill. Newspaper editorial columns, implicatively procured because of the advertising argument, are being effectively used in the campaign.

"This Neely bill is another notch in the ever mounting system of government intrusion which logically leads to government control," the Cambridge Sentinel recently editorialized.

"Well intentioned as is this Neely bill," the suburban Boston paper continued, in part, "it is mischievous in that the act complicates film distributing, creates costly and superfluous methods, passing the charges along to the people who now get their entertainment fill of an infinite variety of motion pictures within the reach of all."

Said a recent issue of the Arlington News, which came out against the Neely bill, "On the surface this looks like a good legislation, but already there are indications that this is just another measure to regulate business by politicians who know nothing about it . . . Police power now controls motion picture theatres and protects the public against undesirable films. There seems no need for passage of the Neely bill."

Editorialized the Portland-Press Herald at Portland, Me.: "It is a price-control bill. It would require the wholesale distributor to sell a single picture to the exhibitor (the retailer) at the same price they would be charged for the same picture as part of a group purchase. This could result only in money penalties upon exhibitors with not only no advantage to the public but actually with a disadvantage of higher admittance prices."

The one-column editorial of the Maine daily was reproduced in full in the Quincy Patriot Ledger and treated there as a local writing.

The Boston Evening Transcript, in an article by Dramatic Editor John K. Hutchens said, in part: "Even a layman can see that the Neely bill as it stands is a faulty and actually dangerous one, and the grounds on which it is being urged are generally untenable, and in some respects primarily misleading."

Hutchens continued, "The exhibitor already has far greater liberty in choosing his programs than the Neely bill implies. He can cancel ten per cent and more of the films for which he has contracted, and he can cancel by mutual agreement with the producing company. Block booking, in short, is not 'compulsory.'

"In fact, judging by the large percentage of good pictures that exhibitors have cancelled in favor of gangster melodramas, etc., block booking would seem to uphold the steady higher quality which the films have achieved."

The Transcript article drew a rebuttal from Stephen P. Cabot, honorary vice-president of the Motion Picture Research Council. Cabot, summing his remarks, said, "Film entertainment is highly educative—it is one of the greatest educational forces of today. It is the function of the community to exercise its own control over the education of its children. This is the democratic way. On the other hand, distant centralized control by a commercial monopoly involving the education, culture, and moral welfare of our children is un-American and fraught with great dangers."

Store-Room Services Vista Unfolds

Bridgeport—Height of something or other is the experience of a local exhibitor, much harassed by competition of church Bingo games surrounding him, who reports that parents frequently left tiny tots in the warm theatre lobby during the winter evenings while they attended these games. It was sometimes necessary to close up the theatre before the parents returned for their sleepy charges.

Exchange Employes Study Labor Contract Terms

NEW HAVEN—Local B-41 of exchange employes under IATSE met at the Hotel Garde to review the wage and hour terms set forth in the contracts agreed upon last December but just received in the territory. Jack Mullen presided and pointed out to the 35 members present the wage increases recorded in some instances, holiday provisions, and other new features, effective until December, 1941. Robert Hoffman, 20th-Fox head shipper, was elected acting business agent for the union to succeed Katherine Fitzgerald, no longer employed in the district. Nominations will be made at the May meeting of the union, with elections following in June.

Sunday Afternoon Shows Are Declared Illegal

FRANKLIN, N. H. — Sunday afternoon shows are illegal here, even when arranged as benefit performances, it has been ruled by City Solicitor George A. Kidder.

The city council received a request to permit films on Sunday afternoons at the Polish Home for the benefit of the Polish Relief Fund, and referred the matter to the city prosecutor for an opinion.

Solicitor Kidder pointed out that present laws prohibit film shows before 6 p. m. on the Sabbath, and benefit shows could not be held before that hour without violating the regulations.

Ayers Due to Answer Millett Suit Queries

BOSTON—At a United States district court hearing last week on a petition brought by George S. Ryan seeking to require Norman J. Ayers to answer questions propounded to him regarding Middlebury, Vt., attorneys representing the local Warner exchange manager stated that they would produce Ayers "at a convenient time" to answer the interrogations.

George S. Ryan, attorney in the anti-trust suits of C. F. Millett, operator of the State in Bridgton, Me., and the Millinocket Theatre, Inc., operating concern of Frank LePage at Millinocket, Me., filed the petition when Ayers, upon advice of Attorney Stuart H. Aarons of Vitagraph, Inc., "refused to answer certain interrogatories . . . related to Middlebury, Vt., and announced his intention of continuing to refuse to answer any other interrogations relating to that situation, particularly along the lines of testimony given in his deposition in the Gorham matter."

"The evidence given by Mr. Ayers and the exhibits marked for identification in connection with his deposition," Ryan stated, in his federal court petition, "disclosed that each season the defendant Vitagraph negotiated with the defendant Kurson and made contracts with him for the entire Graphic circuit at one time, these negotiations and contracts included not only Millinocket and Bridgton but also Middlebury, Vt.; that the size and the 'buying power' of the circuit were important factors in the negotiations; and that the defendant refused to negotiate with the competing exhibitors in those localities, except for some films of poor quality that would be rejected by the defendant Kurson.

"The evidence given by other witnesses and the exhibits marked for identification in connection with their depositions showed the same procedure in the negotiation of contracts between the defendant distributors and Kurson; that Kurson had insisted that certain distributors refuse to license any films to any competitors, and that they had agreed with him not to license films to said competitors; that he had made threats not to buy any films for any places where his circuit operated theatres from certain distributors if they licensed any films to his competitors; that because of an expected or threatened government investigation he had given permission to distributors to license his competitors films which he had not contracted for, and second-run films which he had first exhibited in the localities where he had competition."

Newell Kurson, Graphic Theatre circuit executive and son of Sam Kurson who founded the chain, is, incidentally, one of the prospective witnesses named by the department of justice in the government equity suit.

Drama Holds Out 8 Days

WATERBURY, CONN.—Joseph Solly's dramatic stock venture at the old Jacques Theatre lasted eight days. On the final night the boxoffice take was below $20.

Council's Publication Rises to Prominence

NEW HAVEN—On May 7, 1935, the New Haven Council of Theatre Patrons published the first issue of Theatre News, weekly motion picture review for New Haven and other towns in New Haven county. This organization, whose strong feeling that more impartial information should be available for moviegoers had dictated the inauguration of the weekly, was them fortified with exactly $325, donated by two friends, to carry on its publishing venture. No attempt had been made to secure subscribers or advertising at that time. As Theatre News celebrates its fifth anniversary this year, and issues a special anniversary number which will find its way into 10,000 homes, it counts a circulation of almost 3,000, many regular advertisers, and, though at first viewed with suspicion generally, it now has the approval of educators, students, theatre people, and scores of moviegoers in all walks of life.

Dr. Mark May Chosen Head

Some time after, convinced of the value of the periodical, several officers of the Council of Theatre Patrons formed a corporation to handle its publication. Dr. Mark A. May, executive director of the Yale Institute of Human Relations, who had been president of the council, became president of the Theatre Patrons corporation. Dr. May is a director of the American Film Center, a member of the Motion Picture Project of the American Council on Education, and serves on the Advisory Committee of the MPPDA, on the use of motion pictures in education. Mrs. Wilder Tileston, the Penetrix of Theatre News, whose motion picture column, "Talking It Over," has delighted countless readers for its originality and keenness of criticism and charm of style, was also an officer of the Council, and became an officer of the corporation, as did Jack Schaefer, capable editor of the weekly, who holds the post of editor of the New Haven Journal-Courier.

The publication has gradually increased in size and scope to include all entertainment features in these parts, such as legit shows, summer theatres, concerts, exhibits, etc., although its emphasis remains on motion pictures. In January, 1939, a national service, "The Movies . . . and the people who make them," was inaugurated, with special articles by outstanding authorities on the American and foreign picture scene. This weekly service now has subscribers in 40 states here, as well as in England, Holland, and India. It is used by schools, libraries, educators, theatres, and moviegoers generally.

Among the features in the special anniversary issue will be an article by Dr. William Lyon Phelps, Yale litterateur, and others to be announced.

Apparently Leo Keeps Them Satisfied

Boston—A total of 58 years uninterrupted service to M-G-M is the record rung up by the five bookers in the local exchange. The breakdown goes like this: Charles F. Repec, 20 years; Nathan Oberman, 14; Albert C. Wheeler, 11½; Thomas F. Farrell, nine, and Matthew F. Donohue, three and a half.

Gift Nights Are Not New, Garvie Reveals

HARTFORD—Dish and book nights, which have been popular in some local theatres, are not new, according to Billy S. Garvie, of the Hartford Times and somewhat of a local historian.

Garvie has found that gift shows filled the local Roberts Opera House, now defunct, back in the 80's.

The Fakir of Ava, a magician, offered not only a piano, but a melodon, sewing machine, 25 barrels of flour, 10 tons of coal, and 50 hams as well.

Sig Rubini, conjurer, gave away a $125 horse, parlor and bedroom sets, boxes of laundry soap, sacks of flour, cigars, bacon and $100 in gold.

Pitkin Testimonial Dinner Plans Are Taking Shape

NEW HAVEN—Plans for a gala testimonial dinner at Racebrook Country Club in honor of Barney Pitkin, RKO manager's 20th anniversary on Meadow Street, are daily taking form, and a tentative date of May 7 has been set for the event. Thomas Donaldson, Metro manager here, has been appointed chairman of the dinner, with Morris Joseph, Universal manager, as secretary, and Hugh Maguire, RKO booking manager, as treasurer. Invitations have gone out to the trade, and a large turnout is expected in celebration of the anniversary of this manager, who has himself acted as chairman of most of the film district's dinners here.

Assisting the chairmen is a large committee, including Herbert MacIntyre, Larry Gardiner, Ross Cropper, Ben Simon, Lou Wechsler, Tim O'Toole, Edward G. Ruff, Roger Mahan, Nat Furst, Samuel Seletsky, John Pavone, I. Levine, William Canelli, B. E. Hoffman, Arthur H. Lockwood, Edward Peskay, Harold Eskin, J. B. Fishman, George Wilkinson, Peter Perakos, Lou Gordon, Irving C. Jacocks jr., Harry F. Shaw, Donald Jacocks, Irwin Wheeler, Samuel Rosen, A. M. Schuman, Maurice Shulman, Herman Levy, Martin H. Keleher, William Pine, Maurice Bailey, Daniel Finn, John Evers, Leo Ricci, Lou Anger, Morris Haddleman, Henry Needles, James McCarthy, Walter Lloyd, Ranny Maller, John Hesse.

HOLLYWOOD — Producer Edward Small has assigned Tim Whelan to direct "My Official Wife," based on a story by Ernest Vajda.

Educator Points Way To Film Appreciation

NEW HAVEN—"The best films, it is felt, should be publicized and emphasized; the poor ignored," advises Donald A. Eldridge, director of audiovisual education in the New Haven schools, in a pamphlet depicting a motion picture appreciation program, which is being sent to all schools. The paragraphs on related activities and theatre cooperation further state, "The endorsement of good taste and intelligence seems likely to produce more lasting benefits than any mandatory censorship . . . In other words, the approach should be constructive, if the students are to gain the maximum value from the appreciation program. At the same time, this is the only basis upon which the exhibitors—the people who run the theatres and have to make their living at it—can be expected legitimately to cooperate with the schools. If the work of the schools is to be fully constructive, it must concentrate on encouraging, not discouraging, these exhibitors."

"Much depends upon this relationship between the schools, who deal with students, and the theatre people, who deal in films. The latter want to cooperate chiefly because they realize that anything which calls attention to the movies is good for their business. They make no secret of this fact. They realize also, however, that they have the power to make a great contribution to the educational system. The two can coordinate their efforts with great mutual benefit simply by understanding each other's problems, resources, and objectives."

Special rates for groups of students accompanied by a teacher, distribution of study guides, and screenings for teachers are especially lauded.

Moving Pictures Should Move, Reminds Critic

NEW HAVEN—"The motion picture has its own and most rigorous technique," says Sidney Howard in Theatre News, "which is best described by saying that a moving photograph must move and keep moving. In other words, its story, to be well told, must be continuously in action. What the characters think and feel on the screen must be expressed by doing, and only strong and clear thoughts and emotions can be expected to pierce through a medium which, even in color, lacks the reality of the flesh and blood of the stage on the one hand and of the novelist's personal spell on the other . . . It has been said that the dialogue scenes of pictures should be written as though each were a full-rate cable for every word of which the writer has to pay out of his own pocket. Length hangs like doom over any picture."

Columbians are first in the eastern division and* 11*th in the country . . . Republic's "Rancho Grande" is playing all the Warner A houses.*

Plenty of Harmony In the Business

Boston—It's a true story. A checker, working locally, recently had the urge to spend a weekend with the home folks, so the theatre manager offered to help out and dutifully forwarded daily reports to the distributor during the checker's absence.

Aaronson Finds Industry Customers Among Best

BOSTON—Sol Aaronson, of the Commercial Manufacturing Co. of Boston which annually dispenses thousands of dollars worth of artificial leather for theatre seat coverings, cannot see why a large part of the motion picture business is carried out on a C. O. D. basis.

Aaronson supplies artificial leather to some ten different trades, including the novelty field, pocketbooks, automobile, upholstery, etc. His losses in some of these latter brackets have gone as high as five per cent. Aaronson told BOXOFFICE last week that during the many years he has dealt with the motion picture trade, he has lost less than one-tenth of one per cent.

New Hampshire Out After Summer Tourist Trade

CONCORD, N. H.—Theatre men are expected to get their share of increased summer business as the result of a large state advertising program arranged under the direction of Donald D. Tuttle, state publicity director.

Due to unfavorable foreign travel conditions and improved economic conditions in this country, Director Tuttle anticipates the greatest influx of vacationists in several years. Five leading metropolitan newspapers and five nationally circulated magazines will carry Granite State advertising.

Hub American Legion Post Plans Boat Trip May 18

BOSTON—The Theatrical Post of American Legion has set its annual Boston-New York boat trip for May 18. Primary plans for the exodus were laid last week by special meeting at which Joseph Kantor, Al Kenney, Harry Aaronson, and Ben Johnson were among those present.

William H. McLaughlin, Stoneham exhibitor who heads the Post, went ahead with further details this week.

Segal Spots Two Imperial Films in Hub First-Run

BOSTON—Harry Segal, Imperial Picture's head, has set two local first runs at the RKO Boston. "Lost on the Western Front" played the house last week, while Ben Domingo was to have opened Thursday with "North Sea Patrol." Segal spotted the New England premiere of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" at Loew's Poli in Worcester last week. He set "Outsider" to open last Friday at Loew's State in Providence.

Teich Addresses Students

BOSTON—Hy Teich of the Four Star Program Co., film district printing establishment, lectured on layout and design at the first forum of high school and academy newspaper students at Boston University department of journalism recently. Teich is slated to speak before the seniors of the Boston University school of journalism on Vocational Day, April 25, regarding opportunities in job printing plants.

March of Time Crew Excites New London

NEW LONDON, CONN.—Localities who at first thought they were witnessing the filming of a motion picture fire scene outside a New London mill, were, in reality, seeing unfolded a practical joke which cost its devisers about $1,000. The stunt was reported and pictured in the press as a scene from The March of Time's new motion picture, "The Ramparts We Watch," but had, it seems, nothing to do with the film.

The tale, as reported by the Bridgeport Herald, is this. Roy E. Larsen, president of Time, Inc., which owns The March of Time along with Time, Life and Fortune magazines, was expected here with a group of motion picture and publishing executives to inspect the local studio. His companions included John Wood, comptroller of Time, Inc., C. D. Jackson of Time, and Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO Distributing Corp.

Relaxing for a moment after the strain of shooting the picture day and night for two weeks, Louis De Rochemont, the producer, decided to play a practical joke on the visitors by making them believe all their work had gone up in flames just as the picture was finished. Hiring some fire trucks, firemen and policemen, he laid out elaborate plans for the "fire." And when the New York film and magazine executives came into town, they were greeted by a junior executive of Time, Inc., who phoned the studio as soon as the party started for the place. Three minutes later, 40 smoke pots were lighted on the roof of the studio. Firemen began racing up and down ladders, and the police made quite a show of holding back the crowds that gathered.

By the time the visitors' car reached the top of the hill above the studio, great clouds of smoke were billowing forth from the roof. A police car blocked the executives' path, so the latter had to go down another street. As they stepped from their car, an actor who had been brought up from New York for a part, reportedly cried out, "If you fellows are extras in this picture, you might as well go back. I've been waiting four weeks for a bit part. I got a job today, and now look! The damn place is burning down."

Going into the studio expecting to find half of the interior ablaze, the executives found instead a party in progress all in their honor. Even the principals used in the early scenes of "The Ramparts We Watch" had been brought back in from New York and put into costume for the occasion.

The city of New London got $40 for the use of the fire trucks, each fireman was paid $5 and the policemen got "special duty" pay.

All Voluntary

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Tomp, whose column appears in the Torrington Register, gets quite a kick out of that censored advertising material sent out by Warner on "Virginia City."

According to his column, "Read It or Not," Tomp finds the placard "all very striking and appropriate—but alas, the sinister head of censorship seems to stick out from it.

" 'Virginia City,' the placard informs us, was where 'Mark Twain won his spurs' and where 'the town demimondaine was a member of the volunteer fire department.'

"It's all right there in the second statement—the one about the demimondaine and the volunteer fire department—that evidence creeps out.

"As originally placarded, the 'town's loveliest demimondaine' was proclaimed a 'sweetheart' of the Volunteer and 'member' substituted.

"Rather a nice distinction, if you ask us—and one which still leaves room for a bit of explanation on the part of the volunteer firemen."

NEW HAMPSHIRE

IN RECENT Brewster Academy alumni notes in the Wolfeboro newspaper, Evelyn Sanborn Sands, daughter of Ansel N. Sanborn, Carroll county theatre chain owner, received mention. She has been a member of the Gilchrist department store's office staff in Boston since 1935.

All forms of gambling, especially Beano and other games staged to aid church budgets, were opposed at the 111th annual New Hampshire Methodist Conference in Colebrook. The opposition also covered pari-mutuel betting at the Rockingham Park racetrack in Salem.

"The Ninth State," New Hampshire's color film, was shown at a recent meeting of nearly 150 road agents and selectmen in Manchester.

Musicians in Keene and vicinity have organized as Local No. 634 of AFL. Charles MacDonald is president; Walter White, vice-president; Richard Donovan, recording secretary; Mason Schutzman, financial secretary-treasurer, and Fay Metcalf, sergeant-at-arms.

The stage of the State in Manchester, New Hampshire's largest cinema house, was booked for five mornings, April 15 to 19, as the scene of the annual Spring Cooking School sponsored by the Manchester Electric Appliance League and the local newspapers. The theatre, with 2,500 seating capacity, was jammed for the event.

Back to New London to Complete "Ramparts"

NEW LONDON, CONN.—A March of Time camera crew has returned to New London to complete shooting on the company's first full-length feature, "The Ramparts We Watch."

In addition to the film shooting in the local vicinity, much material for the film has been gathered during the past year by production units in the Caribbean, Panama, Hawaii, Guam, and along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

HARTFORD

THE stock company at the Jacques, Waterbury, which opened last fortnight, has already closed . . . Manager Bill Flanaghan's Lyric was repainted inside . . . With the baseball season almost here, reports have it several theatres about town are planning baseball teams . . . Manager Lou Cohen, Loew's-Poli, Springfield, was in Hartford last Friday . . . Paul Whiteman's orchestra played without its leader, who was ill, during its appearance on the boards at the State. Radio Singer Connie Boswell took over the spot.

Manager Bernard M. Levy, Proven Pictures, was in Boston last Monday . . . The new stage drapes at the E. M. Loew's look nice . . . Regards are in order for Rockie Matarese, stage manager at the State, and Rubin Lewis of the Loew's Poli Palace stage staff. Both had birthdays on April 5 . . . Riverside Amusement Park in Springfield has reopened . . . Manager Jack A. Simons, Loew's Poli, sent out Louie Konior, usher, in quest of some Rebeccas on Hartford's main stem on the opening day of "Rebecca." To all women whom he found with first names of Rebecca, he gave away free passes to see the show . . . Meyer Aaron is a new part-time usher at the Loew's Poli Palace . . . Manager George E. Landers, E. M. Loew's, was in Boston last Tuesday.

Bert MacKenzie of the Loew's Poli Boston office was in Hartford the other day searching for a youngster to play "Jody" in M-G-M's forthcoming production of "The Yearling" . . . Sam Harris, one of the owners of the State, is now comfortably settled in his new home . . . Ed Sullivan, the second Hollywood columnist to hit Hartford in six months, appeared on the boards of the State with a troupe including a half dozen filmsters . . . Sidney Meister and Elihu Brocks are new ushers at Loew's Poli . . . E. M. Loew's is forming a baseball team composed of house employes. Oscar Cappuccio, according to present plans, will be captain. Any theatre in metropolitan Hartford with a baseball team is invited to phone Hartford 5-6789 and arrange for games . . . Eddie Cantor was in town for a day, doing a p. a. at the State . . . State's publicist, Rudy Frank, was in New York the other day.

Jimmy Randazzio, E. M. Loew's usher, is ill . . . Bill Marsh, former usher at Loew's Poli, is now working in the accounting department of Hamilton Aircraft . . . Elsie Knox (nee Elsie Kornbrath of Hartford) appears in "Free, Blonde and 21," in support of Lynn Bari. Localites are hoping that the former Hartford High School student makes as big a name in the motion picture industry as those other Nutmeg Staters—Katharine Hepburn of Hartford, Rosalind Russell of Waterbury, and Arline Judge of Bridgeport . . . Lou Cohen is expected back in a few days from Springfield, after having filled in for George Freeman, manager of the Loew's Poli in that Bay State City, who was ill at the Mount Sinai Hospital, New York.

Oscar Cappuccio, member of the maintenance staff at E. M. Loew's, reports his son, Joseph, is quite a jitterbug . . . Mrs. Agnes Tucker, Loew's Poli matron, is back on the job after an illness that kept her in bed for some time . . . Manager Bill Flanaghan of the Lyric reports the theatre's marquee and boxoffice have been painted . . . Manager Walter B. Lloyd, M&P's Allyn, reports "Typhoon" is due at that theatre soon.

Observes Mrs. M. Oakley Christoph on the customs and habits of a few metropolitan Hartford theatremen: "Did you know that:—Ted Martin and Sam Harris of the State Theatre are professional men who gave up medicine for the theatre?—And aren't sorry . . . That Frank Morin of the Regal Theatre has been in the business 15 years . . . So has Hugh Campbell of the Central, but to get his years of service, you've got to add seven . . . That George Landers is a yachting enthusiast? . . . That Walter Lloyd lets nothing get him down—maybe that's because Marj, his wife, is also that way . . . That Dave Sugarman of the Colonial goes off the deep end about his son if he can tie you down to listen?—" . . . Reviewing films for the Newsdaily, Hartford's new tabloid, is Miss Arline B. Boucher, former member of the motion picture department at the Hartord Times . . . WB's district manager, Henry Needles, was ill.

BRIDGEPORT

C. C. BARRETT, Warner district manager, is back at his home in Norwalk after a long siege of pneumonia.

"Rebecca" moved from the Loew-Poli to the Majestic for a second week, marking the first time in years the Majestic has dropped a picture to handle a Loew-Poli holdover.

William Elder stopped off here to say a few goodbyes on his way to his new post as manager for Loew's in Harrisburg.

On or off the sick list: Rose Bartelini, Warner cashier, convalescing from appendicitis operation . . . Lillian Yanott, American cashier, and "Sandy" Miller, Strand cashier, both back on deck after colds . . . Lawrence DeMott, stage manager of Stamford at Stamford, recovering from auto accident injuries.

Mrs. Lucy Flack of the Capitol, Milford, will play a benefit for the Women's Auxiliary of St. Peter's Church in May.

Samuel Haddleman of the Capitol will visit Washington in May . . . Ronald Smith is set to fly to Hollywood . . . Robert Schwartz of the Playhouse, Thomaston, expects to look over Montreal.

Manager Michael Carroll of the American spends his spare time sudying catalogues and planting hints in preparation for that rose garden he is planning for his new home.

The Strand Amusement bowling team is nearly ready to call it a season and sit down to its annual bowling. At present, Dominick Dellarrocco, manager of the Strand, is leading his teammates with a total pinfall of 7,808 for 72 games rolled.

Mickey Lucas has resigned as usher at the Hippodrome and has been succeeded by Frank Knap . . . Mrs. Reene Marvin is substituting in the Warner boxoffice . . . Lee Ains has resigned as doorman at the Loew-Poli . . . Joseph Staneoko has resigned as doorman at the American to study welding and has been succeeded by his twin brother, Leo . . . Still another Staneoko brother, Frank, has joined the American staff as substitute usher . . . Lois Wilson, Avon, Stamford, cashier, is a year older, but she keeps the total a secret . . . Tony Tragonesse has succeeded Roy Platt as usher at the American.

The Drive-In Theatre, Milford, apparently is all through, a court order to vacate having been issued.

Segal's Contract Breach Action Is Dismissed

BOSTON—The breach of contract suit brought by Harry Segal, former Massachusetts general sales manager for Standard Pictures Distributing Corp., was "dismissed without prejudice" last week by a New York superior court. Defendants in the $32,400 action, based on an alleged three-year contract, were Standard Pictures Distributing Corp. and George Leganes. Justice S. H. Hoffstader based his action on the grounds that the bill of complaint did not state "a cause of action."

Personnel Shifts Made In Goldstein Circuit

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Personnel changes in the local Goldstein Bros. circuit follow: William Powell, former manager of the Paramount and more recently in charge of the Victory in Holyoke, has resigned; George Labbe, formerly manager of the Calvin, Northampton, has returned to the Victory, Holyoke; Gerald Germaine, who was assisting Manager Edward Smith at the Paramount, has been assigned to the Northampton Calvin.

Move to Foreclose

BOSTON

Censor's Bulletin Lists Thirty-Two Uncut Films

BOSTON — Thirty-two motion pictures were passed last week without a cut, except for one deletion in a Universal newsreel, per the bureau of Sunday censorship's official weekly bulletin of approved films. Among the okayed motion pictures were Paramount's "Typhoon," M-G-M's "And One was Beautiful," and 20th-Fox's "The Seven Seas."

Twenty-four vaudeville acts were issued Sunday licenses. Helene Denizon's routine was disapproved for Sunday showings, while five other acts, including Hermine's Midgets, were given Sunday permits following mandatory modifications.

Burlesque Yields

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Burlesque has folded at the Lyric and Al Smith has taken over the theatre for a season of road attractions. The show, in a pre-Broadway showing of "Blackbirds of 1940," did good business. Shows will play week stands at the house.

As Dallas Set Stage For the Convention

Martha Berry, Humanitarian

DALLAS—Martha Berry, founder and director of the Berry Schools at Mount Berry, Ga., is the recipient of the second annual Humanitarian Award given by the Variety Clubs of America, a citation for the "most outstanding achievements for human welfare within the year 1939." The first of these awards was given last year to Father Flanagan of Boys Town, Neb.

The Berry Schools, with an enrollment of 1,200 and a waiting list of 5,000, were established 38 years ago when Miss Berry opened a school for poor boys and girls of the southern mountain regions. Now there are 125 buildings on a campus of 25,000 acres, the world's largest.

Miss Berry, now over 70 years old, still is active in the work. She has won the support of many prominent philantrophists.

Other nominations for the award included former President Herbert Hoover, Secretary of State Cordell Hull; J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation; United States Senator James J. Davis (Republican, Pennsylvania); Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special ambassador to the Vatican; Edward (Spike) Howard of Philadelphia, who gave his blood for infantile paralysis victims; Homer Folks, chairman of the White House Conference on Child Welfare, and A. A. D. Rahn, former imperial potentate, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Davel, New York; Patrick Garyn (former member of Tent No. 1), Texas Film Co., Dallas.

Wins Convention Trip

DALLAS—As a reward for his brand of service, Mike Manus, Minneapolis club steward, was treated to a trip to the Variety convention and accompanied the Twin City delegation.

DALLAS

THERE wasn't a handfull of out-of-town exhibitors on the Row early in the week, and the betters gave odds they were holding out for the Variety convention. Cowboys, however, have been showing up on the Row for the past several days. Jack Underwood wore everything but his chaps. Ben Ferguson, who did some cowpunching in earlier days, was typical in a broken-in pair of boots and natural posture of the range. John Franconi and Dutch Cammer got used to their new outfits. Bill Underwood bought the last pair of cow pants in town. Claude Ezell exhibited a pair of elegant spurs he had made in Mexico which were to be presented to the chief barker, John Harris.

J. Don Alexander, president of Alexander Film Co., Colorado Springs, Colo., stopped in over the weekend for a visit with J. A. McInanay, district manager.

Pete Barnes, the Foto-Nite man, paid his Dallas office a brief visit after some days in the Texas territory getting the plan working in a number of theatres, particularly those of Jefferson Amusement Co. where he announced closing of deals recently.

Col. H. A. Cole was complaining he may have to buy a commuter's ticket to Washington. He anticipates another early call to the capital because of the Neely "divorcement" bill.

Harry E. Fulgham, former exchange and circuit booker and now owner of the Ideal in Fort Worth, was over for a day making contacts. Reports still have it that Harry is getting up a suit which will involve his product situation at the time he operated the Joy.

Rubin Frels of Victoria who made history before the NRA grievance board and in the courts, was here Tuesday. His latest effort was legal action against the Griffith, Long and Jefferson interests in state court last year over the Victoria situation. He said he doesn't know what the status of the case is at the present time.

The father of Raymond Willie, assistant to R. J. O'Donnell over at Interstate, died last week in Fort Worth, and funeral services were held there.

Sam Archibald of the Varsity, Fort Worth, was around the Row renewing acquaintances.

No "Soup and Fish" Must for Banquet

Dallas—R. J. O'Donnell, chief barker of Variety here, makes the following announcement in connection with dress for the convention banquet to be held at 8 o'clock, April 20, in the Crystal Ballroom of the Baker Hotel:

"We are anxious for all our friends who might wish to attend the big banquet which, generally speaking, is formal, to know that they are welcome to attend in any type dress."

55 Atlanta Barkers to Variety Convention

ATLANTA—The local delegation, representing Tent No. 21, is headed by Wm. K. Jenkins, chief barker. Other officers of the Atlanta Variety Club to make the trip are Harry G. Ballance, first assistant chief barker; Charles E. Kessnich, second assistant chief barker; R. B. Wilby, dough guy, and E. E. Whitaker, property master.

Directors John Ezell, W. A. Finney, Harold Wilkes, R. L. McCoy, Walter Anderson and Paul Wilson also will be a part of the five-car caravan from Atlanta. Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Baseball Corp., joined the Atlanta party in Chattanooga, where the Crackers were playing.

Representing the local theatrical employes and musicians are William M. Kemp, business manager of the stagehands; Herman Steinichen, business agent for the musicians, and Jake Pries, operators' executive.

The party left Atlanta at 6:10 p. m. Tuesday in three special cars, a lounge car and special diner from Memphis to Dallas.

Band Leader Is Victor In Golf Tournament

By LESTER KETNER

SAN ANTONIO—It took a band leader to win the San Antonio theatrical golf tournament at Brackenridge Park.

The lucky man was Mack Rogers, whose 60 was okay to cop the theatremen's annual tourney by four strokes. Jake Elder, superintendent of Interstate theatres' maintenance, came in for second place. James Chasey and Malcolm Bailey, the latter assistant manager and treasurer at the Empire, tied up for third place with net 65s.

Ninety-five players took part on the links which was climaxed by a dinner dance held at the Gunter Hotel. Ernest Hauser's orchestra played. Bob O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of Interstate, made the awards and everyone seemed pleased and enjoyed themselves.

Seven of the 75 prizes won by the golfers are as follows: First, Mack Rogers, $150 radio and S. A. Golf Ass'n trophy; second, Jake Elder, cocktail shaker and trophy; third, Malcolm Bailey, portable radio and trophy; fourth, Jimmy Chasey, golf club and cup; fifth, Frank Weatherford, dozen Hol-Hi Balls and trophy; sixth, Homer Newman, No. 8 iron and trophy, and seventh, Fred Naumann, putter and trophy.

It was reported that $850 was realized from the tourney to aid the crippled children at the Freeman Memorial Clinic at Dallas, sponsored by the Variety Club.

City Manager Eddie Collins was chairman of the tournament, with LeeRoy Handley, chairman of the handicap committee.

Usher Lee Chittwood of the Majestic drew laughs from the spectators for his antics and funny cut-ups on the greens.

Dancing to Ernie Hauser's Majestic orchestra at the Gunter were: Ann Kuykendall, Adkins Lenoir, Joe McDonald, Caroline Garza, Eddie Breamer, Mary Jane Cornelison, Bob May, Helen Jones, Charley Root, and a host of others.

Over 300 attended the banquet held in the downtown hotel.

Cuff Notes From the Links

Playing with Roland Gordon, Arthur Zucht, local dentist, scored a hole in one on No. 18 hole. He borrowed a six-iron, as he broke his own earlier in the day, and used it for the 175-yard shot. The ace in the hole gave Art a gross 77 for the round . . . Walter Grubb, Aztec usher-photographer, was on the scene with his new camera snapping pictures here and there (which appear in this issue) . . . "Buddy" Welker turned in a 72 while Johnny Floore hovered around the 100's . . . Out-of-towners spied on the greens were Carl Garner, Louis Novy, Jack Chalman, Burt King, Frank Starz, Frank Weatherford, Bill O'Donnell, Raymond Willie and others.

Claimants Appear

CROWLEY, LA.—The Opera House here has been closed owing to litigation as to who really owns the theatre. When Dave Lyons, the owner, was alive it was believed that he had no heirs, but since his death a score of relatives have turned up. The validity of their claims will be decided by the court.

"Silver Dollar Night"

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.—It's "Silver Dollar Night" on Fridays at the Capitol here. One dollar is given for correct answers to each of a series of questions. Patrons to be questioned are selected by seat number, which is determined by the spin of a wheel. Mrs. Edith Hardin is manager of the Capitol.

Money Problem for Louisiana Solons

NEW ORLEANS—The newly-elected state legislature, when it convenes in Baton Rouge in May, will be confronted with the double problem of overcoming a debt of $16,000,000 and of devising ways of bringing in sufficient money to sustain the state treasury on a sound basis.

Word trickling in is that a determined effort already is under way to defeat the constitutional amendment proposed to abolish the sales tax which has been a mainstay of the treasury for several years.

At the last session of the legislature, a bill was introduced to place theatre circuits in the same category with chain stores. Never reported out of committee, it would impose a graduated tax on theatre circuits according to the number of units involved.

Another measure affecting the trade introduced during the last session was one to tax all theatre admissions one cent. New Orleans theatremen now pay a one-cent admission tax for public welfare.

Whether this session will (several in the past have tried) effect legislation compelling the examination of projectionists by a state board, remains to be seen.

It is also reported the convening legislators may act on the censorship board inspired by the late Huey P. Long during the tenure of office of Gov. O. K. Allen. Since Allen failed to grant commissions, the board has remained inactive, but should the act creating it be enforced as constituted, it would cost film exchanges a pretty penny for inspection requirement.—J. Week of "Best" Revivals At the Capitol, Austin

AUSTIN—Local film fans will be given their last chance to glimpse "the seven best pictures of 1939" during the Capitol's week of one-day revivals, April 21-27. The list of pictures was taken from a poll conducted by the Austin American.

Skipper Bill Hellums arranged the week of revivals. He will make the event an annual affair if the response justifies it.

Pictures to be shown are "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," Sunday; "Dack Victory," Monday; "Pygmalion," Tuesday; "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," Wednesday; "Juarez," Thursday; "The Women," Friday; and "The Wizard of Oz," Saturday.

Plugs "Pinocchio"

AUSTIN—Manager Mose Macow of the State socked across some free radio publicity on "Pinocchio" by having J. Mabel Clark, popular KNOW woman columnist, interview Peggy Meade, aged 7, and Ruth Lewis, Austin American-Statesman amusement editor, on the Disney picture during its run here.

Texas Attorney General Finds No Basis for Trust Action

AUSTIN

LOCAL theatre executives who were to attend the national Variety convention in Dallas include Louis Novy, city Interstate manager; Bill Hellums, Capitol; Jesse Melinger, Varsity; Charlie Root, Queen; and Mose Macow, State.

Saturday's midnight preview at the Paramount, "Young Tom Edison," played to a neat gross . . . A special children's morning showing of "Pinocchio" was held at the State Saturday at 9 a. m.

Skipper Gerald Raines of the Texas, which is located across the street from the University of Texas, brought back "Man's Castle" (Columbia) to packed houses Sunday and Monday.

Alonzo Jamison is the new associate amusement editor of The Daily Texan . . . Austin's three or four-day cold snap really stimulated theatre attendance, according to unofficial reports.

Seen at the Paramount's Edward Everett Horton stage show, "Springtime for Henry," Thursday night: Louis Novy, Harold Eichenbaum, Dick Waite, Jesse Melinger, Bill Hellums, Charlie Root, Helen Evans, Bobbye Meredith, Dorothy Warren, Alonzo Jamison and Jane Gracy.

Colored Exhibitor Dies

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—W. H. Leonard, 55, local Negro druggist and owner of the Royal Theatre for colored, is dead here.

DALLAS—Gerald Mann, Texas attorney general who has been investigating records and files of theatre circuits and film exchanges operating in the state, has informed distributor and circuit officials his findings thus far do not warrant any action on anti-trust grounds.

He added, however, this does not necessarily preclude action in the future should a situation develop warranting it.

Mann was to arrive here Saturday as a special guest at the Variety convention.

J. G. Long Circuit Takes The Studio in Ingleside

DALLAS—Distributors received information this week that the J. G. Long circuit has taken over the Studio at Ingleside, operated since it was built about two years ago by Forrest Newberry.

Long, during the past three years, has made rapid strides in increasing the number of theatres under his wing. Ingleside is only six miles from Aransas Pass where Hall Industries has two theatres.

Cole and Threet in Trip To Two Towns in Texas

DALLAS—Col. H. A. Cole and Lee Threet made a joint trip Monday to Overton and College Station. It was intimated an important trade development might originate in Overton at an early date. At College Station, Cole got a first-hand picture of what is going on in the controversy of the student body over their demands that pictures become available on an equal basis with theatres at Bryan.

Highlights Along Harwood

By A. JULES BENEDIC

DALLAS—Thoughts while rambling over Harwoodstrasse . . . There is weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth since Willard Young, private taxi driver, announced a raise in rates effective May 1. Hardest hit will be J. R. (Soda) Reynolds and Leslie Wilkes . . . Gid Howell, once a denizen of deeper Jackson, paid Filmrow one of his rare visits this week. Gid now is a bigwhig in the restaurant business, but has brought no sample meal tickets down on the Row.

A rousing cheer, entirely foreign from the Brooklynesque variety, greeted Charlie Hefley, former Dallas exhib, when he arrived here from California. He's here on some legal business . . . There are two swanky restaurants (adv't.) on the Row proper, and Shoemaker's Barbecue. Some real deals (on paper) are pulled in the latter popular joint, especially by Jerry Stogsdall, Messrs. Reynolds, Diaz Callahan, et al. Not to forget L. C. (Monty) Montgomery, the shirting expert.

Colonel Cole is due at this writing to return from Washington to which point he planed on the government suit matter. The Colonel now rides the ether with all the aplomb of Jack Warner 'phoning the coast from New York . . . Unseen in a long time is Lou Baxley, erstwhile Dallasite now in the throes of opening a new show at Houston.

Just heard from Jamie Preddy, long at The Texas in Austin, who is Interstating now at the Lakewood in Dallas . . . Winter suits placed in moth balls have been resurrected with a return of chill winds . . . Back to Willard Young: This veteran roadshowman, with at least two big hits to his credit, and who has been laying low for these many months, is about to spring out with a new picture that ought to make even the hardboiled chain bookers drool. Details later . . . Over in Fort Worth sex pictures are getting a big play. One has been running for 18 days steadily; two others are embarking on what look to be long runs.

Like a breath of spring, that grandest Roman of them all, Uncle Joe Luckett, contact man for Interstate, breezes along Harwood . . . Who does the hiring at National Screen? If it's Paul Short, it must be the Hollywood influence. There are at least four breath-taking beauties there. One, a blonde, would cause forks to drop in the M-G-M commissary at high noon . . . Roy Thrash, now Texliting, sells bright signs, but no brighter than that well-known Thrashian smile with which he illuminates the Row on occasions . . . M. S. White getting congrats on all sides over his newest Fort Worth suburban.

The whole town has gone Variety. Picture deals are forgotten in the rush to see that the big boys got proper hotel reservations. At this writing it looks like the biggest crowd of many years . . . Raymond F. Smith, well known to the Texas trade, now is architecting on his own hook, with new offices at 607 Melba Theatre Building . . . Joe Philips of Fort Worth, many years an exhibitor there, lately running a restaurant, has forsaken both interests in favor of a state job.

Florine, the young lady who completely captivated Filmrow during her cashiership at Pete the Sap's, now is cigar girl at the Adolphus . . . Prosperity must be returning. One of "the boys," who formerly had to scrap around for one of Shoemaker's specials, nonchalantly changed a dollar the other day . . . Al Henderson of BOXOFFICE is swinging through Central Texas and doing a good job with the few "hold-outs" . . . Metro's boys gathered in L. Bickel's office for a confab this week . . . Hearts and poker swinging back into favor, after a long run of effete bridge foursomes.

Burt King of RCA has bought a shirt. Its rainbow hues ought to make him stick out like a sore thumb at the Variety confab, which he is attending in West Texas garb . . . Proudest papa on Filmrow is Ed Blumenthal, Monogram mogul, whose son, Edwin jr., will carry a portfolio in South Texas for his dad, starting soon after Monogram's Dallas convention.

Texas University Gets Three New Pictures

AUSTIN—The visual instruction bureau of the University of Texas has received three new films, the major one issued by the General Motors Corp. to illustrate the evolution of the wheel and the possibilities of it in the future.

The other two deal with the testing of new army bombing planes, and how fires may be prevented through electrical safety.

He has his dough on Bimelich.

Steve Manderson has been added to the personnel of the Paramount . . . Tom Branon, Affiliated Producers, is back from New York . . . Johnnie Cummins, office manager and booker at Monogram Southern, spent the weekend in Birmingham . . . G. S. Owen, whose Royal in Opp, Ala., was destroyed by fire some time ago, has reopened after a $30,000 rebuilding program . . . John Mangham, president of Monogram Southern, reports he had a "marvelous time" on Ed Sparks' annual fishing trip.

Larry Waters of National Screen Service, who was transferred to Charlotte, was in town for a short visit . . . U. E. Criek, with Metro in Memphis, a visitor for several days . . . On the sick list was Miss Kate Land of Columbia . . . Filmrow visitors: S. C. Ware, Royce Theatre, Roysston, Ga.; W. B. "Bill" Collins; H. J. Woodward, Strand, Winder, Ga.; Grover Wise, West End, Birmingham; Paul Engler, Famous, Birmingham; Frank Merritt, Birmingham, and Harold Laird, Lam Amusement Co., Rome, Ga.

J. W. Martin, manager of the Hangar Theatre, Hapeville, Ga., says, "You can't keep a good man down." And to prove it, he had his tonsils removed on Saturday morning, and was down on the Row early Monday picking up film . . . R. M. Goldsmith of National Theatre Supply is traveling southern Alabama . . . Aubrey Nesbit, manager of the Park, College Park, and Bill Yarbrough, manager of the Fulton, Hapeville, were on the Row swathed in bandages and adhesive tape. They were in an automobile accident over the weekend . . . Jack Barrett of Accessory Consolidated Service is on a business trip in Florida. He may sneak in a little fishing on the side, he said on leaving.

Walter Brackin came in from Ozark, Ala. . . . Arthur C. Bromberg of Republic Pictures Corp. has returned from New York. He may fly to Hot Springs for a few weeks vacation . . . Johnnie Lawrence of the Rex, Nashville, was in town . . . S. G. McDaniel, Malone, Fla., was in town buying new equipment to replace that destroyed by fire last week . . . Bobby Hanes, shipping clerk at Republic, was thrown from his motorcycle. He suffered a bruised leg . . . Oscar Morgan of the Paramount home office spent several days here.

T. K. Jones, Ritz, Dadeville, Ala., bought a new camera while visiting here . . . George Jones of Republic has a severe case of flu. He hopes to return to work soon, however . . . Mary Brockett, with Crescent in Nashville, was in getting her bookings set . . . The Strand, Uniontown, Ala., destroyed by fire some time ago, will resume operation April 21. New name will be the Neely . . . J. S. Tankersley jr. of Ellijay, Ga., was in the hospital several days with a "strep" throat.

City Park officially opened May 12, with all the fixings of what might be expected. Free motion pictures will be one of the features.

Early May Opening for Sudekum's Belle Meade

NASHVILLE—The new Belle Meade which Tony Sudekum, president of Crescent Amusement Co., is building "in his own front yard," is scheduled to open early in May. Completion of the ornate front tower is said to be holding up the opening.

There are ten storerooms included in the building, which is a small town in itself. Report is the new theatre's program fare will include vaudeville. The Princess, also owned by Crescent, is the only theatre here now using flesh.

Entertain Horton

AUSTIN—Edward Everett Horton, here for a one-nighter on the Paramount stage, was entertained at a buffet supper in his honor at the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house. The star of "Springtime for Henry" is himself a member of the fraternity.

Dixie Doin's

By "AL" HENDERSON

WELL here it is, folks, but there isn't much of it since my ramblings were confined to Mississippi this week.

Had the pleasure of meeting Mike Jacobs' son, Marvin, at the Delta, Clarksdale. M. S. Greenblock, managing the Paramount there, is strutting a new green Olds.

Wheatly & Howe, owners of the Strand, an independent house at Hot Springs, have added new cooling equipment.

Doris Thorne, formerly with Frank Glick at Forest, has joined Saenger at Jackson.

Had a short but pleasant visit with Joe Applebaum and the Mrs. at Hollandale. They are very proud of their new Buick.

Dropped by to see Frank Mutz, who manages the Dixie at Yazoo City for Dixie Theatres. They are redecorating the front of the house. Their Yazoo is being completely remodeled and redecorated. It is managed by Miss Clara Schmidt.

Loris Stanton, who manages Malco's Winona at Winona, is redecorating the lobby and front of his house.

Seen about: Frank Marchand of the Paramount at Jackson, and Francis Gatlin of Jackson.

Indecent Exposure Charge Fails in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO—Interstate City Manager Eddie E. Collins, Count Berni Vici, manager of the recent "Stars Over Broadway" stage-show at the Majestic, and five members of the cast were found not guilty on charges of indecent exposure filed in corporation court here by Rev. Neal Ellis, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church.

Short Time Losses

DALLAS—A record for luck at recovering lost money has been maintained by Mrs. J. V. Carter jr., who operates the Majestic at Comanche. A few days ago a WPA worker returned a purse containing $40 to Mrs. Carter who advertised her loss in the paper. Last year a sum of $130, lost in Ft. Worth, also was recovered.

Seek Revival of FTP

NEW ORLEANS—A revival of the local Federal Theatre Project is being sought by a committee composed of members of the now defunct group. Mayor Maestri has been approached for support.

New Sound for Three

DALLAS—New RCA sound has been ordered for the Florida, Tampa; Earle, Mt. Airy, N. C.; and the Port, Port Arthur, Tex.

Installing New Marquee

PICAYUNE, MISS.—Pick Moseley is installing a new Neon marquee on his Ritz here.

Tells Harm Split-Up Works in Memphis

NEW YORK—On the basis of a 52-picture schedule, 20th Century-Fox's first run product in Memphis is split 26 pictures each between Loew's State and M. A. Lightman's Malco and Strand, William J. Kupper, the distributor's western division manager, testified in pre-trial examination before assistant attorney general John L. Wright in the government's all-industry suit.

This arrangement has been in effect for about five years, the witness declared. It provides for each group of 13 pictures to be alternately submitted to both accounts, with Lightman personally choosing his units' requirements and Joseph R. Vogel. head of Loew's out-of-town theatres, doing the same for the State.

In respect to the distributor's first run deal with Wilby-Kincey in Charlotte, which he said has been in effect for about eight years, Kupper declared, in answer to a direct question, that "no Paramount representative sat in on the deals and I never discussed the deals with a Paramount representative." Mike Kincey negotiated all contracts with Harry Ballance, 20th Century-Fox district manager, he added.

Lucas & Jenkins has first run in Atlanta, Kupper stated. Although Ballance negotiated the deal with William K. Jenkins, Kupper analyzed the terms and then submitted them for acceptance to the late John D. Clark, then 20th Century-Fox sales manager. This was about seven years ago.

The distributor's first run account in New Orleans is Saenger, Kupper said. This has been the setup for the past seven years. He declared at no time has a Paramount representative sat in on deals.

Kupper had the same reply when Wright asked if a Paramount representative had ever sat in on first-run deals with Interstate in Dallas, where the distributor has sold first run to the circuit for about 15 years. Bob O'Donnell of the circuit, Ballance and Herman Biersdorf, Dallas manager, negotiate most deals, although Kupper said he sat in up to three years ago.

Sapulpa Robbery

SAPULPA, OKLA.—A gunman escaped with about $1,000 in the holdup of the Criterion, according to A. A. "Speedy" Moulder, owner-manager.

SANTONE

FROM Crockett, Texas comes news that the Auditorium Theatre, an 800-seat house, was gutted by fire on April 8 . . . Phil Alexander, actor-scriptwriter, is planning that trip to 'Frisco, May 1 . . . Lloyd Allsup, Aztec doorman, who has been on the sick list, is back on duty.

Helen Jepson, screen, radio and stage star, will be guest artist at the Queen's Coronation in the Municipal Auditorium, April 25 . . . The new theatre reporter on KABC is Frank Holloway who hails from Clovis, New Mexico. He succeeds Jerry Fisher who has taken a post with KCMC, Texarkana, Tex.

Tee to Green: Arthur Kumpf, assistant chief of service at the Empire, made a hole-in-one here the other day on the Riverside golf course. Nice going, Artie.

William D. McCabe, formerly connected with motion picture production in Hollywood, has just opened the United Co. Advertising in the Milam Building here. Other members of the staff include Yancey L. Russell and Miss Frances Browne, continuity writers.

Travelers: Jose Calderon, Azteca Films, has returned to Mexico City after a sojourn in the Alamo City . . . Tommy Donahue, employe of the Paramount exchange, Dallas, was in town recently attending a wedding . . . Tureman Hendrix, 20th-Fox salesman, Santone, is back after taking in the New York annual sales confab . . . "Chick" Collins trained out the other day for a visit to Hollywood . . . Beulah Greene, State cashier, spent a portion of her vacation last week in Dallas.

"Rebecca" Is Held Over Three Days in Austin

AUSTIN—Originally booked for four days at the State, "Rebecca" did so well at the boxoffice that it was held over for three more days.

Charles Amos Manager

NASHVILLE—Charles Amos is manager of the Paramount here, and his assistant is Ben Garrett. J. R. Harper, erroneously listed as manager in a recent issue of BOXOFFICE, is a member of the theatre's personnel.

New War Measures Will Affect Film Industry

OTTAWA — Formal announcement has been made that the new Canadian Parliament will open its first session Thursday, May 16, when further war measures will be dealt with. These are expected to include new taxation proposals which will directly and indirectly affect the motion picture industry, but the details are being kept a closely guarded secret until they are unfolded on the floor of the House of Commons when they may go into effect automatically.

It is believed some of the measures will bring an upward revision of customs duties on imports, higher postal rates and special direct levies on business including theatre receipts. It will all be a part of the war and little can be done about it except to smooth out possible oppressive points that may not have been taken into account by the politicians.

It is a known fact large companies in the trade in Canada have taken the precaution in their current budgets to establish a reserve fund for taxation contingencies in the belief that new tax laws will be invoked.

Ottawa Fair Is Abandoned For Duration of the War

OTTAWA — Formal announcement has been made by the Central Canada Exhibition Ass'n of the abandonment of the annual Ottawa Fair, one of the largest fall fairs in the Dominion, for the duration of the war, although plans had been made for the holding of the 1940 Fair during the week of August 19 and arrangements made for a number of special attractions.

The cancellation of the exhibition, primarily due to the requirement of the permanent buildings for military purposes, will result in the dropping of a community week in which many outside people visited the Canadian capital with patronage at local theatres as part of their schedule. Special screen features for Exhibition Week had been booked by managers, although there had been a decline in extra patronage for the theatres in recent peace years. If and when the fair is revived, it is expected that new grounds will be secured outside the city limits for an entirely new start.

Adults Posing as Parents Aid Curfew Violations

LONDON, ONT.—Belief that adults attending late shows pose as guardians or parents of children in order to assist the children to get into theatres, was expressed at nearby St. Thomas by theatre managers.

Called into a conference with Rev. A. H. Hone and O. L. Austin, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, the theatre managers of the city said they are doing their best to discourage children from attending late shows.

As a result of the conference, more determined efforts are to be made in St. Thomas to keep children off the streets at night. The children's protection act prohibits them from loitering in public places after 9 p. m. unless accompanied by parents or guardians.

Quebec Wage Law Is Upheld by Court

MONTREAL—A motion picture operator's wages formed the subject of a test case decided by Judge Joseph Archambault in superior court here when the validity, legality and constitutionality of Article 61, Ordinance No. 4 of the Province of Quebec fair wage board were upheld.

Article 61 has been the subject of argument and contestation for some time, and the judgment establishes that the fair wage board, in enacting the article, did not go beyond the powers bestowed upon it by the legislature. The article came into force as of January 1, 1938, and was to the effect that salaries existing at that time might not be reduced because of rates set in any ordinance.

The case was that of Evanhoe Ruel, a motion picture machine operator, against the Standard Amusement Co., which owns and operates the Park on Church Ave., Verdun. The attorney general intervened because of the attack on the constitutionality of the ordinance invoked by the defendant. Ruel was said to have been getting $25 a week, and this allegedly was reduced to $19 a week in May, 1938, some months after Article 61 of the ordinance came into existence. Ruel admitted he had signed a document accepting such a reduction, but had done so "because of fear of losing my position."

The defendant company said conditions had been very bad, and in order to continue in business the manager had asked his employes to accept wage cuts, and they had agreed. He then challenged the constitutionality of the article. Award of $153 was granted, being the difference in the $19 received, and $25 for a six-month period for which he could sue.

Rotshtein Installs Sound

SELKIRK, MAN.—Nathan Rotshtein of the theatre enterprises bearing his name, has had the J. M. Rice Co. of Winnipeg install new sound in the Roxy here.

: Still Farther North :

DAWSON, YUKON—P. J. Allen, manager of the Orpheum here, writes to BOXOFFICE as follows:

"Some time ago you had an item about 'Farthest North Theatre Closes Down.' I intended writing at that time, but decided to check my story first and this is what I found: The theatre referred to was situated on the Yellowknife in N. W. T. and the entire length of the Yellowknife is south of Dawson, so our claim to be the northernmost theatre in the British Empire is still unchallenged.

"On the other hand, Fairbanks, Alaska, has two theatres, one just opened, and Fairbanks is about 30 miles north of us and then I understand there is a summer location somewhere on the lower Yukon, which would be still farther north, but even the latter place would still have to add '—on American continent.' "

Canada Looms Bigger As a Film Market

TORONTO—With the spread of the war in Europe in the invasion of Denmark and Norway by Germany, the prospect of active trouble elsewhere and increasing transportation and communication difficulties for more neutral countries in that continent, Canada has assumed relatively greater importance as a market for both Hollywood and British productions. At the same time, the belief is held in Toronto film trade circles that producers of features and shorts will be even more inclined to make pictures having increased appeal for the North American viewpoint which, of course, includes Canada.

Almost unknowingly there has been a general acceptance of the current themes of Hollywood features on the part of the Canadian public. In other words there has been an entire absence of anything in the nature of anti-British sentiment in U. S. productions and, insofar as feature-length productions are concerned, the censor boards in the Dominion have had little to worry them in what might be termed objectionable propaganda. Pictures having an English setting, such as "Rebecca," are proving highly popular in Canada with holdovers being registered, while English films, that are produced in English studios, are attracting more than usual interest because of ties with the Mother Country during the stress of war. A number of the British pictures are having extended runs.

It is believed locally that Hollywood is more appreciative of the British Empire outlets, including Canada, because of the shutting off of European Continental countries and that pictures geared to consumption in the Anglo-American as well as Latin American field will find increasing favor in this Dominion. This is entirely apart for the desire for entertainment during war worry which, if the experience in the last conflict is any criterion, will result in increased theatre business. It is pointed out that when casualty lists became heavy in the last war the people of Canada turned to the theatres for relief and human nature has not changed in the last 25 years.

With respect to newsreels, war scenes reaching the Canadian public are quite tame—in fact some Canadians appear to be disappointed that actual front clips or scenes of horror are not being shown—but the official attitude is that pictures of the gruesome side of warfare would serve no practical purpose when the theatre is designed for entertainment, and that the newspapers and radio are sufficient in revealing the bloody aspects of the struggle.

New Dress for College, Toronto 1,050-Seater

TORONTO—The College, 1,050-seat unit of the Famous Players circuit in the Toronto West End under the management of M. Margolius, has blossomed out in new dress, structural improvements and luxurious seats, the house having been closed for one week for the reconstruction job. There has been no change in policy or prices.

TORONTO

THE rush to "Rebecca" at the Uptown, Toronto, ace house of the Famous Players chain, was so great that Manager Fred Trebilcock was forced to install illuminated "Quiet Please" signs in the foyer and mezzanine floor in an effort to tone down the standees waiting for the next performance. He announced the feature was being held for a third week . . . "Primrose Path," which has been held back by the Ontario censors because it was banned elsewhere, has been reserved by Manager Tom Daley for the big Imperial in downtown Toronto.

Business shaped up so well for "Broadway Melody of 1940" at Toronto Loew's that it was held over for a second week in spite of the fact that the theatre has quite a number of pictures on its waiting list because of the eight-week run of "Gone With the Wind." Manager Jules Bernstein has reported that projection equipment has been improved, including the installation of new lenses, with a better screening of color films resulting.

The Palace, Toronto, which has been under the care of Manager Querrie since the theatre opened almost 20 years ago, was packed to the ceiling for the annual theatre night of the West Danforth Businessmen's Ass'n when scores of neighborhood merchants added lucky prizes to a special program. Querrie has long been a leader in the Danforth district.

W. L. Clairmont has been appointed Dominion fire commissioner of the Canadian government in succession to the late J. Grove Smith, who, for a lengthy period, was well known among film executives in the work of fire prevention and insurance supervision and through the Dominion Fire Prevention Ass'n of which Col. John A. Cooper was an officer . . . E. H. Wells, national secretary of the Canadian Film Boards of Trade, has returned to his Toronto office after an official visit in Montreal.

In connection with the inauguration of an air-conditioning plant in the Belsize, Toronto, Manager Al Sedgwick distributed appropriate advertising accessories including book matches which announced the new smoking privilege in the theatre and also a folder describing the equipment in an envelope on which was printed: "This is as important as the air you breathe." The folder contained interesting facts and illustrations of the ventilating system.

At the annual meeting of the Yonge-Bloor Businessmen's Ass'n, which has a membership of 108 merchants and professional men of the vicinity, Manager Fred Trebilcock of the Uptown was elected a director after being identified with the organization only a few months . . . Considerable interest has been aroused locally in the announcement by Mary Pickford of plans for the production of her first picture in seven years, work to start this summer. Mary is Toronto's first real contribution to the screen, having been born here.

Intimation has been received that Maureen O'Sullivan, screen star, will visit Toronto in the near future when she will meet her husband, John Farrow, who enlisted as an officer in the Royal Canadian Navy a short time ago . . . A caller on Filmrow was Sam Fingold, proprietor of the Lauder, Mt. Forest, Ont., during a week in which there was still more snow to discourage travel from out-of-town points.

Henry Falk and Manager George Law of the new Biltmore at Oshawa, Ont., threw a nice party for the film representatives to round out the formal opening of the independent house . . . Ray Lewis has launched special exploitation for the Toronto first run at the Avenue of "Break the News" which will serve to bring Maurice Chevalier to local fans again.

William Summerville, son of W. A. Summerville, member of the Ontario legislature and owner of the Prince of Wales Theatre, is chairman in charge of arrangements for a trade parade week in the east end of Toronto commencing April 27 when district stores will put on their best front.

Tallulah Bankhead, playing in "The Little Foxes" for a week at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto, made quite a hit with her forceful comment in support of the British cause in the war, but there was some eyebrow lifting when she declared that she wasn't exactly interested in moving pictures any more although she had once been a film star. "I've never even seen Bette Davis on the screen although she has repeated some of my stage roles for the movies," she said.

Roy Tash, cameraman of Associated Screen News, has been in Toronto following the shooting of scenes at Camp Borden, training center for the Empire Air Training Scheme which is getting under way in the Dominion . . . After a stay with his parents in Toronto, J. Lieberman, president of the Maritime Film Company, has returned to St. John, N. B.

TILBURY

Many western Canada visitors here are returning with new cars.

The Canadian Drill team from Chateau, winners of the national championship, will present their drills in front of the Plaza Theatre here, after which they will be guests of Manager Harold Rankin. The Plaza, incidentally, always is host to Tilbury boys home on leave.

New Sound at Yorkton

YORKTON, SASK.—New sound equipment has been installed in the Princess here, under Nathan Rotshtein operation, by J. M. Rice & Co. of Winnipeg.

Megs Next Bob Burns

HOLLYWOOD—"Comin' Round the Mountain," next Bob Burns starrer for Paramount, will be directed by George Archainbaud for Producer William Thomas.

An O'Brien to Grants

HOLLYWOOD—"Stage to Chino," forthcoming George O'Brien western for RKO, is being scripted by Morton and Arthur Grant.

Holds Back Release of "Primrose Path" in Ont.

TORONTO—According to O. J. Silverthorne, chairman of the Ontario film censor board, the release of "Primrose Path" to theatres in this province has been held back because of a decision that it would be "inadvisable" to issue a license for the showing of the picture immediately after it had been banned by the police censor in Detroit, Mich., a move which had received wide newspaper publicity in Ontario.

It was also pointed out that the viewing of the picture by Premier M. F. Hepburn had not been done in his official capacity as chairman of the censor appeal board, but at the request of the censor board chairman with a view of getting his personal opinion regarding the classification of the feature. A short time ago Hepburn attended a private screening of "The Grapes of Wrath" and he has seen various other pictures in similar manner apart from the official examination by the censor board. It is understood that "Primrose Path" will be released under the regulation which will restrict patronage to adult audiences only.

Second Runs for "Wind" Under Way in Toronto

TORONTO — "Gone With the Wind" opened simultaneous second runs here April 20 at two neighborhood theatres of Famous Players, the Bloor and St. Clair, under special policies. The feature is being shown twice daily with seats reserved at evening performances at $1, and the matinee admission price at 75 cents. Jack Laver, one of the original employes of the Canadian circuit, is the manager of the Bloor, while G. Morrell is in charge of the St. Clair. Following these engagements, the picture will play in Famous Players units in other districts of Toronto.

Previously, "Wind" played the Capitol at Galt, Ont., and has had two runs in Ottawa at the Regent and Avalon, as well as two in Montreal at Loew's and His Majesty's. The Canadian premiere took place at Toronto Loew's where it played eight weeks, closing March 22. In western Canada and the Maritimes, the picture has played a considerable number of first-run situations and is starting its second swing around the big chain.

Merchants Cooperate on Regent's 25th Birthday

OTTAWA—The Regent made a gala occasion of its 25th anniversary with special advertising and additional trimmings in a tieup with 15 local merchants and business firms, details of which were organized by Manager Angelo Stevens.

The screen program for the occasion included "I Take This Woman" and "Honeymoon Deferred" while announcement was made that coming attractions included "The Grapes of Wrath," "Dr. Cyclops" and "Vigil in the Night."

A feature of the anniversary was the publication of full pages in the newspapers containing congratulatory advertisements of commercial enterprises. The theatre is a Famous Players unit.

United Amusement to Play British Films

MONTREAL—British films will be boomed in Montreal under a new policy adopted by United Amusement Corp.

The directors of the corporation, believing that, apart from outstanding hits, there are many British films well worth seeing, have decided to present them for runs of a week or more at the air-conditioned Snowdon Theatre, which is under the management of Larry Stephens.

Encouragement for the new policy was found in the crowded houses which greeted the comedy, "A Girl Must Live," British counterpart of "The Women," now completing its third successful week at the Snowdon. First run will be given to some of the lesser known British films, and second run to important British hits, also at the Snowdon.

The Snowdon, second last of the United Amusement chain to be constructed, and first air-conditioned film theatre in Montreal, is situated in a growing and prosperous suburban district in the northwest of the city, close to an important transfer point of the tramways. It draws its patrons not only from the neighborhood and from other parts of Montreal, but also from Cartierville, suburban town a few miles north on the banks of the Ottawa River, with which there is direct street car communication.

Press Sees "Over There"

MONTREAL—"Over There," a war film showing Canadian troops at Aldershot and at Beaver Club in London, was given its first Canadian showing here at a press preview.

CALGARY

JOE MYERS, manager here of Regal Films, has spent the past ten days in the Holy Cross hospital, with prospects of an extended stay. He is seriously ill from septic poisoning.

Palace Theatre, downtown unit of the Famous Players chain, closed on the 13th for two weeks to undergo interior alterations. The house will be entirely reseated, new carpets installed and new flooring constructed. Vic Armand, superintendent of construction from Toronto head office, is in charge of alterations. The Palace will reopen on April 27. Cost of renovations will run about $30,000.

RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment was installed this week at the Capitol, unit of the F. P. C. C. circuit.

Late spring snowfalls continue in Alberta, blocking country roads. With temperatures mild, hovering over 30 above, weather has proven no handicap to theatre business in the cities. Calgary theatremen, however, have found the hockey championship games their most serious rival attractions.

MONTREAL

MARCH winds and snow flurries sandwiched into the middle of April have made the trip to Montreal anything but tempting for country exhibitors, with the result that few have been around Filmrow. G. Major of the Bellerive, Valleyfield, was one enthusiast whom icy roads did not deter . . . Associated Screen News camera crews have been kept busy covering the various war activities in Canada. Roy Tash filmed the manufacture and production of the first Bren guns in Toronto. Bob Martin covered tank training at Camp Borden, and Lucien Roy visited the Kananaskis internment camp in British Columbia.

"Gone With the Wind" reappeared in Montreal at His Majesty's, and was simultaneously shown at the Capitol, Quebec . . . Patrons of a Toronto theatre were forced to use the side entrance because a large Newfoundland dog chose to lie down and block the inner door and ushers were afraid to disturb it . . . George Rotsky, J. P. of Consolidated Theatres, is back from a trip to St. Louis . . . Harry Paynter, assistant general manager of Empire-Universal, visited Filmrow offices here. Paynter was Quebec manager for Empire-Universal until a few weeks ago.

Ben Dunning, former president of the Montreal musicians' union, died suddenly a few days ago in his 71st year. Patrons of the old Gaiety remember him well as drummer in the orchestra . . . Frank L. Armstrong, a native of Saint John, New Brunswick, who has been engaged in the industry in the United States, has returned to Canada to join the Montreal staff of Associated Screen News.

Al Jeffreys, manager of United Artists in Montreal, and Tom Dowbiggin, sales manager of Paramount, are real hockey enthusiasts. They journeyed together to Toronto to witness the Allan Cup game between Kirkland Lake Blue Devils and Montreal Royals . . . Wilfrid Cohen, Warner Canadian general manager in Toronto, visited Filmrow . . . Another Toronto visitor to Montreal was Frank O'Byrne, manager of ASN in Toronto, who visited head-office . . . Famous Players will cooperate with F. W. Winter in building a 1,000-seat theatre at Moncton.

Robert "Bob" Lowell, manager of the Maska, St. Hyacinthe, has been transferred to the Grenada at Sherbrooke. Rudy Vallee, namesake of the famous star, manager of the Grenada, Sherbrooke, is taking over the Premier in that city . . . One of the most spectacular theatre fronts seen in Montreal for some time, was that used by John Dufort, manager of the Crystal, to advertise "U-Boat 29." It portrayed a submarine with planes flying over it, and a moving spotlight picking them out. The theatre did splendid business . . . The Imperial has revived "Auction Night" Fridays, and is also running an "Amateur Night" show Mondays.

Members of the Medical Society of Quebec were guests at a special screening of "The Story of Dr. Erhlich's Magic Bullet" prior to its opening at the Empire.

Canadian Pioneers Hold Party May 1

TORONTO—The Canadian Picture Pioneers Club, membership in which is limited to moving picture men of 25 years experience or longer in the film field, will hold its first blowout at the Royal York Hotel Wednesday night, May 1, when the entertainment program will include a number of "acts" by old-timers who once offered vaudeville specialties in their own or other theatres in the early film days. These entertainers will be members of the club which, incidentally, has taken out a government charter with charter membership restricted to 100 persons.

In general charge of arrangements is Clair Hague, Canadian Universal representative, who has supervised the inviting of various veteran film personages from the United States to the originals' banquet. Hague is general chairman but he has also promised to put on an act of his own.

The committee in charge of entertainment comprises Charlie Stephenson of the Allen circuit; A. J. Laurie, who recently started in business for himself after many years with Empire Films, Regal Films and as a theatre manager; Walter Kennedy, exploiteer; Ben Cronk, formerly supervisor with Allen Theatres and head of the Famous Players' art department for past years, and Syd Taube, former exchange executive who operates a chain of theatre candy vending machines.

VICTORIA

FOR THE showing of "Pinocchio" at the Capitol, tieups were arranged with leading grocery and departmental stores featuring "Pinocchio" products. Music stores featured songs from the show. Manager J. M. Robertson found comments of patrons very amusing, as the picture had to stand comparison with "Snow White" and there were many differences of opinion.

The Dominion is featuring a new lobby display which is drawing much favorable comment from patrons, particularly the English people. It consists of a lighted scene of the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Bridge in London, England. Framing the picture are four lighted 11x14's advertising the current pictures. These are mounted on a colorful spring background.

Alec Templeton, brilliant young blind English pianist, was well received at his showing at the Royal Victoria . . . Much publicity was given the personal showing of the "Dumbells" at the Oak Bay. The "Dumbells" created a sensation during the last war as a group of comedians, and their appearance during the present war has been greeted with much enthusiasm especially from those who knew them in the last war. Their arrival in the city was greeted by a parade headed by the local war veterans band. The group plans to go to Europe soon to again entertain troops.

Book Giveaways Invade Theatres in Ottawa

OTTAWA—Books have invaded the Canadian capital as a theatre premium. H. Berlin of the Somerset, a comparatively new neighborhood house, has come out with the offer of an encyclopedia, volumes of which will be available at the Sunday midnight shows and on the first three nights of the week.

Three other Ottawa theatres have been holding Foto-Nites weekly; two have merchandise premiums and one has a weekly quiz stunt for cash prizes. The Capitol and Regent, chain houses, do not indulge in premiums while, among the independent theatres, the Centre and Elgin refrain from giveaways.

Says American and Swiss Made Pictures Possible

TORONTO—In an address on the subject of "Science and You," Dr. J. Allen Harris, discoverer of a chemical element and a Canadian university professor, gave credit to a Swiss scientist and an American chemist for discoveries nearly 100 years ago which led to the development of motion pictures in this period. His talk also touched upon the introduction of safety film with its subsequent advantages. The Swiss was Professor Schoeinbein of the University of Basel, while the American inventor was Maynard.

May Resume Payment of Dividends on Common

MONTREAL — Shareholders of Eastern Theatres, Ltd., were told at the annual meeting in Toronto that resumption of common dividends is possible during the current year. Business for the quarter ended March 31 was much improved over the first quarter of 1939.

No dividend has been paid on the common stock since Dec. 15, 1938, when 50 cents was paid for the year, the same amount as in 1937, previous to which no payments were made since 1933 when $2 was paid.

The Palace in Calgary Being Reconditioned

CALGARY—Vic Armand, superintendent of construction for Famous Players Canadian Corp., is here supervising interior alterations on the Palace. House will reopen April 27.

Alterations amounting to $50,000 will include new cement floor in auditorium, new carpets on aisles, stairways, foyer and mezzanine floor, redecoration of interior and restrooms, new ventilation and sound equipment, and new seats.

"Royal Road to Learning"

MONTREAL—Upholding the use of films, which he termed "a form of royal road to learning" as an aid to instruction in the schools, Dr. W. P. Percival, director of Protestant School education for Quebec, addressed a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the Windsor Hotel on "Visual Education in the Protestant Schools of the Province."

Lorne Moore Achieves Best Campaign Award

TORONTO—Lorne Moore, manager of the Grand, Sudbury, Ont., earned the award for the best campaign for the past month among the theatres of the Associated chain with his exploitation on "The Invisible Man Returns." Honorable mention was given Manager Gordon Beavis of the Royal, North Bay, according to announcement by Supervisor Dick Main and J. A. Kudirka, head of the promotion department for the circuit. This was earned by Beavis on his campaign for "Dead End Kids on Dress Parade." Special mention went to Manager Wannie Tyers of the Granada, St. Thomas, for his campaign on "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Featured Laundry Tieup

Lorne Moore's exploitation was featured by a tieup with the Cascade Laundry through which 3,000 door-knob hangers were distributed and special displays arranged, along with the award of 15 laundry and 15 dry cleaning prizes to which the Grand added 20 passes. The prizes were offered in a novel contest in which 500 of the door-knob hangers were numbered with invisible ink as used by the laundry for identification purposes. The laundry installed a red-violet lamp in a demonstration booth in the theatre lobby and the public was invited to bring the door-knob hangers to the theatre to check them for lucky numbers which were visible only under the rays of the lamp. The company provided a girl attendant for the exhibit during the matinee performances while theatre employes looked after the booth at night. Hundreds of persons visited the exhibit each day. The laundry company also paid for a 17-inch display advertisement in the local newspaper and contributed $20 to pay for the hangers and display costs.

A drugstore had a window display for "The Invisible Man Returns" consisting of many containers of brightly colored liquids and an array of prescription utensils with appropriate cards to bring out the idea of a nightmare. A Sudbury news company used theatre banners on the sides of delivery trucks.

Parade of Seamen

For "Dead End Kids on Dress Parade," Manager Beavis at North Bay had a parade of the local boys band members of which were togged out in naval and cadet uniforms, a large banner being carried. For a street ballyhoo, seamen and cadets walked the streets carrying cards and stood on guard in front of the theatre, the second feature on the program being "Torpedo Raider." The theatre front was decorated with pennants.

An excellent stunt consisted of six window displays in each of which was a picture of a different Dead End Kid. Four of these displays were along the main business thoroughfare while two others were in isolated spots. A newspaper advertisement invited the public to bring a list showing where the pictures were located with their character names, the first ten correct answers receiving guest tickets. A special illuminated 6-sheet display was used on the corner of the theatre building.

Manager Tyers at the St. Thomas Granada had a row of glitter letters spelling the title of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" along the stage which were illuminated by blue lights during the screening of the trailer in advance of the engagement and had a shadow box in the lobby for two weeks in advance, this box being later placed in a store window. He mailed special invitations to the 80 Smiths residing in St. Thomas and organized three college and church theatre parties during the week. Heralds were placed in parked cars and good use was made of a marquee banner, advertising frames and press-book accessories.

For the engagement of "South of the Border," Tyers had a tieup with dime store in a Gene Autry photo giveaway with each "South of the Border" sundae, plugged the songhit over the public address system and had sheet music and phonograph record displays in two music stores.

Tyers employed a good stunt for "Charlie McCarthy, Detective" in a tieup with chain grocery store with the distribution of small envelopes containing a sprinkling of sawdust which was designated as a sample of the beard of Mortimer Snerd, an envelope being placed in each bag of groceries. Printed on the outside of the sealed envelope was a notice signed by Charlie McCarthy in which information was wanted about Snerd, the playdates at the Granada being mentioned of course.

Tieup by Garrette Sells Forthcoming Attractions

TORONTO—Manager R. Garrette of the Geneva, Orillia, Ont., pulled a nifty stunt in connection with the distribution of card folders on which was printed a schedule of coming attractions for the month in calendar form. In a tieup with a local drugstore, which paid for the cost of an advertisement on the card, three guest tickets were handed out each day for a period to persons who could produce the program folder from their pocket on request from a representative of the theatre. Two of these tickets were awarded on the main business thoroughfare while the third was given in the drugstore when a customer could produce the card. This insured the carrying of the theatre's card to a large degree.

Victoria in Toronto to House a Jewish Show

TORONTO—The Victoria, large downtown house under lease to Famous Players, is being reopened April 24 for an engagement by a Jewish dramatic company headed by Jack Berlin in a presentation of "Der Naketer Emmes," a part of the proceeds of which will be turned over to the Toronto Jewish Old Folks' Home.

The Victoria was once operated by Jerry Shea as a vaudeville-moving picture house in addition to the Hippodrome on City Hall Square which continues to be run by Shea in conjunction with Famous Players. The Victoria, which has been dark for years, is opposite the Tivoli which is the second-run house in the downtown area of the big chain under the management of Leonard Bishop.

Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet
One of the very best, but like other documentary films, only a few care to see it. I think you owe pictures of this type of the few patrons who will appreciate it as it is certainly a must see from the educational standpoint. Tuesday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris and Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Espionage Agent
Personally I liked this yarn, because anything about war is news, but a lot of people didn't agree with me as far as boxoffice showed. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Rainy. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Espionage Agent
A fine program picture that drew better than expected. Brenda Marshall a truly glamorous find. Let's have more of her. Sat., Sun. Weather: Very cold. Admission: 35-10. Rural patronage. Capacity: 250.—H. M. Weydahl, Killdeer, Killdeer, N. Dak.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Babes in Arms
A good many of our patrons were disappointed in this picture. Too much Rooney. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 35-15. Small town and rural patronage. Population: 2,500. Capacity: 500. —Beatty & Johnston, Capitol, Red Deer, Alberta, Canada.

Fast and Furious
Ann Sothern is good—especially since she's had some decent stories. This is a real clever little comedy and they'll laugh plenty. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Judge Hardy and Son
Perhaps not quite containing the comedy there was in some of its predecessors, this picture nevertheless is a good show and can be considered up to the high standard set by the Hardy Family series. Sat., Sun. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 165.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

Ninotchka
Surprise picture. We have been afraid of Garbo for years, but she is human after all. Good show business, just fair weather, and roads bad. Mon., Tues. Admission: 35-15. Small town and rural patronage. Population: 2,500. Capacity: 500.—Beatty & Johnston, Capitol, Red Deer, Alberta, Canada.

Shop Around the Corner, The
My patrons don't go much for pictures laid in foreign countries, but those who came enjoyed this one. The acting is done very ably, and the story is interesting enough. However, the picture lacks a little boxoffice draw with the run-of-the-mill customers. Business little below Saturday-Sunday average. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 165.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

They All Come Out
The only trouble with this picture is that they don't all come out. It's a glorified "Crime Doesn't Pay." No business. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Thunder Afloat
Wallace Beery seems to still be tops here. Plenty of action in this film which our patrons seem to like. Hope to have more like it. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 900. Capacity: 250.—R. W. Graff, Graff, Onaga, Kas.

Paramount

Disputed Passage
While not quite as good at the boxoffice as "Honeymoon in Bali" it still does a fair business and gives universal satisfaction. Akim Tamiroff as usual walks away with the acting honors. Miss Dorothy Lamour and John Howard make a very strong supporting cast. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Ice and cold. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Great Victor Herbert, The
A very high class offering that just got by without registering any additional revenue for Easter. I was somewhat surprised and also disappointed in the business it gathered especially when the weather was against promenading. Personally I did not like it near as good as "The Great Waltz" from Metro some time ago. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Honeymoon in Bali
Here is one of the cleverest comedies in a blue moon. Audience liked it and said so. Mon., Tues., Wed. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Rulers of the Sea
Nice sea picture. Better than some highly touted ones. Our patrons like the he-man type. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Rainy. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

RKO Radio

Vigil in the Night
A waste of time all around as far as I personally am concerned. The acting is good but the story starts from nowhere and ends in the same place. Looks to me like RKO is still copy-catting. Metro produces the "Citadel" and it clicks, so RKO has to mimic them with another Cronin story. Ho-Hum. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Republic

Jeepers Creepers
This is splendid for small towns and proves a boxoffice tonic for midweek. You'll smile at the results. Tuesday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris and Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Rovin' Tumbleweeds
Autry always does business. This no exception. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Village Barn Dance
Not a super colossal picture, but one that drew good for us, considering the bad weather. Seemed to please the audience 100 per cent. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold, snowy. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 900. Capacity: 250.—R. W. Graff, Graff, Onaga, Kas.

Wyoming Outlaw
This western sure did click at boxoffice in spite of basketball tournament. Had a Three Stooges comedy with it. We think it was the Stooges that drew the business. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 20-15. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelsteen Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

20th Century-Fox

Charlie Chan in the City of Darkness
This picture is below the usual standard of the other Chan pictures but gets its appeal from its timeliness. It is not strong enough to play a single bill, as I tried it, but will make a nice double bill. Mon., Tues. Weather: Cold. Admission: 35-15. General patronage. Population: 750. Capacity: 320.—John E. Moore, Star, Coronation, Alta.

Drums Along the Mohawk
Good picture and good gross. This feature will make money everywhere shown, but would have grossed more if Colbert had been a little more glamorous. Fonda is always good and you'll remember Edna Mae Oliver for her splendid performance. Lots of suspense, action, drama. Sun., Mon. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 650. Capacity: 250.—Everett Clapp, American, Sidell, Ill.

Drums Along the Mohawk
They came for this and went away satisfied. There was some beautiful photography in it. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Frontier Marshal
Played this one late, as rural patronage here goes for westerns. Cesar Romero very good in this one. Blizzard spoiled usual rural crowd. Sat., Sun. Admission: 35-10. Capacity: 250.—H. M. Weydahl, Killdeer, Killdeer, N. Dak.

Hollywood Cavalcade
Although every one that saw it liked it, we barely made film rental. Biggest complaint was that Alice Faye did not sing. The silent sequences had the audience in an uproar. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 900. Capacity: 250.—R. W. Graff, Graff, Onaga, Kas.

Pack Up Your Troubles
This picture has a few comedy spots, however I don't think it was up to par. Evidently the patrons didn't think so either, as boxoffice was way down. Tues., Wed. Weather: Snow. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Too Busy to Work
A good comedy, but no draw. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Joyo, Coleridge, Neb.

Universal

First Love
A very good Deanna Durbin picture. Played way too late for good grosses, due principally to Universal Pictures Exchanges, Inc., themselves for pulling my dates on it three different times. These dates were the worst I could possibly arrange, right in Holy Week. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Lady Vanishes, The
This picture, produced by an English studio, certainly is a surprise. It leaves nothing to be desired as excellent entertainment. Although an excellent picture, it did not for some reason, draw a crowd, and was the worst picture from the B. O. standpoint that we have ever played. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 35-15. General patronage. Population: 750. Capacity: 320.—John E. Moore, Star, Coronation, Alta.

When Tomorrow Comes
A good show but no draw. Maybe on account of Holy week. Good comment from those who saw it. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Cold. Admission: 15-10. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelsteen Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

United Artists

Four Feathers
This is one of the best shows that we have ever run, both from the entertainment and patron pleasing standpoint. All comments heard were very favorable and several came back to see it the second time. Fri., Sat. Weather: Bad. Admission: 35-15. General patronage. Population: 750. Capacity: 320.—John E. Moore, Star, Coronation, Alta.

Man in the Iron Mask
Another top-notcher from UA. Why don't producers put out all their shows this good? It would certainly help out the poor old boxoffice and clean out some of the cobwebs in the cash drawer. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 35-15. General patronage. Population: 750. Capacity: 320. —John E. Moore, Star, Coronation, Alta.

Of Mice and Men
Expected too much from this and was disappointed. About 50 per cent will like and 49 per cent of those will be males. Nothing in it whatso-ever to appeal to women. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris and Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Slightly Honorable
No star value and a very confusing plot, but full of wise cracks and will please whoever will come and see it. Certainly not worth the price you'll have to pay for it. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris and Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Warner Bros.

Dodge City
Another tops from the old releases from Vitagraph. My only wish is that Vitagraph would produce more of this kind instead of the flops which have played from their newer releases. Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 35-15. General patronage. Population: 750. Capacity: 320.—John E. Moore, Star, Coronation, Alta.

Kid Nightingale
Here was a fair story. Got by was all. The small town show has too many pictures to play like this. They should stay on the shelf all the time or show on bargain night. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 200.—Ted Wilson, Rex, Carlisle, Ark.

Pride of the Blue Grass
This picture met with approval from everybody who saw it. In as much as this is a rural population, a picture of this type always takes well. Thursday. Weather: Cold. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Selling Seats

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Making It Easy for "Virginia City"

MANHATTAN, KAS.—A big-time campaign made things easy for "Virginia City" at the Carlton here.

Fifteen days in advance Manager Barnes Perdue ran "wanted" slides asking for old guns, relics, etc., reminiscent of pioneer days. Ten days in advance he set up two illuminated shadowboxes in the form of a covered wagon, one on each side of the screen. They carried the cast, title and playdate, and lights were turned on them at the beginning and end of every feature. Perdue also made a 2½x20-foot illuminated shadowbox for the top of the Carlton between Neon panels.

Perdue covered the foyer wall around the entrance doors and the Lobby Shop with a display resembling 1x12 weather beaten boards. Across the top was displayed "Virginia City" in raised cutout compoboard letters.

Employes, a week in advance, wore boots, big hats, loud shirts and guns.

Finally, Perdue built a miniature covered wagon, painted the title, cast and playdate on each side, and had it pulled through the business district by a small boy in cowboy costume. When it was not "rolling," it sat in front of the theatre.

"Dr. Cyclops" Press Book Has Pre-Tested Ideas

NEW YORK—Paramount's finished press book for "Dr. Cyclops" represents a series of publicity and exploitation campaigns pre-tested during pre-release engagements in six key cities.

The managers whose successful campaigns are outlined in the press sheet are Charles Amos, Paramount, Nashville; B. D. Cockrill, Denham, Denver; Jerry Zigmond, Newman, Kansas City; Walter B. Lloyd, Allyn, Hartford; Edward L. Reed, Paramount, Providence and A. N. Notopoulos, Capitol, Altoona. Assisting the managers were the following Paramount exploiteers: Leon Benson, J. Maxwell Joice, Thomas Jefferson, Bud Getschall and Charles Perry.

Among the exploitation ideas used were the "Dr. Cyclops" laboratory display utilizing special lens to reduce humans to 12 inches; a five-day newspaper contest, a whispering campaign, a special scarehead newspaper and oversized furniture for lobby displays.

More Time for Dishes

DETROIT—Because all the ladies who came in the evening to get their dishes could not be accommodated, special matinees have been started on Wednesday and Thursday at the Imperial, according to Elton Samuels, who manages the house for M. J. Chargot. The matinees start at 12:45 p. m. and are announced by trailers between regular shows.

NUGGETS

WISE exploiting of the short, "Teddy, the Rough Rider," by Manager Mose (The Mullet) Macow of the State, Austin, increased business aplenty at his de luxe downtown house. Ads, publicity stories, and one- and two-column newspaper art, got the job done.

●

Through a tieup with the Canada Dry Co., Manager Alec Sayles of the Palace, Albany, N. Y., had the leading newspaper critics invited to appear on the stage and answer questions put to them by the audience as part of a campaign for an "Information Please" subject. A broadcast took place directly from the stage for a half-hour. The stunt was appropriately exploited.

●

Posting latest war bulletins on the theatre front is an effective crowd-stopper used by the Embassy Newsreel on Broadway. Theatre managers can try making tieups with local papers to supply war flashes for outside displays.

●

An old truck loaded with miscellaneous items was used by Manager Marlowe Connor of the Avalon, Chicago, in his campaign on "The Grapes of Wrath." The copy read: "We're Moving Just Like the Joads in 'The Grapes of Wrath' at the Avalon."

●

A little extra effort by theatre managers during the week prior to May 1 which is the customary moving day, can offset some of the slack in patronage. Copy placed conspicuously in the theatre can stress advantages of relaxing at a show after a hectic day or as a place for the children while the home is disarranged.

●

Manager Ben Blumberg of the Lane, Philadelphia, has found a way to keep his younger patrons happy. Blumberg had a bicycle rack constructed which now assures the youngsters of complete protection for their vehicles while they watch the show.

●

As part of his "Young Tom Edison" campaign for the Colonial, Lancaster, Pa., Manager Fred Forry arranged for the planting of an oak tree by Boy Scouts in memory of Thomas A. Edison, with ceremonies taking place in a local park. Forry also had a display of an authentic Edison projector in the windows of the local power and light company.

●

Manager Lou Kusner, Apollo, Martinsburg, W. Va., had his girl ushers dress in Southern evening wear with hoop skirts during the engagement of "Gone With the Wind."

●

Highlight of the "Pinocchio" campaign of Jack A. Simon of the Loew's Poli, Hartford, Conn., was the selling of a block of 3,000 children's tickets to one of the city's leading citizens. The city welfare department was selected as distributing agency.

How One House Cut "Waiting Jitters"

CHICAGO — "Waiting-for-the-feature-to end" jitters, a problem of all house managers, has been solved by Harry and Elmer Balaban at their Esquire on the near north side of Chicago.

An intimate lounge on the second floor of the theatre has been converted into a gallery for the showing of outstanding examples of contemporary art, photography, sculpture, cartooning, and caricature. The Balabans call it the "Little Gallery."

Exhibited here are specimens of modern newspaper cartoons and caricatures. Roy Nelson, sports and show-world cartoonist of the Daily News, led off with an exhibit of famous screen and stage personages. Battenfield, political cartoonist of the Daily Times, followed with a display of his "sculptured" cartoons. Battenfield employs an interesting technique producing a third dimension illusion. He models his subjects in clay and then photographs the finished product.

The exhibit contains some 40 cartoons borrowed from the Daily News' sports feature, "Voice of the Grandstand." Lloyd Lewis, News' sports editor, loaned the cartoons.

Special lobby displays, mailing announcements and trailers inform the public of the exhibit and exhibitor.

Anyway, Sheridan Is Freshmen's Choice

PHILADELPHIA—She may be the actress "least likely to succeed" to the boys of Harvard, but to the University of Pennsylvania freshmen, Ann Sheridan is the "ideal date."

At least, that's the verdict engineered by Milt Young, Warner advertising worker, who invited the editors of the Daily Pennsylvanian, student paper, for a screening of "It All Came True." The editors then ran a poll among the freshmen; but they accompanied the poll with such torrid raves about Miss Sheridan, that the vote couldn't go any other way. Following Miss Sheridan on the list were Lana Turner, Hedy Lamarr and—no kidding!—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

The newspapers picked up the story; the Daily News carried a picture.

Dog Food National Tieup For "Biscuit Eater"

NEW YORK—Paramount and Ken-L-Ration dog food have worked out a national cooperative advertising and merchandising campaign for exhibitors on "The Biscuit Eater." Billy Lee, juvenile lead, and "Promise," the dog star, will be featured in advertising campaign which gets under way in May. Window displays will be available to merchants who will be informed of the tieup through a direct mail campaign.

"Picture Guide" an Aide to Patrons

DETROIT—Manager Joseph Allegretti of the Midway Theatre here has found the PICTURE GUIDE, a date and record book service furnished to exhibitors by BOXOFFICE, an aide to his patrons as well as the answer to one of his many problems.

Frequently, from his regular patrons, Allegretti receives requests for information regarding pictures which have previously played at the Midway. Without any waste motion, he turns to his up-to-date service which he always keeps near at hand, and provides the inquiring patron with a concise, accurate summary of the picture in question.

In Allegretti's words, this service by BOXOFFICE furnishes "the answer to a problem that bothers many managers."

Educational Emphasis Pulls for "Edison"

COLUMBUS, OHIO—Hammering the educational content of "Young Tom Edison," Loew's Ohio featured a highly subtle campaign, quite different from conventional exploitation, yet very successful. Devised by Manager Russ Bovim, the campaign was comprised of two separate divisions, juvenile and adult.

With an eye on school children business, the theatre, through contacts with the local board of education, advised 500 teachers of the advantages to be derived from seeing "Young Tom Edison." The teachers in turn made announcements in classes, recommending the picture. Showcards were displayed in each of the city schools. For an ideal tieup, the management of the house presented a plaque to the Thomas Edison elementary school.

For the adult trade the many inventions of Thomas Edison were extolled. Window displays were used in cooperation with the local Ediphone Co., using early machines as well as the new models for a vivid layout. In the theatre lobby was a miniature museum of Edison inventions, one of the first talking machines, a replica of the original Ediphone, pictures and photostats.

Through the local Ediphone office, the theatre secured a recording of Edison's voice, timely inasmuch as he talked of the first World War. A high fidelity transcription was made from the disc, and a radio program on WCOL built around the "voice from yesterday." In addition, "inquiring reporters" on both WCOL and WHKC, used one week of educational questions based on the life of Edison.

"Jubilee" for Two

INDEPENDENCE, KAS.—Bill Wagner of the Beldorf put on a "Home Town Jubilee" for the showing of "Rancho Grande" and "Village Barn Dance." He assembled a group of musicians on a hayrack fitted with bales and loose hay, for atmosphere. The rack was pulled through the business section by a tractor the evening before the show equipped with banners proclaiming the "jubilee." Passes paid for the promotion.

Re-Creates Morning Room of Manderly

DETROIT—An authentic re-creation of the morning room of Manderly in the mezzanine of the Michigan, drew hundreds of women to the United Detroit circuit house where they saw the finely made furniture of W. J. Newton's, local exclusive furniture store which cooperated in the tieup for "Rebecca."

The furniture company also ran a three-column, eight-inch ad on the women's page of local papers, inviting the readers to look over the display.

Child Personality Contest Conducted by Lashway

BOSTON—Al Lashway, manager of the Strand in Pawtucket for the M&P Theatres Corp., recently put on a child personality contest at a cost of less than $5. Lashway tied in with a photographer who not only took all contestants' pictures, but paid for newspaper exploitation, for local canvassers and for a screen trailer.

Lashway provided quarters in the Strand where photographic equipment was set up. Resulting pictures, identified by numbers, were displayed in the lobby. Adult patrons were supplied with ballots. The idea was to determine the child with "the best personality."

Lashway timed the exploitation by handing out ballots only upon request after the first ten days. He hypoed interest by compiling a daily chart on results of the voting by regular advertising, and by sending out postcards to parents advising them on the turn of events in the contest.

"Perfect Husband" Angle For "Too Many Husbands"

PHILADELPHIA—An old stunt with a new twist was worked up here by Ev Callow and Milt Young, Warner, and Ed Rosenbaum, Columbia, as a build-up for "Too Many Husbands."

They got the Record to run a search for the "Perfect Husband." Wives were invited to write letters of 50 words telling why they think their husbands come closest to being perfect. The Record printed a couple of letters every day, paid $2 each, and Warner handed out a couple of ducats. The five best letter-writers and their husbands were dined at a hotel, then argued the merits of their spouses over the radio. Winner and her husband got a weekend in Atlantic City.

The stunt got a lot of laughs because wives are usually quicker to tear papa down than build him up.

Coloring Contest

ALBANY—A coloring contest on Pinocchio characters for girls and boys 12 years of age or younger was successfully promoted by Fabian's Palace in cooperation with The Times Union. Each day of the engagement, five dollars was awarded to the youngster who did the best job, either with crayons or water colors, in sketching characters reproduced in black and white by the newspaper.

Toledo Mayor Helps Big "Wind" Bally

TOLEDO—Wally Caldwell, manager of Loew's Valentine, sent his campaign for "Gone With the Wind" off to a good start when he had the mayor proclaim a "GWTW" week the day the film opened.

Opening was in the Hollywood tradition with five spot lights flooding the theatre, a brass band playing southern airs over a loud speaker system, green and red flares burning on specially constructed platforms and the local station airing the highlights.

Theatre representatives covered small towns within a 50-mile radius, calling on mayors and civic leaders to form committees for group buying, which resulted in successful advance sales.

A "GWTW" ball was held at the Commodore Perry Hotel. The event was sponsored by a leading club woman and invitations went out to 300 selected guests.

Downtown streets were decorated with one-sheet muslin banners which were trimmed on the long side of one sheet with fan-shaped American flags and stretched across the streets on a rope to the top of the trolley poles. Bumper cards were placed on an entire taxicab fleet.

During run of film, extra facilities were provided to check 300 coats and hats. NBC chimes were tapped in the lobby and foyer during intermission with announcement of curtain time. Six five-gallon bottles of water mounted on cooler stands, with paper cup holders, were placed in the foyers and mezzanine just prior to intermission and removed immediately after. Through a tieup with a local store, a well-known cologne was sprayed through the lobby and foyer prior to and after all performances.

Two Managers Cooperate On Honeymoon Isle Stunt

ATLANTA, GA.—Theatre Managers Neil McGill of the Imperial, Charlotte, and Billy Pratt of the Paramount, cooperated with successful results in a contest that has two couples going to the famed Honeymoon Island off the west coast of Florida to live in the manner of the "Swiss Family Robinson."

Contestants were chosen on basis of personal attributes. The theatre managers tied in with the Charlotte News and Atlanta Constitution. Don Prince of Terry Turner's exploitation staff was on hand to aid in getting the press breaks.

'Too Many Husbands' Sold With Girls Picketing

NEW HAVEN—Bob Russell and Nat Rubin's latest idea is selling tickets with pickets. A pretty miss is walking up and down in front of the Poli three days before opening. Her sign says, "This theatre is unfair to single girls. Jean Arthur has 'Too Many Husbands.'" Everybody's laughing except Jake, the regular Poli sandwich man, who's picketing woman picketers.

NOT WRITTEN BY THE EDITOR

TWO WEEKS after war began, this editorial sounding board began to give off vibrations about the need for a self-sufficient market within United States borders. That particular bit of enterprise has been maintained without giving ground, as we were remarking recently, in the face of an indifference ranging from New York to California and a probable suspicion your commentator had nothing else to write about.

But times persist in their habit of changing. Witness how, on occasion, columning becomes easy. For the editor, hereafter for this one time, reverts to the clip-and-paste standard as others fill in the white space between here and the signature cut below which marks this page as finished.

From a press release covering Columbia's six-month financial condition and quoting Harry Cohn:

"During the six-month period ended December 30, 1939, the management considered it advisable to revise the allocation of film costs so that they would be more in line with immediate and anticipated world-wide conditions, and therefore, reduced film costs allocated to England by five per cent which has been added to domestic allocation.

"In line with the desire of the management to maintain a conservative policy, an additional decrease of the film costs allocated to foreign countries amounting to five per cent has been effected January 1, 1940. The percentage of film costs allocated to the United States is now 75 per cent, to the United Kingdom 20 per cent and to other foreign markets, five per cent.

"We are giving special attention to pictures which will help domestic exhibitors to larger boxoffice returns."

A press release from Monogram:

"Dallas—According to W. Ray Johnston, now in Dallas for the annual franchise holders' convention, Monogram's releases for 1940-41 will be designed principally for the U. S. and Latin-American markets.

"Homespun stories will be selected for their appeal to the large and small theatres in the Americas."

A statement by Darryl F. Zanuck:

"None of us knows the full limit of domestic earning possibilities and none of us can rest satisfied until we have raised our weekly domestic revenue to the level where we can continue to put the money we are putting into production and without having to worry about foreign entanglements, enigmas and wars in other lands.

"We've got a grave responsibility—to place ourselves in that position where we are domestically self-sufficient. When we have done that—and we must do that—then and only then we'll last forever with the destiny of our business in our hands."

Studied, serious and, it is well to remember, a public statement from Joseph M. Schenck:

"We don't know when the wheel will turn again, nor where it will stop. We don't know what will happen in foreign countries; we can't rely on what we might hope to get from abroad, be that country at war or out of it.

"There is no way whereby today we can measure any possible income from foreign sources, not only warring nations, but others as well. Developments . . . show that. A nation that seems firmly established as a neutral may be forced to become a participant tomorrow. No one can tell what is going on or what will happen in other lands.

"Therefore, for the future security of our business we cannot place much hope on foreign return.

"We must depend on the domestic return.

"And I think that, in view of what we have found out can happen to world business and particularly our business when foreign countries take up arms or become involved in political upheaval, it is a good thing that we become reconciled to facts—and further develop and capitalize our own domestic market so that we may become self-sufficient.

"When we have reached the point where that is fact, where domestic revenue alone will justify our production expenditures and secure the profit to which we are entitled, then and only then will we be safe."

ARNOLD ATTACK KEYED TO DIVORCE HEARINGS

SEEN MOVE AIMED TO TIP DEFENSE STRATEGY

Would Divulge Activities In Theatre Field; Slow Trial Start Irking

NEW YORK—Thurman Arnold's blast at the industry keyed to announcement by Senator Neely that hearings on his proposed theatre divorcement bill will be held beginning May 16 are viewed as a hand-washing manouvre seeking to obtain for the department of justice a slant on the strategy planned by the theatre-owning defendants in the conduct of the all-industry suit trial.

This is the analysis subscribed to here by a number of observers familiar with the Washington routine.

This approach appears to lend itself to further substantiation in the light of many of the observations made by the assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust prosecution. For instance, his appearance before an abbreviated version of the subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee in Washington was marked with irk and impatience over the manner in which the all-industry suit has proceeded to date.

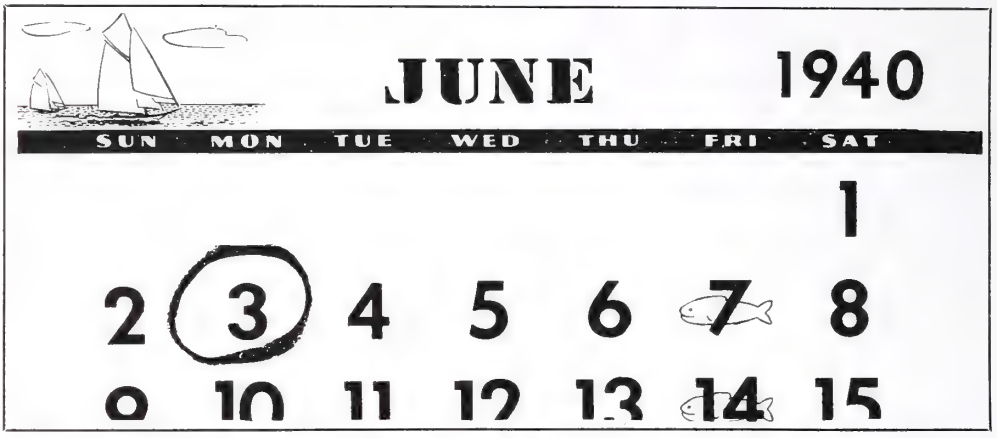
Says New Rules Cause Delay

He admitted the suit "is moving with incredible slowness," offered as an explanation that delay in getting to trial is due to the advantages accruing to the defendants under the new rules of procedure now operative in federal courts. He openly declared the justice department was virtually compelled to try its case in advance and to supply the defendants "a complete statement of everything that has been happening in the motion picture business given to the people who should be more familiar with the business than we are."

It is viewed as obvious, therefore, that the hearings set by Neely will divulge a wholesale defense by producers of their activities in the theatre field out of which it seems entirely feasible the justice department will be in a position to familiarize itself with producer-exhibitor theories of operation for later application when the all-inclusive action goes to trial on its now announced date, June 3.

Arnold on Record for Divorcement Legislation

WASHINGTON—Setting the stage for session-end activity on film legislation, Senator Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia elicited from Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold whole-hearted approval of his bill to divorce exhibition from production and distribution.



In a surprise move designed to get his divorce bill to the fore, the West Virginia Senator who next month will become an active candidate for the governorship of West Virginia, called Arnold before himself and Senator Van Nuys of Indiana as a subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee, to explain why the all-industry suit has not yet gone to trial.

Senator Neely made it clear during the session that he was ready to hear testimony on the bill immediately, so that he could report it to the full committee, but acquiesced in a plea by Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel for the MPPDA, that time be given the companies to prepare their case, and announced that hearings would start on the measure on May 16 "and there would be no delays."

Answering Pettijohn's request for time, Neely snapped out, "this is not before the interstate commerce committee of the House. This is before the judiciary committee of the Senate; we do not wait until people get old on this side of the Capitol." Neely was referring to the delay of the House committee in holding hearings on his block booking bill which, even as he spoke, was before that committee, which tentatively set May 13 as the opening date for hearings.

Arnold told the two Senators that the

"You Must All Be Prepared . . ."—

So admonished Senior Federal Judge Knox in granting a postponement in the all-industry trial from May 1 to June 3. "There will be no further adjournment under any circumstances," the court intoned. Although admittedly not as active as in their earlier stages, BOXOFFICE learns authentically negotiations looking toward a possible consent decree have not been abandoned.

"No Adequate Substitute," Says Allied About Proposed Decree

WASHINGTON—In a letter written by Abram F. Myers to Abe Feller, in charge of the consent decree section of the department of justice, Allied enters its opposition to a decree based on industry-department of commerce negotiations because its board did not feel the proposal "offers an adequate substitute for the relief sought by the government" in its suits.

"The plan not only would leave the producer-distributors in possession of their theatres, but would leave them free to acquire additional theatres during the test period," he said. "This would mark a complete abandonment of the principal objective of the main suit. The chances are extremely remote that after a lapse of several years the department would or could pick up the loose ends and carry the case through to a conclusion.

"So long as the producer-distributors retain their theatre holdings, the independent exhibitors will continue to be regarded as actual or potential competitors rather than as customers. The temptation to discriminate in favor of the affiliated theatres and against the independents will remain. The fact that the government is now prosecuting contempt proceedings against the producer-distributors for violation of consent decrees entered in the past indicates the reaction of these defendants to leniency in law enforcement."

The minimum of relief that should be provided in any settlement, Myers contended, should include a requirement "that the defendants dispose of 50 per cent of their neighborhood and small town theatres in the areas of greatest concentra-

Arnold Talks, But for Justice Dep't Only

New York—Although Thurman Arnold makes it clear, apparently, that a consent decree is out, it is being pointed out here—cautiously and advisedly—that the assistant attorney general presumably is talking for the department of justice only.

Remarked one highly placed executive, "Even Mr. Arnold has superiors in Washington."

HIGHER ADMISSIONS ILL-ADVISED, KENT SAYS; CALLS SELF-SUFFICIENCY AT HOME "A THEORY"

Sees Unusual Individual Pictures as Possible Source for Boosts

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—The nation's economic condition is such that a general tilt in admission prices at present, or in the immediate future, is not advisable, in the opinion of Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox president. He registered this viewpoint and others in an interview following his return from his company's sales convention in Chicago.

"I don't think that with 11,000,000 people out of work we could raise theatre prices," he said. "However, it is possible to take an individual picture that possesses unusual quality and get additional money that way. It is well to remember that ours is the only business that sells the worst merchandise for the same price as the best merchandise."

His view is not to be construed as at variance with that of Spyros Skouras, president of National Theatres, who urged increased scales to compensate for foreign losses, Kent declared. In fact, he added, Skouras' theory can be applied to achieve the same results if showmanship, ingenuity and a full consideration of values nets longer playing time. In this respect, Kent decried price-cutting, triple features and giveaways.

Asked if it was not possible for the industry to attempt to determine, by survey or otherwise, what proportion of the country's population is not "movie conscious," as a potential means of seeking a larger audience than exists, Kent replied:

"The industry can't tap the entire population. Perhaps 'Gone With the Wind' came nearer to hitting the rank and file than any other picture of recent years. But the best product only hits certain spheres; to find the personality and story for all classes of minds is not easy. Pictures must appeal to the average person, yet there are probably millions of people in this country who still feel that motion pictures are beneath them."

He is of the opinion, however, that pictures on the 20th Century-Fox lineup for the new season, such as "Lillian Russell," "Brigham Young," "Brooklyn Bridge" and "The Great Commandment" will have sufficient mass appeal to attract a commensurate ratio of the new filmgoers that "Wind" achieved. He said "Lillian Russell" will be sold to play single bill only and will run two hours and 15 minutes. Asked if terms for the picture will be hiked, he replied: "It is already sold; we will respect our contracts."

Painting a more pessimistic outlook for the industry at large than his memory recalled, Kent envisions the next few months as the turning point "in a world picture that is as bad as it can possibly be."

Sees "Last Ditch" Fight

"If the war continues we will face problems as we never have before. But we have no alternative. We must fight to the last ditch. You cannot solve the problem by inferior product. No one in the industry except a few on the executive end wants to cut the size of his pictures," he stated.

A few years ago distributors could count on comfortably close to 100 per cent income from foreign markets; not so at present, he pointed out. How then, in the face of such reduced revenue, can producers contemplate as costly a program as in the past, Kent pondered.

"By the fall of this year we will probably be getting from 25 to 30 per cent less in terms of dollars from abroad. For one thing, we cannot cut quality; this would affect us in the domestic market. It is possible we may have to operate in the red for two years and then hope the foreign business is there again," was his own answer.

Kent is hopeful more pretentious and costly films than ever before "might achieve for us in this market enough revenue to offset our foreign losses." That is one reason for "playing our program up to the hilt," he said. Another is that if the war should suddenly end, although he feels the signposts are not in that direction, his company would be prepared to enter trading with a line of quality pictures. "We simply must bat on quality until the worst is over," is how he put it.

Kent feels, however, that the theory of self-sufficiency, in that schedules could be geared to contemplate a profit from theatres in this country without having to depend upon foreign playing time is not feasible. He said that this particular topic was the subject of a 24-hour discussion in Chicago between himself, Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz.

"But it can't be done," he asserted. "It is easy to say 'Do this, and do that,' but all your talking won't get it out of the United States. It is up to the heads of the companies to show the way; take cuts before the others. I've done it and so have others down the line. There must be cuts in proportion to the loss of revenue if the industry is to survive. Otherwise we can look for a mess.

"Look at the labor situation," he said. "Under present circumstances we have

NEW YORK—Sidney R. Kent abandoned theories of selling pictures individually in 1923-24. Here is why, as related during his pre-trial examination in the government suit:

While in charge of distribution for Paramount, he decided to give up block-booking and "go against the field" by selling pictures separately, trade-screened before negotiated. "The open road" move was largely actuated on the premise of Jesse L. Lasky, Paramount producer, then, that to make fewer pictures and make them better would do the trick. The company had previously been selling from 75 to 120 films a year.

"We started out, but didn't get very far," Kent declared. "The practice was given up after four months' trial, because 'the exhibitors wouldn't accept it.' Our customers told us they wanted assurance of a source of supply and would not buy on a single picture basis. These are historical facts and it was a good faith effort.

"Jesse Lasky probably made the worst 52 pictures he ever made in his life during the period," he emphasized.

Grosses Move With Industrial Curves—Kent

New York—Business at theatres is "only stable during high industrial periods," Sidney R. Kent declared at his pre-trial examination in the government suit when asked if the proportion of first run revenue has increased or decreased.

"Trade goes back and forth," he said, "according to industrial conditions. When it is up, first runs boom. When people leave the factories during depressions to go back to farms, subsequents boom."

Sound Has Altered The Picture, He Says

New York—Twentieth Century-Fox received from 65 to 70 per cent of its revenue in the 1925-26 season from 1,250 first run theatres then paying the highest rentals in their respective territories, Sidney R. Kent, president, declared during his pre-trial examination in the government's key suit.

"But sound has changed all that," he said. "It has made the smaller, more intimate type of house more desirable."

Notes to You from Red Kann

IT'S not always serious at those pre-trial examinations in the government's key suit. Fun flashes, on occasion, from whatever executive is making his deposition to John Wright, who carries the title of an assistant to the attorney general of these 48 states, and in reverse. Examples:

Joe Bernhard and his flanking cohorts, composed of Robert W. Perkins, Howard Levinson and Alvin Van Bergh, were awaiting the arrival of Wright in Room 35, Federal Court Building. Scanning the quarters, Bernhard remarked:

"Is this the size of all the courtrooms?"

Perkins assured him it was.

"Hell. You couldn't get all the counsel in here."

Another:

Harry Shapiro, counsel for Eugene Mori, operator of the Landis, Vineland, N. J., finally won his way into the room after strenuous objections by Perkins. It appears Shapiro has filed a couple of anti-trust actions against the Warner circuit. Perkins protested on the ground it was on the unfair side, told Wright Shapiro had filed three actions. "That's right," said the Philadelphia lawyer. "I've come to see if I can find anything to help my latest case."

Perkins: "What! Is your case that weak?"

Shapiro: "The truth is we only came in for the races. When we read in the trade papers there was to be a hearing, we thought we'd drop in."

●

About an hour later, Bernhard interrupted the examination long enough to remark:

"Say, Harry. If you run, you can make that fourth race."

●

Lawyers, who have been, and still are, sharply criticized as "amateur politicians" and something else in some directions, are appreciating that crack by Perkins. Having established that Bernhard and the Warner theatre department make their offices on the eighth floor of their general headquarters building, Wright asked where Grad Sears hung his hat. It turned out to be the sixth. "And the law department is on the seventh, right in the middle," Perkins rejoined.

WHEN Sidney R. Kent was testifying, Wright pressed the witness for information on intra-company relations covering distribution and theatres. Declaring there never has been, and is not at present, any swapping of dope, Kent succinctly added this:

"Although we have a distribution and an exhibition arm, each is just as jealous of its prerogatives as it could be. They don't sleep together and scratch each other's back as the government thinks."

●

On the other hand, Kent readily admitted, in reply to a question, that he has had discussions with Spyros Skouras on mutual problems. Wright wanted to know the form those problems took. Kent obliged: "We recently had a conversation on the terms Metro was asking for 'Gone With the Wind.' I didn't know the terms. He told me. When I got my breath back, I wished we had a 'Wind' and could do the same thing."

●

Quite a bit of time was spent by the assistant to the attorney general in an effort to localize the extent to which various company heads aired mutual difficulties. The witness said that, while he sees executives of other companies at the Hays office meetings, the conversations were general in character.

"But don't members of the Hays office have problems in common?" Wright persisted.

"Yes," admitted Kent. "We all have the common problem of selling exhibitors and of getting as much money as possible out of them."

That's about as far as that particular tack in the conversation got.

●

On the day Judge Knox heard the petitions of the government for a May 1 trial date and of the majors' counsel for a postponement, the event drew a carload of lawyers. The tally revealed five for the government and a round two dozen for the defendants. As company attorneys filed into the judge's chambers, an associate remarked,

"I would like Your Honor to take judicial notice of the fact that Thurman Arnold has relieved unemployment at the bar."

"DISGUSTED" BY RULES, HOT OVER "CARTELS," ARNOLD FAVORS NEELY DIVORCEMENT MEASURE

"Particularly Necessary" For Trade, Due to the Delay in Suit Start

suit "is moving with incredible slowness and I think this is one of the situations where a legislative declaration of the common law can appropriately be passed."

The delay in getting to trial, he explained, is due to the advantages given the companies by the new rules of procedure now in effect in the federal courts which, ironically enough, where designed to speed up the handling of cases. He made it clear that he is disgusted with the rules, under which, he said, the department was practically forced to try its case in advance and furnish the companies with "a complete statement of everything that has been happening in the motion picture business given to the people who should be more familiar with the business than we are."

Asked by Neely whether his divorce bill met with his approval, the government trust-buster declared "that type of legislation is particularly necessary in this case because of the interminable delays which have attended it ever since it was started."

Launches Bitter Attack

Openly resentful of the position in which he found himself, Arnold launched a bitter attack against the integrated companies, asserting them to be a "vertical trust" such as might be found in Germany but distinctly "un-American."

"Such cartels are not justified in any industry and are a plain violation of the anti-trust law," he said.

"Only in the oil industry, he added, are the conditions to be found which prevail in motion pictures. The inevitable result of the vertical trust, in films and in oil, has been "bitterness, mutual suspicion and hatred."

"In the first place," he said, "it excludes the independent producer from the market or lets him come in at the sufferance of competitors. In the second place, the companies which sell to the independents also maintain control of the competing exhibition of the films that they sell, and in this particular case they have seized all the desirable markets and taken all of the best theatres, leaving for the independent only the minor theatres.

"This takes away all bargaining power from the exhibitors and gives them (the companies) control over the public taste."

A major result of such organization, Arnold charged, is extravagance and waste. Reorganization hearings before the securities and exchange commission, he said, have shown the "fantastic" salaries paid company officials, but there is no way to cut those salaries under the present setup.

"No scheme of control is going to work against the integrated system which controls the market for motion pictures from raw material right down to the consumer," he warned.

But, he added, the only remedy other than divorce is public control, in which he did not believe in the case of amusements.

"If you are going to allow this sort of thing to continue, it means regulation, and I do not believe we are ready for public control of amusements," he said. "I am aware of another bill which provides for a measure of public control. I do not think we are ready in this country to say that the amusement business is so essential a monopoly that we have got to allow it to combine and then regulate it like a railroad."

Warns of Independent Chains

Arnold told Neely his bill will not be effective unless it provides also for the breaking up of the circuits which exert monopolistic power in their own particular areas and which also are the targets of some ten government suits.

He quoted to Neely the 1918 statement of Adolph Zukor that the industry would be endangered by producer-theatre activities, and absolved the companies for responsibility for the situation. "If the government is not going to enforce the anti-trust laws we compel these business men to engage in this race for self protection," he explained, adding "it is not a question of blaming the industry, it's a question of the government blaming itself for not providing effective enforcement."

The justice official recommended that Neely drop his requirement that divorce be accomplished within 18 months, pointing out that it would seriously endanger the industry. A much longer period would be required to do the job without disorganization, he said, and while he would not immediately forecast that time, he suggested that provision might be made for dealing with each case individually and with machinery set up that "at least would not interfere with the economies of distribution."

"There are 2,400 theatres which these companies own and I am inclined to think some consideration should be given whether orderly divorce can be accomplished within that time and whether the machinery provided may not be differently stated and in a way in which it would not ruin the industry," he cautioned.

Likening the industry to a political machine, Arnold declared that enforcement of the law will help it "get on its feet and cut expenses" at a time when it is suffering from curtailment of foreign markets.

"But," he warned, "democracy will survive only if industrial democracy survives. The men in the motion picture industry are as competent as any in the world. I want to applaud the advances they have made. The only thing the anti-trust division is trying to do is to free that initiative, and if freed the business will take care of itself."

It might be well to enact the divorce legislation now, he told Neely, because "the trial in New York will last a long time and will be appealed, and during that period the department of justice must keep its ten suits around the country in step with this so they can culminate at the same time. Divorce will be almost impossible unless we can get the monopoly-chains in the bag, and this is going to be a long-drawn-out situation."

Responding to questions by Van Nuys, Arnold declared that the bill would not interfere with the litigation. On the other hand, he admitted that a favorable decision in the New York suit would accomplish what the bill would, but could not say why such a bill has never before been introduced.

Cites Foreign Loss

Explaining that he was not appearing in an official position, Pettijohn, on behalf of the companies, which are members of the MPPDA, warned Neely that the war has created a grave situation in the industry and "if this present war continues, with 25 to 30 per cent of our gross revenue involved in foreign markets, we will not be able to do what we are doing now—give to the people of the United States that quality of pictures which we must maintain in order to live at present admission prices."

During his discussion of the industry suit, Arnold settled the question of a consent decree based on the negotiations with the department of commerce, insofar as the department of justice is concerned.

There will be no such decree, he said, admitting that the department's position was in part a reflection of the attitude of Allied States. In fact, he intimated, there never was a chance that such a settlement

Washington—There are many men in prominent positions in the industry who agree fully with the department of justice in its views as to what should be done, Thurman Arnold asserted in his appearance before an abbreviated subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee.

Unfortunately, he added, they are on the boards of the companies under attack and "in a position where they cannot express themselves publicly."

DIVORCEMENT PROPOSAL AGAIN POSES ISSUE

IF LAW LIMITING AN INDUSTRY CAN HOLD UP

Divorcement Bill Would Face a Court Battle; Precedents Cited

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Introduction of the Neely theatre-divorce bill again has raised the question of constitutionality of legislation limiting the activities of an industry.

Counsel for the distributors are represented as believing that such a measure would be invalid. A second point raised is that it would be an unconstitutional discrimination against a single industry.

Both points are subject to debate, but in the last analysis the U. S. supreme court would decide them—and there are many precedents for a decision holding them legal.

Neither point is new, either in discussion or in litigation. In informal conversations, department of justice attorneys point out that there are definite applicable precedents and express confidence that if a divorce law were enacted it would be upheld in the courts.

Other Cases "Analogous"

Unfortunately, maybe, the North Dakota divorce statute never was the subject of a supreme court opinion. However, it is said, there are other cases more or less analogous to that of motion pictures in which the court has held divorce constitutional, thereby denying also the claim of discrimination.

Probably the most direct of these decisions was that in the so-called packers' case, in which the packing companies were prohibited from operating retail outlets. A clear-cut case of divorce was that of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., required to divest itself of coal mines which it owned.

Congress, of course, can enact any sort of legislation it wishes. The test of whether that legislation shall hold is in the courts, and the questions there considered are those of public interest—whether, for instance, the law is designed to curb unfair methods of competition or prevent or break up a monopoly.

It is a foregone conclusion that in fighting a divorce law in the courts, the film companies would be required to meet government charges that through the ownership of theatres they had an unfair advantage over independent competitors and that the ownership of theatres also led to monopolistic situations. In short, the government, in defending such a suit, would raise the same points as in the all-industry case now pending.

In dealing with similar laws in the past, the supreme court has held that Congress has the right to regulate an individual industry, where such regulation is necessary, where the industry is imbued with a public interest. It has, accordingly, affirmed regulation of the railroads, of shipping, of communications, the coal industry and many others; similarly, it has upheld the validity of state laws regulating insurance companies, the oil industry, retail trade, etc.

There is apparently no question of the propriety of Congress enacting legislation applicable only to the film industry; the constitutionality of a divorce law, as seen in Washington, would not depend on that question but on whether conditions in the industry were such that divorce was a logical remedy.

S. 3735

WASHINGTON—Text of Senator Neely's bill seeking theatre divorcement, read twice and referred to the committee on the judiciary, follows:

To prohibit producers and distributors of motion picture films engaged in interstate commerce from owning, controlling, managing, operating, or having any interest in motion picture theatres in the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

That the condition which exists in the motion picture industry whereby certain producers and distributors of motion picture films (1) produce and distribute in commerce a majority of the quality films available for exhibition, (2) have acquired control of or an interest in a large number of motion picture theatres, known as "affiliated theatres," and (3) are continuing to acquire additional theatres, is contrary to public policy in that it (a) has resulted in granting to affiliated theatres undue preferences; (b) has caused unfair discrimination against independent theatres with respect to the leasing of films in commerce; (c) has enabled such producers and distributors to acquire a virtual monopoly of the first-run theatres in the principal cities and a virtual monopoly of subsequent-run theatres in certain cities and sections; (d) interferes with the freedom and opportunity of independent exhibitors to select and obtain an adequate supply of quality films for exhibition in their theatres; (e) prevents the people of the several states and the local communities thereof from influencing such selection in the best interests of the public; and (f) tends to create a monopoly in the production, distribution and exhibition of films in commerce. The Congress finds and declares that the condition herein described and the methods and practices bringing it about and resulting therefrom adversely affect and constitute a burden upon commerce, and it is the purpose of this Act to eliminate such condition by making it unlawful to engage in such practices.

Section 2.—For the purposes of this Act, unless the context otherwise requires—

(1) The term "motion picture theatre" or "theatre" includes any place in which motion pictures are publicly exhibited and to which an admission price is charged.

(2) The term "motion picture film" or "film" includes all motion picture films (whether copyrighted or uncopyrighted), including positives and negatives, and copies or reproductions thereof, which films contain photoplays or other subjects and are produced for public exhibition.

(3) The term "person" includes one or more individuals, partnerships, associations, corporations, legal representatives, trustees, trustees in bankruptcy, or receivers.

(4) The term "producer" includes any person who engages or contracts to engage in the production of motion picture films for distribution in commerce either directly, or through a controlled or affiliated corporation or by another person under contract or any other arrangement whatsoever.

(5) The term "distributor" includes any person who engages or contracts to engage in the distribution of motion picture films in commerce, whether as seller, lessor, or licensor, and whether the distribution is effected by means of sale, lease, license, contract, or any other type of agreement whereby the film is supplied for public exhibition.

(6) The term "commerce" means between any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia and any place outside thereof; or between points within the same State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, but through any place outside thereof; or within any Territory or the District of Columbia.

For the purpose of this Act (but in no wise limiting the definition of commerce) a person shall be considered to be engaged in commerce if he engages in transactions whereby motion picture films produced in one State are by the producer or a subsidiary or affiliated corporation of such producer shipped to film laboratories and to local exchanges in other States, or are by the producer sold, leased or licensed at the point of production to a distributor and so shipped to film laboratories or local exchanges in other States, and, in either case, are distributed by the local exchanges in the several States to the motion picture theatres in various cities and towns throughout the United States, the films moving from the studios to the laboratories and thence to the exchanges, thereafter circulating from the exchanges to and between the various theatres. Persons normally engaged in such commerce, and films normally in the course of such commerce, shall not be considered out of such commerce through resort being had to any

See Gov't Relying On Gore of Tampa

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ALBANY, GA.—Century Circuit may be the independent circuit on which the government may rely in pushing its anti-trust suit in the Greater New York area, but in the south it is expected B. F. Gore, who operates one theatre in Tampa, will play a vital part in the plaintiff's case. At least, a group of unaffiliated theatremen here for Paramount's world premiere of "The Biscuit Eater" thought so.

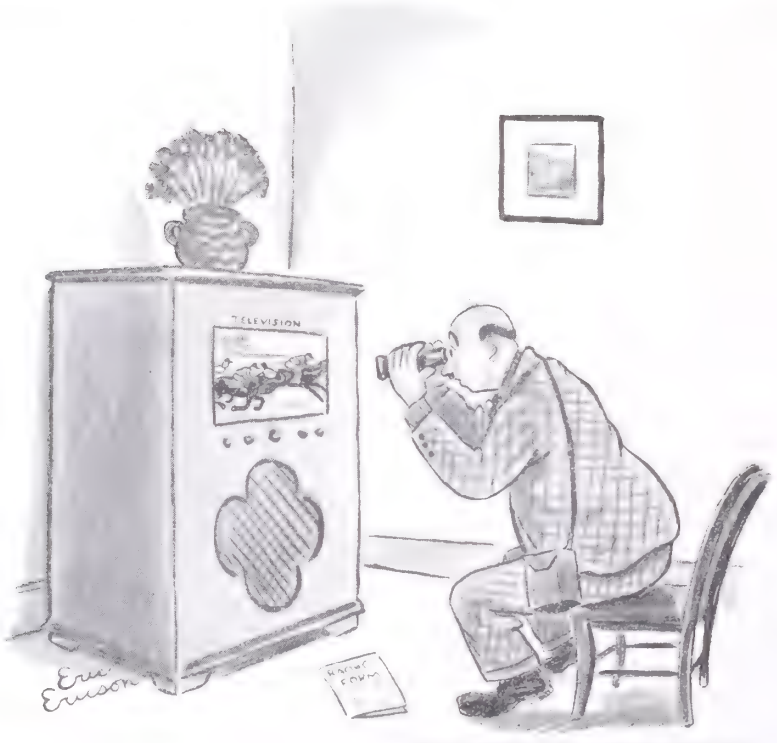
It is reported here Gore has managed to secure correspondence and certain contracts from the Sparks' circuit office in Jacksonville. What they contain is not known generally, but it is believed E. J. Sparks and his attorneys are fully aware of the situation and are prepared for whatever developments may come to light.

According to one exhibitor, "Gore will be the government's mainstay in the south." There are other complainants with whom exhibitors profess to be familiar but of them they remark, "Their own records are nothing to brag about. This will come out if the case ever reaches trial."

Down here, the consensus among independent exhibitors is that distributors ought to fight the anti-trust suit to a finish because they feel distributors "will undoubtedly lick the government." Remarks one theatreman, who might be viewed as representative of a substantial cross-sectional opinion, "There's no doubt about it in my mind." This man has been in the business 19 years, has passed through many divergent experiences and says he knows many of the probable witnesses and their case histories.

That FBI men have been active for the past month or more in checking new complaints and contacting exhibitors whose names already have been mentioned is known and frequently mentioned. In one particular case, investigators for the government have checked into details of an anti-trust case decided about 20 years ago. It is understood this litigation involved L. D. Joel, now operating the Casino, Jacksonville, who, two decades ago, had theatres in Lakeland, Spartanburg and Greenville. According to L. A. Stein, his son-in-law, Joel sued S. A. Lynch for $1,000,000 and came out with a $1 verdict in the Jacksonville, Fla., federal district court.

An FBI man recently was in touch with Joel and revived the old action, Stein continues. Joel, according to Stein who himself operates a small circuit of 14 houses in Florida and Georgia, informed the DJ men he was getting along and had no complaints to file against anyone in the business. Whereupon the FBI man operative, continued Stein, had informed Joel he intended introducing facts in connection with the suit, now two decades old.



Stein also maintains Joel informed the FBI man he would not appear for the government in the event he was subpoenaed. Despite this reported objection, Joel appears in the government lineup of potential witnesses. About a month ago, the same operative called on him, Stein maintains, although he had never filed a complaint alleging unfair tactics with the department of justice. "I told him," Stein informs BOXOFFICE, "we had no complaint. He began to ask a lot of foolish questions and I told him there was nothing to them. It's the Allied crowd in New Jersey, New England and Philadelphia who are making all the trouble," he alleges. "You know the men I mean, Abram F. Myers and his group."

The block-in-five-or-more plan, discussed as part of a consent decree is viewed with some concern among unaffiliated exhibitors, or those who attended the Paramount premiere, anyway. The consensus demonstrates a belief conditions have changed and have made necessary a reshuffling of the cards. Nevertheless, opinion favors a trial of the suit, if for no other reason than to show, or to prove to the government, that a number of squawkers are "a lot of thieves, chiselers and no good competitors." New elements in industry operation are apparently anticipated. No one appears willing to hazard a guess when this will come about, although the sentiment is this should have been done a long time ago, but sans government threats and suits.

In terms of more specific problems, some southern exhibitors express grave concern over the drive-in theatre and the practice of distributors, majors and independents, in permitting schools and other non-regulation theatres to compete via 16mm films. One theatreman reports he saw a narrow gauge version of "The Rains Came" in Boston before he played it in his own theatre. He states all distributors indulge in the general practice.

Claude Ezell, former partner in Bank Night with Rick Ricketson, is planning a string of drive-in theatres in the south, it is understood.

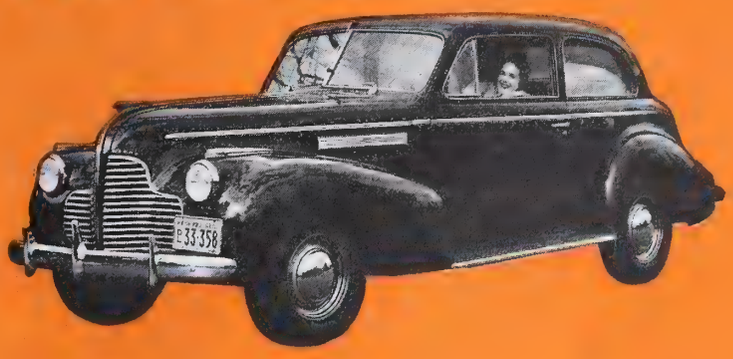
No Rush by Others to Cut Number of Prints

NEW YORK—If "gold is where you find it," prints are there to accommodate the business. That, in a nutshell, seems to be sales executives' reaction when asked if they, too, are following 20th Century-Fox in "materially reducing" the numerical outlay. There is general admission the situation would become burdensome if demands by exhibitors for "more and more prints" were met.



But in virtually every sales quarter the answer is that "scientific systems" have been set up to take care of this. For instance, M-G-M has an A, B and C setup. Each picture, on its merits, falls into a print quota classification. However, if a B quota film does extra business the number of prints jumps to the A quota.

In other words, and this covers the picture, any reasonable number of extra prints will be put out if extra business warrants it, it is said.

Denies Independents Get Film Leftovers

NEW YORK—The department of justice is "110,000,000 miles away from the facts" if, as one of its representatives inferred, the major distributors close seasonal contracts first with the affiliated circuits and parcel out what is left to independent exhibitors. The long-distance statement came from Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox president. The inference came from John L. Wright, assistant attorney general, during the pre-trial examination of Kent in the all-industry suit.

The clash of opinions developed at the end of a series of interrogations broken up into two days to accommodate Kent, who was under doctor's orders that confined his examination to two-hour periods. He had finished his direct examination by Wright when John Caskey, of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, the distributor's counsel in the suit, launched into a series of questions to bring out "facts" which the department of justice, as Caskey charged, continue to misinterpret in its answers to defendants' interrogatories.

Ten-Point Denial

In the course of Caskey's questioning, Kent unequivocally denied that his company:

(1) Is affiliated with the Skouras circuit in the east.

(2) Is affiliated with Fox Metropolitan Theatres Corp. in this area.

(3) Has any "beneficial interest" in the United Artists theatre circuit.

(4) Has at any time conspired with other defendants in production, distribution or exhibition.

(5) Has conspired with other defendants to monopolize first runs in metropolitan or key cities.

(6) Has conspired with other defendants to monopolize exhibition in all cities in this country where affiliated theatres "operate and exist."

(7) Has entered into a conspiracy with major distributors to "divide the United States among them" to the exclusion of other competition.

(8) Has promised to service affiliated houses as they are built with first-run product.

(9) Has entered into agreement with anyone to the extent, numerically, of feature production or distribution.

(10) Has conspired to restrain the open bidding of feature players, directors, technicians and artisans of all character.

His Own Responsibility

Somewhat in the form of a summation, Caskey asked Kent if any person with 20th Century-Fox, outside of the witness, had any authority to agree to "anything" to which the company might be open on charges of illegal restraint in production, distribution or exhibition. Kent replied that any such responsibility was, and is, his alone.

Caskey then asked if Kent had ever committed such an act. The witness said: "I have not, implied or direct, whispered or written."

During Caskey's interrogation of the witness, Wright objected to the "form" of the attorney's questions, almost without exception. The entire deposition is a matter of record with the court and becomes what is believed to be the first direct, in-person denial of charges contained in the government's original petition.

Kent proved not only a willing witness but one who continually went beyond the scope implied by each of Wright's questions. For instance, during the first day's examination there was much discussion relative to prints—the average run, the cost, turn-over. Kent, relying solely on his memory at the time, was only able to answer in generalities. However, when he appeared for the second session before Wright the next day he brought with him an authentic record of his company's print situation.

This is the way it went on the record: For the 1938-39 season, the last figures available, the company's peak load on any one picture was 376; the lowest, 170; the average, 246.4. Total for the season on all pictures was 12,813. The highest number of exhibitions for a single print was 14,600; the lowest, 5,552. The company's aggregate prints up to April 1, 1940, was 476,641, with an average of 37 exhibitions per print.

Wright wanted to know the purpose of clearance. "To protect revenue," Kent replied. "It is the only manner in which we can get proper revenue for our films. A large portion comes from the first runs. If he didn't have this exclusive privilege, his policy would be destroyed."

"Well," went Wright's next move, "couldn't you get as much revenue if pictures were shown simultaneously at first runs and subsequent runs?"

"The theorists believe so. But there are a great many economic reasons why this is not possible; the producers would be out of business in a short time. Clearance is set up to isolate a run, like an island, and directs attention to that particular engagement. The exhibitor pays a very, very big sum for that privilege. If everyone ran pictures at once, the first run would have to lower his price to the average charged by the 14th run and the 14th run would have to charge the average of the first runs. And the print cost would surely put us out of business."

This led to Kent's observation that cost of prints runs to about $140 each. Certainly, Wright suggested, 20th Century-Fox gets back many times its print costs. Kent said that the average run of prints has been figured thousands of times. "Some pictures are lucky to get back their cost—others get it back many times more. We have to live by an average. If we can increase our profits, we're greedy enough to do it and we would do it."

It was at this point Kent revealed he has informed Herman Wobber, in charge of distribution, the number of prints should be "materially reduced." The move is an "economic necessity," he said. The about 60 per cent of our income left. Yet labor wants the same money as when we were getting closer to 100 per cent. The unions don't want to give up a thing. Their attitude is a testimonial to the utter selfishness of part of the industry. We will have to show them figures to more fully reflect what has been told them. They don't believe what we tell them. Even should they be convinced I'm not so sure they'd do anything about it; probably just look out the window."

His final observation on this point, which included the view that "artistic material hasn't gone down, either," was: "The people in the industry, making a living out of it, must make some contribution."

reduction will be among that classification of product returning the least profit, he added.

Wright wanted Kent's views on centralized operation of theatres. The witness said this is like any other theory on which people differ. His opinion is not favorable toward this practice, he admitted. Wright asked what advantages exist in decentralized operation. The witness replied: "The most important thing you can get; manpower, which is none too prolific in this business. Manpower has roots in the ground, like a tree. It builds good will in a community and should be left alone to operate that way. Some people don't agree with me, but it's my humble opinion."

The assistant attorney general was interested in the history of percentage as it applies to sales; its beginning and acceptability. The history of percentage, Kent said, is a progressive one. He had a prominent part in the introduction of the practice, for which he was "rudely attacked," he went on. When first introduced, it called for a guarantee and a split. Exhibitor organizations protested. They said it was not fair to ask for a guarantee. The procedure then was for straight percentage, with a split over a certain figure—usually 50-50. Then came dissatisfaction over the 50-50 split, he related. At present, the practice has evolved to a point where there are few guarantees.

Now "Few Guarantees"

"We put millions into a picture," Kent declared, "and put it into a theatre without a guarantee and gamble on what the public will do." Yet the procedure is regarded as the most desirable of all sales approaches, he admitted. For additional information, he suggested Wright "look at the growth of the industry." Nevertheless, Kent acknowledged many exhibitors will not buy on percentage. One reason, he admits, is that "smaller" pictures are not entitled to a percentage rating. Another, is that it is more profitable for exhibitors to buy flat.

"There is no exact science that any one can evolve regarding percentage selling, and this includes the theorists," he declared. "It is difficult to put an exact rating on a picture, even after it is finished and shown to the public."

Lest there was any doubt in Wright's mind that the practice is unfair, he put into the record that adjustments are made continually to maintain good will. Kent remembered that, when he left Paramount in 1932 as manager of distribution, the company sold about 60 per cent of its program on percentage. By contrast, 20th Century-Fox, with whom he next became associated, was then selling only four or five pictures on percentage and the balance flat.

"I changed that at Fox very quickly," he added. The combination of this move and better quality brought the company from 5,500 accounts to 10,000 in four years. "You see," he smiled, "percentage didn't chase them away."

Here he revealed that 75 per cent of the company's program for 1940-41 will be sold on percentage. The company would like to sell the entire program that way but the dual bill situation makes it impractical for many smaller exhibitors to buy in this manner, he observed.

In answer to a direct question, Kent said the company's subsidiary, National Theatres, and the distribution department "operate entirely on their own." He only enters the picture when disputes arise, and then decides "on what I think is right—each has complete freedom of operation and often doesn't approve of each others' acts."

Wright wanted to know the extent of the witness's activity with Spyros Skouras, National Theatres head. "I see him on an average of once a day when we are both in town. We talk about problems and discuss them as any other department."

"What problems?" he was asked.

"Well, we recently discussed Warner and Metro. Especially the terms on 'Gone With the Wind.' He asked my opinion. I gave it to him. And he went ahead and did as he pleased, anyway."

Says Circuit "Protective"

Wright asked if 20th Century-Fox enjoyed any benefits from its theatre affiliate. Kent replied there is an advantage in exploiting the company's product and a "source of protection" in that a "certain amount of revenue is stabilized."

What benefits do National Theatres derive from its parent company? Wright then asked. The protection of a well-known brand of product, Kent said, and "loyalty that goes beyond mere price, in case another circuit wanted to take its product away."

The assistant attorney general asked if, based on his experience with Paramount, the witness saw any advantages in the affiliation of its circuit with distribution. Any conclusions, the witness observed, would be hypothetical. Yet he was of the opinion that, if Paramount had not met the threat of competing circuits at the time, the company would have gone out of business.

Did the threat that led Paramount to acquire theatres cease to exist by 1935? Wright asked. Not precisely, Kent said. The First National circuit was very active at that period, and then William Fox set out to control the theatre market, he declared. This was in the 1926-1931 period.

"Well," Wright persisted, "there haven't been any similar threats since 1931, have there?"

Kent: "No one has had any money since 1931, outside of Metro."

Join the Vice-Presidential Ranks—

To the left, George F. Dembow. To the right, William B. Brenner. They are now vice-presidents of National Screen Service Corporation by vote of its board. Veteran NSS executives both, Dembow has been general sales manager, now becomes vice-president in charge of sales. Brenner has been general executive, now becomes vice-president in charge of operations.

20th-Fox Almost Cut To 36 for 1940-41

New York—Discussed and reversed several times until the 52 for the new season finally were determined upon, it appears 20th Century-Fox almost decided on 36 of which 24 would have been "A's" and 12 "B's." S. R. Kent, Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck favored the slash, as reported in BOXOFFICE from Hollywood last fall.

Herman Wobber declares the current schedule, in its final tally, will show 12 pictures which grossed $1,000,000 or more domestically. These include "The Rains Came," "Drums Along the Mohawk," "Stanley and Livingstone," "Swanee River," "Hollywood Cavalcade," "The Grapes of Wrath," "The Blue Bird," "Everything Happens at Night," "Little Old New York," "Maryland" and "Lillian Russell." Several are yet to be released.

means or device intended to remove persons or transactions from the provisions of this Act. For the purpose of this paragraph, the word "State" includes Territory and the District of Columbia.

Section 3.—It shall be unlawful for any producer or distributor of motion picture films engaged in commerce to own, control, manage, buy or book films, for, or operate, in whole or in part, any motion picture theatre or theatres located in any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or to have any interest, direct or indirect, legal or equitable, through stock ownership or otherwise in any such motion picture theatre or theatres.

Section 4.—Every producer or distributor of motion pictures engaged in commerce shall file with the Attorney General within thirty days after this Act becomes effective, and annually thereafter on or before the 15th day of January, an affidavit stating whether such producer or distributor owns, controls, manages, buys, or books films for, or operates in whole or in part, any motion picture theatre or theatres located in any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or has any interest, direct or indirect, legal or equitable, through stock ownership or otherwise, in any such motion picture theatre or theatres. If the producer or distributor making any such affidavit has any interest in or connection with any such theatre or theatres, he shall state fully the nature and extent of such interest or connection and shall also state the name and location of the theatre or theatres in question.

Section 5.—The district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of this Act; and it shall be the duty of the several district attorneys of the United States, in their respective districts, under the direction of the Attorney General, to institute civil proceedings to prevent and restrain such violations. Such proceedings may be by way of complaint setting forth the case and praying that such violation shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited. When the parties complained of have been duly notified of such complaint, the court shall proceed, as soon as may be, to the hearing and determination of the case; and pending such complaint, and before final judgment, the court may at any time make such temporary restraining order or prohibition as shall be just in the premises. The power to prevent and restrain violations of this Act shall include the power to order the divestiture of theatres or interests in theatres held in violation of the Act. Whenever it shall appear to the court before which any such proceeding may be pending that the ends of justice require that other parties should be brought before the court, the court may cause them to be summoned whether they reside in the district in which the court is held or not, and subpoenas to that end may be served in any district by the marshal thereof.

Section 6.—Any person who is a producer or distributor and has any interest in or connection with a theatre or theatres in violation of Section 3 of this Act, or who fails to file the affidavit as and when required by Section 4 of this Act, or who knowingly makes any false statement in such affidavit, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment for not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. In the case of a corporation, the violation of this Act shall be deemed to be also that of the individual directors, officers, or agents of such corporation who have authorized, ordered, done or had knowledge of any of the acts or omissions constituting in whole or in part such violation, and upon conviction thereof any such director, officers, or agent shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, as in this section provided.

Section 7.—If any provision of this Act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the remainder of the Act, and the applicability of such provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby.

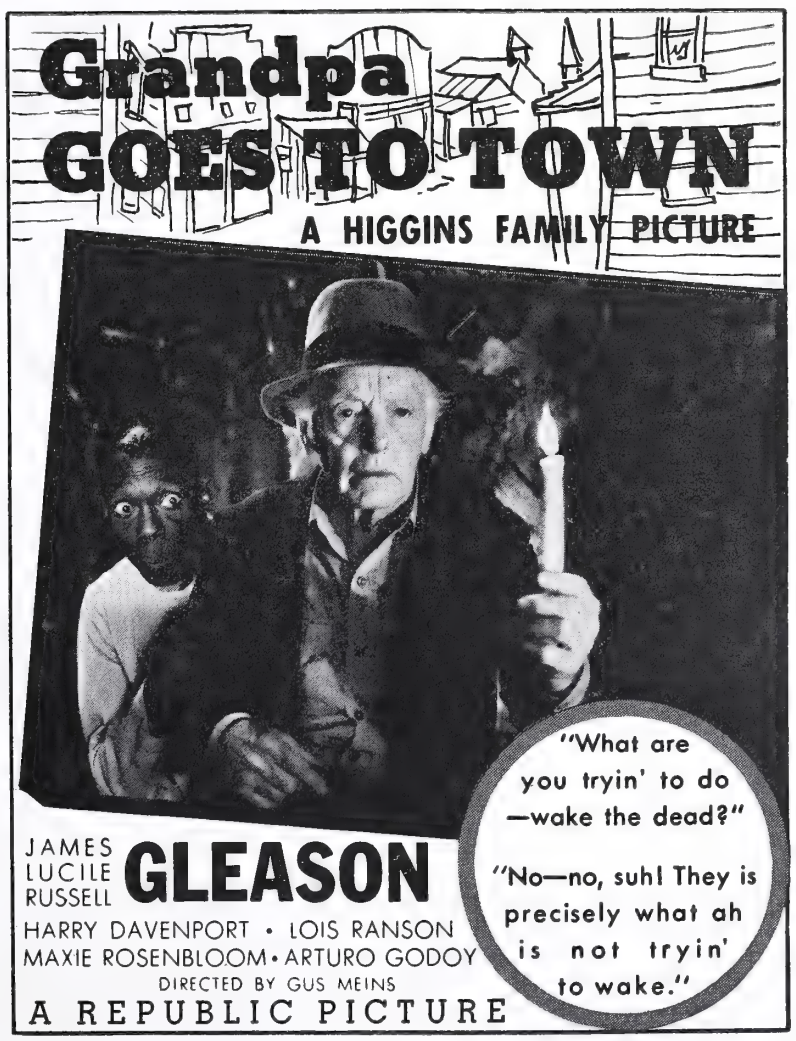
Section 8.—This Act shall become effective eighteen months after its enactment.

Paramount Set to Hold One National Meeting

NEW YORK—Paramount is tentatively set to hold one national sales convention, probably in Hollywood, the end of May, according to Neil F. Agnew, in charge of distribution. The conclave would be followed by a series of district meetings. Agnew will determine the date and place definitely when he confers with studio executives early next month.

Pathe Is Financing Neufeld for PRC

NEW YORK—Pathe will contribute up to 66 2/3 per cent of the 15 pictures Sigmund Neufeld Productions will make for the newly formed Producers Releasing Corp. The group of 15 is slated for delivery this season and is to be in the $25,000 budget class.



PRC is in no way connected with the defunct Producers Distributing Corp., formerly headed by Ben Judell. Creditors will be taken care of from the income of seven pictures released by the company. Pathe, a preferred creditor, gets first call.

Seventeen franchise holders also are contributing to the home office sums to permit the national company to finance production. Franchises have been set in 18 key cities.

Harry Rathner is president of PRC, in charge of sales. L. Rutstein of Coast Pictures Productions and Harry Asher, Boston exchange operator, are vice-presidents. Bert Kulick is secretary-treasurer.

"Legacy" Deal Near

HOLLYWOOD—A deal is about to be inked for Robert E. Sherwood to produce "Legacy" for Columbia. It is a one picture deal and involves Anatole Litvak to direct and possibly Warner Baxter and Luise Rainer to star.

$300,000 in Bank Loan to Monogram

DALLAS—Delegates to Monogram's national sales convention here were informed the company has secured a $300,000 cash loan for production from Guaranty Trust of New York.

Franchise holders were unanimous in approval of consistent use of local talent in support of western stars, the theory being that there is heightened interest when prominent radio and orchestral talent, well-known in a definite region, is employed in the outdoor dramas.

The sessions were highlighted by an address by Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president; Bob O'Donnell of Interstate; Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois, and Mike Rice, counsel for Robb & Rowley. Kuykendall exhorted Monogram to approach its problems with sincerity and an appreciation of the human values involved. He urged a broader view in building future relationships between distributor and exhibitor; that business hatreds and turmoils should be forgotten for the greater good of the industry at large.

Rice observed there exist too many half truths about the industry; so much so that these have warped public opinion and poisoned the public viewpoint. It was his opinion those engaged in its activities should "fight for it," as other industries fight for theirs.

Kirsch pledged the 173 theatres of his organization to the company's support.

On the dais were W. Ray Johnston, Edward A. Golden, Scott R. Dunlap, Tom P. Loach, Ed Schieber, John S. Harrington, George W. Weeks and Edward Finney.

George Burroughs of Guaranty Trust was introduced. The franchise holders adopted a resolution expressing condolences to Johnston on the death of his father, news of which reached the convention while in session.

Monogram Productions Aimed at the Americas

DALLAS—Taking cognizance of a self-sufficiency plan in the home or, at least, neighboring markets, W. Ray Johnston declares Monogram will fashion its 1940-41 program "principally for the United States and Latin-American markets."

"Homespun" stories, he says, will be selected for their potential appeal to large and small theatres in both Americas. Several vehicles will have Spanish and Mexican backgrounds and many of the westerns, comprising half of the total list, are to receive treatment from this angle.

J. B. Johnston, Ray's Father, Dies at 79

WATERLOO, IA.—Burial rites for J. B. Johnston, father of W. Ray Johnston, Monogram president, were conducted here. He was 79. Surviving are his widow, five sons and a daughter.

News of the death reached Johnston at the Monogram franchise holders' convention at Dallas from where he arrived to attend the services.

"Must Live on Domestic Revenue"—Hutchinson

NEW YORK—That film companies, like any others engaged in world trade, will have to live on domestic revenue in order to survive dislocations in international order caused by war is the toscin which Walter J. Hutchinson, foreign sales director of 20th Century-Fox, sounds for the industry.

Hutchinson, who left late in the week to attend a convention in Havana, feels shrinkage of foreign revenues must force the industry to effect an immediate readjustment.

Ace Time for "Russell"

NEW YORK—"Alexander's Ragtime Band" playing time will be sought by 20th Century-Fox for "Lillian Russell."

Exhaustive Experiments Slated for Sonovox

HOLLYWOOD—Walt Disney has elaborate plans in mind for Sonovox, recently invented device that is said to make possible many sound contortions, but thorough experimentation will be exhausted before it is put to practical use. Dick Condon of Disney's eastern office is due here soon to put the device through tests.

Frown on Slot Movies

TORONTO—A two-man committee representing the ITA of Ontario voices formal opposition to any introduction of slot machine films in Canada. A contemplated method of thwarting such plans is seen through impost of a high annual tax.

It's Convention Time Once More—

The upper shot pictorially reports the arrival of a Monogram group at Dallas. In the accepted order are John S. Harrington, manager of the print department; Jack Gruben, Texas salesman; Harry H. Thomas, New York district manager; Steve Broidy, Boston franchise holder; Edward A. Golden, general sales manager; Bill Onie, Cincinnati franchise holder; Ed Schieber, assistant treasurer; George West, St. Louis franchise holder, and Ben Welansky, Boston franchise holder. In the center, John Franconi, who has the Texas territory, greets Thomas. Below, Golden lights the pipe of Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson of Texas, who was official greeter of the sales powwows.

tion, coupled with a provision against further acquisitions of theatres anywhere save under the most exceptional circumstances.

"The directors recognize that to require the defendants to dispose of a large number of theatres in a short space of time might impose upon them an unnecessary hardship," he said. "Consequently, they see no objection to allowing the process to be spread over a period of years. Neither do they see any objection to allowing the defendants to retain their key city first-run houses in which to exploit their own pictures. It will be recalled that the producer-distributors first entered the field of exhibition through the acquisition of this class of theatres for the alleged reason that they were necessary showcases for the initial display of their productions."

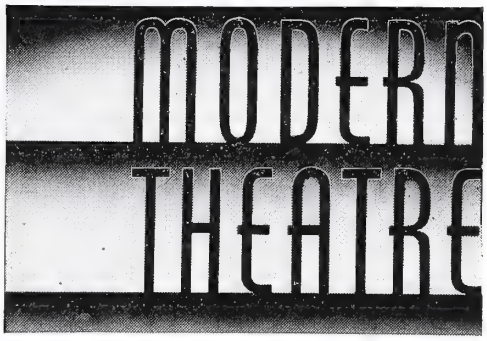
Allied, however, was represented as unalterably opposed to the proposed new selling setup, and would "infinitely prefer" the Neely block booking bill.

"The exhibitors are not interested in breaking down selling to small groups," the letter explained; "what they want is protection against compulsory block booking—the requirement that they shall take pictures they do not want in order to get the pictures they desire.

Small Blocks "No Relief"

"A majority of the directors are of the opinion that breaking down the blocks to groups of from five to eight pictures does not alter the principle of block booking, since the exhibitor quite conceivably might have to take several undesirable pictures in order to get the picture or pictures he wants. It is not likely that the distributors will put their quality pictures in one group and their 'clucks' in another; on the contrary, the probabilities are that they will scatter their best pictures through the groups in such manner as virtually to force the selling of their entire output.

"The exhibitors greatly prefer buying once a year, or as infrequently as possible. They want selectivity, not retail selling."



The association, on the whole, approved the general principles of the proposed setup for arbitration, but offered many criticisms of details.

In conclusion, Myers called attention to the fact that there was involved in the situation the question of damages which might be collected by exhibitors.
